(An editorial for young people in The Hamilton Spectator)

Those who study the habits of wild animals are always impressed by the order and discipline in that department of Nature. The instinct to survive often appears mechanical, but there is gentleness in it, too, and man degrades it when he calls it "the law of the jungle."

The immaculate order of the lower kingdoms of Nature could not exist without perfect discipline. Beginning with a kitten, with his intelligence and reason, has rebelled against the authority of Nature which, in the human section, appears blind, heartless and authoritarian. But still there are priceless lessons to be learned by close study of Nature in action.

A tigress, basking in a jungle glade with her cubs, makes a charming picture. The cubs, too young yet to be concerned with such heavenly stuff as food, romp on the beaten-down grass and leaves, always within sight of their mother. The tigress may appear to doze, but if the cubs play too near the edge of the glade she gives a warning growl and if that is not instantly obeyed she follows it with a blow, one that makes the cubs jump.

The tigress knows that the time when there has been enough romping and when the serious business of learning must commence has been introduced into the day's activities.

Immediately lessons begin, play ceases and the cubs become serious. Instinct seems to give complete attention and absolute obedience. Lessons must be well learned for life is keenly competitive in the jungle.

The tigress' muscles grow tense, her ears are raised to catch the slightest sound, her eye is unclouded by an unwary foot, her sharp eyes are concentrated not for the lack of a sense of smell —note the tiniest flickering shadow. All her body is tense, outstretch at their mother's side, imitating all her actions.

Between every lesson there is a pupil is perfect.

In the civilization that man has built for himself, the punishments for disobedience are not so severe and final as they are in wild nature, but both obedience and discipline are equally essential, if they are not so apparent. Life is governed by laws governed by rules of conduct, high among which stands discipline, which is best taught, and developed in an atmosphere of obedient attention to those whose duty it is to instruct the rising generation.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If, in their turn, the Chinese become a world power and, like their predecessors, whether Roman or Spanish or British, seek out new territory to inhabit, America and especially Canada, must look exceptionally empty and fruitful and inviting. If such a thing ever should arise, it will not be new. It will simply be the old story of history taking back from the white man lands they originally owned, because there is now little doubt in historians' minds that the so-called Indians, who arrived, as far as can be determined, in America 15,000 years ago, were Asiatics.

They had America in their possession for thousands of years and developed several wonderful societies or civilizations before the European came 450 years ago, and calmly proceeded to exterminate them. And the white man's record is full of similar horrors.

What our forebears did to the Indians is not taught in the schools today, but it is one of us who are gifted with guilt consciousness, Ruth Murray Underhill, who teaches at the University of Chicago has published, "Red Man's America," which enters in full into the history of the Indian from the beginnings, and tells of the Asiatic tinct to his dispersal and virtual extermination on the reservations and reservations. The book deals almost exclusively with the Indians of the United States, including to some extent Canada, and leaves one facing a question with the white man's claim, today, that they did not know anything about what the Nazis were doing at Belsen and

Einstein Was Un-American

(Montreal Gazette)

Americans have always taken justifiable pride in the fact that when Albert Einstein denounced the Nazis and dropped his German citizenship, in 1933, it was the United States he chose as his new country. This is an intriguing reflection, although Einstein was one of the few unquestionable geniuses in the world's history, he was utterly un-American in every way. Not only did he lack many of characteristics most Americans admire in their successful men, even his scientific work had an unchangeable Old World approach.

Einstein considered money a bother. He dressed like a careless hobo. Fame, interviews, publicity he shunned. Any collaborator who misunderstood all his views on everyday matters, would soon him treat likely to one's creed." Scientifically, he was even more un-American. His lifework was concerned with pure, rather than applied science. He sought not to improve on Newton's edge's sake, not with an improved jet engine, a new synthetic yarn or a foolproof vaccine at the end in view.

Einstein's methods, too, were directly contradictory to the pragmatic principle (only what can be proved is true), so popular in America. He developed theories for which no proof was available. One of the five theories he set forth in 1905 remained unproven as proven only in 1919. His equation, of the same date, concerning mass and energy was proven until the first atomic explosion in 1945.

Considering all these things, it will ever remain to the credit of the United States that it gave him not only refuge and economic support, but the chance to carry on his theoretical science to work, uninterrupt. ed, unhampered and uniquely without any "production quota" to be filled.

Advocates of pure research—and there are many in the United States—can point to several arguments in favor which are found in the story of Einstein's life. Immediately, there is enough to provide solutions. Before the applied engineers can develop methods of application, the theoretical scientists are on the kind of theories which are produced more easily by the pure scientist with his pencil and scratchpad. The free world must see to it that such research is given the nourishment it requires.

Iodine Deficiency and "Colds"

A reader says she and her husband have been taking the iodization for two years and "no colds, thanks to you. We need you" et cetera.

Whadays mean more doctors like me? What people really want is the truth in practice they change doctors.

For nearly a year I have been saying God Bless You letters in a special file, which is beginning to bulge. I had some vague idea that such testimonials would show that I have the file ready I realize it is like money in the bank—you can't take it with you. Nevertheless I'm grateful to this correspondent and to all the others who have blessed me: No matter what the circumstances may be or how undeserving one may feel, such a blessing is always inspiring.

Whether Iodine deficiency has anything to do with immunity or susceptibility to the common respiratory infections (C R I) I do not know.

But in any case it can do no harm to correct iodine deficiency. I am sure, that most American adults and children get insufficient iodine to maintain good nutrition.

Bear in mind, everything I say about iodine in this column, ap-plies to nutritional iodine. The use of iodine or iodides as medicine is not a question of hygiene, physiology or health. It is strictly a medical question and should be left to your physician's judgment.

Perhaps the most familiar sign of iodine deficiency in children from 8 to 12 is simple goitre. In children 13 to 16, moping. In children 16 to 20, tendency to doze in church, class or other situations where they should'n't.

Common manifestations of iodine deficiency in persons past 35:

Subnormal body temperature, cold hands and feet; desire for more clothing and greater indoor warmth than normal individuals; feeling comfortable; accumulation of excess flabby flesh; dry, sallow skin; dry, falling, premature graying hair; a melancholic outlook and manner noticeably unlike their former cheerful disposition.

If I do not advise anyone to take, continue or discontinue taking any medicinal preparation of iodine, the iodides recommended by Mrs. Sumsey or prescribed for you by Aunt Jane by a leading physician.

In my opinion most Americans can take better advantage of their better health if they boost their intake of iodine. And if they go taking one of the pamphlet, such iodine intake can do harm.

Rejected Legacies

(Christian Science Monitor)

A young senior at Yale University recently told Dean Jeffery New York court to let him renounce all claim to a $350,000 trust fund established for him by his father. He said he has "two hands and a head of his own" and wants to make his own way in the world.

Either he or the court, of course, must answer one pertinent question: If he is allowed to renounce the money, who will receive it? Why can he not accept the money and give it away for purposes in which he is interested?

But apart from these riddles, the situation suggests some questions which other individuals, with no dollar fortune at stake, may be moved to ask themselves.

How many other persons, consciously or unconsciously, may have rejected legacies they should have had by simply accepting them? A friendship turned sadly. A talent left undeveloped. A contact avoided because of prejudice. An opportunity passed by for lack of confidence.

In a current book a prizefighter tells how he found his way out of an apprenticeship career of juvenile crime. His important discovery about the money he had enced his destiny is indicated in the title, "Somebody Likes Me Up There."

Every human being has received a legacy of enormous importance from his creator. He has been born with his life and intelligence may be as significant as a prime minister's or of capital. Such gifts are a responsibility; they cannot be rejected. Nor, rightly, may be misunderstood or neglected.

The young man with the violin fortune awaiting him is only one of many who, in themselves do not all carry dollar marks.

THE OPEN DOOR

St. Paul declares (I Cor. 15:26) that "the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."

Bible pictures death as the most horrible thing man can confront. Often today we hear people speak of death as if it were but a gay adventure and the opening of a door to greater opportunities. So it is the door to Christ. But death, according to the Bible, is a solemn thing, because it marks the end of our period of probation and brings us face to face with the necessity for final evaluation and judgment.

The greatest victory Jesus Christ won was over death. He died, He took the horror out of death. Everyone will some day be judg- be saved."

ed before the divine throne. If one has Christ standing at his side, there is nothing to fear. If one has not Christ, there is only fear, then, unregenerate man can only face death with horror and foreboding, but in Jesus Christ the experience of death is made indeed the open door by which we enter into the infinite possibilities of eternal life.

The horror of death is the inevitability of judgment; the blessing of Christian faith is that it fills us with complete assurance as we anticipate that judgment. To make death a prelude to larger life.

"I am the door," said Jesus, "by me if any man enter in he shall

Belleville Minor Hockey Association Ends Fine Season With Presentations

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association officially rang the curtain down on another successful season at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday morning with their annual presentation party. Some 400 minor puck-chasers, ranging in age from eight to eighteen, officials of the league and all persons concerned, took part in the presentation of fifteen trophies, watched movies and received free refreshments.

Crests were given, several short addresses were made, votes of thanks and special gifts were presented to persons aiding in the function of the league. The individual trophy winners had their pictures taken.

Frank Grandame, president of the association, was chairman and opened with a short address. He said: "Your boys are certainly showing improvement and I expect to see some of you in places in hockey, but always remember to be good sportsmen, whatever you do in life."

George H. Carver, sports editor of The Ontario Intelligencer, offered his congratulations and reminded the boys "that someone always loses, so learn to take a loss with the same grace as a victory." Sports commentator of CJBQ, Jack Devine, also congratulated the players and the men who made the association possible.

President Grandame gave a vote of thanks to the sponsors "without their services all this would be impossible." He also paid tribute to the convenors for their fine work. The association then presented lovely gifts to persons who devoted time and effort throughout the winter to further and benefit the league. Those receiving gifts were: Gord Gregory, Doug Murray, G. Alexander, Jerry Mahoney and Bob Brooks.

The trophies to city champions and cup winners were presented. The Canadiens captured the squirt title, coached by Art Loucks, and were presented with the Goodman Store for Men trophy by Frank Grandame. Joe Adams, Canadiens, took pee-wee honors and received the Canadian Legion trophy with Legion sports chairman, Bob Blair, making the presentation. The bantam championship also went to the Canadiens, coached by Jack Snetsinger, with team captain Pat Asselline receiving the Chicago Black Hawk trophy, presented by G. Alexander.

Moving to the midget division, Booth Radio and TV captured the city title under coach Jack O'Brien. Frank Grandame presented the Allin Cup to "Warpy" O'Brien. In the juvenile section there was no schedule, the two teams practising every Thursday night for OMHA playdowns, so city titleholder could be named. Coaches Maurice Rollins and Bill Hurst received crests to pass out to their players.

The most sportsmanlike player awards were next on the agenda. The squirt winner was Donnie Graham and he accepted the Jim Ward trophy, presented by the donor. Hugh Jones donated his own award in the pee-wee, bantam, midget and juvenile winners. John Graham received the pee-wee award, Don Deacon the bantam, Larry Langlois the midget and Fred Hagerman the juvenile, all presented by Mr. Jones.

A "most improved player award" was made in each division. The Belleville Minor Hockey Association trophy, presented by Bill Gault, went to James Hurst in the squirt section. Stewart Muirhead took the cup in the pee-wee division and was awarded the Radio Station CJBQ trophy, Jack Devine doing the honors. Ron Stoneburgh was the most improved in bantam, receiving the Pat Boland Memorial trophy from "Boller" Lloyd, while Bob Garrison won the midget version, the Dan Whalen Memorial trophy, presented by Mel Richards. Charles Kingston received The Ontario Intelligencer trophy in the juvenile section, George H. Carver making the presentation. The final presentation was the Hugh Hurst Memorial Trophy for the best midget goaltender, presented to Peter MacFarlane by G. H. Carver.

Nudes Sensation Of All-Union Art Exhibit

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Two nudes, the first ever to be exhibited by Soviet painters, are the sensation of this year's all-union art exhibition.

The paintings shown are nature studies. One shows sturdy collective farm girls bathing on a river bank. The other depicts a pretty country girl kneeling outside a bath-house, dressing her little sister. Nudes in indoor poses are out of question.

The strict, almost puritan, standards in morals and art laid down by the Communist party have hitherto been held to mean that the painting of naked bodies is "depraved."

Boris Lavrenyov, playwright and critic, writing in October, a literary and art journal, welcomes the "heated discussions" aroused by the new paintings.

"It must be frankly said that our artists have lost the ability to paint the human body. For years they have been in the grip of a kind of monastic bigotry which has laid a taboo on the human body in art. This has played a harmful role in both art and sculpture.

"After all, a healthy, beautiful human body, depicted with no intention of provoking the senses, is a lawful subject for art."

Charge Reduced

HALIFAX (CP) — An all-male jury Saturday convicted Aubrey Flint, 24, of Africville, of a reduced charge of manslaughter in connection with the Sept. 2 stabbing of James Nicholson of Halifax.

The stocky Negro laborer showed no emotion. He was remanded until Tuesday for sentencing. Flint was charged with murder after discovery of Nicholson's body in a yard on Sept. 3. Both men had attended a drinking party at a north end home the previous night.

FIRE HITS COAL MINE

RILEY, Alta. (CP) — Fire destroyed equipment of the Black Nugget coal mine seven miles southwest of here Sunday with a loss of more than $500,000. Included in the loss were five CNR boxcars loaded with coal valued at $80,000 each. No one was injured. The mine, a strip operation with no underground workings, was being prepared for summer operation.

Lachine Couple Shot to Death; Hold Son-in-Law

MONTREAL (CP)—An elderly Tramway Company employee and his wife were shot to death in their modest two-storey home in suburban Lachine during the weekend and their son-in-law was held for questioning by police.

Laurent Roy, 72, was shot through the heart Saturday as he stood in the doorway of his home. His 62-year-old wife, found mortally wounded in the hall, died en route to hospital.

The son-in-law, Henri Lalonde, a slight 30-year-old laborer, was held in Lachine on a warrant issued by district coroner Dr. A. B. Clement pending opening of the inquest expected to be held today.

PROBABLY ADJOURN

Inspector Lambert Charron, head of the Lachine detective force, however, said the inquest probably will be adjourned until Thursday or Friday after identification of the victims so police can complete their investigation.

No charges have yet been laid in Quebec homicide charges are not normally brought until after an inquest has been held.

Inspector Charron said a quarrel broke out Friday night when the Roys asked Lalonde to pay a higher rent. Lalonde and his wife, who was a daughter of Mrs. Roy by her previous marriage to a man named Portelance, and their child had been living in part of the Roys' house.

ENTERED HOUSE

The inspector said that a man entered the house by the back door about 1 p.m. Saturday, probably while Mrs. Roy was in the kitchen and her husband in the front talking to the milkman.

Charron said that the milkman, Gerard Lebvre, told police he was half way across the street when he heard a shot and turned to see Mr. Roy fall to the balcony. A second later he heard another shot.

A crowd started to gather and a man came from inside the house and began threatening the people congregating at the front door. While he was there, two other men, Joseph Cote and Leo Legroe of Lachine entered the rear of the house and coming up behind grabbed him. The three of them fell in a heap and rolled down the steps to the front lawn.

At that point a police car arrived and helped subdue the man.

TO STUDY AID

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP)—Ontario Agricultural Minister Thomas said Sunday night representatives of Lake Erie commercial fishermen will meet with the provincial cabinet in Toronto Wednesday to discuss methods of aiding fishermen whose nets were destroyed in the March 22 gale.

CONSERVATIVE

Mr. Hees told reporters a separate organization conducts affairs in every other province; the system had created friction only in B.C.

Mr. Finlayson, who walked out of Saturday's meeting without having presented his demands for a national leadership convention, said later in an interview that he will ask Tom McDonald of Vancouver, president of the party's B.C. association, to call an association meeting for a report on the national executive's decision.

The husky Nanaimo, B.C., farm-metal estate dealer said the executive's "punitive action" against him would not bar the B.C. association from next November's general meeting of the national association.

The censure motion said Mr. Finlayson has "made a series of malicious and unjustified attacks" on the leader of the party, the three B.C. party members in the Commons and national association officials.

OPEN WARFARE

The provincial leader had declared "open warfare on the national party" by saying his provincial association's candidates will oppose all official candidates of the national party in B.C. in the next federal election, including the three present Commons members, Howard Green, Vancouver Quadra; Davie Fulton, Kamloops, and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, Esquimalt-Saanich, who set up the so-called federal council following the B.C. party's non-confidence vote on Mr. Drew.

The resolution said the executive "expresses the strongest possible repudiation of Mr. Finlayson's actions and a complete repudiation of his false allegations and statements."

The May meeting of Carmel Women's Missionary Society was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elmer Utch.

The president, Mrs. M. Ross, opened the meeting with the call to worship and the hymn "Lord for Tomorrow and its Needs". This program explained the work of the Dominion Board and how the money is spent.

Mrs. W. Grant, vice-president of Belleville East district was present and gave a fine address and led in a discussion. She complimented the Society on the Missionary Monthlies taken which was nearly 100 per cent. She also spoke on the Ad. Foundation for young Ministers attending Universities.

Miss Mildred Jones gave a poem entitled "In the Rush of Life."

Brockville Play Wins Award At Regional Drama Festival

"Strange Road," a delicate play about a meeting between a ghost and his fiancee on a lonely seashore, won the silver cup at the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's Drama Festival held Saturday night at the Quinte Secondary School.

The play, presented by St. John's Young People of Brockville, topped three other one-act plays in the festival. It was written by John M. Houston and directed by Doug Bennett.

Miss Isobel Squires, executive secretary of the Christian Drama Council, a national organization promoting development of religious drama, was the festival adjudicator.

Other placings entered were: "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," by Bridge Street Young People, of Belleville. "Comin' Round the Mountain," by Fort Perry Young People, and "Are You Listening?" by St. James Young People of Peterborough.

Miss Squires, in awarding the cup to the Brockville entry, praised the performance of the players as "emotional and sensitive," but criticized the lighting as "ill-timed." She also said that certain parts of the play were not as well written as they should have been.

"The Old Lady Shows Her Medals", written by J. M. Barry, and directed by A. S. Robb, had a "beautiful ending," but was criticized for bad grouping of players, poor pronunciation of English and Scottish accents, and for delays between scenes.

"Comin' Round The Mountain," a typical hillbilly romp, drew praise from Miss Squires for the "tremendous lot of ability in the cast."

She criticized the lack of vitality in the interchange between the "country bumpkins" and the "city slickers" and said that "Dynamite Anne," lady sheriff, didn't go off with enough bang. On the whole she said she liked the entertaining qualities of the play.

"Are You Listening?" written by Ronald Else and directed by Mrs. A. L. Shotter, was criticized by the adjudicator as "not a good play" with a "dull" set.

"The play was not worthy of the people who were in it," she said. "They did as good a job with a poor play as could have been managed."

Miss Squires offered general criticism of all plays on the make-up used, certain aspects of lighting, and the lack of "action" between the players.

"Fabricate a little action," she advised players, when action is lacking in the play.

Mrs. Irene Hagerman, recreation and culture convener for the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's Union, presented the cup to the winning Brockville company.

Children's Varied Program Appreciated

Mrs. George Bilham read the Scripture, II Corinthians 8: 11-15, then all joined in a reading.

Mrs. Rush gave an informal talk on "Sharing," from which all might get a few pointers to carry home. She also gave an introductory outline of "Under These Flags."

An invitation to King Street W.M.S. regular meeting in May was accepted. Mrs. Floyd Budley invited the ladies to her home for the June meeting. Three members paid dues. The offering was taken and dedicated by the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton, who also closed the meeting with prayer.

The hostess and assistants served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Christian Drama Council Seeks To Improve Religious Plays

"Our job is to help local groups do a better job in raising the standard of choice, direction, presentation and acting of religious plays," stated Miss Isobel Squires, executive secretary of the Christian Drama Council during an interview.

Miss Squires was in Belleville on Saturday to adjudicate the four one-act plays presented in the Bay of Quinte Conference Young People's Drama festival, held at the Quinte Secondary school.

"We cover a wide area in theatre," commented Miss Squires, "and have many professionals on our board, such as Robert Christie and Andrew Allan. The reason for getting professionals is to help in techniques. We have the theme all right."

NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

"The Christian Drama Council is a national organization open to all denominations who want help with religious drama. We have the patronage of the Primate of the Church of England, the Moderators of the United and Presbyterian churches and the president of the Baptist church in Canada."

At present the Christian Drama Council is sponsoring a play-writing competition in order to get a better standard of plays for religious presentation and to encourage Canadian writers. Most writers of this type seem to be American or European. Several plays have already been received, but there is still nearly four months before the contest closes.

The Christian Drama Council was organized only one year ago on April 23 and is already financially independent. In February of this year, the Council presented four demonstration plays in Toronto for the purpose of teaching religious drama.

Individuals or groups may join the Council for a yearly fee and receive the many services offered, such as reference books and sets of plays from the lending library, advice on play selection, production and technical service, advice to playwrights and single copies of new plays for directors.

FULL TIME JOB

"This is definitely a full time job for me," laughed Miss Squires when asked if she worked at anything else. "I frequently have drama workshops in various towns or cities, wherever I am sponsored by groups. I recently had one in Montreal for a month, where I was sponsored by four groups—the Student Christian Movement at McGill University, the YMCA, YWCA, and the Council of Christian Education."

Miss Squires came to Canada from England, five years ago. She has worked in London, Bristol and Ilkley, Yorkshire, where she was on the staff of the Methodist Deaconess College. She has always taken a keen interest in drama and has had several plays published in both England and Canada.

The Christian Drama Council will hold its first summer drama workshop at Albert College this year from July 1 to 8. The program, under the instruction of theatre professionals, will include courses and lectures in the acting of religious drama, costuming, make-up, lighting and staging, play resources and writing, voice and drama in Christian worship and education.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WEDDING OF WIDOW AND WIDOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) A friend of mine has asked me to consult with you about the procedure of her wedding. This friend has been a widow for nearly two years, and just recently met a man who has been a widower for one year, and who has a 7-year-old daughter. They plan to be married in the near future, and they would like to know if it would be proper to have a church wedding, with all the trimmings. They are to wear matching suits for the wedding. She is to have a matron of honor as her witness and only attendant, and he is to have a best man.

(2) Which would be proper, an afternoon wedding or an evening wedding?

(3) Is it necessary for someone to give the bride in marriage?—M.K.

(1) Under the circumstances you set forth, your friend and her fiance would show best taste to have a small, simple wedding. I hope they may have a church wedding, and since she is a widow and he a widower I believe this is possible . . . best, of course they must consult with church authorities about the regulations governing this. They show best taste in each having one attendant. But certainly they would not have a wedding with, as you say "all the trimmings."

(2) Either an afternoon or an evening wedding is correct . . . Just depends on the preference and convenience of the prospective bride and groom.

(3) Probably not necessary, but the minister who is to perform the ceremony should be consulted. The nominations vary in their regulations about this.

WEDDING IN PARSONAGE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are planning a June wedding. Since my fiance lives in another state, we plan to be married in the parsonage, then to have a reception for family and friends.

(1) I would like to wear a white gown and veil Would this be proper, under these circumstances: If so, what type would be best for a morning or early afternoon ceremony?

(2) Should we invite our guests by informal notes, and send formal announcements later, or may we send engraved invitations?—Bride-to-be

(1) Yes; you may properly wear a white wedding dress and bridal veil. If you choose a very simple design of dress, either floor-length or, now so popular, ballerina-length (which gives a more informal appearance), or very light-weight taffeta, or nylon tulle, or net, or for a June wedding, of light-bearted organdie. And a rather short veil, perhaps of crisp illusion.

(2) For your small, informal wedding and reception it is quite proper for your mother, the hostess, to invite the guests—usually or by telephone, with notes to out-of-town guests. Then have the engraved announcements all ready, envelopes addressed and stamped, so these can be mailed immediately after the ceremony to those not invited to the wedding.

THE BRIDAL SHOWER AND THE PIANE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My question concerns a bridal shower. A friend of mine says it is proper for the fiance to be invited to the shower and to assist in opening the gifts. I say it is improper for him to escort his fiances to the shower but not to remain at the shower, and I think her close friends should assist with the gifts. Who is right? — E.M.

You are right. The fiance should not be present at the bridal shower, to which only the engaged girl's close friends are invited. He may, say, escort his fiancees to the house where the shower is being given, but he shouldn't remain at the shower. And certainly he should not assist with the opening of the gifts . . . the guest of honor herself opens the gifts and says appreciative things about them.

Spring Lamb for Sale

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Anybody who is a lamb addict is having a field day this spring. I am and I'm having a field day. At Mary J.'s I had lamb chops from the home freezer. At Peady's I had a 1 1-2 inch thick lamb chop from New Zealand. At my own house we had a leg of lamb from Canada. And now you are going to have some too, braised, broiled or however you like it, for it is cheap, kids, so get on the lamb bandwagon—bargain fare.

When you go to the meat counter you will find the chops cut less than 1 inch thick. They are not for lamb lovers like you and me. Just ask the butcher to cut you some really thick ones—preferably 1-3 inches.

OVEN BROILED LAMB CHOPS

If they are cold from the refrigerator let them stand at room temperature for an hour. Preheat broiler unit or element about 20 minutes in advance at 350 deg. Fahr. Rub broiler rack with a little lamb suet and place lamb chops on it close together. Top of lamb chops should be about 2 1-2 inches from heating element. For medium well done for 1 1-3 inch chops allow about 9 minutes per side (7 minutes for 1-inch chops), raising heat for the last minute if not quite brown enough. (If you have an oven regulator you will have to leave the oven door partially open.)

If you were tempted to buy that lamb-in-a-basket deal you will be glad of this method for

BRAISED SHOULDER LAMB CHOPS (OR SHANKS)

Dredge 1 1-2 inch thick shoulder chops with flour and brown very well in small amount of margarine. Place on trivet, add 1-4 cup hot water, cover and simmer 1-3 to 2 hours, turning meat occasionally. As needed, add about 2 tablespoons water from time to time. When meat is about half tender add some thinly sliced onion, about 1 teaspoon salt (for 1 1-2 lbs. meat), a little pepper, some celery leaves, 1-2 bay leaf. When meat is tender remove to hot platter. Pour off most of the fat, and add desired amount of water to the skillet for gravy, scraping the drippings well with wooden spoon to loosen them. Measure this liquid. For each cup mix together 1 tablespoon each cornstarch and cold water and stir in until thick and clear. I suggest you have ready cooked some diced new carrots and green peas to serve with these—if so take a spoonful of each and add to this gravy. Arrange the carrots and the peas in mounds at each end of your hot platter. Put chops in centre, pour gravy over and garnish with large parsley sprigs.

CURRIED LAMB

(Breast or shoulder)

Three lbs. shoulder or breast lamb, 3 cups boiling water, 4 peppercorns, 1-2 cup chopped onion, 4 tablespoons each fat and flour, 1 teaspoon each salt and curry powder, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce or 6 drops Tabasco sauce. Cut meat into 1 inch cubes, add boiling water, peppercorns, bring to boil, skim off scum, and simmer until meat is tender. (Drain off liquid but save it to make Scotch broth with barley, onions, carrot, etc.) Melt the fat, add onion and cook until lamp and golden, then stir in flour and seasonings, blend, stir in 2 cups of the broth until thick. Add meat, parsley and seasonings. Serve inside a border of fluffy cooked rice on hot platter. Curry lovers will prefer more curry powder to be added.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Dredge with flour , mixed with salt, pepper and paprika. Place on trivet in roaster and roast without water or basting or cover at 325 deg. Fahr. for an averaged-sized leg 1-4 hours for medium done; 2 3-4 hours for well done. Serve with mint jelly or sauce.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LET THIS GIRL LOOK AHEAD, NOT BEHIND

How old the girl is, she doesn't say. But her letter gives me the impression that she is still pretty young. Yet whatever the number of her years, a lifetime of sordid experience has been packed into them.

Now the distilled bitterness of these years is pouring itself out into the open, poisoning the only chance of true happiness she has ever known, and threatening to destroy it utterly. And in an agony of desperation, she cries out: "Tell us what you think we should do! We want a happy and holy marriage."

Her story—and she begins by saying: "I'll be so very honest and tell the truth"—is the history of a child who was "starved for affection"; who "wanted love bad," and who, because she lacked the loving care for which she also longed, "grew up so fast it was sad."

It wasn't, she thinks now, that her parents didn't love her. She had, she says, a "a truly wonderful Mom," and My Mom loved my Dad and he loved her." But Mom was either over at the home of one or another of the little girl's three married sisters, babysitting while they went to parties, or downtown with Dad at parties of their own, from which Dad invariably came home drunk. Anyhow, she was alone most of the time, even weekends "While my folks were out of town." Or else, if they were home, Dad was drunk and Mom was either in bed sleeping, or quarreling with Dad about his drinking, and "I remember how their fusses would make me feel so badly, as I loved them both dearly.

And so, was it any wonder that, at 12 years old and without Mom's knowledge, this child was having dates with boys, and even men, who petted her and made her feel loved and wanted? That at 14, she was "necking, smoking and drinking, and didn't even stop there," and staying out until one, two or even three o'clock in the morning, dating any kind of man who asked her, even "divorced men with children"?

Then it happened. She met a man who was different—"a very wonderful man, the nicest I have ever met." And she became different, too, "because I wanted him to like me." And he did like her. Quickly they fell in love, and even when she told him about her past life, "he was very wonderful about it and said he still loved and wanted me."

But however he felt about it, she herself couldn't escape that haunting past. Because "All of my life I have only known men who went with me to have fun," she now finds it almost impossible to believe that here is one who really does love her for herself. "I feel as though he shouldn't love me," she says, "and as though he really doesn't."

Tragically, her insecurity has infected him, and as a result they are quarrelling and breaking up, reconciling, and it is going through the same thing all over again. Though they plan to marry a few months from now, she is frantic lest their future be foredoomed by "our jealousy or our disbelief in our love for each other."

Inevitable though her apprehensions are, and difficult though it will be, I wish that this terrified girl would try to dwell less on her fears and more on the purpose she certainly has of making her marriage the "happy and holy" one she so longs for it to be. She has told her husband-to-be about her past and he has told her he loves her despite it. Now she should put it behind her and concentrate on the future.

She should tell him over and over again how much he means to her, and how happy she knows they will be together. Their talk should be about their plans for the years ahead, not their misgivings about those behind.

Just as she has communicated to him her own fears and insecurity, she can, if she goes about it the right way, communicate to him feelings of hope and confidence that will crowd out the former. But she must first feel these herself, and little by little she can build them up in herself if she will.

Will she? Will she at least try?

I am sure her earnest effort will have its reward.

Santee May Meet Pirie In Toronto

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Wes Santee, U.S. American miler, said Saturday he wants to get together with Don Pirie of England in Toronto this summer "if the marines permit."

Pirie plans to go to Toronto in mid-August and Santee said "I hope to be there too." But the 23-year-old Kansas runner said he will go if the U.S. Marine Corps in June and doesn't know yet whether he can get to the Canadian National Exhibition meet.

Santee, who holds the U.S. mile record of 4:00.5, was beaten by Pirie in a race two years ago. Pirie, in Germany now, said he would like to run against Santee again and added that he hopes to arrange it when he goes to Toronto for a holiday around Aug. 15.

HELD BACK BY WIND

Santee made another attempt to run a four-minute mile Saturday but his effort was deterred by a 15-mile-an-hour wind and he was clocked at 4:07 in winning the University of Miami invitational mile.

His time was ahead of Pirie's Saturday effort. The latter, in Helbronn, Germany, easily won the mile run at an international track in 4 minutes, 12.4 seconds.

At Vancouver, B.C., CNE sports director George Duthie said Saturday that the Toronto exhibition hopes to stage the mile race between Pirie and Santee. Duthie said the CNE is prepared to stage a special race for the pair. If the race were held, it would be between Aug. 15 and Aug. 20.

Pirie will arrive in Toronto for a holiday Aug. 15, Duthie said.

"He wants to be in Paris for the French championships Sept. 3 and in Moscow for the British-Russian meet Sept. 10," Duthie said.

Trade Ezinicki For Gendron

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Rangers announced today they have acquired left-winger Guy Gendron from Providence Reds of the American Hockey League in exchange for veteran right-winger Bill Ezinicki and undisclosed cash.

Gendron, a 20-year-old 160-pounder, scored 24 goals in 47 games for the Reds in his first year of professional hockey before being sidelined for the remainder of the season with a wrist fracture. He was the AHL's fourth-highest marksman at the time of the accident.

The Montreal - born youngster moved up last season from Three Rivers Reds of the Quebec Junior League, a Providence farm club. There he played against Quebec Rams coached by Phil Watson, the new Ranger coach.

The deal ended the comeback hopes of the 31-year-old Ezinicki, who has been in and out of the NHL for 11 years.

Duke McGarry Passes Away

TORONTO (CP) — John F. (Duke) McGarry, 86, former sprint star and dean of Ontario track starters, died Sunday.

McGarry had been active in or closely associated with track and field, speed skating, girls sports and boxing since the 1890s. He was a sprinter of note before the turn of the century and was still active as a starter more than 60 years later.

Duke was one of the originators of the Ontario Athletic Commission. He was vice-chairman of the commission for six years and later was president of the Ontario Speed Skating Association.

McGarry fired his first starting blank at the York county police games in 1892. He was 24 then. He won the Ontario 100-yard sprint title in 1893.

BEAT ALL COMERS

In the following years he travelled the province, betting that he could beat all comers in sprint events.

McGarry's father owned the Duke's Hotel, a Toronto landmark that was well known for housing visiting old-time baseball players.

Duke followed in his father's footsteps but retired during prohibition in the 1920s.

"I refused to go bootlegging, so I just retired," he once told friends.

Duke was the starter at most major track or ice-skating meets.

Surviving are eight children and nine grandchildren. He will be buried Tuesday morning.

STUDY MENTAL ILLS

NEW YORK (AP)—The Ford Foundation announced Saturday it is allocating a $15,000,000 fund for study of what may be the greatest health problem facing mankind—mental illness. In making the announcement, the foundation noted that about half the hospital beds in the United States are occupied by mental patients.

British Judge For Title Bout

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—There'll be an English judge among the officials for the Rocky Marciano-Don Cockell heavyweight title fight at San Francisco if John Simpson has his way.

Simpson, Cockell's manager, said today he will ask that an Englishman be one of the two judges selected by the California athletic commission when it meets Thursday to name the ring officials for the May 16 bout.

"I think it only fair," said Simpson. . . . This is an international bout and the presence at ringside of one of them (English judges) would add something to the event, don't you think?"

WILL DISCUSS "FOULS"

Simpson said he also plans to discuss with the commission the matter of "fouls in boxing." He said that in studying pictures of Marciano's previous fights he had noted complaints about the champion's "foul tactics."

Cockell, still, pale-skinned and bulky, is "a lazy blighter" his manager said.

"He just won't work in training," explained Simpson. "All he wants to do is lay around and drink tea. But when the money is down he'll fight, you'll see. And he won't be fat, either. He'll knock off 10-12 pounds by just giving up liquids the last couple days before the fight."

"...what's all this fuss about engines?"

With Pontiac it's no problem at all, because Pontiac lets you choose the power plant. If you want a V8, Pontiac has V8's, two of 'em as a matter of fact. The "Strato-Flash" gives you 162 h.p.—or a "power-package" that boosts it up to 180 h.p. if you want it. The "Strato-Streak" gives you a blazing 180 h.p. built right in. They're good engines or Pontiac wouldn't put them on the road. We're jealous of our years-long reputation for reliability.

On the other hand, if you prefer a 6—and lots of people do—you can still drive a Pontiac . . . with a husky, 145 h.p. "BIG 6". Saves you money . . . gets you there quickly . . . happily . . . and economically.

Naturally, these Pontiac engines are all valve-in-heads because it's the only really efficient design for high speed, high compression power. General Motors pioneered it and, as might be expected, it's been copied by others far and wide.

So . . . to re-cap . . . with V8's—Pontiac's right in there and then some. And Pontiac thinks enough of your wishes and desires to give you a choice . . . V8 or "BIG 6" . . . and all valve-in-heads!

Best of all . . . Pontiac gives you something the others can't match—Pontiac prestige, regardless of what engine is under the hood!

With all this to offer, it's no wonder Pontiac sales are breaking all records this year—increased by a greater margin than any other car in the low-priced field.

Why not see your Pontiac dealer today and relax in a real car with everything you want?

Make sure you can SEE STEER and STOP SAFELY

MAY is Safety Month

Remember... engine for engine, feature for feature, dollar for dollar, you can't beat Pontiac

Brooks Continue Relentless March; Indians Keep Pace With 1954 Mark

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WELL DONE!

Along with "Swipe" smashing Derby triumph over the mighty Maulers and the Dodgers' relentless march to new daily records, one of the big pieces of week-end sports news was the outstanding achievement of the B.C.I. junior relay team at Hamilton.

The youngsters came up with two sensational wins in the 1320 and 880 yard relays to establish two meet records, it was reported, and defeat some of the best junior teams in Ontario. They brought home a pair of handsome cups as trophies at the chase after an effort that rakked them with the best in Ontario.

Their achievement is a marked improvement over last year when they gained two thirds and two fourths at the Ontario Interscholastic Relay Carnival. No wonder Coach Ed. Bradley and "Red" Townsend had slightly-expanded chests today.

"ALLEY BOY"

The husky chap with the muscles like Cockell, and a smiling round face grinned, "So there will be no senior baseball this year, eh?"

Being told such was the case, he hunched his shoulders, poked a stiff forefinger at our chest and came up with: "Well then you can devote a little more time to softball. . . And I have a tip for you."

Before we could query the bloke, he said, "Watch this guy, Al Adams, a strong-arm pitcher if there ever was one. He will be out with the Bob Temple Bobcats and if they don't win the title it won't be Al's fault. In fact, in my opinion, Temple need need any other hurlers. This Adams can win the silverware alone. And he calls himself 'Roughcat' Adams. The rest of the crew can go under the name Bobcats, but this Adams is going to be rough, tough and nasty."

The fellow really was wound up. Before this corner could get in a word sidewise, he rattled on. "And don't think those highly-touted Orfuns or Point Anne scare Adams. They are just other ball clubs—and Al can beat them any time he feels like it. Just watch him.

"But . . ."

"Never mind bats," he went on. "I'm giving you facts. Adams has always been considered good and you newspaperguys never gave him the credit he's due. Now I'm telling you —so if you want to see Belleville's Number One softball mound ace in action, don't miss Al when he starts for the Cats."

We tried another "But . . ."

"Never mind bats," he went on. "I'm giving you facts. member what I have told told you. Now run back to your typewriter and get this down before you forget."

And he threw out his chest and strode jauntily down the street.

Who was he? You guessed it!

Al Adams!

WILL BE MISSED!

And speaking of softball in serious note, one of the better-known figures in the sport will be missing from diamond action this year.

The familiar face and good-natured ribbing of the "Ole Clucker" Ted Henn will do their softballing from the bleachers and sidelines, but merely as a spectator.

Ted has had some trouble with the cardiac region and his doctor has put thumbs down on all sports activities for the well-liked "Chuck."

This department over the softball years has published some good-natured ribbing of Ted and he always took it in the spirit in which it was written. One of the standing laughs between us and Ted was the remark someone made to the effect we were on the "Henn payroll." If such is the case we have a first payday coming.

Softball will miss Ted. He was one of the mainstays during the lean and fat years. He was a great competitor, tolerant in victory and gallant in defeat. A great game will lose a great player and enthusiast. But Ted will be around giving his moral and other support to the sport he loves so well. And we all hope that will be for a great many years.

Belleville Collegiate Relay Team Wins Junior Honors in Hamilton

The colors of Belleville Collegiate Institute flashed to sensational victories in the Ontario Interscholastic Relay Carnival held in Hamilton on Saturday.

A fleetfooted quartet of BCI relay men led the cream of the province's junior secondary school teams in the medley and the 880. They topped off a spectacular effort with a fourth in the 440.

Members of the team are Barry Ray, Ken Vogelsang, Glen Marsole, Bob Wannamaker, Bill Cornneal. The first four won the medley while Cornneal substituted for Wannamaker in the 880. The team was trained and managed by Mr. Fred Bradley of the BCI staff.

The Belleville team's achievement was the more creditable due to the fact it defeated the powerful Delta Collegiate team of Hamilton, favored to take the honors.

Secondary schools from Windsor to Ottawa were represented at the carnival. The Belleville squad showed clean pairs of heels to eight teams in the medley while they paced eleven teams in the 880.

The medley race consisted of an opening 440, then two 220's and a final of 440 to make the 1320 distance. The 880 was a straightaway medley.

The Belleville quartet showed strength and remarkable form in their victories. It was a distinct improvement over last year's effort when it came home with two thirds and two fourths.

A beautiful Memorial trophy was presented to BCI for its victory in the medley.

The trophy was donated by Mr. A. Van Flews to the memory of his son who died following a boat and field accident two years ago. The trophy for the 880 victory was presented to the winners by Mr. Thomas H. Ross, Liberal member for Hamilton.

The Belleville team was clocked at 2:38.8 in the medley and 1:37.4 in the 880 relay. It was reported both times were meet records.

Senior and other class results are published elsewhere.

Edge Phils for 21st Victory In Second 10-Game Win String; Tribe Opens Gap in American

By The Associated Press

Maybe, as Al Lopez stoutly maintains, Cleveland will not equal its record 111 victories of last year. But the wily manager cannot deny that his Indians are adopting the same formula that brought them the American League championship in 1954.

Cleveland won the flag by holding the top clubs even and belabering the bejabbers out of the weaker teams. The Indians are perched atop the league standings today because they are doing the same thing this year. . .

Sunday's 8-4 and 2-1 sweep of a doubleheader with Kansas City gave Cleveland a record of 11 victories and only two defeats against the four second division clubs. That's an .847 gait. Against the same four clubs last year—Washington, Boston, Baltimore and Kansas City (Philadelphia)—the Indians had a 75-13 record for an .852 percentage.

Against the first division clubs—New York, Chicago and Detroit—Cleveland is only 6-5 for .545. Against the same clubs last year, the Indians were 36-30. That's exactly .545.

WITHIN TWO GAMES

The Yankees and White Sox stayed within striking distance of the Tribe, in a second place deadlock, as a result of Sunday's action. The Yankees polished off White Sox (Nemesis) Nixon, who had beaten them six straight times over a two-year span, with a 5-0 triumph behind Bob Grim. The White Sox won a pair of squeakers from Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings and 1-0 to plunge the Tigers from first to fourth. After Baltimore had nipped Washington 4-3 when two runs in the ninth inning, the Senators bounced back to pound out a 15-7 second-game triumph.

Brooklyn's relentless Dodgers defeated the fading Philadelphia Phillies 9-8 for their 21st victory in 23 starts as they notched their second 10-game win string in a row in a month.

The Brooks' nearest pursuers are the Milwaukee Braves, 9½ games behind. The Braves took undisputed possession of second place by defeating St. Louis 6-2 as the New York Giants were held to a split in their doubleheader with Pittsburgh. The Giants were hard pressed to win the second game 6-3 after the Pirates took the opener, 7-5.

HOMERS DECISIVE

The home run was the decisive factor in the Chicago-Cincinnati split. The Cubs won the opener 5-3 on four baggers by Randy Jackson and rookie Bob Speake. The Redlegs took the second game 4-3 on Hoble Landrith's ninth-inning homer. The second-string catcher also blasted one in the sixth inning.

Al Smith went on a slugging spree, walloping three home runs in the Milwaukee double win. The Tribe outfielder cracked two in the first game, each with a man on base, and added two singles as Cleveland overcame a 5-0 deficit. Bob Feller, who pitched a shoulder last Sunday, was whacked for five hits before being removed in the second inning for Art Houtteman, the winner.

Al Rosen's 11th-inning homer broke up the second game, which was forced into overtime by Smith's blast over the left field fence in the eighth. Art Ceccarelli, a rookie making his second major league start, was the loser despite pitching a five-hitter and striking out 10.

TIMELY HITTING

Little Nellie Fox singled in the winning run in Chicago's first game victory over Detroit and accounted for the lone run of the second game with an eighth inning triple that was followed by Minnie Minoso's single. A two-run ninth inning homer by Boston player Ron Jackson tied the first game. Jackson was honored before the game as the "rookie of the year" by the American Baseball Congress, an MCH for the graduate. Dick Donovan pitched the second game shutout, winning from rookie Frank Lary on a nine-hitter.

Two-run homers by Joe Collins and Hank Bauer helped Grim register his first victory although he was relieved by Kennedy had to come to his rescue after the sophomore had the first two batters he faced in the ninth.

Outfielder Tom Umphlett led a 15-hit attack against seven Baltimore pitchers with a home run and three singles and pinch hitter Jesse Levan hit a three-run homer as Washington rallied for a split. The Orioles came from behind to win the opener in the ninth when pinch-hitter Eddie Waitkus drove in the tying and winning runs with a triple.

SNIDER GRAND SLAMS

Duke Snider's grand slam homer in the seventh inning of his 1 major league career, earned Brooklyn's Johnny Podres his third victory in four decisions. The Phils came within one run of overcoming a 6-2 deficit with four tallies in the seventh and two more in the eighth. The Phillies outhit the Dodgers, 14 to 9, but left 11 runners stranded to only three for the Dodgers. It was the Phils' ninth straight defeat.

Milwaukee's Warren Spahn registered his 11th victory and 37th against the Cardinals, spacing 12 hits effectively. Eddie Mathews' two-run, homer and a single that sparked a three-run fourth, paved the way for Harvey Haddix' fourth defeat against one victory. It was the Cards' seventh straight defeat.

Don Mueller of the Giants extended his hitting streak through 12 consecutive games with two hits in the opener and three in the second game of the Giant-Pirates doubleheader.

Hamilton, UCC Take School Relay Honors

HAMILTON (CP)—A Canadian record for the 880-yard relay and 18 meet records were set at the third annual Ontario interscholastic relay carnival held here Saturday. Hamilton Central collegiate dominated the class A high school events and Toronto's Upper Canada College, paced by Colonel Gardner, Jr., swept prep school honors.

The records were set despite intermittent rain all afternoon and a headwind in the stretch of the track.

The Hamilton Central 880-yard relay team, recently returned from the Penn State relays, scampered to a Canadian record of 1.33.1 in the senior high school relay to better the record of 1.33.6 they set last year.

WON CLASS TITLE

The win helped give the collegians the class A team championship for schools with 225 or more male students. Central also set a meet record in the senior high school mile relay with a time of 3.28.8 just off the Canadian record of 3:28.2 set by the Hamilton school last year. The team, Jim Simpson, Herb Nordoff, Cam Gray and Ron Book, edged Dunbar high school for both wins.

The Dundas team, second in class A, posted a meet record in the junior 440-yard relay.

Whitby collegiate won the class B championship, for schools with fewer than 255 male students, taking firsts in the junior 440; 880 and 880 relay and the senior 440. The four wins were all meet records. W. Chalwin, G. Brokks, B. Gibson and R. Crawford made up the winning teams.

UCC WINS 5

In the prep school class, Upper Canada College won with five wins, each of them a meet record. Trinity College School of Port Hope was second.

St. Catharines collegiate won the Niagara district championship, aided by firsts in the senior 440 and 880. Burlington, Fort Erie and Linwell followed. The Fort Erie team set a meet record in the 880-yard medley relay and the 880-yard senior relay, Burlington set a meet mark in the junior and one-mile medley and Linwell in the senior one-mile relay.

More than 400 persons attended the carnival, proceeds of which went to the Crippled Children's Fund.

'Swaps' Whips Mighty Nashua To Set New Kentucky Record

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rex Allen's colt named for the late Will Rogers, a couple of wiry cornerstone-pugnochers from the West, will return next week in quest of their second straight Kentucky Derby victory with a horse they rate fifth or ten better than Swaps.

And that is saying a lot because Swaps whipped the mighty Nashua and eight other three-year-olds Saturday in one of the fastest Derbies in the 81-year history of the turf classic. Time for the mile and one-quarter of the $152,500 race was two minutes, one and four-fifths seconds, just two-fifths of a second off the track and Derby record set by Whirlaway in 1941.

Ellsworth and trainer Tenney, close friends since childhood, shipped Swaps Sunday to Hollywood Park in California, where the colt's next big engagement will be in the $50,000-added Westerner on July 4.

Their 1956 Derby candidate is "Like Magic, a full brother of Swaps," said Ellsworth. "He's a great big old colt with something to learn but we think he is a better horse than Swaps."

BOUGHT FROM KHAN 4

Swaps and Like Magic were sired by Khaled, reported to have cost Ellsworth $60,000 when purchased from Aly Khan in England. Their dam is from Reward and through her lineage they trace their blood lines to War Admiral, winner of the 1937 Kentucky Derby and the mighty Man O'War.

Ellsworth and Tenney didn't enter Swaps in the Derby for lucre, keness or the Belmont Stakes. They didn't think he was good enough. The Preakness will be May 28 and the Belmont June 11.

"But we're not making that mistake with Like Magic if he continues to develop," said Ellsworth, "in fact right now my plan to bring him back east for the Gardan State Stakes on May 30."

Willie Shoemaker was astride Swaps for the first Derby triumph in four efforts.

HORSES ON WAY

Most of the other Derby horses also were on their way to other tracks. Nashua was the first to leave. The big bay from William Woodward's Belair Stud entrained for New York several days before ness. Mrs. John W. Galbreath's Summer Tan, a disappointing third was to ship out for New York today with his future uncertain. He had a slight fever in his front legs Sunday.

It was known that Swaps possessed plenty of early speed so it was no surprise when he took the lead soon after the start and continued to show the way through the first stretch with Nashua moving up from third to challenge on the final turn.

Nashua moved within less than a length with a quarter-mile remaining.

But it was Swaps, with Shoemaker cracking him a couple of times with his bat, that made the strongest finish. Eddie Arcaro, seeking his sixth Derby victory, also went to the bat but Nashua just wasn't equal to the occasion in the 13th start of his career. He was beaten by a length and a half as Swaps picked up $108,400 to run his total earnings to $236,500.

1. In the putt pictured notice that clubhead is swung back at right angles to the desired direction line a few inches slightly inside the direction line, ↗ by the wrist action. There is no tenseness in the body, arms or hands. Tenseness spoils accuracy. The hands are close in to the body and, if you're bending over properly the left fore-arm rests easily, lightly on the thigh. How far you take the club back depends upon how far you want the ball to roll forward. And you should shoot for a spot a foot or so beyond the cup. This is to allow for the turn you give the ball a chance to drop. Notice that the blade of the club, at the extreme of the backswing, has "opened" slightly. On wet greens allow for the retarding effect of the moisture on the roll of the ball.

Beardsley Boy Wins Canadian Boxing Crown

By WILF CHIBLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP) — A thin little guy who hasn't touched a razor to his fuzzy cheeks became a Canadian boxing champion Saturday night.

Fifteen-year-old Ron Paulsen of Edmonton captured the bantamweight title in the Dominion amateur boxing championships here, outpointing blighty-decreed Lloyd Dupas of Vancouver in a three-round bout.

Nine other champions were declared, one without entering the ring.

Paulsen went into the ring with the odds for Dupas, four years his senior and a chunky fighter who has cleaned up on the west coast. Dupas is Golden Gloves champion in three cities, Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver, and Vancouver dimmed hot titlist in the lightweight class.

Paulsen held his man at long range and saved his punches for opening. He had Dupas hanging on in the second round in carrying the fight throughout. A veteran with seven years experience in the ring, Paulsen, in taking the title claimed his 73rd consecutive victory.

WITHOUT A FIGHT

Keith Morrow of Regina won the flyweight crown with a battle. No one else showed up for the division.

Will Greaves of Edmonton, Canadian and British Empire lightmiddleweight champion, knocked out Willie Bartlett of Toronto at 26 seconds of the third round to keep his title.

Sonny Forbes of Toronto lost his welterweight title Friday night in preliminary bouts.

New welterweight king is Norm Jacquemoor, Regina. He decisioned Forbes and defeated Paul Bailey, Manitoba welter champion, in the finals.

Wally Gordon of Montreal took an unpopular decision over Trent Easton, Esquimalt, B.C., to win the middleweight title.

Bob Henson of the Royal Canadian Navy at Halifax produced one of the fastest wins in amateur boxing by stopping Al Sparks of Winnipeg at 55 seconds of the first round in their light heavyweight match He drove Sparks into his own corner and hammered him to the canvas.

George Chuvalio, Toronto, won the heavyweight title by knocking out Peter Piper of Winnipeg at 1:40 of the second round.

Three fighters had to box two bouts Saturday night. Bailey of Winnipeg, Ray Shanks of Halifax and Chuck Gilhooley, Melfort, Sask.

Shanks decisioned John Houle, Sudbury, and won the same way from Ed Smith, Montreal, to capture the lightweight championship. Jim Walters, Vancouver, defeated Gilhooley for the lightwelterweight title. Gilhooley was matched earlier with Al McGunigal, also of Melfort.

Hugh Meikle, Vancouver, dropped Paul Kenny of Bertrand, N.B., in a supersloppy eightcounts in the second round in winning the featherweight title.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor

Net many boys are born with or develop enough strength to pull every pitch, and a big majority of the outstanding hitters have learned to hit the ball to the opposite field. Stars like Bobby Avila, Irv Noren and Red Schoendienst, and even power hitters like Duke Snider, Stan Musial and Al Rosen build up their batting averages by hitting to all fields.

Avila's manager, Al Lopez, praises Bobby's ability to sprinkle hits to all fields and to drive the ball through the hole when he sees a gap in the infield.

Learning to hit the ball where it is pitched is the most important offensive lesson in baseball. Perhaps the easiest way for a youngster to learn this lesson is for him to use a batting tee. He will discover that he should meet the inside pitch before it reaches the plate to pull it, that he should meet the ball down the middle over the front edge of the plate to drive it back through the box, and that he should meet the outside pitch about six to 12 inches past the front of the plate to hit it to the opposite field.

Big Four Games To Be Telecast

MONTREAL (CP)—Vic Obeck, chairman of the radio and television committee of the Big Four, said Sunday night the football league has worked out final details with the CBC for renewal of a contract for the telecasting of all its games this year.

Obeck, who is also a vice-president of the Montreal Alouettes, said in a telephone interview that all that remains is for the CBC to send the Big Four a contract to be signed.

He said the deal, which he termed satisfactory, had been worked out between the members of the committee and S. W. Griffiths, national program director for the CBC, in a day-long meeting in Toronto a week ago Saturday.

He stressed that the CBC, which has an option to renew last year's contract at a raise in price, can still back down.

According to the deal, as it stands now, all home games would be blacked out to home town fans and there would be no rebroadcasts on the day following the game. Instead, on the following day, home town fans would be shown a kinescope of the other Big Four game the previous day or a Western Interprovincial Union contest.

Royals Take Two from Jets; Leafs Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal's Royals took the long way around to get their 2½-game lead in the International League today, playing 17 innings at Columbus Sunday in what was scheduled as no more than a doubleheader.

The opener got off all right, with the Royals beating Columbus 6-4. But the Jets were more sensitive in the nightcap, carrying Montreal to 18 innings before giving in 5-3.

A home run by Clyde Parris, his first hit in seven trips to the plate in the second game, won it and ended a string of nine scoreless and hitless innings by three Jet pitchers.

FIVE STRAIGHT

The homer broke up the game four innings short of the league record and made it five straight defeats for the Jets.

In other games; second-place Toronto broke even with Richmond losing the first 8-3, but winning the second 5-4, while third place Rochester lost its eight-game winning streak while splitting a pair of 7-3 contests with Havana. Rain postponed Syracuse at Buffalo.

Montreal's winning run came off Bud Leahy, who had combined with Al Romberger and Buck Wheat to no-hit the Royals from the eighth through the 17th. After Parris broke the ice, Gino Cimoli, John Bucha and Chico Fernandez singled to score an insurance run. The three Columbus runs came on homers by Al Heist, Leo Lindmer and Bill Stewart.

The two clubs used 33 players, 19 by Jets.

Longest International League game on record was a 22-inning contest over Rochester 2-2 from Jersey City, Aug. 13, 1950.

Pete Wojey, Jets' veteran Brooklyn's Dodgers, won the opener, but needed relief help despite a 4-1 lead as two by Charlie Neal and Dick Tred. Bob Trice, relieving, saved Jowy for Kansas City was the loser.

Toronto, despite Mike Gollat's three home runs, had to put down a rally to gain its split, too. Archie Wilson saved it for the locals, making a leaping catch off the fence for the final out in the nightcap win over seven on base. Gollat hit two of his homers in the second game, including a three-run blast. Rocco Ippolito's three-run homer won the first game for Richmond.

Jim McKenzie 'Mr. Bowling' For 1955

Jim McKenzie, well-known city bowler is the district's "Mr. Bowling for 1955."

McKenzie staged a roaring 'Frank Merriwell" finish to practically snatch the honors from Jim Lloyd and Ron Saylor who were running almost neck and neck as time was running out.

At the end of th eighth game of the night session it looked like a close battle between Lloyd and Saylor. But they had not reckoned with the comeback powers of McKenzie who finished the afternoon "five" in seventh position.

McKenzie's driving finish in the last two netted him singles of 299 and a phenomenal 416 to vault the top two challengers and win the title by 32 pins over second-place Jim Lloyd. Saylor finished third, 23 pins in arrears of Lloyd. The scores were McKenzie, 2696; Lloyd 2667 and Saylor 2643.

The tournament consisted of two five-game sessions, total pinfall to count. One session was played at the Bowl-O-Drome in the afternoon and the other in the evening.

Behind McKenzie, Lloyd and Saylor in the final standings were winners list were Horace Ormsbee, Trenton, 2532; Art Lalonde 2487; Art Atkin, 2473 and Ken Peacock 2405. The afternoon prize winners were Bill Saylor, 1383; Bob Hutchinson, 1350; Atkin, 1260; Lalonde, 1244; Peacock 1241, and McKenzie, 1232.

At the close of the tournament McKenzie was presented with the handsome O'Keefe Trophy emblematic of "Mr. Bowling" by Jim Williamson, representative of the O'Keefe Brewing Company. He was presented with a miniature by Joe Legault while Ron Saylor presented him with a handsome bowling lamp for the high single of 416. The lamp was donated by Saylor.

Approximately 30 bowlers from Belleville, Kingston, Trenton and Deseronto took part in the tournament which was well arranged by Bowl-O-Drome manager Bill Bateman.

"The Cruel Sea"

Jack Hawkins, back in the Royal navy after ten years, greets an inexperienced crew in 1939, including Donald Sinden and John Stratton, sub-lieutenants, and Stanley Baker, a first lieutenant who antagonizes the men. During the training exercises, Denholm Elliott, a civilian lawyer, joins the crew. The ship's first trip is uneventful except for the "cruel sea." Then a cargo ship is torpedoed, they pick up many scarred survivors. Sinden is promoted to Hawkins' assistant and their friendship deepens. Sinden falls in love with Virginia McKenna, a WREN, while Elliott finds that his actress-wife is unfaithful to him. In battle, the ship goes down and when Hawkins meets Sinden in a London bar, he asks him if he will join him in taking command of a river frigate—but with Elliott, Stratton and the others who have been killed in action.

"Jennifer"

Ida Lupino gets a job as caretaker of a vacant estate owned by Mary Shipp and last occupied by Mary's cousin, who has mysteriously disappeared. Ida soon comes upon evidence, including a diary and bankbook, showing deposits of $70,000—but no withdrawals — leading her to believe the woman had been murdered. This suspicion grows stronger after she talks with Robert Nichols, a grocery clerk who formerly knew Duff. Ida becomes convinced that Duff murdered the missing woman and accuses him of the crime. He eventually reveals that actually the woman had gone insane, that the bankbook and diary were products of a disturbed mind and that her family—believing insanity to be a disgrace—had spirited her away to a sanitarium. Her faith in Duff restored Ida rushes into his arms.

Child Actors Do Not Become Best Wives and Husbands

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why do so many child stars have unhappy lives as adults?

"Because their life is a make-believe world," observes Mrs. Gladys Hoene (pronounced Haney). She ought to know, because she has been teacher, friend and confessor to kid actors for 20 years. She's head of the school at Universal-International studios.

"Child actors don't become the best wives and husbands," she observed. "The world they have been brought up in is completely unreal. When they walk on a set, they start to play roles that are apart from reality."

ONE EXCEPTION

"I think the one exception is Ann Blyth. Of course, it is still too early in her marriage, but I would stake everything I had on her chances for success," she said.

Ann spent most of her school years as a pupil of Mrs. Hoene's but she wasn't as angelic as you might expect.

"When Ann and Donald O'Connor got together, they could cut up," recalled the teacher.

How was Donald as a student?

"Very, very adequate," she said smilingly. "When he became 18, he was getting married and going into the army so he didn't finish high school. He could have finished in one term after he got out of the service, but I think he was embarrassed to return to school. It's too bad. I think he regrets it now."

Another student who was no Phi Beta Kappa: Elizabeth Taylor. She was at Universal just ending pictures before going to MGM and "National Velvet."

"Elizabeth was the most beautiful child I have ever seen," said Mrs. Hoene. "She was charming, too, but she had absolutely no use for school."

After years of transient pupils, mostly kids in the Kettle series, the U-I schoolhouse once more has a steady student. He is Tim Hovey, a bright young nine-year-old. The lad made such a hit in "The Private War of Major Benson" that the studio is hoping to build him into a star.

Mrs. Hoene, who came to Universal 17 years ago, has supervised schooling for all of the studio's youngsters except Deanna Durbin, who had her own tutor.

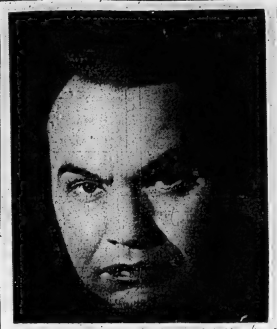
KITCHENER MALE CHOIR TO PRESENT CONCERT

(ADVT.)

The Schneider - Orpheus Male Choir, which appears in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Thursday, May 12th, is probably the most travelled male chorus in Ontario. Since its organization in 1947, the choir has travelled a total of approximately 15,000 miles in Canada and the United States.

The choir, in its first American appearance, scored a real hit as guest choir in Rochester, New York, in April, 1951.



In May, 1952, the Schneider-Orpheus Choir was host to the first 'Big Sing' ever to be held in Canada. Staging the event in the new Memorial Auditorium in Kitchener, it proved to be the most successful affair of its kind on the Continent. Seventeen choirs from the U.S.A. and Ontario making a total of 540 singers formed the massed choir for this occasion. In May of 1954 the second 'Sing' was held in Kitchener, when 650 male singers presented a concert to a capacity audience of over 6,000 people. Recordings of the massed parts of both sings are available, and have proved very popular with lovers of male chorus singing.

The choir made its second American appearance at Milwaukee, Wis., in May, 1953, and was again enthusiastically received by singers and audience alike.

The Schneider — Orpheus Male Choir was instrumental in the formation of the Ontario District of the Associated Male Choruses of America, and takes a keen interest and active part in its growth.

Bridge Street United Church Choir, which is sponsoring this concert is pleased to be able to present the Schneider-Orpheus Choir, and is anticipating a capacity audience. Tickets can be obtained from Quinte Book Shop, Leslie Shoe Stores. Price adults $1.00, students 50c.

Don't miss this musical treat of the season. J. M. Schneider Limited, meat packers of Kitchener, has proved to be the sponsor of this popular choral ensemble.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 17, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A generally friendly period for familiar activities, including building, merchandising, how you were trained. Avoid irritability; it can cloud real issues, obstruct progress.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Mildly favorable rays. The possibilities for advancing through intelligent effort age good. Don't be disappointed if you cannot make all trys successful; a good average is fine; be sensibly content.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Haste could cause you to overlook good, opportunities now. Watch your progress carefully; change methods if you are getting results. Personal affairs need study.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Astute judgment coupled with sound foresight and research will do the trick today. Calm management is also essential. Never allow small disturbances to annoy you.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Make haste slowly today. Some unexpected situations may crop up. Bear up smartly, be firm, keep chin up; they will soon blow over.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Don't start the day off feeling that things are not going to click for you. A confident attitude will better your chances. You are capable; be your buoyant self.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Stress the brighter side of things. This does not mean that you should be gullible, but just a plain sensible you. Need sound-, suggestions; they could be more helpful than you realize.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A wide-open day for you clever, "quick-on-the-trigger" Scorpio natives. Ride along on the crest of the wave. You'll recognize the good things available; don't be distracted from them.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Advice to Virgo also applies here. Take time to analyze opportunities and don't over-estimate your abilities. Better to achieve some good returns than none through heedless hurry.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Be alert to the possibility of difficult situations arising out of "nowhere." The unexpected could upset the best of plans. Much is up to your frame of mind, disposition.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Some restrictions in the a.m. Avoid any tendency to go ahead without proper plans, study. Close application needed to put across important matters now. Hold to highest principles.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — We all feel better, happy when we have realized an ambition, done a good job. You may enjoy that pleasure now if you couple smart thinking with your efforts and co-operate with your associates.

YOU BORN TODAY are practical, sometimes conservative, but enjoy good living. You are persistent—which may help you at times but which also could put you in tight places; be careful, you are innately honest but often sensitive about your plans. This often prevents others from cooperating with you — especially those who would like to. You have friends readily. Taureans like action, but must strike a happy medium in life. You make excellent doctors, bankers, musicians; are faithful to positions of trust. There are good months ahead for consistent action. Birthdate of Edward Jenner, physician, discoverer of vaccination.

Imperial Oil's new research findings mean extra mileage for Canadian drivers whether your car is new or old . . . improved Esso gasolines and new Marvelube motor oil used together

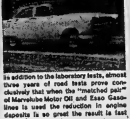
1. give you more mileage
2. improve your car's getaway
3. cut down engine deposits that rob your car of power



HERE'S PROOF FROM IMPERIAL OIL'S RESEARCH LABORATORIES

Engine deposits handicap your car's performance. Improved Esso and Esso Extra are specially formulated to burn cleaner in your engine, leaving less deposit—Here is one of the many stages of research on these improved gasolines at Imperial Oil's laboratories.

New Marvelube has special qualities that keep engine deposits to a minimum. Three years of laboratory tests prove that when this new motor oil is used with improved Esso or Esso Extra Gasoline there is an even greater reduction in engine deposits.

In addition to the laboratory tests, almost three years of road tests prove conclusively that when the "matched pair" of Marvelube Motor Oil and Esso Gasoline is used the reduction in engine deposits is so great the result is fast getaway, more mileage.

Drive in today—prove to yourself the better performance you can get.

H.S. Enjoys Annual Graduation Dance

CAMPBELLFORD — A spring theme formed the background for the annual graduation dance held at the Campbellford High School on Friday evening, when the auditorium of the school was decorated with willows, pocket fences and even a bubbling fountain.

The Sevenaires from Peterborough supplied the music and lucky spot dances, elimination dances and a special number for the graduates and their escorts added variety to the program.

BELLE OF THE BALL

Miss Patsy Wallace was chosen Belle of the Ball. Her attendants were Joy Craighead and Marilyn Haig. The girls were nominated from grades 11, 12 and 13, and chosen by the student body.

Before the dance a coffee party was held in the school for the graduates and their parents. Bob Cowell and Joy Craighead, top students in grade 12, Jim Baker, Miss Barefoot and Principal E. E. Darling received the guests, who spent a pleasant half hour mingling with friends and teachers. The students of grade 12 served refreshments, assisted by Miss K. Ferris and Mrs. T. Eddy, who poured coffee.

Both the dance and the coffee party were planned by the students of grade 12, under the direction of Miss K. O'Shaughnessy, to whom the student body gave a great deal of credit for the success of their dance. The annual dance is the most important social event of the year in school life.

CAMPBELLFORD — Mrs. Aubrey Sharp and two sons have returned home after visiting for a month with her grandfather, at Churchill, Ont.

Mr. Hilliard Jones has completed his years' studies at Queen's University in Kingston and returned home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jewell have returned to their summer resort, after spending the winter months in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blakely and family, of Belleville, renewed acquaintances in town on Sunday.

Mr. Paul Bennett, who is enrolled in Science at Queen's University, Kingston, left for Three Rivers, Quebec, where he has taken a position for the summer, after spending a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown and Miss Norma Brown, of Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Morrison of Carnon, Ont.; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrison, Belleville, attended the funeral of the late Mr. Matt. Archaeologist Says Continent Atlantis Existed

ROME (AP)—The lost continent of Atlantis has fired man's imagination for centuries.

Ancient Greek legends told of a highly-civilized people living on a fiscal political state flourished there. Then came a mighty disaster and Atlantis disappeared.

Was the legend true? Did Atlantis exist?

After 40 years of study, Italian archaeologist Constantino Catiol says the answer is yes.

GIANT BELT OF LAND

Catiol visualizes Atlantis as originally having been a giant belt of land stretching from Asia to Central America. Gradually parts of the land disappeared beneath the sea until three great bodies remained.

These he identifies as: Lemuria, linking India and Africa; Atlantis, covering most of the north-central Atlantic ocean, with an arm called Tythemia reaching eastward to Italy; and Mu, a giant Pacific land body reaching from the Hawaiian islands as far south as the Society islands and as far west as the Carolines and Marianas islands.

That much must be speculation," Catiol said in an interview. "It is patched together from legends of many countries—the Aztecs, the ancient Egyptians, the Greeks."

What force destroyed Atlantis? Plato spoke of earthquakes. Catiol tells of legends which indicate a series of disasters. He thinks there may possibly be a connection between these stories and the flood of 40 days described in the bible.

What's news at Inco?

The four Rolls-Royce "Dart" engines which power each Vickers-Armstrongs Viscount develop a total of 5600 hp. — approximately 1 hp. for every 10 ounces of engine weight and in addition, a jet thrust of 1450 lbs. is developed from the exhaust gases. Since the "Dart" is a turbine propeller engine, it employs no reciprocating parts and since the propellers operate at relatively low speeds, unusually quiet operation is achieved.
INCO NICKEL STANDS UP TO A HOT JOB IN THE NEW VISCOUNT AEROPLANE
HEAT WAS THE BIG PROBLEM that confronted the engineers who designed and built the Rolls-Royce "Dart" engine for the Vickers-Armstrongs Viscounts which TCA has put into regular service.
In developing its smooth flow of power, this gas turbine propeller engine also develops terrific heat. A number of parts must operate at cherry red heat.
At this temperature some alloys wear away rapidly. Others do not have enough strength to withstand operating stresses and prevent buckling, warping or cracking.
Nickel, however, has heat-resisting properties and when combined with other metals makes special alloys which can withstand those devastating conditions.
Some of these alloys, employed in the "Dart" engine, contain as much as 68% nickel.
Inco research engineers have co-operated with engine designers in the development of heat-resisting alloys—as they are ready to co-operate with design engineers in any industry where special metals are required to meet unusual conditions.
How the Rolls-Royce "Dart" Engine Operates

Air enters the engine at high speeds through intakes (A) behind the propeller, and is compressed by a two-stage compressor (B). In the combustion chamber (C), the compressed air is mixed with fuel and ignited. The heated gases drive a turbine (D) which is connected through a reduction gear (E) with the propeller. At the exhaust (F), escaping gases deliver an additional jet thrust.
Write for your free copy of the 72-page illustrated booklet, "The Romance of Nickel". Bulk copies will be supplied to secondary school teachers on request.

U.S. Sabre Jets Down Two Red Planes

Dogfight Staged Over Yellow Sea As Reds Attack

Americans Were on Patrol 50 Miles Southwest of Yalu

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP)—American Sabre jets, jumped by Communist MIGs between North Korea and Red China, shot down two of the Russian-built jets and probably destroyed another this morning, the United States Air Force announced.

The dogfight started over international waters of the Yellow sea, the air force said, when eight Sabres were attacked by 12 to 15 Communist fighters.

The fight area was about 50 miles southwest of the mouth of the Yalu river, boundary between North Korea and Red China. Communist China has a large airbase at Antung and North Korea has one at Sinuiju, on opposite banks of the Yalu.

The U.S. Air Force gave no clue on the nationality of the MIGs used by the air forces of North Korea, Communist China and Soviet Russia.

The U.S. Air Force said all the Sabres returned to their Korean bases. They had been on a patrol mission off the coast of North Korea when the attack occurred.

The air force announcement said the MIGs fired first, and the Sabres returned the fire. Two Communist pilots bailed out and "the third plane was last seen diving straight down trailing smoke."

The battle took place approximately 50 miles southwest of Sinuiju, on the border between North Korea and Red China, the air force said.

American pilots who scored were Capt. R. V. Fulton, Lieut. B. C. Fhyhyon and Lieut. J. E. Mcinerney.

It was the third almost identical incident in the same general Yellow sea area in 16 months. Today's battle—the third air clash in the area since the end of the Korean war in July, 1953—brings the U.S. MIG toll to five kills and one probable.

Russia Raises New Obstacle To Austrian Pact

By LYNN HEINZERLING

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The West went ahead today with plans for signing the Austrian independence treaty this weekend despite a new Russian obstacle.

In the continuing talks here on the treaty draft, Russian ambassador I. I. Ilyichev demanded Monday that economic concessions promised by Moscow last month to the Austrians be let out of the pact.

Instead, Ilyichev insisted that the original draft treaty's provisions for reparations to Russia remain as written in 1948. He said the reductions agreed to by Foreign Minister Molotov in March should be covered in a separate pact to be signed later only by the Russians and the Austrians.

TALK AGAIN TODAY

Discussion of the issue was to be renewed today by Ilyichev and the British, French and United States ambassadors to Austria, who have been working out in other days the draft since May 2. The envoys were agreed on most other questions.

Despite the hitch over reparations, the optimistic belief prevails that the Big Four foreign ministers may be here this weekend to sign the treaty ending the 10-year occupation of Austria. Not since the Nazi Anschluss of 1938 has the former heartland of the Austro-Hungarian empire been independent.

Think Children Have Explosives

BRAMPTON (CP)—Police and parents in the village of Inglewood, 19 miles north of here, today searched for the owner of seven dynamite caps, believed to be in possession of children.

The caps, capable of killing or badly wounding an inexperienced handler, were taken during the weekend from a stone quarry near Inglewood.

THE WEATHER

Clearing may be expected tonight in the northwest of the province and during the morning in the rest of the province.

4 BANKS LOWER INTEREST RATES ON NHA LOANS

Reduction to 5 Per Cent Is Effective Today

MONTREAL (CP) — Four banks now have announced reductions in the interest rate on mortgage loans for new houses.

The surprise move was started Monday night by the Royal Bank of Canada which announced that, effective immediately, it was reducing the interest rate on mortgage loans to five per cent from 5½. The Bank of Nova Scotia followed suit.

In Montreal today, the Bank of Montreal and the Canadian Bank of Commerce announced that they, too, were matching the reduction. The Montreal banks are making mortgages under the National Housing Act, but they for small private homes or lofty apartment buildings.

A spokesman for one of the banks said the new rate will apply only to mortgages arranged from today onward. It will not apply to mortgages already in effect.

The Bank of Nova Scotia announced the reduction Monday night in Toronto, following the Royal Bank's unexpected move here Monday.

Other banks and insurance companies are expected to bring their rates into line apparently.

5½ P. C. UNREALISTIC

The Royal Bank decided "voluntarily" to reduce its interest rate said chairman and president James Muir, because it believes the 5½-per-cent rate "is on the high side and unrealistic under present conditions."

The bank "believes a lower rate will encourage even more people to take advantage of the very attractive terms now being arranged under the National Housing Act and thus encourage the construction of new homes," Mr. Muir said.

General manager T. H. Atkinson said in an interview the bank did not consult other lending institutions before making the move. Officials of banks with head offices in Toronto expressed surprise at the reduction. But president Horace L. Eman announced the Bank of Montreal will "probably" follow the Royal Bank's move.

CCF Leader Heard in Frost's Riding in Hard-Hitting Attack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A CCFer ventured into Premier Frost's Progressive Conservative stronghold Monday night and unleashed the most violent attack thus far in the young campaign for the June 9 Ontario general election.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Ontario CCF party, said the Progressive Conservatives use the premier's high reputation like hide from public view the whole underworld of activity carried on by the rotten Tory machine."

At the same time, Mr. MacDonald, the 39-year-old premier as a man who has rightly won a reputation of great devotion to public service and of high personal integrity. But, he maintained, it is increasingly apparent that Mr. Frost has no control of and cannot eliminate the "dirty racketeering" as it absorbs more and more of public administration for its own purposes."

Meanwhile, Arcadius Oliver, leader of the Liberal Opposition in the legislature, made his first speech in nearly a week when he addressed a nomination meeting at Brantford. He hit hard at the government's failure to act on the high frequency changeover in the province.

Mr. Frost was not on a speaking engagement Monday night. He resumes his campaign tonight.

Mr. MacDonald addressed about 150 persons in a storefront meeting in Victoria riding, Mr. Frost's constituency. The premier has held the seat for 18 years. Ross Gruer, a car salesman, was chosen to carry the CCF banner against Mr. Frost.

Mr. MacDonald said that in "opposing the premier you have to contend with a man who has a very great influence, politically, his home riding, and rightly so."

He used the Renfrew South incident as a springboard for his attack on the Progressive Conservatives. The Renfrew South candidate, James Dempsey, was recently dropped by the government after it admitted receiving contributions from a constituent for campaign funds.

Mr. McDonald also brought up the highways irregularities case.

"The only difference between Mr. Dempsey and all other Conservative candidates is that Mr. Dempsey was a little careless in the handling of his campaign funds and the information got out. But the heart and soul and spinal column of all party funds come from the contractors who do business with the provincial government," he said.

He said charges against officials of the companies involved in the highways scandal were not pressed for fear that some of the contractors would spill the beans just as Mr. Dempsey has done."

Mr. MacDonald later said the Canadian Comstock Company is a "giant racket" moving in on application against private companies with money it made on Hydro contracts.

"Unless reforms are brought in, the development of hydro-electric power as envisioned by Sir Adam Beck will have become a mill-stone," he said. The Liberal leader was speaking to 150 persons at a nomination meeting for Brantford's George T. Gordon, seeking his third term in the legislature, was nominated.

Mr. Oliver said a Liberal government would rearrange the contract which he said now pays Canadian Comstock five per cent over cost. He added that cost of converting from 25 to 60 cycle in

Will Hold Warsaw Gathering To Form Red Security Pact

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union planned to fly two of its highest officials, Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Foreign Minister Molotov, to Warsaw today for the birth of the Communist version of NATO.

Molotov announced Monday night that he and the premier would attend the Soviet bloc's security conference scheduled to open today in the Polish capital.

The conference is expected to pool the armed forces of the Soviet Union and its seven East European satellites into a unified command they had pledged in Moscow last Dec. 2 to form before West Germany were rearmed.

A declaration following the Moscow meeting said: "All these measures are in conformity with the inalienable right of every state to defence, are in conformity with the United Nations charter, and with previous Soviet-proposed pacts against remilitarization of Western Germany."

The Russians will be joined in the unified command by Communist East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Albania. Red China, which had voiced its support of the Warsaw Security pledge, is to be represented at the Warsaw conference by an observer.

Western observers in Moscow expect Marshal Ivan Konev, the Soviet deputy minister of defence, to be named the new supreme Communist commander.

The meeting also is expected to make provision for an East German army.

Western military experts have said the new Soviet bloc organization will make little change in the military picture behind the Iron Curtain. These officials consider the Red Army forces have been under Soviet domination for years.

LEE COBB COLLAPSES

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Lee J. Cobb collapsed at a movie location site in Houston, Tex., Monday night. He will be in hospital for an indefinite period, his studio said, suffering from "extreme fatigue." Cobb went to Texas for scenes of "The Houston Story." The movie company is returning to Hollywood because of his illness.

South Viet Nam Premier Forms New Cabinet

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem tonight announced formation of a new government with the immediate goal of calling free South Viet Nam's first general elections.

Diem said in forming his new cabinet that he had followed the wishes of two national congresses here last week. But his announcement made no mention of the future of the chief of state, Bao Dai.

Sponsors of one of the congresses, a political revolutionary committee, have been increasing their pressure on the premier to depose the absentee chief of state. Diem, it is reported, wants to leave Bao Dai's fate in the national assembly, for which his government is pledged to arrange elections.

Ottawa Denies Indians Entitled To Get Whisky

OTTAWA (CP) — Indians on the Tyendinaga Reserve near Deseronto, east of here, do not presently have the federal government has owed them for 120 years.

The Indians said that the treaty their forefathers signed with the government in 1853 provided for annual payment of five pounds of flour and a bottle of whiskey per family. The flour has been arriving but they've been wondering what happened to the whiskey.

Indian Affairs officials said yesterday that the contract entitles the Indians to 30 barrels of flour a year, but there was no mention of whiskey.

CUT IN JOBLESS PAYMENT PERIOD MEETS OPPOSITION

Claim Municipalities Would Suffer by Change

OTTAWA (CP)—A revision of federal unemployment insurance legislation has come under opposition fire in the Commons for its proposed plan to cut the maximum period of payments to 30 weeks from 51.

Progressive Conservative and CCF speakers criticized that aspect of the measure Monday before the bill was approved in principle and sent to a committee for detailed study.

One Liberal member, Dr. W. H. McMillan, Welland, joined with opposition views on that point and said he regrets the change because municipalities will have increased costs for long-term unemployed.

But Labor Minister Gregg, closing the debate, made no direct reference to the criticism. He said, however, that careful study is being given to whether request by several provinces for broadening of insurance coverage to include fishermen and farm workers.

INCREASED PAYMENTS

Besides the change in the maximum benefit period, the bill would increase the top weekly insurance payment to $30 for married persons and to $23 for single unemployed. Present ceilings are $24 for married and $17.10 for single persons.

It provides a three-year changeover period from the time the measure comes into force in which those insured now will not lose financially from the changes if they become unemployed.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative labor spokesman, said the cut in the maximum benefit period means that maximum benefits will be lower by more than $200 for those in the 52-week earnings class it would mean a possible loss of $441.

The change will strike hardest, she said, at persons being retired who have paid regularly into the insurance fund. Individual rights should be considered ahead of its effects on the fund.

Following discussion of the unemployment insurance bill, which occupied most of the sitting, the Commons resumed the budget debate.

The question of Saskatchewan's share of revenue from federal-aid should be given flood sufferers—was raised briefly at the opening of the sitting.

In reply to several opposition queries, Finance Minister Harris said the government has not yet received factual information from the province to enable it to decide whether to give assistance.

Get CNR Post

MONTREAL (CP) — Appointment of E. A. Ryder as general freight traffic manager of Canadian National Railways was announced today by M. A. Metcalf, traffic vice-president for the system.

Mr. Ryder, a native of Havelock, N.B., and assistant general traffic freight traffic manager here since 1953, succeeds C. B. Smith, scheduled to retire May 31.

Dying Indian Mother With Baby Sits Beside Road as Cars Roll By

FORT ST. JOHN, B. C. (CP)— A dying Indian mother trying to get to a hospital sat beside the Alaska highway for more than 12 hours, sheltering her six-day-old baby as cars passed by ignoring her.

When a truck finally stopped, it was too late. Mrs. Louis Wolf died shortly after admittance to hospital here.

Reports reaching this town near the Yukon border said the Indian woman rode horseback 30 miles from her home to the highway, where she had been told she could get a ride to hospital. She sat beside the road, hoping for a truck driver, going the wrong way, to pick her up. Hours later, when he returned, she was still there.

Mrs. unidentified driver sped mother and baby to hospital, but Mrs. Wolf died shortly afterward.

Hospital authorities said they were told Mrs. Wolf had been ill for some time, but had refused to go to hospital to have her baby. Her husband, reached by radio, has demanded an inquiry into why the woman was allowed to sit, dying, beside the road.

NATO Countries Back 'Big Three' Call For Talks

Eisenhower Gives Consent To Top-Level Summer Meet

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS (AP) — The Western Big Three, backed by the whole Atlantic alliance, today invited the Soviet Union to a top-level conference this summer of East-West problems in Europe.

Notes suggesting such a meeting were being cabled to Moscow for delivery at the Kremlin tonight or early Wednesday, diplomatic informants said.

Armed with President Eisenhower's consent, American, British and French experts finished up the text of the invitation and quickly obtained the approval of the NATO Council, including that of West Germany's Chancellor-Foreign Minister Konrad Adenauer.

The notes suggest a meeting of both the heads of government and of the foreign ministers of the Big Four.

They leave the date and place of the meetings for decision later, possibly by the Big Four foreign ministers when they meet this weekend in Vienna to sign the Austrian state treaty.

The north Atlantic treaty council will, it was said, use its official stamp of approval on the move in its final communique when the foreign ministers end their talks Wednesday.

Under the proposal, U. S. State Secretary Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Macmillan, French Foreign Minister Pinay and West German Chancellor Molotov would meet a day or two in advance of a meeting "at the summit" of Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, British Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure.

The heads of government would then confer for a short period of time, perhaps three or four days, to lay down the outlines for a conference of their respective foreign ministers.

The heads of government would not be expected to take any decisions on substance nor make any binding agreements. They merely would agree on an agenda and designate the persons, the foreign ministers, to carry out the job.

The foreign ministers would then take over the stage again for what could be a prolonged East-West conference.

The invitation to the Kremlin will be couched in general terms. Dulles, Macmillan and Pinay will tell Bulganin and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov when they meet him Saturday in Vienna before signing the Austrian state treaty there Sunday.

In Washington the White House said Dulles had been given "full powers to arrange a Big Four meeting of any date if you thought it "feasible and useful." Diplomatic informants said the Western allies would propose this kind of conference to the foreign ministers:

1. Eisenhower and the British and French premiers would meet with Bulganin preferably around mid-July in neutral Switzerland.

2. The Soviet government heads would have no fixed agenda, but would try to normalize relations. Directives aimed at settling specific causes of East-West tension in Europe.

3. These directives would be passed on to the Big Four foreign ministers, whose job would be to translate the directives into detailed agreements.

4. The four government chiefs would leave the conference immediately after drawing up a list of talking points and possible ways of settling them. This task probably would last only a week or so.

Hees Will Ask How Suspect Entered Canada

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram today quotes George Hees, national president of the Progressive Conservative party, as saying he would ask in the House of Commons how a "strange aspect" of foreign extraction, now lodged in the Ontario Hospital at Whitby, had entered Canada. He said if he had a record of a criminal nature he would be deported.

The man, whose name has not been released by police, is being questioned in connection with the two strangle murders and a third attempted strangling of Toronto women.

Police said the suspect lived in Toronto at the time of the murders—one of them in the general area where the murders were committed.

Police said they have reason to believe that the suspect may have had a police record and history of mental instability in Germany before coming to Canada.

Toronto police have called police in Germany for a complete dossier on the man.

800 Tugmen Rebuff Union Leaders' Plea, Continue to Tie Up Port

LIVERPOOL (Reuters) — Eight hundred tugmen today voted to continue a wildcat strike which has virtually paralyzed Britain's second-biggest port for six days.

The decision was taken at a rowdy vacant-lot session following a meeting the night before at which the tugmen rebuffed their union leaders' plea to return to work. Scenes of fury and disorder were and better overtime pay.

Waterfront employers this morning laid off 750 longshoremen, bringing to 3,750 the total made idle by the strike. The walkout also has tied up 80 ships here.

Many ocean carriers are being worked, a ministry of labor official said. But the 22,000-ton liner Saxonia announced it will try to dock tonight without the aid of tugs. She was due in Montreal on Thursday. At present she is anchored offshore with dozens of passengers.

The 27,000-ton liner Britannia has also been ordered here by Cunard. She has become a luxury hotel for 900 passengers for New York. But the tugmen refused their union leaders' plea to return to work. Scenes of fury and disorder were and better overtime pay.

Waterfront employers this morning laid off 750 longshoremen, bringing to 3,750 the total made idle by the strike. The walkout also has tied up 80 ships here.

French Railways Lock Rails With Dental Device

PARIS (Reuters) — French railways hope to make their lines even safer by using a screw which a dentist invented to save his patients from boiled their false teeth.

They have ordered 5,000,000 of the screws to lock the rails more tightly to the wooden ties.

Dr. Jean Broggiotti, inventor of the device, died a few months ago.

Russia Raises New Obstacle To Austrian Pact

By LYNN HEINZERLING

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The West went ahead today with plans for signing the Austrian independence treaty this weekend despite a new Russian obstacle.

In the continuing talks here on the treaty draft, Russian ambassador I. I. Ilyichev demanded Monday that economic concessions promised by Moscow last month to the Austrians be let out of the pact.

Instead, Ilyichev insisted that the original draft treaty's provisions for reparations to Russia remain as written in 1948. He said the reductions agreed to by Foreign Minister Molotov in March should be covered in a separate pact to be signed later only by the Russians and the Austrians.

TALK AGAIN TODAY

Discussion of the issue was to be renewed today by Ilyichev and the British, French and United States ambassadors to Austria, who have been working out in other days the draft since May 2. The envoys were agreed on most other questions.

Despite the hitch over reparations, the optimistic belief prevails that the Big Four foreign ministers may be here this weekend to sign the treaty ending the 10-year occupation of Austria. Not since the Nazi Anschluss of 1938 has the former heartland of the Austro-Hungarian empire been independent.

Churchill Is Nominated

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill has returned to the political wars with the assured backing of the Conservative party organization in nearby Woodford. He has represented the district in Parliament for 30 years.

Local party officials Monday night gave unanimous endorsement the 80-year-old former prime minister as their candidate for the House of Commons.

Churchill briskly climbed a steep flight of steps up to the platform to tell his supporters that "immense harm would be done to the interests of everybody on this island if, by some overcautiousness, we allowed the socialists to be returned. That would be a disaster far above the level of party struggle."

CHILDREN BELIEVED RESPONSIBLE FOR HEN HOUSE BLAZE

Children playing with matches were believed responsible for a blaze on the Foxboro Road north of the city late Monday afternoon when a small hen house owned by W. R. Muir was gutted by fire.

City firemen extinguished the blaze but the interior of the small building, about 10 by 20 feet was badly damaged. No hens were lost in the blaze.

Two other alarms were answered by the department yesterday, including a run for an over-heated stove on Harriett street, and a grass blaze on Coleman Flats during the afternoon.

A resident of Moira, for many years, she has been resident in the McKeown home for the past two months.

Will Search Ships

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—United States customs officials say they plan to search all overseas foreign ships stopping at this Great Lakes port. The plan does not apply to Canadian lake vessels.

Customs collector Harold Becker announced Monday that boarding parties will search the vessels for "general security reasons." He declined to elaborate on the statement.

Council Will Continue Business Under Present Committee System

City council will continue to do business under the present system of separate committees.

Council voted to do just this at the December meeting Monday evening when it turned down a motion by Alderman Graham that it revert to the former system of committees of the whole council for at least the more important committees of public works and finance.

Speaking to his motion, Alderman David declared that under the present system of separate committees for a councillor to be well informed he must attend at least eight committee meetings.

"I simply haven't got the time and yet I am noted to vote in open council on something which I haven't studied," he said.

He said that if the work of all committees was conducted at a meeting of the whole, interested councillors would be acquainted with all city business.

Alderman Claude Tice said he had sat in council under both systems and he maintained that the former system of committees of the whole council was almost impossible, to get the work done in one night. Also recommendations passed by committees would often see votes reversed at the regular meeting of council.

He claimed that with the magistrate sitting with the police it was possible for all councillors to know the facts of every argument.

APPROVES PRESENT SYSTEM

Alderman Gerald Hyde said he could not agree with the motion. The chief duty of council was to present system that when committees recommendations were made in council nobody sat up to say anything about them or explain why they were being brought in. He felt the present system was the better.

Alderman Clarke also opposed any change from the present system. "I have sat under both systems and for the life of me I cannot see how we could get through in one meeting."

"If we followed our procedure by-law and each aldermen spoke only once on any one subject, we could get through in one meeting," Mayor Both. "They do it in other cities."

But Alderman Graham was opposed to any such strict adherence to the procedure by-law in committee meetings. "The idea of committee meetings is to thrash things out before recommendations are brought in."

DISAGREED WITH CLAIM

He disagreed that the change would prevent councillors from being well informed. He suggested it be given a try, and doubted that it was a gun run members would spend more time in council business.

On a per-capita vote five council members approved of the motion with yes votes being cast by Mayor Both, Aldermen Graham, Humphreys, McCabe and Ashley. Opposing were Aldermen Clarke, Forrester, Graham, Grandaro, Hyde, Keegan, Moynes and Tumilson.

Inter-Com System In City Hall Is Modified

The difference of opinion between two city hall staff officials, which, two weeks ago brought a recommendation from the city comptroller for the suspension of the welfare administrator, has been settled — at a cost of $23.

The $23 was spent in modifying the city hall inter-communications system and bringing it up to date.

This was accomplished by the special committee set up by council to investigate the complaint of Welfare Administrator Whitman that Welfare Officer George Whitman had disconnected the inter-communication system in his office and had refused to restore the connection upon request. The welfare officer had charged "eavesdropping".

The committee headed by Alderman Frank Grandame ordered the system reconnected with steps to be taken to purchase a new system or have the present system brought up to date and that the question of suspension of the welfare officer be dropped.

Alderman Grandame also said she wished to clear up any thought on the part of the public that Mr. Whitman had been suspended.

"Mr. Whitman was never suspended at any time," she declared. "He carried out his duties as welfare officer at all times," she said.

Hourly-Rated PW Employees Given Pay Boost

Hourly-rated employees of the city public works department have been given a pay boost of from two cents to seven cents per hour, the pay increase to cost the city approximately $1,800 for this year.

The pay increase was approved Monday evening by city council which also approved a finance committee recommendation to establish maximum and minimum salaries by female clerk-typists at city hall.

Alderman Ben Safe as chairman of the public works committee in announcing the pay boost for public works employees said that those on the department would be affected. These men had not received any pay increase in the first of the 11th year.

Clerk-typists at city hall will be graded into three grades each of which will call for specific abilities.

GRADING SYSTEM NECESSARY

Alderman Gerald Hyde as chairman of the finance committee noted that some sort of a grading system was necessary to enable employees at city hall so that—different pay schedules would be known and also what increase employees were entitled to.

Under the new system the salary for grade 1 clerk-typists will be $57 per week with a scale of $46 per week to start. Grade 2 clerks will receive a top of $46 with a starting rate of $40, and grade 3 clerks will get a top of $40 with $33 per week to start.

Automatic annual increases of $104 per annum will be granted until the maximum in each grade is reached.

Clerk-Comptroller H. D. Baldwin said the schedule was comparable to that in industry and in other civic offices in the city.

Members Vote Not to Grant Junk Yard Licence for Area On Advice of City Solicitor

Acting on the rumor that a licence may be asked for the district, city council Monday evening voted against a junk yard licence sought for the Foster Ward area south of the C.P.R. tracks, establishment of which was carried out at a railway between Pinnacle and George streets.

Alderman Arthur Keegan presented the recommendation to council which had the support of a number of Foster Ward residents, who had circulated a petition asking that the licence not be granted.

The recommendation called for a committee to interview railway officials to see if the roadway could be used upon Exact business used the roadway and its closing would cut off access to the spur leading trains, according to Alderman Keegan.

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle said in his opinion council would be within its rights in refusing to issue the licence for the junk yard.

A meeting of the city industrial committee was scheduled today called today to discuss among other matters whether the city should lend land to the Canadian Ontario Regional Development Association.

Alderman Keegan introduced a recommendation for the meeting to be called but after considerable discussion the motion was withdrawn, when Mayor Both as industrial committee chairman agreed he would call a meeting if the members so wished.

It was brought out that Mayor Both had not been asked specifically to call the meeting prior to the council meeting.

SHOULD ASK MAYOR

Alderman Lloyd Wilson said no possibly asking too much for council to order the meeting and suggested if the mayor was asked he might call the meeting. "He is chairman of the committee and by a majority vote of council," said the alderman.

Alderman David said he had tried to bring the matter of city participation in the regional development association before council on two occasions and had been "brushed off."

He resented the implication given at last night's meeting of the Association in Campbellford that Belleville should not be in the way of planning. "It made us the laughing stock of the meeting," he said.

Alderman Keegan noted the city's participation in the association should go before the industrial committee before it was brought in to council and there were other matters requiring the immediate attention of the committee.

Mayor Both replied he was willing to co-operate but only to the extent of the co-operation being a benefit to the city.

"This regional development association is not new," he declared. "It is as old as I have been interested in Eastern Ontario at the cost of many years."

The mayor objected to so much control over municipalities by the provincial municipal councillors are "yes men" for central government. "The provincial municipal councils have their own voice without being told what to do," he said.

WANTS BETTER OFFER

Alderman Wilson said the fact that Belleville needs industry and that the association could be something better to offer I will approve."

He went on to say that individual work by civic minded men on part of everything is forgetting industry than was any regional area.

"We cannot spend money more wisely by having an industrial commissioner," he said and that many times over that which could be expected by belonging to the area," he added.

Alderman Clarke said he wanted no part of supervising a committee chairman with council ordering a meeting held in the city. Alderman the mayor Alderman Moxam asked if he was willing to call a meeting.

"Yes, if it is the wish of the members," was the reply.

Alderman Keegan's motion calling for the meeting was then accordingly withdrawn.

Council approved for Mayor Both to attend the Mayors' Convention in Edmonton during the latter part of August, despite a motion by Alderman Keegan that he not be sent unless he had some definite policy to offer.

In answer to Alderman Keegan Mayor Both pointed out that he had asked for the Edmonton and that he had not yet brought disgrace on the city. He noted he had gone to the convention last year and asked the alderman to get a report of the bill for the trip had been. "I haven't yet seen the bill," he was the reply.

COMMITTEE APPROVED

Alderman Ryde said the recommendation had come from the finance committee as a courtesy to the mayor and that it had the approval of the committee in the mayor's absence.

Council approved of another recommendation to have a special meeting of council with the finance committee to discuss four specific problems of importance to the city.

Alderman Keegan noted council had voted to hold the meeting with the finance committee and the meeting had not been held. Problems suggested for discussion were the proposed trafficc, reduced water freight rates, policy on the waterfront property and annexation.

Council also approved that a meeting of the planning committee with representatives of the Sidney and Thurlow councils to discuss suburban planning the share of the cost which each municipality should pay.

Mayor Both noted such a meeting had already been held with Sidney and Thurlow councils relating to do anything better than the former agreement which called for the city to pay 65 per cent; Thurlow 25 per cent and Sidney 10 per cent.

Alderman Keegan said he was asking only for another meeting seeing that one had failed, "it's merely an effort to keep planning in step."

George DeVuyst again appeared before council asking about a traffic light at the corner of Dundas and Ion Road and College street. He was told the matter would be referred to the traffic committee and the committee chairman Alderman Jean David noted the committee had felt a traffic light was not indicated for this intersection at this time.

APPROVE MOTION

Council approved of a finance committee recommendation that the city manager be given authority to charge the arrears of taxes of the YMCA amounting to $4,-775.49, to the reserve for uncollected taxes.

Custom of the city has been to rebate to-the YMCA its annual taxation on a written request for this has been received from the "Y" so three successive in past years the request has not been made and consequently the arrears have remained on the city's books.

Alderman Hyde said from the city's point of view it was advantageous to get the amount written off from uncollected taxes as it spoiled the city's record.

Alderman Keegan said the recommendation but if the YMCA is sold at any future date the amount of uncollected taxes will become payable.

The CNRAA was granted a free seat permit for the Model Show to be held in the near future.

A letter from Alderman Gerald Hyde as chairman of finance, was read in which he requested to countersign a cheque made out by the city treasurer to P. E. Huson for the amount of $300, was ordered filed.

The cheque to Mr. Huson had been approved by council as extra payment for materials moved by Mr. Huson in completing the contract for levelling of the industrial site. Ald. Hyde said he felt Mr. Huson's claim against the city had no justification in fact, and that the payment agreed to by council represented an absolute gift. He, therefore, would not be any party in payment of the claim.

OTHERS HAD POWER

He pointed out, however, that two members of the city comptroller had power to countersign cheques in the absence, incapacity or unwillingness of the chairman to sign.

The letter was filed when it was pointed out that the mayor had already countersigned the cheque.

Thurlow township council objected to the city's policy of charging a higher fee for out-of-town trucking trades as against the city, and a letter to this effect was received by city council.

It was pointed out that out-of-town tradesmen pay no business tax to the city as do tradesmen within the city and no action was taken on the letter.

Following complaints of dusty conditions in the downtown area, Alderman Keegan of the city will be sprayed each Thursday morning, according to Alderman Ryde, the chairman of public works. In the meantime the city will investigate the costs of a street flusher.

A committee of seven will be named to go over the proposed agreement with the Lakeland Natural Gas Company. Council turned down an amendment to the recommendation calling for the entire council to sit in at the meeting dealing with the "agreed to be in the hockey business, but council had voted for city protection of the team when a private sponsor could not be found.

In the past hockey had been the big revenue producer for the arena and if it had not been for hockey the ratepayers would have been called on to pay an arena loss, the alderman said.

He felt, however, that the arena must operate on a more lucid out of its present difficulties, although he said that he had put forth good effort. Since the arena was purchased in 1948, $68,000 had been spent on equipment and maintenance, all of which had been paid for out of profits.

Until two years ago the arena had paid its way and had a surplus of from $8 to $10 thousand each year.

Alderman Safe emphasized he was not criticising in any way the efforts of members of the arena commission but pointed out that Toronto did not run the Maple Leaf Gardens nor did New York run Madison Square Gardens.

SUGGESTS SELLING ARENA

Alderman Safe suggested it would be better off to sell the arena with provision made for free skating time for the children," he said. "Then we would collect taxes."

Alderman Gerald Hyde noted the auditor's statement for the arena commission up to December 31st of 1954 was available for any persons to read and suggested that extra copies be put out for the aldermen.

"There is nothing to hide in the arena report," he stated. "It is open for anyone to read."

Alderman Ryde with a previous speaker that a private sponsor should be sought for the local junior hockey team and that a new community centre was needed. He thought the people would be ready for a new building in about two years.

Deficit of $4,196 Reported For City-Sponsored Memos

The city-sponsored Belleville Senior "B" Hockey Club had a deficit of $4,196.83 during the 1954-55 hockey season, members of city council were told Monday evening.

This figure was given to council by Alderman Bruce Smith as manager of the city-sponsored senior hockey club, following a request for the statement at the last council meeting.

In making the statement Ald. Smith said he hated to admit the hockey club had lost money but noted that many other Ontario centres were in the same boat.

Alderman Doug Moxam questioned the bald statement with respect to the hockey club finances without an accompanying report on the arena commission finances, and a lengthy discussion followed with respect to both the hockey club and the arena commission.

Alderman Smith said it must be ment.

The question of whether or not unemployed employables have been made available for work with the public works department in cleaning out a ditch in the Front Street district as directed by council was asked by Alderman Graham. He was told that two such men had been directed to report for the job. One had accepted the job the other felt the rate of wages to be paid was too low and had turned the job down.

NOT RECEIVING WELFARE

Welfare Administrator George Wilkins said this man was not receiving city welfare.

It was brought out that there are now about 35 unemployed employables receiving city welfare which about six were family heads.

And in an effort to speed up council procedure council passed a motion by Alderman Graham that all letters coming in to council be first referred by the city comptroller to the standing committees concerned.

In the words of Alderman Graham this would expedite matters and was the logical way of doing business.

Two Get Jail Terms on Counts Of Obstructing Game Warden; Officer Fined for Carrying Gun

TRENTON — (Special) — Herbert Doyle, 30, and Donald Gosleigh, 26, of Trenton were convicted on two counts each of obstructing a game and fisheries officer and sentenced to a month in jail by Magistrate V. Wills at a special police court session here yesterday. Doyle also pleaded guilty to having two yellow pickerel in his possession and drew another four days time.

Similar charges against a third member of the same fishing party, Archie Williams, 22, of Trenton, were dropped when Crown Attorney R. D. Arnott offered no evidence.

Vernon Crouter of Trenton, the deputy game warden, whom the party obstructed pleaded guilty to carrying a revolver without a permit and was ordered to pay $20 fine.

Crouter told the court that on April 8 he stopped a party of five headed by Doyle carrying a spear in the vicinity of the Rinde and Dauch paper mill on the east side of the Trent River below No. 1 dam. Another member of the party held a gaff hook. Crouter said he was accompanied by another deputy Bert Johnson. He said he asked for the spear and gaff and Doyle replied: "If you think you have enough strength to take the spear and gaff, I'll see will have a job in the morning." Magistrate Wills asked who he meant by Weaver. "A local undertaker," Crouter replied. The witness recalled that Doyle pointed the spear at him from a distance of two or three feet. He said he turned around and started walking for the dam. "I didn't want to try anything because there were three of them," he said.

HIT GLANCING BLOW CLAIM

Crouter testified that he heard Gosleigh threaten to throw him in the river. He also said Doyle threatened to hold his head under the water if Gosleigh dragged him to the bank. Crouter also testified that he heard Doyle say: "If there are any charges laid and we spend any time in jail you might as well sell your house and get out of town or we'll get you." He claimed that one of the policemen hit him a glancing blow on the jaw.

Doyle on the stand denied he threatened Crouter.

On the night of April 22 deputy game warden Crouter and deputy game warden Walter Nancarrow caught Doyle, Gosleigh and William Rinde on the west side of the river. Nancarrow testified that he saw Williams grab Crouter and throw him to the ground. "I started to step in," he said, "when Williams said: 'I wouldn't do that if you don't want to get hurt, he's getting.' There were two against one so I decided to stay back." He said he heard the shots fired until after Williams had gun.

Nancarrow told the court that he carried a revolver unlawfully. He said he pulled it out of his pocket because he had already been threatened. He said Doyle he was talking Williams came up from behind and grabbed his arms and both fell to the ground. He said Williams fired three shots in the ground after he got the gun.

TOLD DIFFERENT STORY

Doyle told a different story about the episode involving the gun. He said he was standing on top of the dam and two men were below when he noticed somebody coming 15 feet to the side. "I thought it was MacDonald. Then I saw Crouter raise the gun and point it directly across my knees.- I stepped back quickly as Crouter fired right by my knees. Crouter had a rubber billy in the other hand and when he motioned to strike I grabbed the billy out of his hand. I wanted Crouter to go down to the police station. Now I see I was foolish to do it."

Doyle said Williams wrested the gun from Crouter's hand after he charged it three times into the bank then threw it to him. Crouter said saying "there's your old gun." Crouter gun in hand then swung around on the dam. Then Gosleigh grabbed it away from him and fired the remaining two shots into the ground, the witness continued. He maintained the game wardens were trespassing at this point thus firing the gun.

In the submission made by the Crown Attorney, Doyle said his reason for fishing in the river was because he couldn't get a job.

Defence counsel Rod Campbell brought attention to the wealth of conflicting evidence. Crown Attorney Arnott asked for a conviction because of the threats made to deter game officers from carrying out their duties. Magistrate Wills agreed. "I don't believe the officers are telling fairy tales but to imprison these men," he commented.

MUNICIPALITIES SHOULD COPY THE RAILWAYS

Since 1947 the Canadian Pacific Railway has spent approximately $600,000,000 of capital funds in a modernization program, the retiring president, W. A. Mather, told the annual meeting of C.P.R. shareholders this week.

"The absolute need for modernization was to a large extent a legacy of the consecutive periods of depression and war, during which for more than fifteen years your company either did not have the means, or did not have the opportunity, to keep its plant adequate to the demands which the post-war economic development was to make upon it," Mr. Mather said.

There is a familiar ring about that statement. It is the same story as that which has been told in municipal councils and chambers across the continent. First the depression—no money. Then the war—no men and no materials.

But after the war the railways did something about this problem.

It is not so certain that urban municipalities, on the whole, have kept pace.

The "plant" of municipalities, at the conclusion of the war, was in worse shape than was that of the railways. The demands which the post-war years made on municipalities were probably more extensive than the demands made on the railways. Besides the nation's economic development, the municipalities also faced demands made by the nation's birthrate. Then, too, there were new services, such as sewage disposal plants, the desirability and even the necessity for which was growing yearly more evident.

It would be encouraging if the municipalities, like the C.P.R., could say that modernization "has been a large undertaking." But they cannot. For most of them "modernization" lies in the future. Much has been done to provide new schools and to develop new sub-divisions, but with few exceptions municipalities have done little more than to endeavor to keep pace with immediate needs.

To depression and war has been added a third reason for inability to modernize existing "plant," the steady growth of urban centres.

Some time, though, we shall have to get around to the task of widening streets, replacing municipal buildings erected when the horse and buggy was the popular mode of transportation and generally putting our "plant" in first-class shape.

HOSPITAL DAY ON THURSDAY

"Your Hospital—The Sentinel That Never Sleeps," is the theme that 200 Ontario hospitals have adopted for National Hospital Day, May 12th.

It is an apt title.

A sentinel is a guard, and your hospital, in every sense, is a guardian and protector of your health.

This never-sleeping sentinel guards the safety of the new-born and shields the flickering fires of life in the aged. It ministers to the sick and injured in the emergency department and on the wards with the same skill and efficiency that promotes healing of excessive ulcers in the most private of private rooms.

The community guarded by the sentinel-hospital is not confined to the hospital population. It includes the community of the healthy that derives comfort, security and a sense of well-being from the presence of a hospital in its midst.

The Belleville General Hospital is Belleville and district's never-sleeping sentinel. On Thursday, National Hospital Day, the Belleville General Hospital will be open to the public for inspection. A special program commencing at 1.30 p.m. will be featured by the laying of the cornerstone for the new $1,250,000 addition. Conducted tours of the hospital will be available through all departments from the laundry to the operating rooms. An exhibition of posters illustrating the Hospital Day theme will be held in the recreation room of the nurses' residence. Members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary will hold a special "Hospital Day Tea."

The hospital-sentinel is everyone's friend. It is on the job 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Your friend, the Belleville General Hospital, takes the opportunity on Hospital Day to invite you to visit its open house for an inspection of the sentinel's armor. Hospital Day is an opportune time to remember, and to give thanks, that the community hospital is truly "The Sentinel That Never Sleeps."

The Brantford Expositor, in noting that the Premier of Pakistan now has two wives, asks what would happen if both turned up at the same party wearing the same dress.

It would be a sari state of affairs, indeed.

This is the season when a young man's fancy lightly turns to show off her new spring wardrobe.

Low level bombing techniques designed to penetrate radar defences are likely to render obsolete Canada's DEW (Defence Early Warning) line which could then be re-christened the Mildew Line.

IN MEMORY

This he often used to say:
"When from you I've slipped away,
Waste no time in mourning vain.
If in memory I remain
Do for me the deeds I appear,
What I'd do were I still here."

"Dead I'll be howe'er you grieve
Vacant should my place you leave.
When the living turn to you

Do for them what I would do.
If you would remember me,
Be the friend I tried to be.

"You've done all to serve the dead
When for them your prayers are said.
But the living need your care.
Theirs are burdens you can share.
When forgotten here am I,
Then the Hereafter I shall die."

"Take one more chorus and drop dead."

Good Reason To Delay Tax

(Detroit Free Press)

We note the annual story about how many income tax payers made their returns right on the deadline. The tax collector always profes astonishment at this, dropping remarks about the peculiarities of human nature.

But we've heard our share of jobs then in their moralizing. To us it seems wholly logical that a man should have the use of his money as long as the law allows.

After all, the government doesn't pay interest on money handed in ahead of the due date.

Strength for the Day

THE NATURE OF CRISIS

The Chinese character for the word "crisis" is made up of two more characters which mean "danger" and "opportunity."

We can learn much by studying the derivation of words. Crisis, say the Chinese, is a situation fraught on the one hand with danger and on the other with opportunity. There is never a crisis, no matter how mild it may be, which does not involve a certain jeopardy. No one of us ever faces a crisis in the home, in business matters, or indecisions about health which does not involve some hazard.

But every crisis is also an opportunity. We can come to a crossroads, and while there is danger that we may choose the wrong way, there is in every crisis an opportunity to decide aright. It leads into one crossroads after another. We stand in the midst of what we call a crisis, and what the Chinese call a "combination of danger and opportunity," and we decide whither we shall go.

The only sure answer to such questioning in times of decision comes from God Himself. He has a providential plan for the course of us and that plan leads right through every crisis of life. If we ask Him to guide us through these crossroads, we can be sure always that He will do so.

Crisis may mean danger, but crisis also means opportunity.

Khrushchev

(By Dr. G. H. Bolsover in "London Calling")

Since Stalin's death in March, 1953, the Soviet leaders have played down the role of great men in history and stressed the part their own leadership, as collective, as individual. But this has not prevented certain of them from figuring rather more prominently than the rest. At first it was Malenkov, Beria, and Molotov; then, after Beria's arrest, Malenkov, Molotov, and Khrushchev. Now it is apparently Khrushchev, Bulganin, and Molotov.

Khrushchev rose to the top under Stalin later than Molotov but earlier than Malenkov and Bulganin. Unlike Molotov and Malenkov, he can claim to be of working class origin and to have had a coalminer father. He was born in 1894 near Kursk, where south-west Russia merges into the Ukraine and as a boy he worked on the land as a shepherd. Later he took jobs in factories and mines in the Donbass and seemed set for the humdrum life of an industrial worker. But the October Revolution gave him his chance and he seized it with both hands. He joined the Bolshevik Party in 1918, and fought against the Whites on the Southern front during the civil war. When the fighting was over he returned to the mines and also studied in technical schools.

At this time the Bolshevik Party was busy with reconstruction, with training and experience to run the railways and factories which had been nationalized, and so it offered especial educational facilities for able and politically reliable workers who wanted promotion in industry and administration. Khrushchev had enough ambition and ability to profit from this, and the party soon selected him for full-time political work, first at Stalino in the Donbass and then in 1929 for a year's advancement during this period remained relatively slow, and he was not elected to full membership of the Moscow for a two-year course in Stalin Industrial Party Academy.

Once in Moscow, Khrushchev's advancement became much more rapid. He left the Industrial Academy seemed to foreshadow his subsequent career. From now on he won quick promotion as a party-boss in Moscow and in the Moscow region. In 1932 he became second secretary if the district party committee of Baumanovsky, and in 1934 was one of Moscow's delegates to the seventeenth party congress which elected him to the party central committee. In 1935 he was made first secretary of Kaganovich tookover the railways, Khrushchev became first secretary of the Moscow city and province party organizations, and as Moscow's chief party boss worked closely with Bulganin, the chairman of the executive committee of the Moscow Soviet from 1931 to 1937.

Khrushchev was in Moscow during the great purges and was one of those who helped to liquidate his political party opponents and many others. On January 28th, 1938, his loyalty and zeal finally earned him a seat in the Politburo as a full voting member. A year later, at the age of 45-by-no means a youthful Politburo member and was one of the small group of leaders through whom Stalin ruled the Soviet Union.

In 1938 a new phase started in Khrushchev's career when Stalin sent him to the Ukraine where he needed a man of his loyalty, energy, ability, and vigor. Khrushchev became first secretary of the central committee of the Ukrainian Communist Party and also first secretary of the Kiev city and province party organizations. This put him in a position to supervise everybody on desk and paper work, and in the Ukraine he found himself controlling subordinates and inspecting local conditions; and everywhere he went he criticized, encouraged, and exhorted with his characteristic cheerfulness and vigour.

With the Ukraine's liberation from German control Khrushchev took charge of the gigantic task of reconstruction, and in 1944 became chairman of the Ukrainian council of ministers as well as first party secretary.

Towards the end of 1949 Stalin brought Khrushchev back to Moscow to the central party secretariat, but his position was still obscure. But after Zhdanov's death in the summer of 1949 he may have established himself as a counterweight to Malenkov. Khrushchev became responsible for the party and Soviet agriculture, of which he had learned a great deal in the Ukraine. In September, 1953, Khrushchev advocated in Pravda that the cultivation of maize should spread to move from their existing villages and be concentrated and specialized in large agro-towns, where better amenities could be provided. One of his underlying aims was to make it more difficult for collective farmers to cultivate their household plots at the expense of their work for the collective. But when his views were critized by certain party leaders in the discussion, who probably had Beria's backing, he dropped them and they were never implemented.

After Stalin's death when collective leadership became the vogue, Khrushchev carefully wanted to break the powers of the secret police over the party, and he and Beria probably clashed over agricultural policy as well.

Malenkov and Khrushchev together now launched a new economic policy which put the emphasis on heavy industry and more on consumer-goods and agriculture, with less on armaments and heavy industry, avoid Stalin's thumbscrew on the peasants in any way, and generally while incentives to expand livestock farming and produce more meat, milk, butter, and vegetables, which were all admitted to be in short supply.

In agriculture it was Khrushchev who made most of the running. In September, 1953, he addressed a detailed agricultural report to the party central committee which approved his agricultural policy and also named him first party secretary. The Politburo meanwhile had omitted another long report on agriculture by Malenkov which was design for greatly increasing Soviet grain supplies by the cultivation of virgin and waste lands and the use of fertilizers, irrigation, and machinery.

Throughout 1954 Khrushchev kept himself in the public eye by representing the Soviet Communist Party at the Chinese celebrations in March and a Czech party congress in April. He headed the Soviet delegation to Peking in September, by touring widely in the Soviet Far East and Siberia, by advising a conference of architects and building engineers in Moscow, and so on. He praised, scolded, criticized and even sacked with the greatest impartiality, and he got over the impression that it was he not Malenkov who was the real driving force. In the past few months, under pressure from certain other party leaders, he has had to tone down and reviewed his attitude towards agricultural problems and promised to give it first place again. But he is still pushing his agricultural policies.

Khrushchev's ultimate ambitions we cannot know for certain at this time. But it is clear that in the Soviet state at one remove through his control of the party secretariat, he is building up a base of power like to rule it at first hand by combining membership of the council of ministers as well as first party secretary, like Stalin during and after the war. He has succeeded to share authority in a collective leadership.

Some commentators have assumed from the latest changes in the Soviet Union that Malenkov is the real boss. Others think that Molotov is the boss, and that Khrushchev still has some way to go if he wants unchallenged supremacy. Most Russia-watchers have met him acknowledge his energy, determination, his drive and ambition and his single-minded belief in the rightness and superiority of his opinions. Some say of them think that he is too talkative, impulsive, and lacking in subtlety a second Stalin. Judging from his career so far it would be premature to underrate him either his ambition or his ability. But even if he were to reach the top he has a lot of power he has still to prove that he is also Stalin's equal in statesmanship, in acute sense of timing, and complete ruthlessness in dealing with rivals.

Don't Junk That Boric Acid

Two or three years ago two physicians reported, in journal of Pediatrics, a case of boric acid poisoning in an infant. The poisoning resulted, the doctors believed, from the use of borated talcum powder. Enough boric acid was absorbed through the skin to produce symptoms.

Whoopee! Here was a dandy lure for a rash of articles by "science" writers in popular magazines. Boric acid, which has been universally used as a mild, nonirritating antiseptic in talcum and other toilet powders for infants and adults, in salves, and lotions, in solutions for ears, nose, eyes, mouth, and for many other purposes, by physicians in private practice and hospitals and dispensaries for many years.

After the "science" writers had got every bit of copy out of the discovery—from the queries I receive it is evident that a lot of people are now afraid to use boric acid in any way—the physicians who reported the poisoning of the baby by borated talcum published in the same medical journal a retraction of the original allegations. Like many other investigators who make startling discoveries these days, they have been mislead by an inaccurate test for boric acid in the urine. So the inference that the baby had absorbed it through the skin was wrong. But the "science" writers are willing to forget the whole thing.

That, so far as the Yankee Wiseacre public may be concerned, it has evidently become dangerous to use boric acid in any way shape or manner. Even the "science" writers should see fit to publish a retraction of their versions of the original wrong inference as the physician did in the medical journal, few magazine readers would notice the retraction and as for the countless publications that quoted the "science" writers' half-baked warnings about boric acid to their readers, if they know is what they find in the magazines.

The moral I'm trying to draw is that you poor—oh, well, what's the use? Anyway with an Irishman I mean a person who subscribes to a magazine naturally wants to get some useful information out of it—and just think how many people with chronic rheumatism (not arthritis) are restrained from trying to reserve the degeneration process by just such a "science" writers' warning concerning vitamin D and "deposits" of calcium.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my friends is a very large gentleman. He has a big head, big thing, and two hundred and several pounds. He is an assistant commissioner of the Salvation Army. He was commenting the other evening on the approach of holiday weekend season.

"You know," he said, "we big fellows look with considerable trepidation on the summer season. For instance, a friend says how would you like to come up with me for a weekend to visit a chap I know. Good fishing. He asked me to bring somebody . . . I'm active golfer, swimmer, sailor and I am introduced to our host. Instantly, I detect the ill-hair symptoms. Our host views me with ill-concealed delight. He runs his finger over my front head to see how I can literally read his mind. He is saying: Oh boy! Now I can get that big stone moved out of the driveway. Or, now I can get that leaky roof repaired. Or, the boy who can lever the old wharf up with a pole where I've sunk stones into the crib."

"We're long to get any fishing at all. I sometimes suspect my small friends of a spurious boo-pitality. You may think we big fellows are overly sensitive. But it is a darn funny thing that every time any of my plat ined acquaintances invite me fishing, there is usually, that very week-end, a big rock unexpectedly blocks across the path to the jinx; or maybe the weather has cleared up and has to be hauled back up."

I sympathized with my friend. I, too, am often offered fishing on small men.

Whenever you are invited for a weekend," I explained, "say that you'd love to go, only you've had your back out temporarily the last couple of days. If the invitation is right then and there, you know you have outsmarted your prospective host. If you don't, the offer still holds, go. And in case you run into a host who is a sauzinger, and you see that look come into his eyes at the sight of you, all you've got to do is put your hand back on your kidneys. The guy who invited you will bear a chair."

Yesterday, he telephoned me.

"I wish you hadn't mentioned lumbago the other evening. Now I've got it. Really."

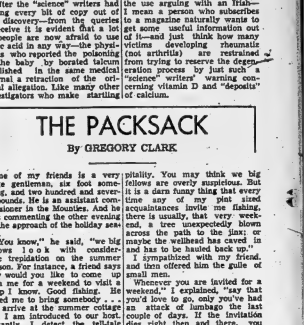
ALL - ABSORBING INTERESTS

One reason why there are so many failures, in business and in life, is that so many people do not find the work they really like to do. Too many pour nothing of themselves into what they have to get by." They soon learn that they get by nothing if they do not put something of themselves into it.

Especial to have all-absorbing interests and to feed them with an endless enthusiasm.



What an example we have had in the success of Edison. He accounted so hours, nor indeed his own strength, that he might finally achieve his purpose. Edison was like that—and what a benefactor to all mankind. Nothing great has ever been achieved without enthusiasm and an all-absorbing interest. Edison had no interest except an undying faith, but there is such satisfaction in the successful rewards.

Did you ever meet anyone, with many interests who wasn't interesting and all-absorbed in what he or she was doing? They are always to be found among creators, investigators, scientists, adventurers and travellers.

We ought to pour ourselves into as many useful enterprises as possible. I honor those, and I am inspired by them, who give so much of their time unexpectedly to the many demands of their community for service in the interest of endless causes and institutions. How wonderful it has been that the dimes of many interests created them all, and in them are exhibited the many examples of what the genius of man has been able to hand down to us all. How great is our indebtedness to others!

Contempt of Court Citation Against Papers, Writer, Sought

FREDERICTON (CP)—An application was made Monday in Court of Queen's Bench division for a citation for contempt of court citation against five newspapers and an individual.

Mr. Justice J. E. Michaud said he will deliver a written ruling as soon as possible.

The application was made by J. A. Pichette, defence counsel for Mrs. Lina Thibodeau at her murder trial last month in Edmundston. She was convicted April 23 of slaying her husband and sentenced to be hanged June 29.

Mr. Pichette, who was not in court, asked for the citation, claiming Mrs. Thibodeau's case was damaged by publication of reports of the inquest and preliminary hearing.

The attorney - general's department said it does not support the application, it may be the first time in Canada that an attempt has been made to obtain a contempt citation for publication of evidence taken in open court.

JAMES PAPERS

The application named the Saint John Telegraph-Journal, the Fredericton Gleaner, Moncton L'Evangeline, Quebec le Soleil, Grand Falls, N.B., Cataract, the latter a weekly, and Mrs. Audrey Stevenson, Telegraph-Journal correspondent at Edmundston.

Mr. Justice Michaud, after an 80-minute hearing, suggested that county magistrates should be instructed as to what they should do with contentious documents such as alleged statements from accused persons when admissibility was in dispute.

An affidavit from Mr. Pichette claimed that the Telegraph-Journal was in contempt on two counts—for its report on proceedings at the inquest and at the preliminary hearing. The other newspapers were mentioned only in connection with their reports of the preliminary hearing, at which a statement allegedly given to police by Mrs. Thibodeau was admitted into evidence and read in open court.

C. F. Inches of Saint John and C. J. A. Hughes of Fredericton jointly represented the Telegraph-Journal and Mrs. Stevenson. They said in a brief that a principle of great importance was involved. This was the right of a publisher to make a fair report of proceedings conducted by a coroner inquiring into a death and by a magistrate conducting a preliminary inquiry.

THE FIRST TIME

"This appears to be the first time an application has been made to any court in Canada to punish for contempt the publishers of newspapers for publishing a report of evidence taken in open court," the brief said, "and consequently it is a matter of great interest to publishers all over the country. It has not been alleged, nor can there be evidence adduced, to establish that any statements contained in the impugned reports are otherwise inaccurate."

The brief submitted it is not contempt to publish a fair and accurate report of proceedings at a magisterial inquiry or a coroner's inquest. The motion to punish for contempt should be denied on the grounds that "the matters complained of are within the privilege which is accorded newspapers of publishing a fair and accurate report of proceedings held in open court, and especially when there was no request by the court that the matter should not be published."

McCann Talked With Frost About Dempsey

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann indicated Monday he had a conference here with Premier Frost of Ontario in connection with an Ontario Progressive Conservative's failure in 1951 to report a political contribution of $8,800.

The contribution was received by James Dempsey, 68, member of the legislature for Renfrew South, who said in Toronto Friday he had been asked by Mr. Frost to drop out of the June 9 Ontario election.

Mr. Dempsey said he received the money on behalf of the Progressive Conservative party from James Drohan, a Barry's Bay lumberman. Income tax was not paid on the amount because it was not a personal gift but a contribution to the party.

ASKED FORCOMMEN T

Mr. McCann was asked in the Commons by Joseph W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) to comment on an editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail stating that Mr. Dempsey's statements indicate the minister showed Mr. Frost photostats of the receipts given Mr. Drohan by Mr. Dempsey. Mr. Drohan died in 1952.

"I might say that I am not at all interested in the speculation from any source," Dr. McCann said. "I have certain duties and responsibilities as minister of national revenue and those duties and responsibilities I have discharged for the last 10 years without fear or favor.

"Under Section 33 of the Income Tax Act and Section 54 of the Succession Duty Act, I must observe the secrecy provisions of those acts and not disclose to anyone not entitled to know any matter concerning any estate in question.

INVOLVED BOTH

"The estate involved both income tax and succession duties. The Ontario provincial treasurer, Premier Frost, is entitled to any information the department of national revenue has with reference to succession duties. Interchange of information is a common practice.

"I admit that I had a conference with Mr. Frost while he was in Ottawa. He had to leave hurriedly so that the conference was incomplete. I am not in a position to disclose any information that passed between us at that time."

Dr. McCann denied in an interview from his Renfrew, Ont., home Friday that he ever discussed income tax matters with Mr. Dempsey.

PLANS UNDERWATER TEST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States plans to set off an underwater atomic explosion within a few days. The defence department announced Monday that the test will be held in the Pacific several hundred miles from the west coast.

Canada's Forces Have Finished Jobs in Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—It's still not official, but for every practical purpose Canada's forces have finished their job in Korea.

The last Canadian infantry battalion to be withdrawn from Korea, the 2nd Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, returned home last month. Defence Minister Campney told the Commons Monday it won't be replaced.

He said Commonwealth countries with forces remaining in Korea are still discussing deployment of them. Along with Britain, Australia and New Zealand, Canada still has some 500 non-combat soldiers there, in the 3rd Field Ambulance and other auxiliary services.

The Canadian destroyer Sioux also will remain in the Korean theatre, operating from Sasebo, Japan.

ARMY STATEMENT

Mr. Campney did not say Canada has pulled out, but the army promptly issued a statement outlining this country's part in the Korean fighting. The statement suggested something has ended.

"As Canada's commitments in the Far East dwindle," it said, "Canadians can look back with pride on the part the Canadian Army played in the Korean fighting."

More than 29,000 members of the Canadian Army, including 46 nursing sisters, served in the Far East as an integral part of the 1st Commonwealth Division.

"Of this number 309 died as a direct result of enemy action and 90 died from other causes . . . More than 1,100 were wounded in action.

"Canadian troops won a total of 344 decorations for gallantry or outstanding service in the Far East, including six foreign decorations. One-battalion, the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was awarded a United States presidential citation for its service in the two-day battle April 24-25, 1951. . . ."

DENIES NEW TRIAL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida Supreme Court Monday denied Russell Tongay's petition for rehearing and a mandate went out directing him to begin serving a 10-year prison sentence for the death of his separate daughter, Kathy, 5. Tongay has been free under $5,000 bond pending his appeal of a manslaughter conviction at Miami. The Supreme Court upheld his conviction April 6. Kathy died in May, 1953, following a dive from a 35-foot board.

The Greeks had a word for it!

That is just how old tuberculosis is.

The early Greeks called Tuberculosis, "PHTHISIS".

They thought that it was caused by "night air" and they believed the disease was passed on through generations by heredity.

In this day and age we know that tuberculosis is not hereditary. It is caused by a germ that is communicated from one person to another.

To stop it we must (1) find all cases (2) isolate and cure all cases—for your sake!

For your sake fight "PYTHSIS" (TB).

Weddings

CLANCY—CRANSTON

Tall standards of spring flowers interspersed with ferns formed a lovely setting in Springbrook United church, on Saturday, May 7, at 2.00 p.m., for a pretty wedding when Joyce Elaine Cranston of Harold, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cranston, became the bride of Keith Carleton-Clancy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clancy of Harold, Ontario. The Rev. A. Beare officiated.

Mrs. Carman Sine provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Earl Cranston, wore a charming bridal gown of white taffeta and nylon net in floor-length fashioned with fitted bodice of Chantilly lace with matching jacket having long, sheath-like sleeves pointed over the wrists. A Juliet cap of matching lace sprinkled with rhinestones held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Miss Ruth Cranston, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in coral taffeta in floor-length with fitted bodice of matching lace and featuring a matching jacket. She wore long matching gloves, and carried a bouquet of Bermuda roses in bronze shade. Her matching floral headdress was of roses.

Mr. Maurice Clancy, of Harold, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Douglas Cranston and Mr. Douglas Clancy, also of Harold, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception for seventy guests was held at the Orange Hall, Springbrook, where the bride's mother, wearing blue taffeta, white lace and matching accessories, with corsage of red roses, received. The bridegroom's mother, attired in navy crepe with navy hat and matching accessories, and red rose corsage, assisted in the receiving line.

For an extended trip to the United States via Niagara Falls, the bride travelled in a blue-grey suit with white hat, navy shoes and purse. Mr. and Mrs. Clancy will reside in Harold upon their return.

Guests were present from Belleville, Elderado, Shannonville, and Frankford, Ontario.

CANTY—CASEY

The marriage of Miss Mary Anita Patricia Casey, daughter of Mrs. Donald M. P. Casey, Belleville, and the late Donald M. P. Casey, to Mr. James Keenan Canty, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Canty, took place at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, on Saturday, April 30, at 9.00 a.m. The Very Rev. Dean L. B. Garvin performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The altar and sanctuary were decorated with bouquets and standards of all white gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her great-uncle, Mr. Paul King of Tweed, wore a waltz-length gown of frost white crystalette over taffeta. The tight waisted bodice featured a ballet strap neckline filled in with tiny flowers of crystalette over white; was worn a short jacket with three-quarter length tucked sleeves. Her floor-length veil of illusion fell from a coronet of crystalette flowers matching those on the dress. She carried a cascade of white carnations and pink rosebuds.

The bride was attended by her twin sisters, Miss Jeanette Casey as maid of honor and Miss Jeanette Casey, as bridesmaid, who wore dresses designed after the bride in ice blue crystalette over taffeta. They wore matching headdresses of blue flowers, and carried small nosegays of feathered pink carnations.

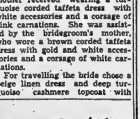
Mr. Leo Callaghan, Toronto, was best man and Mr. Louis Scanlan, Belleville, acted as usher.

Miss Mary Flurey of Belleville, presided at the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke who sang "Ave Marie," "Panis Angelicus", and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Following the ceremony a dinner was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, and a reception at the bride's home. The bride's mother received wearing a turquoise corded taffeta dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a brown corded taffeta dress with gold and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For travelling the bride chose a beige linen dress and deep turquoise cashmere topcoat with beige and white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Canty will reside in Belleville.



Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a pantry shower given by staff and office associates of Mead Johnson and Company, the hostess being Mrs. Rosa Rutter, and at a kitchen shower given by her neighbors on Dufferin Avenue, the hostess being Mrs. Neil O'Neil.

The dance numbers, were arranged for the four seasons of the year with special divertisement numbers between the summer and fall scenes. A background of flower garden and blossoming trees, made a beautiful setting for the spring and summer numbers.

Membership Tea Held By St. Joseph's CWL

Sunday afternoon, St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League, held its annual membership tea in the school hall.

At the door Mrs. R. Lynch and Mrs. F. F. Halloran, were engaged in receiving fees and making out membership cards for all.

On entering the tea room, each member was graciously welcomed by the president, Mrs. H. Carr-Brown.

The tea table was charming with its beige linen cloth, and a floral piece of daffodils and tulips centred by silver candelabra holding tall blue and yellow candles with a silver service at each end.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. T. Clinton, Mrs. J. A. Kitchen, Mrs. W. H. Sweet and Mrs. W. Craig.

Conveners for the tea were Mrs. J. E. Poirier, Mrs. P. Mercier and Mrs. A. J. Gibbons.

Serving members in the tea room were Mrs. G. Williams, Mrs. V. Clapp, Mrs. T. A. Kelly and Mrs. J. Lawn.

National Hospital Day Honors "The Lady With the Lamp"

May 12th has been chosen as National Hospital Day throughout Canada and the United States because it is the anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birth.

Florence Nightingale's conception of the role of a nurse and her contribution to the raising of hospital standards were milestones along the road of modern medical progress. Her example has proven to be an inspiration to generations of nurses, who, like Florence Nightingale, have placed service above self.

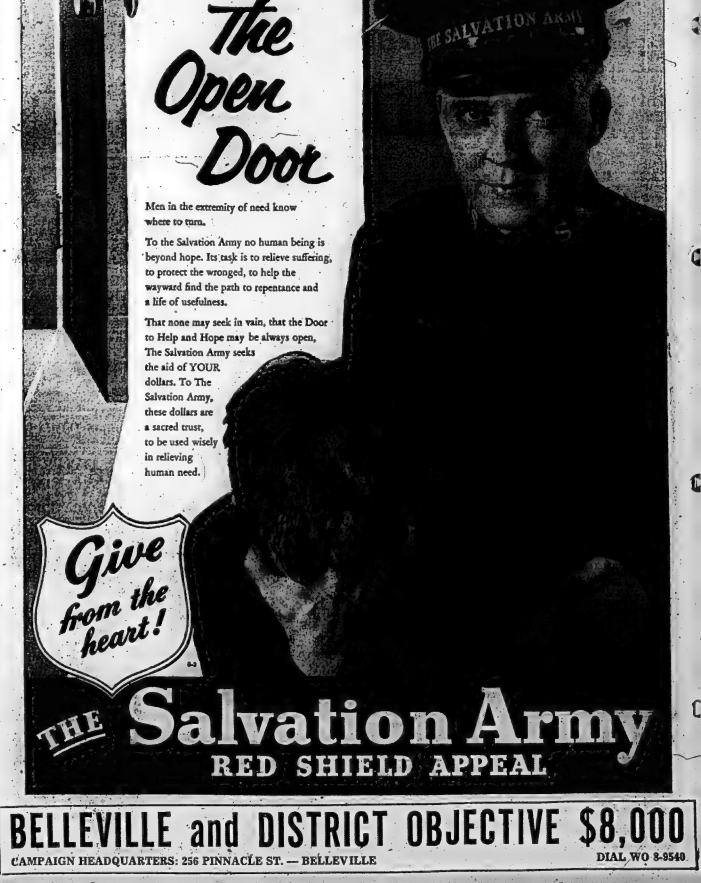
In London's Waterloo Place, there is a monument. It tells the story of the Crimean War and festures the contribution of a woman — an angel some called her — who, in face of difficulties and opposition, ministered to the sick and wounded of that campaign. She is the "Lady with the Lamp" — Florence Nightingale.

Florence Nightingale is known around the world as the woman who placed the nursing profession on the road to honor and prestige. She first became interested in nursing in 1844, later studying at Alexandria and Kaiserwerth about 1850. In 1853, she accepted the post of Lady Superintendent of the Institution for Sick Governesses in Harley Street, London, where her administrative genius transformed the institution from a badly-run, inefficient hospital to one of the cleanest homes for patients, and, what was more important to patrons, it became a solvent self-supporting organization less than five months.

THE REAL STORY

The real story of Florence Nightingale — the story which has made her name immortal—began in 1854 when she recruited 38 nurses to accompany her to the Crimea. Army hospitals had long been noted for their unsterile conditions, but Florence Nightingale and her assistants lost no time in transforming the crude accommodation into clean comfortable quarters.

All was not easy for her little band at Scutari. To begin with, even the thought of women at war was not welcomed by the hardbitten military officers of the day. What was more, they saw no need to change their methods of treating the sick. But she succeeded in her task, despite the hindrance and opposition.



Today's nurses — our modern Florence Nightingales — carry on with them a reflected glory and a high ideal for their honored and respected vocation. In Sheps, the Lady with the Lamp still walks hospital corridors, bringing comfort, healing . . . hope.

The Belleville General Hospital invites you to attend its "Hospital Day" program on Thursday, May 12th, commencing at 1.30 p.m.

DEER ELUDES TRAFFIC

HAMILTON; (CP)—A full-grown deer bounded through traffic on King street here Monday. Earlier, residents reported seeing the animal wandering through beck alleys in the Westdale section. It is believed the deer came into the area from a nearby marsh during the night and got lost.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DOCTOR SAYS HE'S "MUST HELP HERSELF" — AND SHE CAN!

At 29, Mrs. K. has been divorced for two years. Following her divorce, she had a nervous breakdown, and the doctor said that the doctor says he has now done all he can for her and that she must help herself. And he is probably right.

"I've been trying to pull myself together by getting a job, as he suggested, but I don't seem to be much better," she writes. "I feel very depressed, and I just can't go on like this much longer.

"I am very shy, but about a year ago I did meet two or three whom I dated, and for awhile I thought I was getting over things, but I guess I was so lonesome that I took them more seriously than they took me. At any rate, it's very hard to meet eligible men.

"My doctor has suggested that I get a job taking care of orphans underprivileged children or children who could do charity work. She thinks that would help me forget my own problems. I have been considering this seriously, as I do like children. Can you give me the names of any such local organizations where I could be of some help and make myself useful?"

I heartily agree with Mrs. K.'s mother in feeling that if her daughter were to interest herself in the problems of others, it would help her to forget her own. Certainly this young woman needs activities and interests far away from her own mind and start her thinking along lines outside herself. This would not only be her quickest way to recovery from her nervousness and depression, but it would also help conquer her shyness, for shyness, and timidity grow from preoccupation with one's own feelings. To start thinking about others, with a truly sincere desire to help them, soon takes one's mind off oneself and give shyness a chance to disappear quietly.

Mrs. K. does not reveal what sort of job she holds, or even if she is still holding one. If she is, perhaps she has not selected the one best suited to her particular needs. To be happy in a job, requires a big interest in it, and it may be that her interest is not sufficiently involved in whatever work she is doing. This is something for her to think about.

As for the matter of finding local organizations which work with children, I am not familiar enough with her city to know what ones there may be. But she can quickly find out by paying a visit to her local YWCA and making inquiries there. In fact, I think it would be a very worthwhile idea for her to look into the activities and interests the YWCA itself has to offer, for I am sure there is a big variety right in that organization, and if she will look into them, she might find just the sort of interests that will help her most. I suggest that she go there and have a frank and confidential talk with one of the women on the staff, describing her problems in detail and asking for advice and suggestions. I am quite sure she will find any one to whom she talks, sympathetic and interested to help her.

And one more thing: If she will go ahead with this program of action, she will have far more chance of finding men friends than she has now. For the more interests she acquires, the more people she will meet, and the more interesting a person she will herself become so that she will naturally attract others.

Will Mrs. K. write me again and let me know what she has done about these suggestions and how she is making out?

Bonus Readers' Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Could this be the candy recipe asked for the other night? I cut it out of an old cake and candy book. My sister used to make it often for the church or sales to work, etc.—changed it to chocolate or fine cut candied ginger. I never made a success of it as my brothers and I never had patience to wait till it got cold, with the result our teeth and jaws got stuck!

COCOANUT ICE

(Courtesy "Angus")

Three gills milk (1 1-3 cups) 3 lbs. loaf sugar, 1 lb. shredded cocoanut, cochineal (red colouring). Put the sugar and milk in saucepan and dissolve sugar slowly. Then boil the mixture for 10 minutes. Remove pan from the heat and, stir in the cocoanut. Four half tea - mixture into an oiled tin, color the remainder in the saucepan (pink this) and pour on top of the first half. Mark in to bars before quite cold.

"The Feather Bed Rolls" are similar to one you had. These are very good, only I don't make them now as we are brown breaders—

FEATHER BED ROLLS

One cake compressed yeast, 3 1-2 cups milk, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-2 cup shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 5 cups flour. Scald the milk, remove from heat, add shortening and sugar. When cool enough add yeast cake which has been dissolved in water, and the flour and salt which have been sifted together. Beat the mixture then let rise until double in bulk. Beat again, and fill muffin pans one third full. Let rise again until double. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. (Emem's note: 375 deg. Fahr).

"The curry recipes recently are really good with the addition of fresh green ginger, Chinese think, comes in straw-covered jar. But the secret of good curry is the curry powder. In my home town in Scotland we had many East-Indians and curries were very common. My sister lived near Calcutta and she said everything was curried except the doormat—and a tip: her cook used to wash up 2 egg yolks with a little water, stir it into the curry to thicken it at the last moment. . . .

I have never read such a nice friendly human cookery column in all my career. . . ever since War Bride I've had a yen to write one "The Voice of the Turtle" arose in the land to chide you for cruelty to crustaceans—in boiling water. Well I worked in New York with an excellent Belgian chef who told me "Nevaire, Nevaire" to put shellfish in boiling water, "not but yes, the fish he smother and the meat it no more tender, oui." So a long procession of lobsters, crabs, terrapin, shrimp, etc., slid to their end in hot water. . . many thanks for your kindly column. . . hope your daughter will be very happy.

Mrs. Ivy Granite told me "That neighbors are near, when your ain'-folk are far -awa'."

ANSWER:

A perfectly wonderful letter and thank you for it Angus. Do write another letter soon full of such wit and wisdom.

QUESTION:

. . .during my vacation last summer I enjoyed a home-cooked meal at a tourist camp where pineapple-upside down cake was the dessert, served with a tasty pineapple sauce. . . I would appreciate recipe for pineapple sauce. . .Are there more or less calories in a slice of toast than a slice of plain bread?. . . Are there less calories in a certain product if cocoa is used in the recipe instead of melted chocolate?—Marie J.

ANSWER:

One average slice white or whole wheat bread has 65 to 75 calories; toast is the same. Cooking chocolate contains more fat than cocoa.

PINEAPPLE SAUCE

Drain 1 cup syrup from canned crushed pineapple and heat. Mix 1-2 to 2 tablespoon cornstarch (or 1 teaspoon arrowroot flour) with 1 tablespoon cold water and stir into hot juice until thickened, then cook over boiling water covered until raw starch taste is left—about 20 minutes. Add 1-4 cup drained crushed pineapple and 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THREE GOOD TABLE-MANNERS QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My new husband's relatives are very conservative (unlike mine), and live in a quite formal way. He is their concern to entertain several guests at Sunday midday dinner, and now every time they invite my husband and me, About this I have three questions:

1. When I-do not like a certain food that the waitress is passing, is it really necessary that I take some? I usually don't. But I have noticed that my husband always does, even though I know he does not like this particular food, and eats only a very little of it. . . .

2. Their waitress always offers second helpings of the meat and vegetables, the hot rolls, and the dessert. Sometimes I'd very much like a second portion! But if the guest before me doesn't take a second portion must I decline that?

3. After-dinner coffee is always served in their living room. Cream is never offered with it. I love cream with my after-dinner coffee. Would it be proper for me to ask if I may have some cream—M.W.

ANSWER:

1. Your husband is right about this. Since, this entertaining proceeds in honor of his family's side, you like your husband, should take at least a little of every food offered you, and make a pretense of eating some even if you don't particularly like it. The point is that, if possible (and it generally is possible), you should never reveal that you dislike a food.

2. No, no need to 'decist,' if you don't want to. If you wish a second helping, it's proper to take it when it's offered to you. But watch out" that you don't take too long eating the second helping, for of course your hostess can't stop eating until you have finished eating.

3. No? It seems to me that with after-dinner coffee, you must'n't ask for it.

PERSONAL INVITATIONS THE GRACIOUS THING!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I each work in a small office, and we would each like to invite the entire group of our co-workers to our wedding. Which would be most proper: (1) to send an individual invitation to each person; (2) to send a general, invitation to the office; (3) to enclose a proper number of return-reply cards; or (4) just to send a general invitation and then try to guess who will come to our reception and who will not? — L.

Without a doubt the correct and most gracious procedure is (1) to send an individual invitation to each person. Everyone naturally likes to be given the honor and compliment of receiving a personal invitation to a wedding. To your and your fiance's co-workers send, if possible, the same kind of invitations sent to all the other guests. However, if you are sending engraved invitations, and this extra number is too much of a strain on your budget (although I can't imagine it would be, for such small groups) then write notes of invitation. The invitations to your wedding should be radiantly and proudly personal . . . don't "generalize" them, just to save time or trouble or even expense.

GROOM'S UNCLE IN RE-CEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The father of my groom-to-be is dead. Is it correct for reception would it be proper for the groom to have a favorite uncle take a place in the receiving-line?

— Bride-to-be

In the receiving-line the bride-groom's mother would naturally have representative, his only representative, of his family. It would not be necessary, and of course not usual practice, to have the groom's uncle in the receiving-line.

Had Hard Time Learning Slang Of Students

VANCOUVER (CP) — Deena Wakhrouchieff had a lot to learn when she came to the University of British Columbia four years ago.

She didn't know anyone and in addition she couldn't speak English.

The 23-year-old co-ed learned well she now has a good word to teach and study at Yale University.

Late in April, she proved her mastery of English by lecturing to the biology group of the B.C. Academy of Science. She spoke on "Chromosomal flukes of X. fishes."

Deena, who majored in zoology, spoke Russian, French, German and Yugoslavian when she came here.

Her biggest difficulty was not in understanding her professors but in deciphering the slang of her fellow students.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

AFFABILITY, A QUALITY OF CHARM

No matter how flower-like her complexion, how glorious her tresses or how pleasing her figure if a girl has a sharp tongue, she is destined to be a wallflower. Yet, when other girls, not so pretty, whose clothes are not so lovely, have plenty of dates, wouldn't you think the wallflower would guess what's wrong

She has an unpleasant personality and her company is not wanted. All her beauty is on the surface. Smart girls know that it isn't just how they look. It is what they have to say, and how they behave that makes for popularity.

To express friendliness, one must have friendly thoughts. The girl with the sharp tongue is critical and intolerant. She is never a happy individual, and it is no fun living in the same house with her. She is always the party of the opposition. You say it is a nice day and she'll say it isn't—even if the sunlight is half-blinding her.

Success in business and social life is often won by the sheer force of affability and good nature. Employers say that the most invaluable some employees are those who can't get along with fellow workers.

Personality develops early in life. One small child will extend his arms, embrace a little comrade. Another will hold back or, perhaps, haul off and smack him. By the time a child is seven years old, personality is pretty well established.

A girl with a gay and happy disposition is welcome wherever she goes. She is like a refreshing breeze. The party may be dull and uninteresting, but when she blows in, the atmosphere changes. She doesn't have to be pretty because she is sweet and charming.

Pattern Drawn For Merger Of Labor Bodies

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The pattern has been drawn for creation of a 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, by far the largest union body in Canada's history.

Merger of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor is in the final stages with leaders of the two groups agreed on terms of a pact that will unite the rivals of long standing.

The leaders—as members of a joint "unity" committee—reached unanimity Monday on terms of an amalgamation agreement to go before TLC and CCL conventions this year in the hope of final adoption by a founding convention of the big congress early in 1956.

Officers said after Monday's one-day meeting, which culminated months of negotiation, that all points which could be decided in advance of the TLC-CCL conventions have been settled.

The major job of drafting a constitution has been left for the joint convention, though a tentative one will be prepared after this year's individual conventions.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Staff photographer Jack Gaunt of the Los Angeles Times has been named winner of The Associated Press national contest for excellence in news photography for 1954. He won with "Cruel Waves," a picture of a husband and wife turning to each other on the edge of the ocean after their young son toddled into the surf and was swept out to sea.

Entry Into NATO Of West Germany Marked in House

OTTAWA (CP)—Entry of West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Monday was marked in the Commons by Prime Minister St. Laurent and Opposition Leader Drew.

Mr. St. Laurent said he is sure all Canadians share in the faith and confidence in the future as expressed by External Affairs Minister Pearson at the opening of the NATO meeting in Paris.

The prime minister read into the Commons record the statement Mr. Pearson made in welcoming West Germany as NATO's 15th member nation.

Mr. Drew said West Germany's entry into NATO is one of the most unique happenings in history, coming as it did 10 years after VE-Day.

Mr. Drew agreed with Chancellor Adenauer that Germany has paid the price of "terrible leadership" and that it has emerged cleansed and purified. It was a day of great hope for the future.

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Turkey and Yugoslavia Sunday signed an agreement under which Yugoslavia will buy one-fifth of Turkey's available wheat exports for the next five years within limits of 100,000 to 200,000 tons a year. Turkey undertook to sell Yugoslavia at least 4,000 tons of cotton yearly for five years.

BUYS PAPAL BULL

LONDON (AP)—A 386-year-old papal bull calling Queen Elizabeth I a "slave of wickedness" and excommunicating her from the Roman Catholic Church changed hands Monday for £320. A copy of the edict, issued by Pope Pius V in 1569, was part of the estate of Andre de Coppet of New York. It was bought at auction here by Lord Furneis of the Furness steamship company family.

Brooks Hope To Stretch String On Western Safari; Tribe Meets Yanks

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THE BIG FIGHT!

The Battle of Cockells and Muscles is slated for San Francisco on May 16.

The "Cockells" are represented by a pudgy bloke from "over 'ere." Don of the same name, while Muscels will enter the ring as one Rocky Marciano who, in case you're interested, is the current world heavyweight boxing champion.

'Avin' a bit o' British blood in the veins we would like to string along with the Don, but common sense forces us to put the lettuce, if any, on the Brockton blockbuster. No, mates, we can't see the pot-bellied bloke crossing the pond with the heavyweight bauble in tow. In fact we are inclined to believe the fight is one of the most glaring samples of mismatching since Jack Johnson blinked in the Havana sun while Jess Willard's hand was raised aloft in victory.

And the tub-thumpers across the border are building up quite a case against the stocky pugsy from Britain. Cockell says he has found a "hostile power" before but he is not the least backward in talking to the typewriter and radio guys.

We have heard of some queer angles and gimmicks which heavyweight contenders have used to back up their publicity—and chances. But Cockell and his manager have come up with one of the weirdest ideas we have heard to date.

Jack Simpson, the Cockell counterpart of Al Weill, made the statement before the entourage left Blighty that "Cockell is mixing psychology and nature healing" with his gym work. He hopes by positive thinking to wreak the title from the Rock.

The idea, he is quoted as saying, is for Cockell to lift his mind to such a state of confidence that—almost simply by thinking—he can erase the 5-1 odds now being quoted against him.

That may be true. But there isn't a spot of positive thinking in the world that a solid right to the jaw won't cure. And while Donny-boy is lifting his mind, he had better not forget to drop his guard.

Cockell has already passed several examination in psychology, Simpson said. And it involves a little religion, confidence, conviction and hard work.

It is said the Britisher has another "secret weapon he is saving for the big chance." It is the so-called telepathic one-two punch. It is simple. The "mind-reader" is boloke named Miller, sits at the ringside and sends telepathic telegrams or communications by brain wave.

Whenever Cockell gets a sock in the jaw. Miller sends up a quick telepathic message that it didn't hurt a bit—and go on and fight back.

It is unfortunate, however, that no repairmen in Cockell's receiving apparatus will be allowed in the ring. If Rocky connects with one of those blockbusters to the Cockell jaw, the receiving set will likely be out of action, indefinitely.

The unbolstered Britton is said to have a sense of humor, too. He is reported as saying after his knockout of Harry "Kid" Matthews in Seattle last summer (his third in a row), "since this is three times, I guess I can take 'im 'ome with me to keep 'ell!"

His record looks rather unimpressive against that of the champion. Rocky has been unbeaten and united, winning 47 battles, 41 by knockouts. Cockell got the cold shoulder from the experts after he was sent bye-bye, by, of all people, Jimmy Slade, who fought Earl Walls a short time back—and Randy Turpin back in 1951.

No, we cannot see the title crossing the pond. The "Muscles" as we said before, will be very much "Alive-Alive-Oh" at the end of the fifth, or thereabouts, while the "Cockells" will be doing some "negative" dreaming of Piccadilly, the Strand Corner House, Tottenham Court Road, the Vingyard and West 'Am United, and 'ow much is the art-and-sart at the Elephant and Castle.

TAG TEAMSKY HERE

Two husky, bearded sons of the Russian steppes, Kalmikoff by name, and said to be blood brothers, will feature the main bout at Memorial Arena Friday next. The Canadian Open Tag Team Championship is at stake and in the opposite corner will be none other than the popular East York duo, Whipper Billy Watson and his bosom pal, one Patrick Flanagan. The Ruskys are said to be as mean a parcel of orneriness ever to show their wares in a Belleville ring—and there have been some pretty mean cusses here. So it looks like a boisterous evening. And lookit who's here? Lee (The Leer) Hemming is back with Tex Mackenzie, while the heap big Indian, Sonl War Cloud, will be gunning for Tom Collins in the opener.

Call-Off Track Sale

DETROIT (AP)—The Michigan Racing Association Monday called off the proposed sale of its track and properties to Boys, Inc., a Texas charity group.

Cancellation of the sales plan, a subject of controversy in Michigan, was announced by Geo. Hagerty, association president. He said there was insufficient time to complete the sale before the season opens May 20.

Boys, Inc., headed by Texas oilmen Clint Murchison and Sid Richardson, had been negotiating for several weeks to buy the Detroit mile track and properties for a reputed $5,000,000. The organization operates Del Mar track in California.

The Michigan Council of Churches, representing 2,600 congregations, was a chief foe of the proposal. It objected on what it called moral grounds.

Not Looking for Clean Sweep But Hope for 6-3 Record; Lemon Gunning for Sixth Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The calendar insists that it's just the second week in May, but the other seven clubs in the National League may be finding it's later than they thought.

And it isn't necessarily because of Brooklyn's incredible getaway. The Brooks, of course, are off on a romp, winning 21 of their 23 games. But what's made that record even more threatening is the fact only two other clubs are playing .500 ball or better.

There's the rub. Nobody's in position to catch the Dodgers right now even if somebody gets around to playing them.

Milwaukee is second, but with a 13-11 record the Braves are just one game over .500. New York Giants are right behind at .500 after 22 games, 9½ back of the Brooks and a half game behind the Braves.

BEST ROAD TEAM

It was Brooklyn, incidentally, that was the most powerful road team in the NL last season, winning 47 of 77 for a .610 percentage. In the process the Brooks were .636, taking 28 of 44 from the Cardinals, Braves, Cubs and Reds legs.

Vice president Buzzy Havasi doesn't look for his Dodgers to come out of the west unbeaten. All he's asking of them is a healthy road with a 27-3 record. He's willing to take a 8-3 record on the trip.

Manager Lou Boudreau isn't much for talking, said simply "you can't stretch a .500 team winning it a .913 percentage rate, and he's still hopeful.

HAVE ANOTHER GOING

The Brooks at present have a 10-game winning streak going, their second of the season after setting a major league mark of 13 straight the first 10 of the schedule. It might be mentioned that Milwaukee had a three 10-game winning strings last season, but wound up third, eight games behind.

Both major leagues were idle Monday, but the Dodgers swing into Chicago today.

The American League, apparently straightened out now with Cleveland, New York and Chicago claiming the top rungs, open another one of those "crucial" series tonight at Yankee Stadium. The Indians will toss Bob Lemon, a real killer under the lights, while the Yanks counter with Don Larsen.

Pollock Resigns As Leaf Boss

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Pollock, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs in the International Baseball League, resigned Monday night.

His position was taken over by 43-year-old Rudie Schaffer of Baltimore. The appointment is effective immediately.

In a statement later, club owner Jack Kent Cooke said Pollock had agreed to act as a consultant and has accepted appointment as a vice-president of the club.

Schaffer, a certified public accountant, joined Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association as its bookkeeper in 1935. He later went to Cleveland Indians as business manager in 1946 and remained with the American League club until 1951 when he took over the general managership of the St. Louis Browns.

He was with the Browns until two years ago, when the franchise was switched to Baltimore. Schaffer stayed with the club until the end of the 1954 season, when he went into the investment business.

Pollock had been general manager of Leafs since 1952. He has been connected with the club the last 18 years, and resigned because of business reasons. He owns an electrical appliance store. He sold programs in 1939, advanced to become concessions manager and then general manager.

Savoie Verdicts Kid Centella

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Armand Savoie, the bouncing body punisher from Montreal, called on his right repeatedly Monday night to win a split decision over ambitious Kid Centella of Nicaragua in a 10-round lightweight match. Savoie weighed 139½, Centella 138.

Savoie, a veteran of more than 70 professional fights and loser to welterweight king Jimmy Carter last November, forced the fighting from the second round on and slowed the pace considerably with a bruising attack to the midsection.

DATOUR ODDS IMPROVE

LONDON (AP) — French challenger Datour moved up as a strong contender for the classic Epsom Derby Monday as Britain's top bookmaker cut the betting odds from 20-1 to 100-6. Acropolis remained the favorite.

Acropolis, the 33-year-old Alice Lady Derby, went out slightly from 5-1 to 11-2 at a London betting call-over.

Queen Elizabeth's colts Aga-nador and Jardiniere were again quoted at 33-1 despite reports of their poor showing at training gallops over the weekend.

Royals Extend String to Eight; Leafs Win 13-2

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everyone, around the International League, knew the Montreal Royals were improved over last year, but rookie manager Greg Mulleavy didn't dream that his team would be leading the league with a month of the season gone.

Montreal, which finished second, nine games behind Toronto Leafs last season, extended its winning streak to eight games Monday by downing Columbus Jets 4-1.

In the only other game, Toronto trounced Richmond Virginians 13-2. The Havana-Rochester single game and Buffalo-Syracuse doubleheader were postponed because of cold weather.

SWEEP SERIES WITH JETS

The league-leading Royals completed a sweep of their four-game series with the Jets behind the four-hit pitching of rookie Roger Craig. The 24-year-old righthander had a shutout going for catcher Al Lakeman hit a home run in the sixth inning.

Craig, who had a 9-4 record in 1954 with Elmira, Pueblo and Newport News, recorded his third victory without a defeat. He struck out four and walked four.

Carl Duser, a three-game winner, also helped with his first loss. Montreal catcher Johnny Buchs belted his first home run of the year.

Toronto pounded four Richmond pitchers for 14 hits and remained 2½ games behind Montreal. Hector Rodriguez led the Toronto attack with four hits in five trips to the plate.

Mike Gollat drove in two runs with a home run and a single while Rodriguez blasted a two-run homer with the bases cleared his eighth homer of the season in the first inning with one on.

Eddie Blake went all the way for Toronto, gaining his fourth victory against one loss. He had a chance out until the ninth inning when Russ Kemmerer hit a pinch double and a walk gave the Virginians their runs.

Bob Habenicht, starting pitcher for Richmond, was charged with the loss—his third against no victories.

ALS SIGN FOUR

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football Union Monday night announced the signing of four more Canadians for the coming season.

They are defensive quarterback Bruce Coulter of Toronto, with Als for the last seven seasons, end Laurade Des Finlay, Joe Pedicelli and Marty Martinello, all Montrealers who played with the Larks last year.

The four bring to 27 the number of players signed by Montreal so far this year, including 12 Canadians and 15 American imports.

Judge May Decide Williams Baseball Fate

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Florida circuit judge may decide today whether Ted Williams returns to baseball.

Dade county's senior circuit judge, George E. Holt, called thumping Ted "out" at home Monday in granting a divorce to Mrs. Doris Soule Williams on her plea that she and the Boston Red Sox star "just couldn't get along."

But the judge postponed until today a ruling on how much money Williams must pay the attractive, dark-haired woman he married 11 years ago. One of Mrs. Williams' attorneys indicated she had agreed to a lump settlement.

It was believed Williams would await the court's ruling on the size of the settlement before making up his mind whether to return to the game that made him famous and paid him as high as $100,000 a season.

Expects Santee, Pirie Mile Classic To Be Special Event, Says CNE Boss

TORONTO (CP)—Announcement of a mile race between British runner Gordon Pirie and United States runner Wes Santee at the Canadian National Exhibition this summer is expected within the next few weeks, sources supporting the project said Monday.

Word of the proposed contest between the two track champions was given Saturday in Vancouver by George Duthie, CNE sports director. Mr. Duthie said that the CNE is prepared to offer a special event for the runners.

Instigator of the plan to have the two famous runners compete in Canada is Ken Thomson, executive vice-president of the Thomson Co. Ltd. A keen follower of track athletics, Mr. Thomson says he has been hoping for some time to bring the runners together.

Pirie was the only winner when the two last competed in 1952. At that time, however, Santee had little experience of the mile length.

The English athlete will be Mr. Thomson's guest at his home in Toronto. His brother, Peter Pirie, himself a champion runner, will also make the trip.

"Gordon Pirie is among the top runners in the world," Mr. Thomson said Monday. "In England his name means a lot. They think of him as one of their greatest athletes. I hope Canada will get a chance to see him, too."

Mr. Thomson said the most likely day for the contest is Aug. 27. "If all goes well and our preliminary plans work out," he said, "I think there is a possibility for a really terrific mile race."

Pirie is famous for his six-mile distances and for his stamina in long cross-country races.

TIGERS BUY PLAYER

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers of the American League announced Monday they have acquired outfielder Charles Maxwell on waivers from Baltimore Orioles. The waiver price is $10,000.

Maxwell, a lefthanded hitter, hit .259 in 74 games with Boston Red Sox in 1954.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Fifty-one years and a few days ago, on May 5, 1904, there was pitched the first perfect game in the history of the American Baseball League. We recall this fact because the pitcher who threw this no-hit-no-man-to-reach-first recently celebrated his 85th birthday, and is still hale and hearty beyond the average. And whether this man was celebrating it a day named in his honor at the Boston Red Sox baseball park.

The man is Cy (Denton True) Young. In the first world's baseball series, he won two games for the champion league champion Pittsburgh Pirates. A mighty all-time figure in the diamond game.

What a heroic figure he was in that series. He stood in the pitcher's box like Ajax defying the lightning, hurling Jovian darts at the Pirates that included the fabulous Fred Clarkeman, Honus Wagner, John McGraw, the little Napoleon of the Flag, and the lagged Wagner the greatest player of all time.

But it didn't make any difference to Cy Young whether it was Wagner or anybody else. He blew the ball right by them all.

A year later he pitched the first perfect game in the American League. His victims were the Philadelphia Athletics. Not one of the nine reached first base. Rube Waddell, greatest southpaw in the game at the time, was his opponent.

Even at the age of 44 when the most durable pitchers have been relegated to the scrap heap, he still hurled for the Boston Nationals. It was only fitting that Cy Young was named in the first group elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

The great Cy wasn't alone in his iron-man feats, for the baseball of the period produced some unbelievably durable moundsmen. In 1904 came the amazing performance of another world series pitching hero, Bill Dinneen, who during that campaign pitched one of the longest stretches in baseball history without being relieved—337 innings. This included 37 complete games, and almost covered the season's duration.

Dinneen, too, hurled for the Red Sox. And in the same era, there was the immortal Christy Mathewson, who won three games of a five game world series test against the Athletics, in 1905. He pitched a shut-out in each game, allowed a total of only 13 safe hits in the three.

They really bred 'em tough and durable in those half-forgotten days. And none tougher than Cy Young.

Boxing Out in Pennsylvania If Johnson Probe Answer Unsatisfactory,---Governor

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania today, enters the investigation of Harold (Jolting Jolter) Johnson in a nationally televised fight, reportedly ready to shut down boxing in the state if a satisfactory explanation is not found.

Leader summoned the state athletic commission to meet with him in the state capitol at Harrisburg to discuss last Friday's fight here in which Johnson, 175, No. 1 light-heavyweight contender, was unable to answer the bell for the third round of his encounter with heavyweight Julio Mederos.

Meanwhile, medical tests continued on Johnson and an orange he ate prior to entering the ring. Ammonia if he had been drugged. And police began a probe of the fight betting odds.

Inspector John F. Driscoll said the probe was to ascertain if gamblers might have been involved in Johnson's collapse.

Driscoll said he did not know yet if the odds had fluctuated at the last minute. But Inspector Dennis E. Considine of Philadelphia told the state Senate in Harrisburg Monday that 5-1 odds favoring Johnson had dropped to 2-1 by fight time.

Quintes Win Mixed League Bowling Title

The boys and gals of the city who combine for bowling prowess in organized leagues went to the alleys last night to decide a "Mixed League" champion and the Quinte Mixed League came up with the honors.

The Quinte "Guys and Dolls" scored an aggregate pinfall of 2300 to lead the pack of five teams. In order came, Commercial Inland, 2126; Bicycle Warner, 2009; Saturday Night Mixed, 2022 and Shell Oil 2753.

Captain Peggy Kenney of the victorious Quintes accepted the Lorne Mongrif Trophy, emblematic of the Mixed League championship following the games. Other members of the Quintes were Johnny Konsky, Vince Bagriff, Art Whalen, Olive Jarvah and Pod Anderson.

Barely Miss Bowling Lead

TORONTO (CP)—Pere Cutting and Eileen Keough of Toronto missed by 41 pins the leadership in the Ontario Bowling Association's mixed doubles Monday night in the annual tournament. With a total of 1,532 they placed second to Doris Litt and Rudy Steiger of Kitchener who scored 1,573 Sunday.

Don Mueller Three Games Shy Of Hit Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Mueller is only three games shy of the New York Giants' record for consecutive game hitting today and at the rate he's going he could well threaten the National League mark.

Mueller, who leads the majors in hits with 60, has hit safely in his last 21 games, missing only the Giants' opener on April 12. Freddie Lindstrom set the Giants' record mark of 24 in 1930 and Tommy Holmes is the National League holder with 37 in 1945.

Mueller's pace has been phenomenal. He has collected 14 safeties in his last 27 times at bat and raised his average to .421 while challenging St. Louis' Bill Virdon, who leads with .424. Virdon shows only 10 official at bats compared to Mueller's 85.

Rip Repulski of the Cardinals gained three points to .367 in games last week to remain in third place. Brooklyn's Roy Campanella is fourth with .333 followed by Gene Freese of Pittsburgh with .345.

In the American League, Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn of Detroit moved up to challenge Bill Skowron and Vic Power, both sidelined with leg injuries.

Skowron is the pace-setter with a .433 batting mark. The Yankee first sacker had 23 hits in 51 trips before he sustained a pulled leg muscle a week ago. Power, Kansas City's first baseman, is second at .415.

Meanwhile, Kaline collected 13 hits in 31 at bats last week (a .387 mark) and holds down third place with a .407 average. Kuenn, with 16 for 33 last week, climbed 17 points to .390, good for fourth place.

Will Take Williams Off Active List

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox general manager Joe Cronin said Monday that slugger Ted Williams' name will be taken off the active list and placed on the restricted list Wednesday.

Major league teams must cut down rosters to 25 active players plus servicemen by midnight, May 11.

The big slugging outfielder, whose playing status remains a question mark even after his divorce in Miami Monday, can be taken off the restricted list at his own request under Rules 15 and 16B, the Sox said.

Cronin talked with Williams by telephone Monday after Mrs. Williams was granted a divorce. The conversation, as recounted here by the Sox, cast little light on Williams' future plans.

Cronin said Williams told him: "I still haven't changed. It was a hectic day. I'm confused. I don't know any more now than I knew before."

Brantford Clips London Majors

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Brantford Red Sox clipped London Majors 13-6 Monday night in an Intercounty Senior Baseball League exhibition game.

Brantford broke a 4-0 tie with a seven-run barrage in the sixth inning. London outhit Red Sox 16-8 but Brantford had three home runs in their total. Catcher Luther Clifford and third baseman Stan Lipka got the homers.

Says Williams Will Rejoin Boston Red Sox

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Herald says Ted Williams will rejoin the Boston Red Sox Friday and will be available for pinch-hitting duty a week later.

The Herald, in a byline story by sports editor Ed Costello, says it has learned that Williams plans to remain in Miami until financial arrangements of his divorce are announced by the court.

Williams, The Herald says, will be ready for full time playing by May 27.

"He's confident he can be ready for limited duty after only a week of working out because he kept in excellent physical condition this winter and weighs 212."

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor

DUKE SNIDER STELLAR CENTER FIELDER FOR THE BROOKLYN DODGERS, USES PROPER FOOTWORK AND BODY ACTION TO MAKE BRILLIANT CATCHES FREQUENTLY.

The outfielders who get the fastest starts catch the most balls. To do this they must be alert and on their toes and ready to move in any direction as the ball leaves the bat.

With the exception of balls hit directly in front of or behind you, always pivot on the balls of your feet in the direction the ball is hit. If it is hit over your left shoulder, pivot on your right foot to the left and take your first step with your left foot. If it is hit over your right shoulder, pivot on your left foot to the right and, take your first step with your right foot.

When you charge a ground ball, take your first step with the opposite foot. Your first stride is with your left foot when breaking to the right, and with the right foot when going to the left.

If you follow the example of all-star outfielders like Duke Snider you will play a shallow outfield. In other words, you will take a chance on an occasional ball being hit over your head out of your reach in order to catch many more balls, which are hit in front of you and which you couldn't catch if you were playing back for the occasional long drive.

LOYALIST STILL TOPS

TORONTO (CP) — Loyalist, owned by W. A. Moffat of Toronto, is still a 5-to-2 favorite in the final winter-book quotations on 33 horses still eligible for the $20,000-added Queen's Plate June 11.

Odds on the brown colt have changed little since the first of the three quotations were released last year. He opened at 3 to 1. Prices on many other horses in the field have been slashed because of impressive spring workouts.

Three thoroughbreds rule as second choice at 6 to 1. They are Bright Flash and Old Bright, owned by Toronto industrialist E.P. Taylor, and Fairstar, a black gelding owned by Jim Fair of Cedric Coast Realties.

Jim Norris To Take Stand In Fight Probe

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, is scheduled to take the stand May 19 in the New York state athletic commission probe of complaints that the fighter that he has been blacklisted.

The fighter, Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., complains he has been unable to get fights since he broke with his manager, Bill Daly. He says other managers have blacklisted him.

The commission opened a hearing last Friday. Norris was scheduled to appear but was unable to make it because of business in Chicago. Commission chairman Julius Helfand called a 10-day recess.

The managing director of the IBC, Harry Markson, was the chief witness Monday.

He testified that he considered it "disgraceful and outrageous" that Martinez couldn't get matches. The fighter's ex-manager, Daly, is treasurer of the powerful International Boxing Guild.

Hartley Joins Toronto Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Art Hartley, righthanded pitcher released by Syracuse Chiefs, has accepted terms offered by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League.

Hartley joined the 10-man Leaf pitching staff Monday. The 31-year-old player is a veteran of International League competition but played in only two games with Syracuse this spring.

CUBS RELEASE 6

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Cubs of the National League Monday got rid of four pitchers and two catchers, cutting their roster to the required limit of 25. Included was veteran pitcher Ruben Church, 30, who was released outright to the Los Angeles Farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Indians Peeping Toms, Says Boudreau 'They Used Sign-Snitching Telescope'

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau of the Kansas City Athletics says Cleveland Indians used an army telescope to steal his catcher's signs throughout the first game and part of the second in Sunday's doubleheader.

The As lost both games, 8-6 and 2-1.

In the second game Boudreau insisted that an army telescope mounted on a tripod near the Cleveland bullpen be evacuated in a jeep.

The telescope, jeep and other army equipment were part of equipment used in an army display and left beyond the centre-field barrier in the sprawling Cleveland Municipal Stadium during the games.

His suspicions were aroused, he says, early in the first game. When Jim Hegan, the Cleveland catcher, laid into a curve ball Boudreau went into actions.

SKULLDUGGERY AFOOT

He had his coaches check some openings in the scoreboard. After shooting around, Boudreau says, they reported one of the Cleveland relief pitchers had climbed himself by the telescope and was transmitting the Kansas City signs to another pitcher, Bill Newcombe, who was sprawled on the bench in the bullpen.

When Newbouser lazily spread his legs it meant a fast ball was being pitched. If he didn't, a curve was coming.

"That telescope was so powerful you could see the white on the baseball and the catcher," Spook Jacobs, the As second-baseman, said.

In the second game Boudreau hailed the proceedings until one of the umpires had the telescope driven away in a jeep.

"Of course, we didn't prove anything," Boudreau said. "If you accused them they wouldn't admit it. About all we could do is use a lie detector."

RANGERS TAKE CUP

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Glasgow Rangers won the Glasgow Charity Football Cup, defeating Queens Park 3-1 in the final at Hampden Park here Monday night. Rangers led 1-0 at half-time.

Galt Terriers Start Training

GALT (CP)—Galt Terriers of the Intermediate A section of the Ontario Baseball Association started spring training sessions Monday night and only three members of last year's pennant-winning team were on hand.

Infielders Pete Karpuk and Wray Upper and catcher Art O'Connor were the last year's players. About 15 players have reported so far including Alf Gavey, southpaw pitcher from Brantford Red Sox, Roger Threard, who batted .341 with St. Thomas Elgins last year, and Bob Tanner, formerly with Guelph-Waterloo Royals.

Nearly two weeks behind the rest of the league in training, Terriers start the season against Panthers at Kitchener Thursday.

Two inter-squad games planned for the weekend were cancelled when manager Bert Pankratz and six players from Detroit were delayed at the border while customs officials cleared baseball equipment being carried in their cars.

Moore Pleads Not Guilty

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore, world's light heavyweight boxing champion, pleaded not guilty in municipal court Monday to a charge of failing to support a son, Archie, Jr., 13. His jury trial was set for July 21.

Moore was arrested Saturday on the complaint of his former wife, Elizabeth Smith, the boy's mother. He was released on $500 bail.

Sam Snead's Golf School

2. As today's picture shows as you swing down your weight passes from right leg to left so that at impact your weight is forward. Note you are in position to deliver full, rhythmic power to the ball. Today's golfer is swinging into an iron shot. At this moment — and position — his feet are flat on the ground, providing a firm base, and both arms fully extended. His shoulder is starting to rise. This permits his right shoulder to pivot under the chin, after the ball, in a full, sweet follow-through. Be sure you have position to swing without losing your balance. This calls for a good, firm foot-grip on the ground.

SELECT GOLF STE

TORONTO (CP) — Burlington Golf and Country Club will be the site of the 40th Ontario Ladies' golf tournament June 20-24.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your bridge work is wobbly if your doubles are uncertain. Your doubles are known to be for penalty if your partner had already bid. But when is your double for takeout?

If partner has not yet bid, your double is for takeout if the latest opponent bid is not more than three in a suit; providing your double is made at your first opportunity to double.

Is it possible for your double to be for takeout if you had been the opening bidder? Yes. Most assuredly. Providing the other two conditions exist at the time you double.

Sit south in the deal shown here:

♠8 5 4
♥Q 7 3
♦8 7 2
♣Q 9 2

WEST	EAST
♠A Q 9 7 6 3	♠10
♥9	♥J0 5 4 3
♦J 4 3	♦A Q 10 6
♣K 8 3	♣J 10 6 5

SOUTH
♠K J 2
♥A K Q 6
♦K 9 5
♣A 7 4

Let the bidding reach this far:

South	West	North	East
Double	1 Spade	Pass	Pass

Is your double for penalty or for takeout? Review the three basic conditions of a takeout double and see if they exist. Take the last of the three needed conditions in their turn.

First, has your partner already bid? No. Even though he had an opportunity to bid he did not do so. He passed. Thus, you are ready to see if the next condition exists.

Second, was the opponent doubled bid more than three in a suit? No. Their latest bid was one spade. Even if it had been three in some suit it would not be a deterrent to a takeout double.

Third, was your double at your first opportunity to double? Yes, it was. You could not have doubled as an opening bid. It was only after an opponent had bid that you had a chance to double.

You know it was intended for a takeout double. Your partner probably does, too. Not always is he as dumb as he looks.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

Three Children Baptized On Mother's Day

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mother's Day service was well attended at White's Church. The theme of the "Christian Family Day" service was "Parents—First Teachers of Religion."

Following a prelude of music by the pianist, Mrs. W. A. Jeffery, and invocation, a baptismal service for Margo Ann, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Reide; Heather Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hockaday and Brenda Joyce, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman took place. As the parents came forward "A Little Child the Saviour Came" was sung.

Following the service the choir sang "Can a Little Child Like Me?"

Miss Marilyn Bowers read: "One Reason Why". All joined in reading Psalm 100 and parents, children and all united in the Lord's Prayer. Responsive reading read "Before It is Too Late," advising each one to come to his or her mother if she were far away. The Misses Sylvia Bilham and Nancy Hockaday sang "Father We Thank Thee for the Night."

Mrs. George Bilham gave a story for children, "Prayers in the Moonlight," which showed that a boy who had been trained to pray did not forget this procedure when out camping and was an inspiration for the other boys.

The choir joined in singing "Children of Jerusalem" with the congregation assisting in the refrain.

The offering for the Ontario Council of Christian Education was taken by Messrs. Bruce Hunt and Gary Jackson. This is to assist in the training of leaders for the youth work of the churches, camps and Bible Schools, Church Vacation Schools and other important activities.

The Rev. R. W. T. Middleton spoke on "Mothers."

160 Acres of Orange Trees Changed Into Imaginative Park

By BOB THOMAS

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—A woman declared of delights is rising out of the orange groves in this sunny suburb of Los Angeles.

It is Disneyland, a $17,000,000 paradise for children. When the gates are opened July 18, customers will see the fantastic world of Disney films transformed into three-dimensional reality.

Within less than a year, 700 workmen have changed 160 acres of orange trees into a vast, imaginative park. Disney expects 5,000,000 people to visit the place each year. There is parking space for 15,000 cars.

First stop of a tour of Disneyland is the main entrance, where crowds will enter by two tunnels. Above the tunnels is an embankment which extends completely around Disneyland. Atop the embankment will run a 1900-era passenger train which will afford passengers a bird's eye view of the park.

Two locomotives are being built, one for a passenger train and another for a freight train that would operate out of Frontierland. Both are ⅝ size models that will carry six cars, making them the largest miniature railroads in the world.

HORSES DRAWN

In a huge warehouse stand surreys' stagecoaches, streetcars, all tow, penny arcade games, a collection of automatic pianos; organs and other gadgets. There are also rows of brightly-painted carousel horses, purchased in Coney island and Toronto.

"You can't get them new any more," Disney explained. "They're all hand-carved."

He continued to Fantasyland, which is his favorite realm. The entrance is over a moat through a large towered and turreted castle. Inside the courtyard will be a carousel of 72 jumping horses.

"The place will be a splash of color," Disney enthused. "We've got to make the rides completely different from what you see in amusement parks."

For instance, the Peter Pan flythru will take children through air, past the Darlings' window, over London and to Never-Never Land. The Alice in Wonderland tea party will whirl them around in revolving tea cups. The Mr. Toad ride will send the children through haystacks, brick walls, etc.

RIVER OF DELIGHT

Disney continued to Adventureland and walked down the dusty bed of what will soon be an explorer's river. With vast delight, he told what the journey would be like: past jungle scenes, exotic temples, munching giraffes (plastic but realistic), trumpeting elephants, snarling crocodiles, menacing hippos, cannibals, under a waterfall, through white water rapids and back to the boat house.

Then came Frontierland, where Davy Crockett country is being built with logs and foot-long nails. There's a mine ride over a runaway coach trail which will lead through the Painted desert and along a pioneer village. Then Tomorrowland, which will feature a trip to the moon and other futuristic delights.

Will Disneyland be duplicated elsewhere?

"I don't think so. You have to have a years-round season to make money from such a large investment. The only other place it would be possible is Florida."

Trend in Movie Industry Is Away from Big Studios

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The trend in the movie industry continued away from big studio operations and toward more independent production.

Exhibitors have been wailing about not having enough new pictures to keep their theatres booked. The big studios have drastically cut production because of run-of-the-mill pictures no longer pay. Only the special attractions make money.

It's up to the independents to fill the gap and they are thriving as never before.

How does an independent operate?

Take the case of Robert Aldrich, who is producing and directing "The Big Knife," with a cast that would give credit to any studio: Jack Palance, Ida Lupino, Shelley Winters, Wendell Corey, Wood Strobe, Jean Hagen, Ilka Chase and Everett Sloane.

The project started five years ago, when Aldrich was a successful movie producer with a string of bandies all the business details). Having worked on a number of John Garfield pictures, he was in New York when the late actor starred in Clifford Odets' "The Big Knife." It was the story of a male star's temptations in Hollywood.

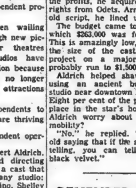
SAW POSSIBILITIES

The play was a flop, but Robert Aldrich saw film possibilities. Aldrich whipped up a script, which he wanted to make as a film.

"But though I was one of the most successful production managers in the business, I couldn't direct traffic," said the pudgy, affable Aldrich.

It took him a few years to remedy that. He started directing with a couple of minor films, then jumped to "Apache" and "Vera Cruz" for Burt Lancaster. After producing and directing a Mickey Spillane film, he decided it was time to sharpen up "The Big Knife."

For $10,000 plus a percentage of the profits, he acquired the story rights from Odets. Armed with his old script, he lined up the cast. Then the came to $425,000. For which $263,000 was for the cast. This is amazingly low, considering the size of the cast. A similar project on a major lot would probably run to $1,500,000.



Aldrich helped shave costs by using an unused but adequate studio near downtown Los Angeles. Eight per cent of the picture takes place in the same bedroom. Director Aldrich worry about his lack of mobility?

"No," he replied. "There's an old saying that if the story's worth telling you can tell it against black velvet."

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sam Breadon, who steered the St. Louis Cardinals to 11 National League pennants, died six years ago today at St. Louis at age 72. Breadon was president of the Cards from 1920 until he sold the team in 1947 because of failing health. In that stretch the Cards won six world series titles.

Burr's

BURR'S M.S.

BURR'S — The April Mission Band met at the school on Tuesday afternoon. Wayne's Sole played quiet music. Eleanor Clark presided. Recreation time was taken up in learning stunts of Indian relics and a suggested visiting tour to see some more. Interesting ones was talked of.

Receipts were received from CARE and the Presbyterian Fund. "Card orders were" still being taken. Offering was taken.

Eleanor read the story of St. George from the Book of Knowledge. Worship study was taken by Mrs. John Burr in 3-17 and was read by Barbara Clark. Mrs. McFaul read a chapter from the study book. Members started memorizing the 23rd Psalm. May 17 is next date of meeting.

CROFTON W.A.

Mrs. Lorne Burr entertained Crofton W.A. on Wednesday afternoon. Their president was regretfully completed was in display.

Arbor Day was noted on Friday in the usual way by Mrs. McFaul and pupils.

Pupils of the school were received its annual tidying up. A handicraft display of scissors, tuna, escalloped potatoes, jelly and pie was displayed. Mrs. Jones, Centennon was spent in games and a trip to the Huffman woods.

This community was saddened by the death of the late Elliott Bird, of Brighton, who for 21 years lived in the W. K. Burr home here, prior to that he lived where Lorne Burr now lives. His genial manner and good neighborliness won him many friends. Much sympathy goes to his widow and family in their hour of bereavement.

MOTHER'S DAY

The Mother's Day service was conducted by Rev. Sunday Hunter on Sunday morning. The order of the supplement was followed with Ronald Burr in charge.

Mrs. Floyd Huffman, with her gift for story telling, gave much pleasure to her listeners in presenting the children's story. Mr. C. Fulford, a returned missionary, was responsible for a delightful talk on "Homes" and the influence they play on the lives of the children who grow up in them and go out into the world.

Mr. Clare McFaul and son, Wayne, representing the family at work in the church, took up the offering which goes to the growth of the church in Ontario.

The Misses Lois Squire and Elsie Squire sang a Mother's Day duet, accompanied by Mrs. Val Squire. It was encouraging to see so many out.

EVENING SERVICE

At the evening service, the Rev. A. Pouteaux, in a very interesting Mother's Day address, noting its inception by the late Anne Jarvis, and drawing a comparison between the home life at the turn of the century and the present in the duties and activities of mothers.

Since women have gained equality with men in almost every field, they should exert more and more influence to care for the child.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, May 11, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Excellent and vigorous vibrations from several major planets should make for a happy, interesting, productive and successful day. Be your best — not selfish, but decidedly equalitive.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Practical matters, difficult work, scholarly study and other sound interests equally honored now. Mechanical trades, household tasks, private interests, finances need, too.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — While the influences are mostly good, nevertheless be circumspect and don't promise or agree unthinkingly to that which you are not sure you can fulfill. A fine day for true achievement.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — The can be a happy, productive period for personal interests, business or occupational matters. Be progressive but not overforceful or impatient. Reason quietly; show your truly nice nature.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — There are encouraging aspects but you will be more successful if you are reasonable, amenable and cooperative. Happy domestic advantages.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — While not tops for all mental activities or new ideas, the day could bring new leads and, with your cooperation, fruition of carefully laid plans, smart business transactions.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Splendid Venus, Moon and other planetary rays should make this a stimulating day. Stick to sound rules and use your best judgment in all important matters; don't go overboard financially.

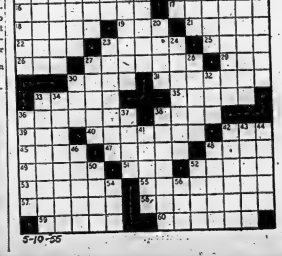
October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Fine Saturn and Mars aspects should invigorate your day. Think carefully and follow a sensible course since what you start and do today will determine progress for a week or more.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Don't be smug or too thoughtless in money matters, investments, making contracts, etc. A good day generally, but do be very careful where finances are concerned.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — One of your most encouraging days this month. Conscientious, smart management of your own affairs, coupled with square and honest dealings with others, could be very advantageous.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Good indications everywhere though your Uranus does not sanction hasty or unpremeditated changes, decisions. Spend some time checking in order to avoid errors.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your Neptune suggests a middle-of-the-road course now. Concentrate on benefits already indicated rather than venture too far, perhaps unwisely.



You born today are blessed with many talents and skills. You have vitality, a liking for that which is good and honorable, but try to curb an excessive appetite for luxurious living. Never give way to brooding or feeling you are not appreciated. You can make a success of whatever profession or trade you make your life's work.

Birthdate of: Justinian I, Roman emperor of the East.

Expulsion Move Called Shocking By PC Secretary

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rod Beaven, secretary of the British Columbia Progressive Conservative Association, Monday described the expulsion of provincial leader Deane Finlayson from the national executive meeting in Ottawa Saturday.

"It's a shocking move by national officers," Mr. Beaven told reporters. "They did not even want to hear our charges. This is not a personal fight between Deane and the national association, although they would like to make it appear so. The differences between nation aldesarbeaters and the B.C. Conservatives existed years bbor Mr. Finlayson cam to the association.

"When he follows our orders to present the association's brief against federal interference in our affairs, he hardly fair to expel him without even a hearing of our charges."

Although Mr. Finlayson will not return to Vancouver for a week, Mr. Beaven said, preparations now are being made to call a meeting of the association executive "on short order" to discuss the next move of the provincial body.

Little Benny's Note Book

The Forrin Intriggers, being me and Puds Slmkins, were talking about our secret plans yesterday, and Puds said, hay, suppose some time we have to go on a real special exter secret mission that even our own fathers and mothers aren't supose to be able to reckonize us?

Let's practice for it, I said, and Puds said, How?

Well dinkie ourselves and go to each other's house, I said. You come to my house ferst. Put on your baits mustash and your raincoat with a pillow stuck under it, and ring my door-bell exactly at clock tomorrow morning. I wont come down to breakfist yet, so somebody else will have to go to the door, I said, and Puds said, Suppose they reckonize my disguise? They'll think you're a midgit, I said, and he said, Well suppose they reckonize my voice?

Dont use any voice, I said. Just hand them a peece of paper saying in it, I dont speak English and I want to borrow 200 dollers. They'll think you're crazy and they'll quick shut the door, I said.

And the next day morning I was still waiting upstairs, and the doorbell rang and looked over the bannisters and saw Puds with a trunk door and I heard him say, Hello, Puds, where's my old mastercade party? And I heard Puds say, What? Where's Benny? and pop said, He hasn't had his breakfist yet, report later.

And he shut the door and I went down to breakfist, saying, Didn't Puds hand you anything, pop?

What the doors should be hand me? pop said, and I said, Nuding. Thinking, Heck. Now I have to use me trying it at Puds's house.

Which I probably wont.

Dempsey Seeks Endorsation As PC Candidate

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RENFREW, Ont. (CP)—A hefty country politician, bleary - eyed from sleeplessness, has told his constituency stalwarts that he erred but wants their continued support.

James Dempsey, jack - of - all-trades contractor and Renfrew South member of the Ontario legislature for the last 19 years, Monday night told a delegates' meeting of the Renfrew South Progressive Conservative Association:

"I must admit that I committed the indiscretion of taking party funds without advertising I had received them.

"I'm not the first in the world to make a mistake and so I'm going to ask for your support. You ask if I am going to get the support of the party. I think that if I admit I made a mistake I may get that support."

PREPARATORY TALKS

The delegates met to prepare for a possible second nominating convention in the riding next Saturday.

Mr. Dempsey, a garrulous 68-year-old widower, won the first convention last April 16, but last Friday the Ontario Progressive Conservative party withdrew its support of him over an alleged $6,800 campaign kitty which was not made public.

Premier Frost of Ontario said last Friday night he had told Mr. Dempsey he could not endorse him for the June 9 election campaign until his 1951 election fund is "cleared up to my entire satisfaction."

Jim W. Baskin, Renfrew lumber man and president of the local party association, told the meeting he had been trying for official guidance from party headquarters in Toronto. He said Mr. Dempsey still needs an endorsement before he can run as Progressive Conservative candidate in Renfrew South.

"If Mr. Dempsey is endorsed this week, no convention will be necessary Saturday since he already has been nominated. If he is not endorsed it will mean we will have to have a new convention and choose a new candidate.

"Mr. Dempsey is a very good friend of mine, but I don't think there are any other alternatives."

MASS. WANTS POWER

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts Senate Monday approved a bill which would authorize the state public utilities department to negotiate for St. Lawrence seaway power for distribution to Massachusetts utilities.

Correspondence On Dealings Opened to Press

TORONTO (CP)—Deputy Minister F. A. MacDougall of the Ontario lands and forests department Monday opened for the press correspondence on timber dealings with the late John T. Drohan.

Letters made available to newspaper men dealt with timber rights Mr. Drohan received from the department in compensation for pine-cutting rights which he lost in 1951 by an amendment to the Public Lands Act.

Mr. MacDougall denied a suggestion that Mr. Drohan had been given an increase in compensation or that compensation had been revised upward after James S. Dempsey, Progressive Conservative member for Renfrew South in the last Ontario legislature, had interceded on Mr. Drohan's behalf.

Mr. Dempsey said in Renfrew Monday that Mr. Drohan had contributed $3,000 to his 1951 provincial election campaign but the contribution was not in payment for arranging any timber deal.

DID SOME TALKING

"Sure I did some talking on his behalf," said Mr. Dempsey. "I talked in the legislature and I talked with lands and forests department people. He was a constituent of mine. He wasn't paying me for that sort of thing and I certainly have nothing to hide."

Department files show that Mr. Drohan was given cutting rights to 6,360,000 board feet of all species of timber in compensation for rights to 5,700,000 board feet of pine he lost in 1951.

Mr. Drohan, who died in 1952, had asked 7,000,000 because of the higher value of pine compared to other species of timber.

Should Not Use Gambling Money To Support Church

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Anglican synod of Huron decided Monday that money raised from bingos, raffles and other forms of gambling should not go toward supporting the church.

The decision reaffirmed a directive of similar nature issued four years ago by the bishop of the synod, Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton of London.

However, a motion by Rev. Leslie Jenkins of London asking the synod to request the bishop to "forbid" the raising of church monies by games of chance was defeated.

Canon H. Geoghegan of Woodstock said a directive from the bishop should be sufficient to curb the practice. "I would hate to see the word 'forbidden' used."

Canon Geoghegan said his church "has been able to raise money to keep it going without any raffles or games of chance."

Floor Collapses, 51 Workers Hurt, One Man Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — Rescue squads still dug today into tons of rubble in search of a construction worker missing in yesterday's roaring collapse of the New York Coliseum's main exhibition floor.

Fifty-one workers were injured when the floor gave way while concrete was being poured into it.

Missing was Joseph Lombardi, 55, a cement worker. Rescue workers labored through the night by floodlights in efforts to locate him.

More than 100 workers clawed for their lives as concrete, steel and wood plunged 22 feet to the street-level floor of the project being built at Columbus circle in mid-town Manhattan.

"Something started to give," said one worker. "Then there was a terrible noise. It was like an earthquake. I just went down."

"Something started to give," said one worker. "Then there was a terrible noise. It was like an earthquake. I just went down."

The $35,000,000 project, started a year ago, is half completed. A 22-storey office building being built as part of the project was unaffected by the cave-in of the 180-by-130 foot floor section.

Cause of the collapse remains a mystery.

Soviet Calls On Big 4 To Leave Germany

Plan Made Public Before Officials Gather At Warsaw

Wants Troop Withdrawal, A-Weapons Ban, Arms Cut

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today unveiled a world peace plan calling for the immediate withdrawal of most foreign troops from both East and West Germany, big-power arms cuts and a controlled ban on atomic weapons.

The plan was made public a few hours before the Soviet officials gathered in Warsaw with leaders of their seven East European allies to establish a unified Kremlin-like alliance under a Russian commander.

The announcement also came shortly after the delivery of Western invitations from Soviet Premier Bulganin to meet with President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Eden and French Premier Faure for an informal discussion of world problems. There was no immediate Soviet reaction to the invitation, but it is believed the Bulganin bid will accept.

TWO DECLARATIONS

The peace plan was circulated by the official Tass news agency, which said the proposals were contained in two declarations submitted as a resolution to the United Nations subcommittee on disarmament now holding closed sessions in London. Many of its provisions were similar to previous Soviet proposals.

The bid for the evacuation of foreign troops from Germany was contained in the first declaration, an eight-point general peace plan. It called on the UN meeting to declare that "a weakening of international tension can be achieved by the immediate withdrawal of troops of the Big Four powers from German territory, leaving the limited contingents and police forces."

The Russians said these remaining contingents should be allowed to stay "pending the conclusion of an agreement on their full withdrawal."

ASK FULL A-BAN

The second Soviet declaration, proposals, lists the following three points as necessary "for the final manuiy from the threat of a new destructive war":

1. Full prohibition of the use and production of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction and the diversion of this potential energy to peaceful needs.

2. Substantial reduction of all armed forces and conventional arms.

3. Setting up of a control organ with rights and authority guaranteeing effective observation by all countries of this prohibition and reduction.

FIGHT FULL INSPECTION

On the question of international control and inspection, the Soviet proposal added:

"In the modern situation, when many states display legitimate concern in their security, it is difficult to expect that these states will trustfully give other states access to their territory and other resources which are of vital importance to their security."

The West has been pushing in all post-war disarmament talks for a system of "open skies" under which would permit international inspection teams to fly over all countries to insure observance of bans on atomic weapon production.

The Russians suggested instead an international control agency under the UN which would have posts at "big ports, railway junctions, motor roads and airdromes."

They said this would serve as an "effective check on...any war preparations and on the concentration of big contingents of ground armed forces, navy and air forces and their transfer can be effected only if through such points."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Sunny weather is expected today and Thursday in southern Ontario. In central and northern areas cloudiness this afternoon and evening will clear tonight and sunny drier weather is likely Thursday.

U.S. and France Will Compromise Over Viet Nam

PARIS (Reuters) —The United States and France today were expected to endorse a compromise solution on the South Viet Nam political crisis with an agreement under which ex-emperor Bao Dai would remain chief of state of the strife-torn country.

Premier Ngo Dinh Diem would remain in office, but efforts would be made to get him to enlarge his cabinet under which the solution finally worked out late Tuesday night by the two countries which have been badly split over the continuing crisis. The French have been backing Bao Dai and the U. S. Diem.

Other points hammered out were that the U. S. would support the South Viet Nam government use its influence to halt propaganda attacks on the French, and the French expeditionary forces would be progressively withdrawn from the territory.

Hoa Hao Sect Joins in Attack On Premier Diem

SAIGON (Reuters)—New fighting was reported today between the South Viet Nam national army controlled by Premier...Ngo Dinh Diem and the private armies of the politico-religious sects opposing him.

The forces of the Hoa Hao sect, now swelled with new recruits to 27,000 men, were reported to have joined the Binh Xuyen forces driven out of the city last week by the premier's army.

Chinese travellers reaching here today said that the Hoa Hao had long-hired warlord Gen. Ba Cut, bombarded the town of Myrho, 50 miles southwest of here, with mortar fire Monday and Tuesday night. Other sources said new "serious fighting" was going on today.

Cut reinforced forces helping the Binh Xuyen in last week's fighting in Saigon, except for a few harassing raids, but now the Hoa Hao forces and the Binh Xuyen are believed to have joined forces outside the capital.

British Papers Applaud Decision Prince Charles Will Attend School

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers today cheered Queen Elizabeth's announcement that six-year-old Prince Charles will mingle with other children at school instead of being royally tutored at home. The monarch asked newspapers to spare her son from too much publicity as a schoolboy.

"We applaud this decision," says the London Daily Mirror. "We applaud this sensible caution on the role of a prince—and a king-to-be —in this day and age."

Discloding the new plans for Charles, Elizabeth's press secretary wrote: British newspapers Tuesday that "Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh have decided that their son may reached the stage when he should take part in more 'grown-up' pursuits with other children."

"In consequence, a certain amount of the Duke of Cornwall's institution will take place outside his home. For example, he will sometimes attend all will visit museums and other places of interest. The Queen trusts, therefore, that the British Press will feel free to enjoy this in the same way as the children themselves and not embarrassment of constant publicity."

Duke of Cornwall is one of Charles' official titles.

The announcement gave no hint of where the prince might go to school His education so far has been limited to tutoring by his governess

The Queen was educated entirely at home, as was Prince Edinburgh, however, attended both British and European boarding schools.

FORMOSA STRAIT CEASE-FIRE PLEA VOICED BY NATO

Continued Hostilities Threat to World Peace

PARIS (CP)—The north Atlantic alliance today formally called for a cease-fire in the Formosa strait and mutual pledges to abstain from the use of force.

In a communique ending and summing up their current session the NATO council of foreign ministers declared:

"The council expressed the hope that there would be a cessation of hostilities in the Far East and no further resort to force."

It added that a continuation of hostilities would greatly endanger the peace of world."

Canada's L. B. Pearson hinted to the conference earlier that some NATO members feel the best solution for the Chinese dispute is the surrender of Quemoy and Matsu, offshore islands held by the Nationalists, in return for a collective security pledge to Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa regime.

TALKS ENDORSED

"We have responsibilities to Formosa as members of the United Nations," the external office minister said. He declined to say whether Britain shared this view.

The NATO council formally endorsed the Western big three proposals for a top-level meeting with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

The council said it hoped the initiative of Britain, France and the United States of arranging top-level talks with Russia "would lead progressively to agreements which would remove sources of conflict and contribute to the security and liberty of all peoples."

In particular the council hoped it might help reunite Germany in freedom and promote progress under effective safeguards towards world disarmament.

The communique welcomed the admission to NATO of West Germany, whose chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, took his seat at the council for the first time Monday.

DEEP SATISFACTION

"There is deep satisfaction" was recorded with the establishment of the new seven-nation Western European union, operating under the Paris treaties of last October as an important element in European army scheme.

The council welcomed "indications" that the Soviet Union may join in concluding the treaty to ban the H-bomb, banning all nuclear tests.

The ministers declared they were "resolved to continue the policies followed heretofore in building and maintaining the security and unity of the West."

The ministers said they were resolved to continue their regular "frank and free discussions" of the international scene, which enabled their governments to develop closer co-operation in their policies.

Publication of the communique leaves Foreign Secretary Macmillan free to leave Saigon, except for a few hours, before the Hoa Hao forces and the Binh Xuyen are believed to have joined forces outside the capital.

Farmers Are in Sore Need Of Government Aid--Oliver

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver of Ontario says there "never was a time when the government was more sorely needed to come to the aid of the farmer."

"Unless there is agricultural prosperity, you cannot expect the national fabric to be healthy and strong," Mr. Oliver said Tuesday night in a speech during his campaign for the June 9 Ontario general election.

He addressed a nomination meeting at Guelph and delivered his first direct appeal to the farm population since the unveiling of the Liberal party's 25-point manifesto last week.

He accused the Progressive Conservative government of Premier Frost of putting an $86,000 profit from stockyard operations last year into its consolidated revenue fund. The Liberal suggested the money should have been returned as subsidies.

Meanwhile, Donald C. MacDonald, head of thee CCF party, said the small businessman is one of the "most consistent victims of our free enterprise." A CCF government would do everything possible to protect the small businessman from the "unfair competitive methods which are relentlessly driving him to the wall."

Mr. MacDonald said a government for what he called its failure to deal fairly with municipalities. He spoke to 300 persons at a meeting which chose Guelph Mayor Harry Worton, 34, as Liberal candidate for Wellington South.

Mr. Oliver said the government has "sold the municipalities short and with the farmer is in a flamboyant way. At the moment you and I are paying a greater share of municipal tax levied than in 1943."

Mr. MacDonald said it is becoming increasingly difficult for "the little fellow to make a start precisely because the predominant characteristic of the system is not competition."

The growing tendency is for "the big fellow" to gobble up the little fellow and create a monopoly position for himself," he said. The small businessman is "being destroyed by the powerful interests who are flattering him.

"They put him on the back until they're in a position to knock him on the head," the CCF head said.

Much of the responsibility of helping the small businessman rests with the federal government, but "some things can be done by the provincial government," Mr. MacDonald stated.

In another nomination meeting Liberal Minister Gridgeon, chosen to contest the riding of Windsor-Sandwich for the Progressive Conservatives, told the gathering that although the Liberal platform promises more for municipalities and other benefits, there is no suggestion as to how the money would be raised without increasing taxes.

150 Jap School Children Dead, Missing as Ferries Collide

By GENE KRAMER

TAKAMATSU, Japan (AP)—Two big ferry boats crashed together in thick fog today, throwing 778 passengers—most of them school children—into the cold waters of Japan's inland sea.

With a gaping hole knifed in its side, the Shiun Maru sank in only five minutes. There was panic and chaos in the mad scramble for life.

A total of 143 were listed as dead or unaccounted for. Little hope was held for the missing.

Forty six bodies have been recovered. Six hundred and fifty-two were saved, including 51 injured. The ferry collision was Japan's worst sea disaster since last September's typhoon horror drowned 1,430 Japanese in Ise Bay near Nagoya.

The capsizing of the huge ocean ferry Toya Maru cost 1,200 lives.

The 1,500-ton Shiun Maru apparently swerved in heavy fog to avoid a sailing craft—straight into the steel bows of the 1,200-ton rail-car ferry Kinka Maru.

The car ferry ripped a great gash in the Shiun Maru's steel plates! The Shiun Maru's passengers—300 of them school children—clawed frantically for lifejackets on the rolling decks.

Then, about 30 of them went down with the ship, or were pulled under by it. Capt. Maj. Robert H. Dobson, commanding an American army convoy mission, Dobson led three army ambulance helicopters and two liaison planes to help evacuate the injured and search for the missing.

Japanese planes and a swarm of small boats also searched.

Both ships were using radar.

Dr. Yoshio Kishi, director of the Udaka Maru, said he had been warned by a ferry mission. Both vessels. Capt. Masao Nakamura, the Shiun Maru's skipper, went down with his ship.

Survivors said the ship heeled suddenly on its side before it finally plunge. The violence and suction overturned lifeboats, capsizing rescuing responsibilities and inadequate, tax resources.

Brothers Rescue Pair from Plane Burning on Road

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — Two brothers rescued another brother and his friend from a burning plane that crashed on a road 25 miles east of here Tuesday

Jack Lamb, 21, and Jack Abram, 20, were severely burned before being dragged from the flaming wreckage of a Norseman aircraft. The plane crashed in a shallow ditch by the road after taking off from Grace Lake, air base for Lamb Airways' operations.

The crash was witnessed by Lamb's father, Alexander, and the brothers Donald and Douglas. Donald and Douglas raced to the burning wreck. Donald dragged Abram from the plane and beat the flames out with his clothing. Douglas rescued his brother, carried him across the road and lowered him in the water filled ditch.

A passing taxi took the injured men to hospital.

HOUSE MEMBER EXPRESSES FEAR OVER PARLEYS

Claims Conferences May Start Another Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Fear that federal-provincial conferences may become "Canada's other Parliament" has been expressed in the Commons.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said Tuesday night that major conferences since 1927 have tended increasingly to consider public affairs which normally are matters for the Commons.

Future historians, he said, "may discover that in 1927, 1935 or 1945 the beginning of the decline of the influence of the House of Commons."

Mr. Churchill spoke during the budget debate which today continued with little fire. Eighty-five speeches have been made so far in the debate.

WHOLE FIELD

He said the federal-provincial conference last month decided its whole field of economic activity, except national defence and external affairs.

Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement on federal plans for unemployment relief had been announced to the conference, although he had indicated throughout a previous Commons debate on unemployment.

Mr. Churchill said this was "one of the most outstanding instances of by-passing Parliament."

Why should Parliament bother with unemployments, resources development and the like, if most of the conference was to study them and if Parliament's decisions were to depend on its decisions?

TO ESTABLISH 10TH

Wet scientist with 11 governments for a population of 15,000,000 were now engaged in an attempt to establish a 10th government superior in functions and importance to the other 11."

He said that from 1867 to 1927 seven interprovincial conferences were called by the provinces themselves. In 1927, 1935 and...1945, however, the federal government had taken the initiative. It had set the stage for the present form of organization and exercised its full weight and influence.

The main reason for the conferences was the financial problem of the provinces. "They are increasing responsibilities and inadequate, tax resources.

Further conferences may find the solution to that problem of Canada, Canadians hope, Mr. Richard Morahon Iron Mines.

Marlbank Man Receives $5,608 In Compensation

TORONTO (CP) — A series of troubles which started when a jeep ran into a herd of cows in Kingston district nearly three years ago had a happy ending Tuesday for Floyd Atkinson, who was awarded $5,608 in a damage suit.

Atkinson said that while testing the jeep on a highway 15 miles northeast of Kingston, Aug. 2, 1952, he killed two cows. In the collision, one of the split knee which later required long hospital treatment and, as a result, he had to sell his business.

Justice E. G. Moorhouse of the Ontario Supreme Court found Atkinson 40 per cent negligent in the accident and Mrs. Grizzle and Leo Fleming, owner of the herd, 60 per cent negligent for letting the cows run at large on the highway.

Party Will Go to Picton To View Shipping Facilities

MARMORA (Staff Special)—Under smiling blue skies, Marmora residents assembled this morning to rejoice in the rebirth of this town's iron industry. For nearly a century it has lain dormant.

On hand for the "christening" as it started its new lease of life were many notables from Canada and the United States, federal, provincial and municipal government officials, industrialists and railway executives.

Among those present were Hon. C. D. Howe, Federal Minister of Trade and Commerce, Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario, Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, and A. B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp., whose mills at Lackawanna, N.Y., will process the ore from the Marmora mine.

They arrived here by special train for ceremonies to mark the commencement of production at the Marmoraton Iron Mines property, a subsidiary of one of the continent's great steel firms, Bethlehem Steel.

Later they were to journey to Picton where they were to witness the departure of the first ore-carrier laden with pellets from the Marmora mine.

MINING STARTED IN 1870

Mining in the district was originally carried on as early as 1870. It was abandoned after 50 years when steel companies did not find it economical to use the ore. Now, however, with supplies in the Minnesota's Mesabi range dwindling and an ever-increasing demand for steel, the Marmora deposits have come back into their own.

Under the present method of operation the raw ore is blasted and dragged from the pit and milled at the site to produce a concentrate yielding about 65 per cent iron. The concentrate is then conveyed by C.N.R. to Picton, where it is loaded on an ore carrier for a trip across Lake Ontario. Target production is 500,000 tons a year.

The Marmoraton mine is an open-pit operation, carved out of 1,900 acres of rock and scrub land. The work of removing the over-burden of limestone from the iron-bearing ore was commenced two years ago.

Western Europe's Press Welcomes Proposed Top-Level Big 4 Talks

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe's press has welcomed the proposed top-level Big Four talks, but cautions against undue hopes of East-West settlement now.

News of the Western Allies' invitation to Russian Premier Bulganin to participate in a heads of state conference was given page prominence this morning in most western capitals. There is general agreement that the Kremlin leaders will accept.

News of Russia's latest world peace proposals, a new bound-of-optimism for the Big Four invitation, came too late for morning-paper comment. There was also immediate official comment in Washington, but a foreign office spokesman here said the new Soviet plan appeared to contain some fresh suggestions which would require careful examination.

Other sources in the British capital said, however, that the plan contained hardly short of everything Western demands for the establishment of effective international controls before any arms cuts are downed.

The Western note proposing top-level talks did not appear in the Soviet press today, in keeping with the usual practice of Russian newspapers to wait until the Kremlin's reply is available.

Moscow's morning newspapers ball the move as enhancing prospects of victory for Prime Minister Eden's forces in the May 26 general election.

The Communist party Frankfurter Allgemeine says editorially: "It is remarkable that the promise (on easing world tensions) can be reached among the four powers."

In one of the few Communist comments, East Berlin's News Deutschland says the Paris treaties rearming West Germany must be annulled before negotiations on German reunification. "It is evident that Dulles, Eden and Adenauer do not have that in mind," the paper says.

London's Daily Worker sounds the same note.

FLORAL DISPLAY ATTRACTS ATTENTION

A beautifully proportioned tulip design recently has been attracting much attention in Memorial Park.

The tulips, flowering on the mound at the western approaches to the park, are providing an atmospheric foreground to the city cenotaph.

The design is made up of about 1,800 white and red tulips and constitute a floral memorial tribute to the fallen in both world wars.

The design consists of a white cross in the centre of the mound starkly outlined against a field of red tulips. The design in turn is bordered by white tulips. The design is the work of the city Parks Board.

Agreement Reached on Minimum Cheese Prices in Ontario During May

Producer and buyer members of the negotiating committee of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board reached an agreement for the marketing of cheese at a meeting held in Toronto on Tuesday.

The agreement stated that the minimum prices to be paid by every cheese buyer for all cheddar cheese produced in Ontario, f.o.b. the cheese factory during the period from and including May 1 to May 31, 1955, shall be "Canada first grade cheese, 29c per pound. Canada second grade cheddar cheese, 27½c per pound; Canada third grade cheddar, 26c per pound, and below third grade the rate shall be negotiated by agreement between the cheese factory and the buyer.

The agreement shall continue in force until a new agreement is reached.

During the meeting the chairman of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board explained that the licence fee on Ontario cheese marketed after May 1, 1955, is one-half cent per pound. This is a decrease of one and one-half cents per pound from the 1954 licence fee.

It was pointed out that the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board is only supporting first grade cheese, and any under-grade cheese coming into their possession will be offered to the trade by tender.

Producer members of the committee included: Messrs. H. C. Arnold, W. O. Coon, H. E. Hadcock, C. N. Heath, and E. Hicks. Buyer members were: Messrs. G. B. Henry, R. J. MacFeeters, K. H. Olive, F. A. Wiggins and F. E. Wright.

City Firemen Answer 6 Alarms In 24 Hours

City firemen had a busy time yesterday and last night with no less than six alarms being answered since Tuesday noon.

Firemen had a five-hour stint at the city dump on the Bay Bridge road, where a blaze is believed to have been started by dump pickers, who may have dropped a cigarette.

And firemen put in another five hours at the old quarry north of College Street where a pile of Christmas trees and tree clippings hauled by the public works department, was found ablaze.

Other runs for the department were to the Shell service station at the corner of Coleman and Bridge Streets, where rubbish was burning in an incinerator, and to Albion Street for a brush fire.

Shortly after midnight firemen were called to Brown Street for a mattress fire, but found it was less smoking. Firemen tossed the burning mattress out through the window.

The final run was back to the city dump shortly after eight this morning, where a small section of the dump was found to still be burning.

Better Supervision of Youth Athletics Called for by Sports Supervisor

N. A. (Pete) Beach, athletic supervisor for Albert College, yesterday called for better supervision of youth athletics, particularly in the adolescent group.

"Work with young people must be carried out today more intelligently than ever before," he said, for there are "tremendous forces" being brought to bear on young people.

He was addressing the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club here.

"Adolescents, in the 14-20 years age group, are being neglected with the result that in some places they are finding outlets for their athletic ability in areas where they are not getting proper leadership," he said.

Adolescents want to be free of supervision and on their own and that may be quite natural, but . . . there has to be some control and kind of watch on what is going on.

The tendency of adolescent players to imitate poses a problem, Mr. Beach recalled several incidents, where players had tangled with officials. One example he singled out in particular was Montreal's fiery Maurice Richard.

"I do not know how many hockey players in the next year are going to try to imitate Richard," he said.

Unless public opinion expresses itself in no uncertain terms through the press and radio, such like incidents, "I do not think there is anything we can do about it," Mr. Beach told the club.

NEED IS LEADERSHIP

"We need intelligent leadership. I think the whole crux of the matter is leadership,".

He warned against the "exploiting group" in young people's work that know young people have far more money than ever before and they have their eye on the money. "They do not care about the individuals."

"We have got to be very, very careful in the activities we promote," Mr. Beach also warned.

He cautioned against organizing youth into activities that will draw them away from their home, school or church. Such activities "are not good," he said, for they pull away a youth from the three basic things that will affect his later life.

Needed is the kind of leadership that points out to the individual the underlying rules of the games and life in general.

"I think we have a tremendous job to do," he said.

"Only young people are God's gift to us. What they become is our gift to God. I would suggest that we all work together to make our gift comparable to His and then it will be an acceptable one," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Bill Wennascoll and thanked by Ev Fairman.

Mill Schedules Holding At Record Levels

By SAM DAWSON

New York (AP) — Scrap steel prices have slipped from their lofty perch—and a few years back such a drop would have been looked upon as foretelling a decline in steel production.

Copper prices in London have taken an even sharper tumble—and that could foreshadow an easing of the tight supply here.

Prices of aluminum and lead scrap also have turned soft.

But, in the face of all these factors that once would have been considered a barometer of easing production, metal men here seem as optimistic as ever over the bright prospects for all of 1955 in the metals-steel industries.

Steel mill schedules are holding at record levels. Steel men say scrap prices aren't a barometer this time. They have been easing because supplies of scrap have increased. Also, many steel mills are using more iron in their mix and less scrap.

FEAR ONL YLABO RROWS

Makers of steel, counting their order books, see no letup in demand and production for sometime ahead—barring labor trouble.

Copper producers say that the sharp drop in the price at London—where Rhodesian metal now can be bought for one cent a pound less than in New York—will tend in time to curb the shortage in the U.S., and thus may foretell lower prices later. Copper now sells at 36 cents a pound, six cents higher than at the start of the year.

Aluminum production is continuing at a record pace. The demand is helped by military aircraft output—and also by the high price of copper, a rival metal in some fields. There has been a tight supply situation in aluminum and producers say a drop in imports is partly to blame.

Stockpiling has bolstered the prices of lead and zinc, too. The U.S. government has just pledged to continue buying the metals, which all but guarantees a price floor for them.

CHECK FOUR SKELETONS

COVENTRY, R. I. (AP)—Police planned to call in experts today to examine the remains of at least four skeletons unearthed Tuesday by a bulldozer working on the foundation for a house. Local residents speculate that the bones might be the remains of Indians or colonial settlers. No one could recall a cemetery on the site.

Urges Anglicans Extend Work To New Regions

KINGSTON (CP)—The Church of England in Canada should extend into new areas without waiting to be asked, the fifth synod of the diocese of Ontario was told Tuesday.

Rev. D. Harvey Good of Kingston said the church should not wait for enough Anglicans in any new area to say they wanted a church; it should go to them with the gospel.

Best method of church extension is "above all, admission to the people," he said.

A report by Canon L. E. Davis of Kingston on the synod's pension fund committee indicated the board would propose to the general synod at Edmonton in September a motion that clerics' pensions be raised. It instructed diocesan delegates to support the motion.

Rev. J. A. Hutchinson of Brockville said the synod, ignorant of the board's capital income and methods of distribution, was incompetent to instruct delegates on the issue.

Mr. Hutchinson said such instruction also defied the basic concepts of democracy.

Very Rev. A. P. Briarly Browne, dean of Ontario, amended the motion to read that the synod is "in favor" of the increase.

Chamber to Act As Hosts For Toronto Assoc.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce will act as hosts to the Toronto Train Trip Association on June 4, in Belleville, Ontario. According to the directors meeting of the Chamber yesterday, it was agreed that the necessary arrangements be made for these 250 delegates to visit the Canadian National Exhibition yards; to have a bus tour through the city and out to Canada Cement Company, where a plant visitation would be made, and back to down town Belleville for shopping. It is expected that between 200 and 250 delegates, representing model railroading and photographic hobbyists will arrive at Trenton, Ontario on June 4, where they will be met by city officials, who will ride with them to Belleville station.

It was brought to the attention of the directors at the Chamber that the streets in Belleville would be flushed, as had been requested by the Chamber in a previous letter to the city, however, the Chamber has been requested to ask retail merchants for their co-operation when sweeping in front of their stores. The Chamber will suggest to merchants to sweep refuse in front of their stores and put it in refuse containers, rather than sweeping it onto the streets. The Chamber was informed that the streets would be flushed every Thursday morning.

He said the disturbance was based on demands for better food, newspapers and commissary privileges while being disciplined.

Not One Bullet Hit Sabre Jets In Dogfight

TOKYO (AP) — In a rare response to a Peiping radio claim, the United States Air Force declared today that not a single bullet hit eight American Sabre jets in their dogfight with eight to 18 Red Chinese MiGs Tuesday over the Yellow sea.

Peiping radio Tuesday night said the MiGs shot down one Sabre and damaged two. Earlier the U. S. Air Force said two MiGs were shot down and a third probably destroyed, with all Sabres returning safely to their South Korean base.

The Red Chinese charged the Sabres with "grave military provocation"—intrusion over Hanchuan islands 40 miles southwest of the Reds' Antung air base on the Yalu river.

There was no American comment on the Peiping charge of "provocation," but the original battle report said the MiGs attacked first over international waters of the Yellow sea.

Ted Williams Reports to Red Sox on Friday

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, famed Red Sox slugger will report to the Boston team Friday, general manager Joe Cronin said today.

The famous batting star has been delayed in reporting to the Sox by marital troubles.

His wife obtained a divorce in Miami Monday and his decision to play depended upon the financial settlement to be made. Presumably this has been settled satisfactorily.

Injection of Williams into the lineup would be the spark Boston would ignite the sagging Boston bats, who have lost 19 of their last 20 games.

In culated Free

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Education Minister Dunlop said Tuesday night everybody in Ontario will be inoculated free of charge as soon as enough Salk polio vaccine becomes available.

In an address at a Progressive Conservative nomination meeting for Peterborough riding, he said he had been told this by Premier Frost.

Diocese of Huron Decides to Elect Suffragan Bishop

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Anglican synod of Huron decided Tuesday to elect a suffragan bishop next fall to assist Bishop George Luxton, 67, who is due to retire at tension work.

Bishop Luxton requested episcopal assistance in his annual charge to the synod "in view of the rapid growth and development of the diocese of Huron."

A suffragan would be any priest of the Anglican communion. A preliminary synod will be held in June to alter diocesan canons so that a suffragan bishop may be selected. Unlike a co-adjutor, a suffragan must face an election after the death or retirement of the incumbent bishop.

Bishop Luxton also asked delegates to support increasing the grant paid to clergymen for the purchase of automobiles to $900 from the present $600. Many Anglican clergy were in debt because they had to borrow for personal work.

In other business, the synod voted to ask the next general synod of the Church of England to set up a commission to study the problem of clergy pensions in Canada. The general synod meets this fall in Edmonton.

Contracts Polio After Receiving Salk Vaccine

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. L. A. Pequegnat, city medical health officer, said Tuesday an eight-year-old boy who was given his first shot of Salk vaccine last Friday has contracted polio.

Dr. Pequegnat emphasized that there is no connection between the boy's illness and the vaccine.

He said the boy now in hospital suffering some degree of paralysis.

Joseph Bower, superintendent of Toronto schools, the Sick Children, said the boy was suffering from bulbar polio and had contracted it four days before receiving the inoculation of Salk vaccine.

Sale of Cheap Canadian Stocks Out of Control

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune says controls over the sale of cheap Canadian stocks in the United States have "virtually collapsed."

In a newspage article, the first in a series, the newspaper says sharp promoters in both countries are indulging in techniques "reminiscent of the days when the bucket shop operators of the 1920s took their toll."

Stock pushers are bilking American investors of millions of dollars, The Herald Tribune says.

"With old-time sales pitches, plus new claims that previous investors men are cashing in on a flood of 'penny' Canadian stocks to the alarm of officials on both sides of the border. These officials, because of a legal snarl, seem powerless to stave off an impending international crisis.

"In the midst of this deluge of cheap stocks, the system of controls set up by officials in the United States and Canada to deal with problems in the grade A issues of Canadian penny issues has virtually collapsed."

Cheddar Cheese Pride of Area

VANCOUVER (CP)—Processing of farm products has become big business in British Columbia.

About 70 plants in the province are doing about $30,000,000 worth of business each year in canning and milk products and allied industries.

Tree fruits of the Okanagan, small fruits of the lower mainland and Vancouver island and surplus milk from the Fraser valley are going into tins in increasing quantities.

In the north Okanagan, cheddar cheese is the pride of the area. Green and wax beans, green peas and tomatoes filled more than 2,218,000 cans last year.

Establish Bureau

MONTREAL (CP)—The city executive committee Tuesday unanimously approved the establishment of a St. Lawrence seaway municipal bureau, Mayor Jean Drapeau announced.

He said the bureau will try to co-ordinate the efforts of public bodies and nearby municipalities to protect Montreal interests and interests in the building of the St. Lawrence seaway.

A new season of construction activity on the seaway project starts here today when contractors move in with heavy drilling equipment to resume digging the seaway canal.

So far this spring only preparatory work has been carried out in the Montreal area, with workers pumping water from work sites to make room for large pieces of equipment.

east of the pit and to note the railway spur line and Mud Lake, the source of the mine's water supply.

Next the visitors toured the mill, where they saw the 1,250-horsepower hoisting machinery which hauls twenty tons in a load from the bottom of the pit up an inclined railway. Next was a visit to the secondary ore-crushing plant, which reduces the ore to pebbles five sixteenths of an inch in diameter. From there the visitors proceeded to the grinding rooms where rod-and-ball mill grinders reduce the ore to the consistency of talcum powder.

Next step in the operation is the work of magnetic separators, in the form of metal drums revolving above stationary magnets. These drums, passing through a mud-like paste, extract the iron ore with which they come in contact at 64½ per cent iron.

The waste passes off into collecting tubes and then into settling basins. The paste-like concentrate is sent to four storage pits, each of 3,000 tons capacity.

The pit itself is half a mile long, a quarter of a mile wide and from 85 to 135 feet deep at present, with 30 to 40 feet of overburden in hours a day, at the mill around the clock. The mine employs 207 persons. Capacity of the mill is from 1,500 to 1,750 tons of pellets per day.

First ore taken from the pit about one week ago had been shipped to Picton earlier for today's inspection.

Woman Dragged Around Field By Runaway Team

TRENTON (Special)—Dragged around the field in the teeth of a spring tooth cultivator when the team of horses she was driving ran away, Mrs. Sarah Daniels, 56, of Brighton, suffered serious scalp and other injuries Tuesday afternoon.

The woman was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where she underwent a three-hour operation last night. Her condition this morning was reported as fair.

Mrs. Daniels was helping her husband, William Daniels, with the spring farm work by driving the cultivator when the horses ran away and she was thrown between the teeth of the machine and dragged around the field.

A neighbor, Mae Richardson, saw the runaway team and found Mrs. Daniels lying unconscious in the field. She was then taken home and given first aid by the cultivator. Richardson said he had been speaking with Mrs. Daniels ten minutes before the accident as he drove to one of his back fields with a load of manure. On his way back to the barn he saw the horses running and investigated.

Hastings County iron, which first sailed on Lake Ontario in the 1820's as ballast for armed gunboats, started for American blast furnaces today amid the drama and good wishes of federal, provincial and local government leaders, and Canadian rail and industrial executives.

The long, cyclic cycle of boom and bust for Marmora's iron completed a full circle at Picton this afternoon as Bethlehem Steel Company's multi-million dollar iron ore development program neared completion with the sailing of 30,000 tons of iron pellets for the company's, Lackawanna Steel works at Lackawanna, N.Y.

Today's ceremonies officially marked the first paying program at Marmora in 125 years of intermittent development that have always proven failures until now.

BEGIN IN 1820

The iron ore and smelting began in Marmora township in October 1820 when Charles Hayes started the iron works on Crowe Lake in return for 1,200 acres on which to build a village and 1,200 acres from which to obtain fuel.

Military authorities, disappointed at attempts to exploit iron deposits in Hastings County, ordering a secure source of iron in Upper Canada, gave Hayes a contract for a considerable quantity of iron bollost for armed ships built in Crowe and Mud Lakes.

From 1820 to 1824 Hayes claimed to have spent £30,000 on building roads, opening a wagon road to Stirling.

The boom in iron works spurred settlement of the third tier of townships in the Moira valley watershed but by 1850 this ceased, however, the fingerprint was the valley and the people who decide if there was enough loot to make safecracking worthwhile.

Bethlehem Steel Company, encouraged by dip-needle confirmation of anomaly in 1950, obtained options on a 290-acre tract owned by two Marmora district farmers named Rogers and Salmers in May of that year. Diamond drilling began on the property in June, 1950, and by August 1951, 14 holes had been drilled from 459 to 1,801 feet, had indicated an orebody containing 40 per cent ferrous iron of a size that warranted open pit operation.

THICK LIMESTONE CAP

The orebody, 2,600 feet long, with a width of approximately 1,000 axis and was covered by 20,000,000 tons of limestone cap.

In the spring of 1952, mining equipment began arriving on the site for the limestone cap and in removing the overburden at the rate of 30,000 tons a day.

Electrically powered rotary drills that could penetrate the limestone cap at the rate up to 40 feet an hour, began boring holes for the blasting that was to blast away the rock shield guarding the iron ore. Three electric shovels capable of lifting six cubic yards of rock at a time and loading the fleet of 20, 300-horsepower diesel trucks, each capable of hauling 14.8 cubic yards of material.

A diesel-powered crushing plant was also operated by the Bethlehem to be used for roadbeds for the huge trucks.

A rubber-tired bulldozer was put to work on the roads to clear them of debris that might topple from the trucks. A truck and machine maintenance centre was built to insure continuous, efficient operation of the equipment.

The total investment in construction of a concentrator that was to produce 500,000 tons of concentrates a year, or

High Expenses Forced Marmora Iron Mines Out of Production in Mid 1800's

Better roads in the 1850's lessened transportation difficulties, railway building and rapid development strengthened the demand for iron in the province and a mine at Madoc was active in the fifties and early 1860's.

By 1864 competition, fuel difficulties, the gradual opening away of hardwood expressed the iron industry in Hastings county.

A small gold rush in 1871 revived interest in mining in Hastings County and led to the discovery of other iron deposits. Ore was mined and shipped from Madoc in 1871 and when railway building in the area got under way in 1873, several new mines were opened near Madoc, Eldorado and Malone.

Iron from the Madoc works was used in the construction of the Grand Junction line, a railway from Belleville to Peterborough via Stirling.

Most Hastings County iron mines were in production in 1882, but all were closed again within three years and remained closed for the next 10 years.

Mining operations in that period were described as "marginal" because they were profitable only when prices and demand were particularly favorable.

Mining, however, tended to make lowest neglect their farms. Money accumulated during boom periods was often spent in useless improvements. The need to maintain an improved standard of living was an encouragement to better farming when other resources failed.

However, alternating periods of booms and slumps had an unsettling effect on the permanent inhabitants.

In the modern history of Marmora's iron development is told in another story in this issue.

Great Amount of Work Needed To Bring New Iron Mine East Of Marmora Into Production

An aeromagnetic survey of southern Ontario in 1949 produced a swirl of lines that to anyone would have delighted a detective looking for fingerprint on a murder knife.

This magnetic thumbprint in reality, a portrait of 1,500,000 tons of iron in a pear-shaped blob, was a dead give-away to Bethlehem Steel. In this case, however, the fingerprint was the ore body itself, enough to decide if there was enough loot to make safecracking worthwhile.

Bethlehem Steel Company, encouraged by dip-needle confirmation of anomaly in 1950, obtained options on a 290-acre tract owned by two Marmora district farmers named Rogers and Salmers in May of that year. Diamond drilling began on the property in June, 1950, and by August 1951, 14 holes had been drilled from 459 to 1,801 feet, had indicated an orebody containing 40 per cent ferrous iron of a size that warranted open pit operation.

THICK LIMESTONE CAP

The orebody, 2,600 feet long, with a width of approximately 1,000 axis and was covered by 20,000,000 tons of limestone cap.

In the spring of 1952, mining equipment began arriving on the site for the limestone cap and in removing the overburden at the rate of 30,000 tons a day.

Electrically powered rotary drills that could penetrate the limestone cap at the rate up to 40 feet an hour, began boring holes for the blasting that was to blast away the rock shield guarding the iron ore. Three electric shovels capable of lifting six cubic yards of rock at a time and loading the fleet of 20, 300-horsepower diesel trucks, each capable of hauling 14.8 cubic yards of material.

A diesel-powered crushing plant was also operated by the Bethlehem to be used for roadbeds for the huge trucks.

A rubber-tired bulldozer was put to work on the roads to clear them of debris that might topple from the trucks. A truck and machine maintenance centre was built to insure continuous, efficient operation of the equipment.

The total investment in construction of a concentrator that was to produce 500,000 tons of concentrates a year, or 1,500 to 1,750 tons a day. Ore averaging 37 to 40 per cent iron was to be treated in the concentrator in a three stage operation involving crushing, magnetic cobbing and concentration, crushing and closed-circuit, ball-mill grinding. The magnetite was to be recovered by magnetic separation.

Concentrates were to be pelletized and shipped by rail to the company's blast furnaces at Lackawanna by ore carrier to Bethlehem's Lackawanna steel plant.

Shipment of the pellets and concentrate pellets required reconstruction of the railway spur line from Marmora to Trenton, and reconstruction of the bridge over the Trenton-Picton spur to the high shore overlooking Picton reeds. That was done by the C.N.R.

HUGE STORAGE BINS

Huge storage bins, cut into the cliffs on the high shore, will feed pellets via chutes into 50-ton ore carriers which will dock at the company's new facilities.

Pellets will be stored in a series of lazy swirls started Bethlehem's geologists on the quest of the mineral anomaly east of Marmora, the Bethlehem Steel Company's multi-million dollar operation that has grown into Hastings County's second largest mining operation next to Canada Cement Company's works at Point Anne.

The aeromagnetic fingerprint in Hastings County has been proven that the pulse of local mining, which flickered feebly for years, is beating with a vigor that is measured in dynamite blasts, the whine of electric shovels, the rattle of stone in trucks and the rumble of iron pellets on their way to distant blast furnaces.

TO DOUBLE SALK FACILITIES

DETROIT (AP)—Parke, Davis and Company, pharmaceutical firm, announced Tuesday it will begin construction immediately of facilities which will double the Salk polio vaccine production within four months. Lawrence C. Pfleich, executive vice-president, said the new facilities to be built at Detroit and Ditch, will cost about $1,000,000.

"BRUTUS" "DES IN APRIL

Gentle reader, pretty please, we are down on bended knees, asking you in accents meek, what you did with the "brutus" of April. Do you last month's papers cherish, so their thoughts shall never perish? You don't? Readers accept our blessings, you our hesitations thereby lessen. Tomorrow's editorials shall now be written without fear that we shall later be smitten with proof positive from cellar hauled that the truth we ruthlessly mauled.

This is about as far as we can go in this style and, truth to tell, it is probably far enough. We now hasten to explain that we have just been presented with horrible proof of what the passing of a few days can do to newspaper editorials and columns.

In the April 2 issue of the London Recorder, that newspaper's ace political commentator, "Brutus," said:

"As week ago sixteen million newspapers a day (thirty million on Sunday) were telling the country in a curious mixture of dignified and sensational language that a general election was upon us.

"Suddenly the newspapers disappeared.

"And with them went most of the talk about the general election.

"In political circles it is now regarded as extremely unlikely that there will be an election before October at the very earliest, and many people now consider that it will be 1956 before the Government goes to the country.

"It is not a pleasant commentary on the integrity of the British press that the election crisis now thrown overboard in the running out to have been conceived and developed in Fleet Street, and to have had no connection with Downing Street or the House of Commons.

"The newspapers did not simply advocate an early general election. They did not say that one was a possibility.

"They said that there was going to be one. And they said it loud and said it clear.

"By now, too, if what the newspapers told us was real news, Sir Winston Churchill should have resigned and Sir Anthony Eden should be Prime Minister.

"April 1 was the day when the news editors and their political correspondents who are out of job and Sir Winston Churchill is still Prime Minister of Great Britain."

"Brutus" wrote that on Wednesday, March 31. On Friday, April 2, it was printed in the Recorder. On Tuesday, April 5, Sir Winston Churchill resigned as Prime Minister. On Friday, April 15, just two weeks after "Brutus" had denounced the newspapers for saying that an election would be held, Sir Anthony Eden announced that an election would be held.

By great Caesar's ghost, we are glad you folk do not last month's papers cherish but let these columns quickly perish, for the fate that met poor Brutus is not such a one as would really suit us.

To be on the safe side though, we have just tossed our crystal ball into the Moira and shall henceforth confine small-comment to things past.

WHERE DO THE HANDS GO NOW?

There was a time, not so many suits ago, when a man could put his hands in his pants pockets without suddenly feeling as embarrassed as a six-year-old stretched over Pa's knee.

It was a comfortable feeling. Pants, in those days, used to hang snugly from the hips. Their upper limits were not endeavoring to do double-duty for a non-existent vest. Since pants had no territorial ambitions except the adequate clothing of the lower limbs, pockets were located where a man could rest his hand without hoisting his elbows at an angle comparable to that of a grasshopper's hind legs. Whether one favored the two-handed studious style of strolling, with head bent and brow furrowed in thought, or the gay, nonchalant manner, one-hand pocketed and one hand free for greeting-waving, yesterday's pants had their pockets located in the right place.

The coat, too, knew its place. It had a common border with the pants, but had not sent our skirmishers to scout the territory around the pocket openings. When inserted in the pant pockets, the coat did not have to be hoisted like a sack. There was no panicky feeling that the posterior was suddenly exposed to the public's harsh mental picture of a rear view unquestionably bustle-bound.

Today the pant pockets are so high, the coat tails so low, that the mere insertion of a hand in the pockets constitutes a dangerous invasion of disputed territory, not conducive to either the spirit of grave meditation or carefree cogitation. Even assuming the habitual hand-pocketer into a sorry picture of a man who has, apparently, broken his suspenders and mislaid his belt.

WHO WILL MEET "AT THE SUMMIT?"

Britain and France want a four-power meeting "at the summit," this summer.

If it is arranged, it will bring together President Dwight D. Eisenhower of the United States and three others, the premiers of Russia, Britain and France.

It would be a daring man who would bet that Edgar Faure will still be the French premier by mid-summer.

Sir Anthony Eden faces an election before the proposed time for the proposed conference and although his Conservatives are favored to win an upset is always possible. The might not be the man representing Britain.

There will be no election in Russia, but that does not mean that Nikolai Bulganin is certain to be the USSR premier when July rolls around.

As for Eisenhower, his term of office is for a definite period, but there has been more than one suggestion, of late, that he no longer is in full control of U. S. foreign policy but has to cut his cloth to meet political fashions.

Compare this situation to meetings at the summit during the war years. When Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin got together at a conference there was never any doubt as to whether they would be in power when the meeting date arrived.

The "summit" is not as high as it used to be.

In a bowling match at the Y.M.C.A. alleys last evening the "Breezes" were defeated by the Belleville Store team, the score 2010 to 1847. The following composed the Breeze: Ritchie Store — V. Bialnd, M. O'Connell, J. Pybus, V. Rainbird and Ritchie, skip. The Store team: Hurricane, Typhoon, Zephyr, East Wind and West Wind; these being the names of their positions located in the right place.

The coat, too, knew its place. It had a common border with the pants, but had not sent our skirmishers to scout the territory around the pocket openings. When inserted in the pant pockets, the coat did not have to be hoisted like a sack. There was no panicky feeling that the posterior was suddenly exposed to the harsh mental picture of a rear view unquestionably bustle-bound.

Today the pant pockets are so high, the coat tails so low, that the mere insertion of a hand in the pockets constitutes a dangerous invasion of disputed territory, not conducive to either the spirit of grave meditation or carefree cogitation. Even assuming the habitual hand-pocketer into a sorry picture of a man who has, apparently, broken his suspenders and mislaid his belt.

Reason Why He Pulled

(Philadelphia Inquirer)

Archie Gordon, former labor attache at the British Embassy, tells a story about two British scientists who were watching three construction workers wheelbarrowing loads of bricks. Two of the workers were pushing their wheelbarrows. The other was pulling his.

Suspecting they had stumbled upon a discovery that could revolutionize the construction industry, the scientists called their visitor from the wheelbarrows. He could come up with an answer to the question why one of the workers pushed his wheelbarrow, while the others pushed.

Consultants from the labor ministry were called in. One suggested the way to get the answer was to question the worker who pulled instead of pushed. The puzzled worker was instructed to take his time in answering the question because what he had to say might be of great scientific importance.

"Well, gov'nor," said the worker, "I can tell you why I pull me barrow instead of pushing it. I can't stand the sight of the thing."

"ITCH ME"

Sad it seems to me to grow
Old and wise and skilled at hand
And in spite of all you know
"Itch me," fail to understand.

I've been flattered now and then,
Compliments have come my way,
But I'll never be again
Quite as proud as yesterday.
Margie said when put to rest
And in bed was snugly curled:
"Grandpa is the very best Itcher in the whole wide world."

Lure of Great Lakes

(Fred Dalton in Trucks Magazine)

As soon as the first warm winds crack the Great Lakes' winter sheath of ice, I get the fever. Down in the Flats, where the Cuyahoga River winds crustily through Cleveland, crews strip the ore boats, ice-locked for months, of their cold weather gear and painters go to work on the hulls. And, like any old sailor, I hear the call of the inland seas.

I have loved the water and all the ships that sail on it from the time I could walk. My father was in the iron ore mining and shipping business and there was always the talk of ships and sailors in our home on the shores of Lake Superior. I grew up in the atmosphere.

Later on, my father became manager of a fleet of steamships. It was natural and easy for me to ship out on one of them during my high school summer vacations. I earned my papers as an able-bodied seaman and eventually was promoted to wheelsman, standing the 4-8 watch. It is an art —of steering a big Great Lakes freighter. It is a rewarding business, taking the ship up and down narrow, twisting rivers and channels and through the locks of the Soo Canal and holding to a compass course across the wide expanses of the Lakes.

The life of a wheelsman has both challenge and a deep fascination. He feels the surge of power and freedom in guiding with his own effort and skill the great, responsive mass of metal a steamship. With the touch of a wheel, he feels its every move and it responds to do his bidding.

Beyond that there are pleasures—moments of solitude, the inter-dependence of the crew, a spirit of camaraderie which is a its fullest in the pilot house. There, through long night watches, the mind wanders and time seems lazily sailor-talk flows free.

But a sailor's life is a lonely life. My father felt, and, in time, so did I, that it was not for me. I decided to continue ashore in farming.

And yet, land-locked now, high and dry and a railroad man to boot, something happens to me every spring. I feel the call of the water and the ships, a voice that is heard by no ear but mine. Happily, I have been able to answer it several times, during World War II and to satisfy my need for skilled mariners made ship captains glad to sign on a man even for a single voyage, and as recently as a few years ago. That was a special adventure.

The 423-foot large freighter Angeline had orders to go to the C and O docks at Toledo for a load of coal for delivery in Cleveland. The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company called to say there were no berths for a wheelsman. Would I care to take it?

I had not taken my vacation yet, so I packed my seagoing gear and reported for duty in Cleveland two days later. I was greeted at the gangway ladder by the second mate, who told me I would be in the first mate's watch, from four to eight, and that I was steering and afternoon. That suited me fine, for I'm not a night man at the ship. It offers the best opportunity to get into town when the ship is tied up and to get the most sleep in between watches. I like to watch the sunrise on the lake on her course for the 100-mile run to Toledo. I had the first watch, 4-8 in the morning

SALVAGE RAILWAY CAR

Repair crews from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company salvage a 70-ton railway car filled with cement from 25 feet of water at one of the train ferry docks at Windsor. The car fell into the river when the ferry was pushed away from the dock while the railway cars were being loaded on the ferry. It took 4 hours to remove the car from the water by using winches and steel cables. (CP Photo).

L'Amable Man Given 36 Days In County Jail

BANCROFT — Pleading guilty to a charge of driving whilst his ability was impaired and whilst his licence was under suspension, Harry Cooney of L'Amable, was sentenced to a total of 36 days in jail by Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

OPP Constable Ray Hooker said that, on Saturday April 30th, he saw accused driving north on highway 62. His car was being driven in an erratic manner and was weaving from side to side. When the constable drew alongside, flashing his "stop" light, Cooney accelerated and witness saw three objects, which broke on the road, thrown from the car. After some difficulty the police car managed to overtake accused's vehicle and stopped it by holding the centre of the road. Constable Hooker said he found five adults and four children in the car.

FINE IMPOSED

A fine of $15 and costs was imposed by Magistrate R. C. Jackson on Roger Bordeleau, a diamond drilling employee, of Bancroft, who pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving.

The charge arose as a result of an accident on Hastings street, about 2 a.m. on April 29th, when accused's car left the road and snapped off a telephone pole, OPP Constable George Lloyd investigated.

Pleading guilty to a charge of possessing liquor illegally, French speaking Jean Allaire, a diamond drilling employee of Bancroft, was fined $100 and costs at Magistrate R. C. Jackson's court.

OPP Cpl. Archie Grayling told the court that about 1 a.m. on May 1st, he saw accused's car parked outside premises under observation. Accompanied by Constable Ray Hooker he followed the car into Bancroft, where Allaire entered a restaurant; he left the car was searched and a full case of beer was found in the trunk.

Questioned as to where he purchased the beer, accused said he did not know the name of the man. He returned, with the police, to a house in the Maxwell settlement, five miles north-east of Bancroft, where he identified the person from whom the beer was purchased. In reply to assistant Crown Attorney John Lennox, Allaire said he paid $6 for the case.

Murder Hearing Is Nearing End

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—The preliminary hearing of a murder charge against three youthful Quebec hitch-hikers may be completed today.

When court adjourned Tuesday, 23 of the crown's witnesses had been heard and 62 exhibits filed with the clerk of the court.

The possibility, however, that the hearing, which has attracted packed houses since it opened Monday morning, might last until Thursday loomed when defence counsel Harry Walsh of Winnipeg battled over statements allegedly taken from the accused.

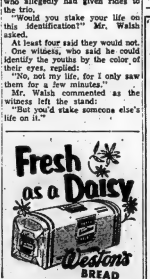
Charged with the Jan. 9 murder of a Roman Catholic priest are Guy Ferragne, 18, of Riviere des Prairies, and Gerard Yvon de Tonancourt, 17, and Claude Paquin, 17, both of Montreal.

BODY FOUND IN CAR

The body of 44-year-old Rev. Alfred Guirion of St. Edouard, Alta., was found in his parked car five miles east of Brandon. He was returning to his small Alberta parish after a trip to Winnipeg.

Earlier, Mr. Walsh had attempted to draw positive identification of the youths from witnesses who allegedly had given rides to the trio.

"Would you stake your life on this identification?" Mr. Walsh asked.



At least four said they would not.

One witness, who said he could identify the youths by the color of their eyes, replied:

"No, not my life, for I only saw them for a few minutes."

Mr. Walsh commented as the witness left the stand:

"But you'd stake someone else's life on it."

Cannot Ease World Tension By Propaganda Onslaughts Says Rotary Speaker

World tension, created by friction of communist and western ideals, will not be eased by propaganda onslaughts but by better understanding of the opposite camp, a prominent United church minister inferred here last night.

"We shout at the Communists and we shout them and so they shout at us and they damn us," said Rev. George Goth, pastor of Metropolitan United church, London, Ont., and distinguished public speaker.

He was addressing an assembly of Rotarians and members of Belleville service clubs at the annual Rotary Ladies' Night at the Belleville Golf and Country Club.

Text of his address was "Adventure in Understanding," a retrospective summing-up of his experiences during a tour of Europe last year with U.S. observers, as the only Canadian member of the Sherwood Eddy seminar.

Mr. Goth, a "champion" of the British conviction that co-existence is possible with Communism, made a forceful plea for better understanding of the Communists.

"If we shout at someone else he'll shout back at us and if we call him a thug he'll call us something worse."

"I think we can penetrate the Iron Curtain. I do not think we can do it with the atom bomb."

He said "no sane man" would believe that Communism was the cause of all the world's ills, for after Communism has died there will be the problems of being humans again.

He believed that if some of us would see that the "Book of Love" was inscribed on our hearts then we could go out and win the world for sane and man.

A verveful speaker, with an engaging sense of humor, his address was rich with anecdotes of his experiences while observing conditions in France, Britain, East and West Germany and Yugoslavia.

BRITISH NOT APPEASERS

From these experiences he emerged with a warmer appreciation of the British attitude, better understanding of the French and a keener insight into the finer qualities of the Germans.

Other opinions culled during his tour:

That Anthony Eden, then U. K. foreign secretary, "in my judgment is one of the ablest diplomats of the twentieth century."

The British are not appeasers and have "more intuitive wisdom" than any other nation. They are "just a little bit frightened" that impatience and truculence on the part of the U. S. will result in another universal conflict.

That nation's counsel is "desperately needed" in the councils of the world.

France: Individualistic, the French have had "their stomachful of wars." They do not trust the Germans.

Germany: Has made a marvelous recovery to such an extent that German production now poses a problem to even Canada's economy.

The seminar also visited Yugoslavia, because it was the one country in the world behind the Iron Curtain one can visit with a measure of freedom.

While the seminar was having an audience with Tito Mr. Goth asked the dictator if he had been exposed to vital Christianity as a young man would he now be a Christian revolutionary instead of a communist?

Replied Tito: "Where would you suggest I should go to see the real thing?"

By that time, Mr. Goth recollected, his audience was through and he was moved along the line of visitors, before he could answer the question.

FAIR AMOUNT OF FREEDOM

Apropos religious freedom in that country, he said a Roman Catholic told seminar members his community was allowed to go to Mass and that they had a fair amount of freedom.

Mr. Goth was introduced by Harry Davis and thanked by Arnold Orr.

"Highlight of Rotary activity at last night's meeting was the installation of president-elect Bill Gault, who in July will succeed Fred Adsett as president of the club. He was installed by Orland Pinkston.

A toast to the hostesses for the evening, the Rotary Annes, was proposed by Joe Demeza and responded to by Mrs. J. Lennox Smith. Chairman for the evening was president Adsett while entertainment during the dinner was presented by the Quintones.

The evening was closed by an enjoyable dance.

Weddings

BARNES—SELDON

Tall standards of peach and white gladioli, white snapdragons and daisy pons, with lighted tapers, formed a floral setting for the double-ring ceremony in Bridge Street United church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 7, at 3 p.m., when Marilyn Joan Seldon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Seldon of Belleville, was united in marriage to Michael John Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes of Toronto. The Rev. H. M. Davis officiated.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, rendered the wedding music, including "O Perfect Love," Miss Theresa Brezenski, who sang before the entrance "Through the Years", and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory embroidered crystalette over taffeta. The bouffant skirt over crinolines, was topped by a fitted bodice with portrait neckline framed in pleats of champagne tulle. The long sheath sleeves ended in lily points over the hands. Her fingertip veil of champagne tulle illusion was held by a corset of crystalette over the heavily seed pearls and iridescent sequins and she carried a cascade bouquet of garden lilies. Pinocchio Sweetheart roses and ivy.

Miss Betty Seldon of Toronto, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Ernest Kenny of Detroit, as bridesmaid, were dressed alike in waltz-length gowns of shrimp crystalette over taffeta with full skirts and tiny matching jackets over sheath less bodices. They were matching pleated tulle headdresses and carried cascade bouquets of white daisy poms, lily-of-the-valley and ivy.

Mr. Peter Barnes of Toronto, acted as groomsman for his brother, and Mr. Stewart Tourel, Mr. David MacDonald and Mr. Ralph Spence, all of Toronto, were ushers.

At the reception which was held in the church parlors, the bride's mother, wearing dove grey satin metalasse with navy accessories and corsage of Talisman roses and white hyacinth petals, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in navy silk Shantung with navy and pink accessories and a corsage of feathered pink carnations.

For the wedding trip through the New England States, the bride chose a suit of pink vicuna with black accessories. A black cashmere coat and garden shape completed her ensemble. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, Dundas, Newmarket, Quebec City, Oshawa, Detroit, Kingston and Cornwall.

Prior to her marriage, the bride-to-be was entertained by her classmates from Wellesley Hospital in Toronto. Mrs. Norman Smith and Mrs. Ross Silver of Belleville, were hostesses at a kitchen shower. Mrs. A. D. MacLean and Mrs. Bruce Robbins entertained at a buffet presentation at Mrs. MacLean's home. Mr. and Mrs. James Musgrove held a supper party for the young couple. Mrs. Ernest Kemp was hostess at a pantry-shelf tea.

The bride's mother entertained at a trousseau tea for her daughter.

O'NEIL—SINE

RAWDON.—A very pretty wedding ceremony was held on Saturday, May 7th, at 10.00 a.m., in St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, when Ann Sine, daughter of Mrs. Keating, when Etta Marie, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sine, eighth concession Rawdon, became the bride of Ronald Joseph, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe O'Neil, fourth concession Rawdon.

The bride chose a strapless waltz-length gown of turquoise blue nylon marquisette in fitted style with bolero jacket, matching crown headdress and a corsage of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Her attendant was Miss Frances Handley of Peterborough, wearing a gown similar to that of the bride in pink nylon with crown headdress and a corsage of blue carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Burnard Miller, Toronto, was the bridegroom's best man.

The bride travelled in a suit of aqua butcher linen with white accessories.

On Saturday afternoon they visited at the home of her parents, eighth concession Rawdon, and called on the bridegroom's sister, Dorothy, who is Sister Emerets of St. Carthagh School, Tweed, after which they visited Niagara Falls and points in the United States. On their return they will reside in Long Branch, Toronto.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was feted in the blue room of the Peterborough YWCA, to a linen shower by her girl friends in the city.

Madame Casgrain Addresses Canadian Club on 'Quebec'

Last evening in Queen Elizabeth School, MacDonald Avenue, Madame Pierre Casgrain, leader of the Quebec Section of the C.C.F. party and one of its National vice-chairmen, addressed the Women's Canadian Club at its 41st annual meeting, on the topic, "A Look at Quebec."

Madame Casgrain, who was introduced to the capacity filled audiditorium by the out-going president, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, in an appealing, yet piquant manner, brought before her listeners a word picture of Quebec's sincere desire for a better understanding between the English speaking and the French speaking compatriots of Canada.

QUEBEC'S SCENIC BEAUTY

Beginning with the geographical aspects of Quebec the speaker mentioned briefly its scenic beauty spots, Gaspe Peninsula, Bonn Venture, and the city of Quebec itself which is not only of historical interest but possessing a natural beauty of tourist attraction.

It is noted for its famous restaurants where wines are sold with the meals, which are not expensive, and its delicious French pastries; and incidentally it had become most virtuous due to the vigilance of the morality squads. She told of the leading political figure that is a duality of culture, English and French.

Regarding agriculture, Quebec has drifted from that of the late 30's, and is now rapidly expanding in industrialization, which has had a great impact on the family life. The father is still head of the home, but not to such an extent as formerly, since the sons are now in business, often earning more than the father.

MARRIED WOMEN

Not until 1940 did women enjoy the same political privileges as those of other provinces, then married women, she becomes a 'minor', in the eyes of the law, losing her own status at once and or those mentally impaired. A married woman cannot sign a contract, or sell land, and cannot in 178 other cases. Since Quebec men make excellent husbands, the women have set their mind being 'minors', they are happy.

The labor groups are not as numerous as in other provinces. Quebec has been exploited and the wages and the dominion decile. This must be remedied, and wages brought up to par. The Canadian Congress of Labor has been responsible for the fine fellowship between the labor groups.

THROBBING WITH DEVELOPMENT

Quebec is literally throbbing with development in culture, universities are crowded; young people are eager for the technical schools as well as the other branches of learning as medicine and law. The fine arts as painting and music are also on the upgrade. Scholarships have been provided for foreign study, and funds provided to assist young men and women in their studies. Even tickets are available for those who wish to attend cultural programs, but whose financial status prohibits. This tends to bring together the two cultural groups, the English and the French.

It has been noted that the English speaking compatriots are anxious to learn the French and vice versa, and this is brought about by the evening of the young students, which is a great means of forming appreciation and the understanding of each other, and to preserve the sodality of Canada.

FRENCH LANGUAGE

In speaking of the French language, Madame Casgrain stated that there is only one 'French'; blue nylon marquisette in fitted but the various dialects and the sole difference lies in the pronunciation; similar to that of the English speaking compatriots.

Some of the things that irk the Quebec people are the naming of the new institutions, as the new hospital was called "Queen Mary Hospital", and the command not to give instructions in French, which is unthinkable; the new CNR hotel was named "Queen Elizabeth". All Quebec misses the new Queen, but would like one of her hotels to be called by a French name.

Another thing is that all want a really distinctive Canadian flag. The French have a continual great affection for Canada. In 1814 it was the French who prevented Canada from becoming another state to the American flag. False stories make bad blood.

WORLD CHIEF GUIDE

Lady Baden Powell, world chief Guide, will visit Girl Guides Girl Guides, August 14-28. She will visit the provincial Guide camp at Doe Lake and also tour Guide camps in some other Ontario cities. Tours have also been arranged to camps at Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Sault Ste. Marie, Port William and Port Arthur. (CP Photo).

Canada is beloved by many countries. During her trip through Holland, Belgium and Spain, Madame Casgrain found that when people learned she was a Canadian, nothing was too much for her. Even the taxi driver refused a tip from a "Canadian lady."

SPIRIT OF UNITY

In closing, Madame Casgrain said we must build between ourselves a spirit of unity and understanding. We can begin in the home by fostering a spirit of love in children for each other—it's the little things that foster good will. "Let us play our part by pulling together from the Atlantic to the Pacific in a chain of good will, making of Canada a country beloved."

The speaker was thanked for her fine address by Mrs. Langlois.

Previous to the address, various reports of the club's activities for the year were read and the slate of officers for the new year was presented by Mrs. E. S. Fairman, as follows:

President, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. E. Buchan; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. H. Tanner; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. H. H. Murray; secretary, Mrs. E. S. Fairman; assistant secretary, Mrs. K. G. Ross; treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Campbell; executive members, Mrs. R. G. Coulter and Mrs. M. J. Pike, term 1956; Mrs. H. S. Robbins and Mrs. A. S. Oliver, term to 1957; Mrs. Alan B. Sprague and Mrs. J. C. R. Punchard, term to 1958.

St. Michael's Academy Displays School Art at McCarthy Theatre

The school year is fast drawing to a close, and with it the exhibitions of school art which have been placed on view in the Mac-Carthy Theatre by the several schools of the city. For the last number of this week and next, the art work done by the pupils of St. Michael's Academy may be seen, and as usual with school work, includes handiwork, crayon, pencil, and water colors, done by the various grades of the school and brought to a commendable state of care and aptitude.

An interesting piece of drawing and painting done was that depicting the gathering of Christmas trees. One could sense the patience of the old horse as he waited for the last tree to be placed upon the already full cart which, the man on top was arranging for the last two borne in the hands of another.

EXCEPTIONALLY WELL DONE WORK

Two exceptionally well done pieces of work included the "Imperial Crown", with its richly coloured velvet, lovely jewels, and simulated ermine; the royal purple velvet was almost tangible with its highlights. The other drawing, both done by the same pupil, the "Coronation Vase," also pleasingly highlighted, and containing spring flowers, in varying hues. Both these drawings show a fine observation and care for detail. All the pictures were done in water colors.

Other drawings included nature study, and showed birds, including the Blue Jay; Mallard ducks alighting in the nesting rushes; these were also well drawn, and nicely coloured.

Among the paper handiwork were colorful kites, carefully made, and bearing floral and geometric designs. Other mediums showed work in colored plasticene, a red-breasted robin singing from the pussy willow branch, and a shield made of sewing from his perch on a blackened stump. The spot of vivid color was the cardinal in his lovely rich carmine, and the timid brown thrasher. Indian headdresses were evolved from paper whorls in colors.

PLASTICENE BUCKLING

Plasticene also played its part in Grade 1 in the little yellow duckling, the white, red-beaked hen placidly resting on calm water, and the despot of the barnyard—the rooster.

The paper cut-outs were designs in red and blue, blue and yellow, on harmonizing backgrounds, and pink bells on purple backgrounds.

A few finger paintings in green, purple and blue were shown, as was one in spatter work of a fish on a mingled mauve, green and blue background—almost carefully done.

THE MARCH WIND

The March wind was again in vogue with his breath bending over the stout trees, and distressing the little girl in blue whose umbrella had turned inside out. This showed plenty of imagination.

Other drawings in the display were, a nicely executed golden rod spray; designs of squares on pale pink on cream backgrounds, some bearing the letter "A" and some plain, arranged in pleasing formation. There were also several picture frames made, some paper, some with blue trim, others in colors. These portrayed the infant Jesus, and the Madonna and Child. A few potato cut designs done in red and yellow on blue, depicted another medium of work.

The last art display will be that of Albert College.

Christ Church E.B.W.A. Holds Meeting

On Monday evening, the Evening Branch of the W.A. of Christ Church met for its business meeting in the parish hall with the president, Mrs. A. Cooper, presiding.

Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. W. Edwards and Mrs. H. Hill, respectively.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP PRESENTED

An interesting item on the agenda was the presentation of a life membership in the W.A. by the Rev. E. P. Smith, assistant rector of the church, to Mrs. Everett Smith, which was conducted in an impressive service. Mrs. H. Hill presented Mrs. Smith with her gold W.A. pin.

Miss Frances Reid read a letter from Rev. C. Fozzen, who had given an interesting presentation of the study book, "The Thirst of India".

This was followed by a lengthy business discussion. It was decided to close the month's meetings with a pot-luck supper early in the month of June.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Cooper, Mrs. J. Miles, and Mrs. W. Edwards.

Mrs. Everett Smith closed the meeting.

Mrs. J. Smith Heads Kinette Club

President Mary Lang occupied the chair at the monthly dinner meeting of the Kinette club which was held Monday night in St. Thomas' parish house.

Mr. Hocking, of station CJBQ, spoke to the members concerning the current P.B. survey and asked that the club put forth an extra effort to help in this worthy effort.

A report was given by Wava and Meana Chairman Jean Smith on the excellent returns from the recent rummage sale and plans got well under way for the forthcoming tag day which will be held June 2-4. The proceeds from this tag day will be given to aid the Kinmen in their efforts to build a wading pool for the wee kiddies on the site of their present swimming pool.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual election of officers took place and 'the following Kinettes were voted in office:

President, Jean Smith; secretary, Helen Law; treasurer, Helen Lennox; executive members, Margaret Bakay, Edna Brenot, Phyllis Fraser, Eileen Marten and Elsie Smith.

The members accepted an invitation from Mary Colebourne to the club dinner meeting in form of a pot-luck supper at her cottage at Pete's Point.

Song leader for the evening was Monica MacDonald, while Edna Brenot extracted the fine money.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU'VE MADE A MISTAKE, LADY; IT'S NOT THE SAME GIRL

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Reference the 20-year-old girl who has fallen in love with a married man, whose letter appeared in your column recently, you can tell her for me that, since I caught my husband and her together, I know all about it, and she is welcome to him. I will get the divorce, and there will be no hard feelings on my part.

If she will contact me, and let me know it is all on the up and up, I will help her all I can to get my husband, and will gladly turn him over to her. — Mrs. T.L.A.

Dear Mrs. T.L.A.:

In the first place, there are, unfortunately, no 2 women than yourself who have this sort of problem, and the girl in question will prefer to keep her problem, but that of some other wife. The reason I know this is because I have letter same from a town very far away from where you live, and I quite sure that could not be the girl you think she is.

Let me add that if, as it appears, you have no desire to try and hold your husband, I think he would be a fool not to if you went about it in a more dignified way than the one you are using. In other words, stand aside and keep yourself aloof from the matter entirely, until you see what course the affair is taking. There may be a happy ending to this for you, than you now believe, if you do not take any steps that might complicate it. If you would like to write and give me more details, perhaps I could advise you better.

DON'T "GO STEADY"; DO GO SLOWLY!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18, and have been going with a boy in the service for five months. We love each other very much, but my mother thinks that I am too young to be going steady.

Do you think she is right in saying we should not? Do you like it all? We have already tried not seeing each other, and going out with others, but it just didn't work out right. — A.

Dear A.:

I agree with your mother that you are too young to "go steady," but I differ from her when she says you and this boy should not see each other at all.

The answer to your problem, as I see it, is on a middle course. That is, to see one another reasonably often but not to devote all your time to seeing each other. My opinion is that, at your age, a girl should make a special point of going out with more than one boy. If she limits her friendships to just one, she will be her no chance at all to learn enough about different types of boy friends so that when the time comes for her to choose one for keeps, she would know what type she likes best and which is best suited to her.

So my advice is, that for the next two or three years you have dates with as many different boys as possible, and thus build up your knowledge of human nature and different personalities. You'll be doing this anyhow, of course, because I'm sure that, if you're a normal teen-ager, you'll eventually meet some boy who interests you more than the current one, and then another one will come along you'll prefer to the next boy and so on, which is all as it should be. So I suggest that you just make up your mind you're going to be friends with a lot of boys for awhile yet, and that this is the right way to develop into a young woman of good judgment.

SHANNONVILLE WG

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Trinity church was held Thursday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Fitzgerald, with a good attendance.

The Rev. A. L. Page opened the meeting.

The treasurer, Mrs. Whittle, gave a fine report. The Lenten folders have all been turned in and are proving more successful each season. All-purpose cards will soon be distributed among the congregation.

A short business period followed. The next meeting is on June 2, at the home of Mrs. McBride, Milltown.

Mr. Page closed the meeting with prayer.

Refreshments were served.

'Julia Works Wonders...'

(RED YEAR REPEAT)

As Told to Mary Moore

By the looks of things a repeat of the "Julia Works Wonders. . ." release is indicated. The past three Wednesday columns have been devoted to economical but nutritious meal-planning, sparkled by Shirley M. Since I mentioned the J.W.W. - release the response for more of same has been heavy. So hope Julia may help and realizes the continuing service she is doing. So herewith yet another Wednesday column on food-budget-stretching:

"Dear Mary Moore: I manage to stretch $18 a week for four and think I'm doing wonders. . .

I make four loaves of bread in breadcheese tins from your "Simplified White Bread" recipe . . . I use oil to keep it moist because it is simpler than fat . . . also (in place of Wacky Cake) I "butter" our loaves with margarine vaslic they are fine. . .

"I buy pure castile soap. . . economical, hard, lasts longer; easy on skin . . . does not clog solve it laid on nail brush. . . watch for 2-for-something sales of cake mixes. . . 2 cake mixes for 49c are more economical than 1 can top grade. . . Christmas grocer sold me a goose with torn skin for 39c it was at New Year's another at 35c lb. I had to pick out a few pin feathers. . . often he trims a last week's ham and sells it to me for 9 or 7c less. . . I get a beef bone with little meat on for 10c. . . boiling chickens for 29c lb. . . when stuffed and rubbed with bacon fat and baked slowly at 300 deg. . . it is more than a "roaster" . . . buy 2 doz. pullet eggs at 49c per doz.

Here are some of our menus on $15 per week.

BREAKFASTS:

Orange or tomato juice, or orange juice with lemon juice added to the pitcher; cereal; Vita-B or wheat flake cereal hot, with milk and sugar; scrambled eggs or omelette or bacon or boiled egg; cocoa or milk, coffee; toast and honey or homemade jam.

LUNCHES:

(For husband and daughter to carry) 3 slices homemade bread sandwiches with egg, meat or fowl; celery and cheese; 2 soda biscuits; apple or tangerine; cake or cookies. (My daughter takes a milk ticket. Husband can heat water and make coffee at work.)

LUNCHES:

(At home when husband is on nights) soup, biscuits, cheese, shredded lettuce, bread, fruit or cake or cookies or graham wafers, tea and milk for me.

"Often soup is made from canned tomatoes and milk. We love this kind and it does can last two meals for all four. Don't forget the baking soda in tomatoes, and don't let soup boil for an instant after adding milk or it will have a bitter flavor if seeds are left in and margarine added to pan first before adding tomatoes, and it is allowed to sizzle a little bit with a bit of onion in.

"Today for lunch we had soup and homemade bread and pan-cakes with honey butter (malt sugared honey over hot water with good-sized piece of margarine). We also had salad. . .

"Here is my week's supply of meat bought today: 2 lbs. ribletts (cheaper than spareribs but delicious barbecued) 15c per lb.; 1 lb. pork liver 25c lb.; 1-2 lb. bacon, 25c; 1 soup bone 10c; blade roast $2.91 at 59c lb. (cost from Emem: this is much cheaper 1953)—large bet lovely. . .

cut it in half and keep half in freezer for next week. We will have bacon and eggs for 1 meal, liver will do two meals, ribletts 1 meal, bologna one meal (sometimes I return it to heat and serve with fluffy mashed potatoes), beef two meals and maybe the soup made very hearty with bits of roast or liver in if any left-overs—and that will be added lentils and bits of celery and carrots. The meals I have mentioned are all specials for this week—Julia T."

Thanks again Julia. We could all take a leaf out of Julia's book, at book. If other readers have economy ideas that would help other girls who are trying to make limited salaries stretch, would be grateful to have them to share through this column.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THE ENGAGED WIDOW . . . AND HER RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Since being widowed a few years ago, I have engagement to wear my wedding ring and engagement ring. I now plan to re-marry, and my fiance claims it is correct for me to wear only his engagement ring. I think I should continue to wear the wedding ring of my first marriage until my second marriage actually takes place, especially as I have a child.

2. Also after my re-married to it correct for me to wear the engagement rings of both marriages? I have seen women wearing two engagement rings, and rather took it for granted that they were widows re-married — M.C.

1. Your fiance is right. Now that you are engaged to him and are wearing his engagement ring, you should wear his engagement only. You should not continue to wear the engagement ring of your first marriage.

Usually a widow also removes her wedding ring when she remarries her first engagement ring . . . that is, from his point of view her second engagement ring . . . but occasionally, if her fiance does not object, she continues to wear her wedding ring until the morning of her second marriage. You did not say what the feelings of your fiance are about your continuing to wear your wedding ring. You should be extremely careful to find out what is his point of view on it, and graciously to abide by it.

2. If now your fiance wishes you to wear his engagement ring only, I imagine he would not be willing to have you wear your first engagement ring after your second marriage, even if you wear it on your right hand. I do think you may be making this question of rings rather difficult for your fiance. However, he might be willing for you to wear your first engagement ring on your right hand after your marriage, provided you have his permission to wear same.

SEATING OF HUSBAND AND WIFE AT DINNER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In seating wedding guests at the dinner in a Club, is it proper to seat husband and wife side by side? — F.A.

No. At a dinner it is not correct to seat husband and wife side by side. At the wedding dinner, the only husband and wife who sit side by side are the bride and bridegroom . . . the bride at the right of the bridegroom.

HOW "MRS." REFLIES TO ANNOUNCER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my husband and I attend a wedding reception together and the attendant or "announcer" asks me—since naturally I am walking ahead of my husband—for our names, exactly how should I reply? That is, since I am first and will be the first to be received, should I say Mrs. and then first name of my husband's? — Josephine W.

Mrs. Beeckman: Mrs. Practical idea is that you reply to the announcer in exactly the form he will use in the hostess': "Mr. and Mrs. Wilson." As you say, the names, your husband would sign to your side as the "Mr. and Mrs." announcement would be evident.

WEARING GLOVES IN THE RECEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it permissible for the women in the receiving-line at the wedding to wear gloves when greeting the guests in the receving-line at the church and at the reception? — J.S.

This is not only permissible . . . it is correct.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

YOUR "BEAUTY SLEEP" SHOULD BE JUST THAT

For the sake of your face and your figure, your health and general well being, you should get enough sleep on a high pillow.

The habit of lying always on the same side, with head higher than it should be, pressing the same side of the face upon the pillow for hours at a stretch, night after night, may cause a flattening of the cheek bone on that side of the face and the formation of little lines.

Also, since the chest is contracted in this position, breathing will be shallow, and circulation will slow up. That means that the complexion, in the course of time, may lose its pleasing color.

Lying on the back on a high pillow forces the chin downward, a condition that invites the double chin. As the muscles of the neck are relaxed, laying in folds, the whole may eventually look flabby and corded.

When you think that nearly one third of your life is spent in bed you must realize that, during these hours, you should be completely relaxed. To curl up like a kitten is no way for a sensible woman to arrange herself for slumber. Shoulders are forced forward, breasts sag, weakening the supporting fibers. That doesn't happen when the body is fully extended, the pillow low, the spinal column posed in a straight, natural line.

During sleep there is recuperation of brain and nerve tissues, as well as muscle repair. Energy is stored up for the activities of the coming day. Everything possible should be arranged to have conditions perfect for these restorative processes.

The mattress should be firm. If it sags the spinal column will be under strain.

All the facial treatments, all the cosmetics in the world, will not erase the effects of restless nights. "Sleep is the cheapest and the best beauty" according to Shakespeare and modern hygienists agree with him.

Baptist church.

Mrs. Oliver says' inequality and discrimination exist to some extent, but "the change in the last 20 years has been phenomenal." Big factors were stepped-up education and, travel induced by the Second World War.

"Someone just has to get up and bring attention to all the evils. There are enough good people to stand with you to right the wrong. The people just need champions."

She and her husband have been those champions more often than they'll admit.

BORN IN NOVA SCOTIA

Mrs. Oliver was born in Guysborough, N.S., but grew up in New Glasgow. She wanted to be a nurse but hospitals wouldn't accept her because of her color.

So she married Bill, whom she met as he "supplied" in New Glasgow while an Acadia University divinity student. Then she did a bit of preaching on her own, to women's groups, clubs, anyone who would listen.

She won her point. People began to see colored girls should have the opportunity to be nurses, she says, and Nova Scotia became the first province to admit them in numbers.

"Three girls are in training from our congregation now," she says. "It's one of the joys of my life. And it just had to be brought to the attention."

The Oliver's 127-year-old church was founded by an escaped slave, and they have lived in the parsonage for 19 years. It is in a slummy area of the city where much of the Negro population is crammed.

"I'm so glad we're working in the area we are," says Mrs. Oliver. "This is where the greatest satisfaction is found—and the true work of the church."

Race Discrimination Tragic States Mrs. Pearleen Oliver

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — The pretty, light-skinned Negro woman probably didn't realize it but the sheet music on the piano behind her symbolized her life.

There was a stack of hymns, natural because her husband is a minister, and "Claire de Lune," because she is bright and sensitive and rather light-hearted. But "Stand Up an' Fight" from the Negro musical "Carmen Jones" was likely the most significant.

For most of her 37 years Mrs. Pearleen Oliver has stood up and fought with love and courage for the spiritual and material rights of her people.

"WONDERFUL CHALLENGE"

Battles won in the fight have given her poise and confidence and her dark eyes flicker defiance at the problems ahead.

"Being colored is a wonderful challenge," she says with animation. "That's what I tell my children. It'll really make a man or woman out of you. It's the toughest problem there is."

"But with courage a colored person can become anything he wants to be."

"This matter of color discrimination is the tragedy of the age, and it's the silliest thing. But it's slowly dying. About five per cent of our congregation is half-white, and perhaps in 50 years there won't be any more colored churches."

"I love to watch little children—blondes, redheads and little dark ones — they play together so sweetly. And then some day one of them says 'My mummy says I can't play with you because you're colored.'" Mrs. Oliver looked bleak.

NO RETALIATION

You can't retaliate. If somebody calls you a 'nigger' you can't fight back," she says. "You have to feel sorry for them and try to win them over with love. But if you call someone a dog—and literally and figuratively my people have been called dogs—what can you expect but a bark?"

An estimated 28,000 Negroes live in Nova Scotia, more than half in Nova Scotia. Between 4,000 and 5,000 live in Halifax, which has probably the biggest colored population of any Canadian city. More than 200 attend Rev. William Oliver's African

Bay of Quinte Conference W.M.S. United Church Meets in Lindsay

(By MRS. G. H. HEWITT)

The 12th biennial meeting of Bay of Quinte Conference branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, was held in Cambridge Street United church, Lindsay, with 90 delegates and officers attending. Every officer of the conference branch was present but one, who was ill, and every president of the Renfrew, Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg, Oshawa, Peterborough, and Lindsay presbyterials. The Departments of Literature, Christian Stewardship, and Mission Bands were stressed this year. Mrs. S. W. Spafford of Belleville, presided for all the sessions, with the theme of the meeting being, "Mobilized for Service."

Special speakers were, Rev. W. J. Gallagher, M.A., D.D., general secretary of the Canadian Council of Churches, who told of the organization and aim of the body, composed of church bodies, and responsible to them in their work of fulfilling the prayer of our Master "That they may be one, that the world may believe." Mrs. C. M. Lovell, Home Mission executive secretary, WMS, took all with her on a part of her tour of Canada, visiting workers of the WMS. She showed something of the great work that is being done, and also the immediate need for more workers.

Rev. Merrill Ferguson of Chishamba and Candendego, Angola, Africa; told of his work in Africa. Miss Muriel Alexander showed in her delightful talk on her work at the three stations of Pleyna, Coconty, and Oenpah, in Northern Frontenac County, that her people there, are mobilized for service. By means of bees for the men, and suppers for the women, much has been accomplished in the work of repair and construction on the church properties, in spite of hardships to be overcome.

Reports of all departments showed a year of advance. Two new Mission Circles had been organized, eight new Mission Band and Explorer groups were organized and 118 associate members became active members. The Baby Bands are undertaking the raising of funds to build an Orphans' Home at Neemuch, India. Supplies were sent to Dobchei Indian Mission Reserve, B.C.; Archer Memorial Hospital, Lamont, Alta.; Aberville Indian Mission, Ontario; All People's Mission, Mission, Winnipeg, Man.; Community Mission, Pierce, Ontario, and Alvernel Residential School, Alberni, B.C. For overseas work, 23,720 lbs of clothing and bedding were sent, mostly to Korea and Europe.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

The following resolution was sustained in the branch meeting, to be sent on to Dominion Board; re sale of beer in cans or other containers, in grocery stores. Whereas it has come to our attention that there is a possibility of beer might be offered for sale in tin cans or in any other container in grocery stores; and whereas; it is felt there are enough outlets for the sale and purchase of beer as it now is; and whereas; there are more and more accidents, broken homes, and unrest, due to drinking alcoholic beverages; Be it resolved, that the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch of the United Church of Canada, request the Attorney-General of Ontario that no action be taken or licence given for the sale of beer in tin cans or any other container in grocery stores.

The following resolution was passed re penal reform: Whereas; the Government of the Province of Ontario requested that a committee be set up to study penal reform and its effects on women in this province, that committee to be known as the "Joint Committee on Penal Reform for Women" and whereas; this committee has during the past year investigated conditions at Mercer Reformatory and the parole system used in this province; and whereas this said committee has prepared a brief, outlining needed reforms and recommendations for improvements in the penal institutions for women in this province, and presented that brief to Premier Frost; Be it resolved that the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, request the Premier of Ontario, through the Attorney-General, that the recommendations contained in this brief be implemented as speedily as possible.

LARGE SUMS RAISED

The total amount of money raised for the work of the WMS, by the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch was $118,592.79 for 1954. Bequests amounted to $3e129.66. There has been an increase in giving of $13,000 since 1951. All presbyterials raised their allocations, and six went over the amount. This fund for building advance was divided among cars for Canada, the cost of building a broadcasting station for Christian education in Japan, and the scholarship fund.

Mrs. F. W. K. Harris reported on a successful School for Leaders at Whitby Ladies' College in 1954 and gave a glimpse of the coming events at The School for Leaders to be held in Whitby on August 22nd to 26th this year. Dr. Winnifred Thomas will take part in the Bible study and worship services in the morning. Speakers will be Dr. Cora Telford of Oshawa, convener of Home Mission Work for the Conference, and Mr. McKillop, president of the Dominion Board WMS.

Women's Activities

MELROSE WMS

The May meeting of the Melrose Woman's Missionary Society was held on Wednesday last at the home of Mrs. John Milligan with an attendance of 19 and one child.

The president, Mrs. Morgan, opened the meeting with words of welcome to all and read a poem.

Mrs. E. Milligan conducted the worship service, the theme being "We must share—to live and to give."

The business period was conducted and plans were made for the open meeting to be held in the church on Wednesday, June 1, when several neighboring societies will be entertained.

The treasurer, Miss McLaren, reported the Easter offering was $22.75.

Mrs. E. M. Badgley gave a temperance reading on "The Effects of Alcohol."

Mrs. R. MacFarlane, group leader, was in charge of the following well planned program.

As May was the month of the birthday of that great and good Queen Victoria, Mrs. Roy Badgley brought many of the good qualities of that great woman. It is many years since her death, but still she lives on in memories.

Mrs. Fred Jeffrey read a poem which conveyed the thought "Of whatsoever you give to God, that shall your mansion be."

Miss Shirley outlined a chapter of the study book on the "Churches in India", and closed the meeting with prayer.

A social time was spent when the hostess served refreshments. "Happy Birthday" was sung to little Glenda Cumbley, "who was one year old."

Many good wishes for a safe journey and a happy holiday were expressed to Mrs. Charles Bates Sr., who is leaving this month by plane for a visit with friends in Scotland and England.

MASSASSAGA W.A.

The May meeting of the Massassaga W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. S. Johnson with the president, Mrs. George McMillan, presiding.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. H. Adams read the minutes of the April meeting. Roll call was answered by 15 members and two visitors present.

Thank-you letters were received from Mrs. Roy Valleau and Mrs. R. Matthews for flowers received while ill.

An invitation was received from the Tabernacle W.A. to join them at their meeting on May 5th.

General business was disposed of.

Mrs. William Jose gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Jose also extended an invitation to the W.A. to join with the W.M.S. in celebrating the 50th anniversary of that organization which is being held in Massassaga church on Wednesday.

Mrs. N. Salisbury took charge of the devotional period, followed by the Scripture reading, Acts 2: 1-4 and John 15:26-27.

Mrs. N. Martin gave the lesson, the theme being "The Comforter."

Mrs. N. Martin gave an interesting reading on the "Origin of Mother's Day."

Mrs. B. Thompson, Mrs. Revell and Mrs. McGilvray gave readings pertaining to "Mother's Day."

Mrs. Howard Adams also read poems by Edna Jaques, regarding Mother's Day.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

Mrs. Morley Davidson gave an interesting talk on "Christian Stewardship." She said "Hospitality is a stewardship. Home has a wonderful opportunity for stewardship. If God has blessed you with a home, He wants you to regard it as more than a blessing. He wants you to see it also as a stewardship. Through it you can reach for Him, lonely folk who need Him and you.

"A home may be a tremendous asset in Christian service. Is yours?"

A plant and candy sale was conducted by Mrs. Jose.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Salisbury's group.

EARLY SPRING SUIT

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Here's one of the very newest suits that are tempting women to invest in spring. This one is of gray worsted, the jacket lined in checked silk taffeta, the skirt made with a lining of the same rustling fabric. The jacket has a removable white piqué collar atop the self collar. The jacket is bound all around in grosgrain and is held at back by a half belt. The box-pleated skirt is restrained over the hips.

Choir Members, Families Enjoy Social Evening

Last Thursday evening an enjoyable social time was held in the Sunday school room of Hamilton-Corbyville church by members and families of the church choir.

The program commenced with a sing-song of old and present favorites, led by the choir leader, Mrs. H. Farnham. Following this, a poem entitled "Coronation of Sam McGee" was narrated by George MacDonald. In keeping with the previous number, a duet entitled, "This Old House," was rendered by Claudia Farnham and Myrna Milton.

Manley and Vera Mitchell, and their two daughters, Carolyn and Marlene sang sweetly the favorite of many, "Open Your Heart". Instrumentals are always welcomed, and this was demonstrated by Maribeth Fidgeon's rendition, a medley of her favorites on the piano.

INTERESTING CONTRIBUTIONS

From the literacy department came two interesting contributions. Doris Ellsworth recited a well known number "Sunrise", and two other short poems from her collection. "A Seed is Life" rendered by Mrs. Don Milton was quite appropriate for this season of the year. Another vocal selection was "Everybody Slips a Little."

A humorous reading was given by Fred Furniss. Lois Hall's letter was cruxed by Floyd Milton's daring but funny description of the church choir's picnic, which an excellent contest on the use of English words was led by Mrs. Farnham.

At the conclusion of this contest, the chairman, George MacDonald, thanked everyone for their contribution to the evening. It was agreed by all that more of such gatherings should be held.

Refreshments prepared by the members, brought the evening to a successful conclusion.

Child Evangelism Holds Rally At S.A. Citadel

On Saturday afternoon the Salvation Army Citadel was filled to capacity for the non-denominational rally of Child Evangelism fellowship. Mr. Harold Robinson, Child Evangelism Fellowship of Canada, presided as chairman.

Miss Dorothy Mitchell presided at the piano for the prelude and gospel chorus singing under the direction of Mr. Ernie Belch.

A delightful violin solo was rendered by Kenneth Belch, after which Miss Marjorie Bronson told an illustrated story to the smaller children. The story hour was followed by several program items representative of this year's work by the various clubs.

The Rev. Stan Crookal, of the British and Foreign Bible Society, of Peterborough, gave an inspiring message on "The Prodigal Son."

The children were each given a gospel and a copy of the Gospel of St. Mark.

NURSERY RALLY

In the evening a workers' rally was held, preceded by a buffet supper in the YMCA.

The teachers, Miss Latham and Mrs. H. Robinson related some of the highlights of their year's work which included the teaching of the Gospel to the neighborhood children.

Mrs. Jack Crowlow, the teachers' instructor, reviewed the activities of the organization, pointing out that in the 15 Good News Bible Clubs in the Belleville area, the aggregate attendance had been 325 children. She also emphasized the need for workers to contact those children in their immediate neighborhood who had no present Sunday School connection.

Mrs. Wilbur Wright explained the work and connection of, the prayer groups to the project.

New flannelgraph background material was ably demonstrated by Earl Wannamaker.

Mrs. Earl Wannamaker favored during the evening with two flute solos.

The evening closed with a challenging message to the workers on "The Lost Sheep," given by Mr. Stan Crookal.

Bridge St. W. A. Hears Reviews Of Two Well Known Books

The May meeting of Bridge Street United Church WMS was held on Thursday with a good attendance. Mrs. Denyes, the president, welcomed all with a few timely remarks and the singing of a suitable hymn to honor Mother's Day.

The March and April meetings were reviewed by the secretary. Reports by Mrs. Dulmage, corresponding-secretary, and Mrs. Countryman, treasurer, were followed by Mrs. Myers and Mrs. Massey reporting in detail on their work. Mrs. Hyde, Mrs. Tice and Mrs. Franklin were asked to make their reports.

Mrs. Gilmour gave a splendid resume of Dr. Bryce's talk at the evening session of Picton Presbyterial. The speaker chose "Great Treasures", as her topic and her challenge was "How Deeply Does We Believe?" She told of a 17-year-old Brahman boy, who, after his Christian initiation, was forced to leave home and suffered untold hardship for his new religion.

PROGRAM

The program was in charge of Mrs. Hall's unit, Group 4, Circle group. Mrs. Fuke gave a short devotional on the theme "To live and to give"; followed by prayer and Scripture reading from II Corinthians.

Mrs. A. May introduced Mrs. McArthur, who spoke regarding two books on the WMS bookshelf — namely "Behind Mud Walls" by Dr. and Mrs. Wiser and "Face to Face with India", by Rosalind Wiser. Dr. and Mrs. Wiser were both graduates of Chicago University. Mrs. Wiser took her Master of Science degree in nutrition at Cornell and Dr. Wiser was on the staff of Allahabad agricultural Institute in his early years in service in India.

Both have spent for long periods in North India villages and hence made first-hand studies of the social, economic and religious life of Hindu peasants.

They have lived in village pastors and teachers and their wives to carry out the Christian ministry in the whole livedeea,d,v of the village folk.

Hence from their first hand knowledge of Indian rural life, Mrs. Wiser was able to present the book "Behind Mud Walls", first issued in 1930 and later reissued in 1944.

Since 1945, they have attempted a new undertaking for rural development — Indian village service, under both Indian and western leadership.

In their survey of typical Indian village, they found a face to face opposition, fear, dingy mud-walled living-quarters, often there exists a total lack of sanitation.

The villagers were deeply suspicious of everyone. The new order must be brought in sympathetically.

The second book "Face to Face with India" is a delightful piece of reporting. It deals with the religious life, education and industrial life of a cross-section of the Indian people.

Of the 363 millions, less than 60 millions can read and write.

The missionary movement has made great contribution to the people and an excellent effort in medical health work was assisted by the ministry of health.

A great deal of the crime was due to social conditions. Christian students are turning to Communism. There are 300 million Hindoos.

Many stories of individuals are in this book. There is a task before that country, and an obligation to rest on all Christians and all people of good will, to help do it.

Mrs. McArthur was graciously thanked by Mrs. May and Mrs. Denyes for her splendid reviews.

After the meeting closed, all were invited to stay for the social half-hour when refreshments were served.

Simpsons-Sears Opens Fine, New Store

'Open House' Will Give Public Opportunity to Preview Store, Wide Range of Merchandise

The welcome mat will be out for Belleville and district residents Wednesday evening when "open house" will be held at the new Simpsons-Sears store at 239 Front Street.

The "open house" will give city and district shoppers a preview of the fine appointments and wide range of merchandise to be offered when the latest in the Simpsons-Sears family of new retail stores is officially opened.

Visitors to the store will be invited to thoroughly inspect the premises together with the wide range of quality products displayed.

But there will be no sales talk during the preview. Courteous sales staff will be on hand to answer questions but there will be no sales talk and no sales. The preview will give Belleville and district residents the opportunity to "look around" and to get acquainted with the new store.

A big turnout for the preview is expected by store manager Mr. Stephen Angus and his staff of trained personnel who look forward to the "open house" as the culmination of weeks of effort in getting the new store ready for the official opening.

President E. G. Burton Will Officially Open S-S Store Thursday Morning

President of Simpsons-Sears Mr. E. G. Burton, will be on hand Thursday morning to officially open the new Belleville store.

Mr. Burton will cut the ribbon to officially open the store at nine o'clock. Mayor John Both and F. C. McGuire, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, will be on hand to take part in the opening ceremonies.

With everything planned to the last minute detail there will be no guess work about the official opening but store customers during the first few days will be able to get in on a guessing game of their own.

In one of the domestic freezers in the refrigerator department will be a frozen pig and customers will be invited to test their guessing abilities in a "guess the weight of the pig" contest.

When the contest is over the persons coming closest to the exact weight of the pig will receive the carcass as a prize—enough pork to last the family for a long time.

RESIGNS FROM COUNCIL

LONDON (Reuters) — Col. John J. Astor, chairman of The Times of London, has resigned the chairmanship of the British Press Council because of ill-health. It was announced Tuesday. The Press Council consists of representatives of newspaper publishers and employees and is a "watch-dog" on matters of ethics.

CANADIAN AUTHOR SCORES

NEW YORK- (CP)—The Book-of-the-Month Club has announced selection of "The Sixth of June," a novel by Lionel Shapiro, former Montreal newspaper man, as its book-of-the-month for August. The novel deals with the experiences of a newspaper man in the war.

CAR HITS LIGHTS

WINDSOR (CP)—About 300 hundred homes were plunged into darkness for 90 minutes Tuesday night when a car knocked down a Hydro pole in south Windsor. The driver, Bert Johnson, 44, was not injured.

Special Staff Will Look After Credit Purchases

With credit purchases featuring an ever-increasing percentage of sales in today's business transactions, the credit sales department of any modern store is naturally a very important one.

And this is doubly true of the new Simpsons-Sears store where everything possible has been taken into consideration for the convenience of customers who prefer to make purchases on the credit plan.

Putting this into effect the credit sales department for the Belleville store has been located right in the store where a special staff has been set up to look after this phase of sales. All records pertaining to credit sales at the new store will be kept here instead of at a central headquarters and customers will be able to make payments right at the store.

"We feel this is important," stressed Mr. Stephen Angus, store manager. "It is important because of the convenience it affords our customers and at the same time the credit sales department provides extra employment locally."

Mail Order Dept. To Be Extended In S-S Store

Shoppers at the new Simpsons-Sears store in Belleville will have the preference of two popular methods of purchasing requirements.

They will be able to buy household appliances, furniture and other commodities from stock on display in the store, or through the mail order department they will have their choice of an almost unlimited range of merchandise.

Simpsons mail order is a service well known throughout Canada and with the establishment of an order office on Front Street some years ago this convenient method of shopping has been found useful by great numbers of Belleville and district residents.

With the opening of the new Simpsons-Sears store Thursday the order office service will be extended even further. The order office department will be larger, more telephones will be added to handle more customers' orders with less delay.

In charge of this department at the new Simpsons-Sears store will be Mrs. I. Shetler who for several years has been at the order office staff at the former location.

Everything for The Home Handsome Building Houses Newest Simpsons-Sears Store

Latest in a series of retail outlets being opened across Canada, the new Belleville store of Simpsons-Sears at 239 Front Street, represents the last word in merchandising staple family needs and household appliances.

On two floors, ground floor and basement, the new Simpsons-Sears store offers practically every household requirement from pots and pans, to refrigerators and ranges, and right down to complete bathrooms installed to the customer's satisfaction.

The location is a completely new structure built to replace the W. Bean business block destroyed by fire some 18 months ago, the first two floors being patterned to Simpsons-Sears requirements.

PATTERN FOLLOWED

"All Simpsons-Sears stores follow the same general pattern and space is rented with definite requirements in mind," commented store manager Mr. Stephen Angus. "Everything has its place and any item may be found in the same location in any company retail store."

An almost solid glass front framed in light hued vitrolite beckons the customer to a well lighted store interior featuring the latest in household requirements in a setting demonstrating the practical use of Simpsons-Sears "Harmony House" colors.

To the right of the main entrance are displays of brand name "white goods" with driers — Sears own "Kenmore" gas and electric ranges, washers and driers and "Coldspot" refrigerators and freezers featured.

All appliances are sold with the Simpsons-Sears guarantee of goods satisfactory or money refunded and as a special assurance of long satisfactory service parts for Kenmore appliances will be stocked for a period of 20 years.

To the left of the main entrance is a general hardware section and sporting goods department featuring a wide range of hardware and seasonal sporting goods. Current emphasis is on fishing gear and boating equipment, while in the fall emphasis will swing to guns with one of the finest gun displays outside of major population centres to be featured.

Also on the main floor of the store is the housewares department where almost everything required by the housewife to prepare a meal or to do her housekeeping is on display.

SELECTION CLEARLY MARKED

A feature of Simpsons - Sears stores, according to Mr. Angus, is the ease with which any item in the store can be located by the customer. Each item has its price clearly marked.

For the "do it yourself" enthusiast there is a full line of tools featuring "Craftsman" power tools which have a unique guarantee covering breakages. "We replace any "Craftsman" tool broken in use," noted Mr. Angus.

A plumbing and heating department offers the last word in bathroom and kitchen units, sold either on a "do it yourself," or completely installed basis.

Solid banks of fluorescent lighting illuminate the new Simpsons-Sears store with well over 200 fluorescent units having been installed on the two floors. Floors are inlaid tile with built in electrical outlets providing power for appliance operation and spot lighting.

Household furniture and floor coverings take over the entire basement of the store.

Here are to be found furniture from such well known furniture houses as Sklar, Kroehler and the Harmony House lines sold only by Simpsons-Sears. Furniture coverings can be chosen in Harmony House colors which are also available in the paints department of the store.

RADIO-TV DEPARTMENT

Silvertone radio and television sets are offered along with locally made Stewart Warner "Hi-Fi" sets.

Floor coverings include linoleum and tiles as well as luxurious rugs and wall to wall broadloom.

The store accounting department, along with the credit sales department and the store manager's office are in the basement of the store, while the Simpsons-Sears mail order department has also been moved to the new store from its previous location on Sower Front street.

Tying in with the mail order department the store each week will feature "Highlight Specials" offering certain catalogue products which will be in stock at the store and available for immediate sale.

Stephen Angus Store Manager Is War Veteran

Manager of the new Simpsons-Sears store in Belleville is Mr. Stephen Angus, congenial young man with ten years' experience in various departments of the Simpson merchandising organization.

STEPHEN ANGUS

A veteran of the last war with over five years service in the RCAF, Mr. Angus was one of the first Air Force officers posted to Trenton for training in 1939. He was with the Air Force until March, 1945, when he received his discharge.

Although he was stationed at Trenton for a period of only six months, Mr. Angus said he always had a hankering to return to Belleville. Married and with three children he says he is looking forward to settling with his family in the city.

Mr. Angus became associated with Simpsons shortly after his discharge from the Air Force, his first capacity with the firm being employment training manager in the mail order department in Toronto. He then became supervisor of the Ontario order office and spent a short time back in Trenton.

On the formation of Simpsons-Sears he was transferred to the retail office with which department he has been since.

He has a very definite preference for life in the smaller centres as compared with Toronto and is looking forward to pleasant business associations and social life in Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, MAY 11, 1955

Thousands of Ont. Anglers Prepare Tackle for Opening Of Pickerel Season Saturday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fishing prospects range from poor to good as thousands of Ontario anglers prepare their tackle for the opening of the pike and pickerel season.

The season officially opens in the southern part of the province Friday at midnight, but fishermen will not be allowed to fish after pickerel north and west of the French and Mattawa rivers and Lake Nipissing until a week later, May 21.

The lands and forests department says as an experiment there will be no length limit on yellow pickerel or perch taken by anglers elsewhere in Ontario this year. But the catch limit of six a day for both pike and pickerel will remain the same.

Fishing is already under way in the St. Clair river which is boundary water, as international waters, and is not under provincial control. The season has been good so far, cold and catches are reported to be plentiful and large, in spite of a north wind which brought cold and murky water to the southern end of Lake Huron.

WATER TOO COLD

From the other end of the province, prospects in the Kingston district are reported to be good in the smaller lakes, but anglers feel that the water level is too high and the water too cold for any success in Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river.

In the northern part of Ontario, fishermen out for yellow pickerel in the Sioux Lookout district will be hampered by warm weather which has increased the water supply of the fish.

Allan Tansay, department biologist for the Kirkland Lake region, says the water level of the lakes is that almost of a park swimming temperature higher, than it has been for many years for the opening of the pike and pickerel season.

Because of the warm weather, he said, the spawning has been over for some time, and the fish will be well distributed over the lakes.

In the Peterborough area, anglers are hoping for a rain within the next day or two to improve fishing conditions at the dams along the Trent canal.

STAY IN DEEP WATER

Low water levels have made the rapid spill-water pools below the dams as quiet as mill ponds, and the pickerel which are reported to be abundant, are staying back pass the dams in deeper haunts.

On the Niagara peninsula, there is reported to be a good supply of yellow and blue pickerel in the waters of the Welland canal, the Niagara river, 12 lakes and some 20 Mile creek.

Low levels in Lake Nipissing and French river indicate good fishing. Minnows are favored bait.

With the exception of these two bodies of water the pickerel season in this area does not open until May 21.

Wobblers, minnow-like plugs and striped spoons are good lures for prove effective for trolling and casting on opening day.

Woman Expecting Child Should Not Drive Car

BEACONSFIELD, Eng. (Reuter)—A British gynaecologist said in court here on Tuesday that a woman expecting a child should be allowed to drive a car.

Dr. John W. Bell was giving evidence for Mrs. Gladys Stanbridge, who was fined £5 for dangerous driving. The court was told she drove safely from a side road, collided with another car on the main road, reversed, and then set still. Her defence was that she fainted.

Dr. Bell said that her story was "not to be doubted," despite her reversing the car.

"Women who are pregnant should never drive," the specialist said. "She had a blackout. Under the circumstances, they do these things and do not know they are doing them."

May Process Copra

TORONTO (CP)—Planning Minister W. K. Warrender of Ontario said Tuesday the government of the Trizzo Islands, a British Commonwealth country in the western Pacific, is considering building a plant in Hamilton to process copra.

Prince Tungi, premier of the island group and son of Queen Salote, met with Mr. Warrender, Attorney-General Porter and the planning and development officials Tuesday. Earlier he visited a vegetable oil extraction plant at Hamilton.

ALPINE ACCIDENT IN BIG CITY PARK

No, this isn't Mount Everest or the Alps—it's Central Park, New York, and a police emergency squad is employing techniques of mountain climbers as they rescue Carl B. Rey, 55. The man slipped and fell from a 40-foot cliff while hundreds of park strollers watched. (Central Press Canadian).

Steel Production In U.S. May Set Record This Year

NEW YORK (AP) — American steel production in on its way to a record first half, and if the present pace continues 1955 will surpass the record of 111,600,000 tons produced. Iron Age, the national metalworking mag azine reporting this that the situation depends on growth in the auto industries in the automotive and steel industries.

Order backlogs at the mills are still growing despite record production last week and an even better pace expected this week. Incoming orders continue to exceed industry capacity. Deliveries are lagging. It will take a full month's production to catch up with some delivery promises.

The depth and the strength of demand is so great that producers are raising their sights on expansion plans. Expansion and modernization of steel facilities now under way rival the immediate post-war buildups.

5 YEARS IN KIDNAPPING

GRAND FALLS, N.B. (CP)—Frederick Arthur Bernard was sentenced Tuesday to five years in penitentiary after he pleaded guilty to kidnapping five-year-old Christine Bryson. Searchers found her unharmed two hours after she left Victoria county Indian took her from a spot where she had been playing near her home 10 miles from Andover.

Liberal Leader Says Roads Contract System Not Altered

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said Tuesday the department of highways has awarded a $1,200,000 contract to a company which immediately let out 60 per cent of the work to sub-contractors.

Mr. Oliver, speaking at a meeting of the Liberal Business Men's Association of Toronto, said there was an indication that methods of operation which led to the highways scandal were being used.

He said no state in the United States allows more than 50 per cent of a contract to be sublet.

Mr. Oliver who later identified the firm as the Huron Construction Company said the contract was the first highways contract to be awarded the firm.

He said the committee which investigated highways department operation and irregularities in contracts, and the firm which investigated department operation both recommended there be pre-qualification of contractors.

This meant that a firm's financial ability to perform the work should be investigated before it received a contract. He said the Progressive Conservative government is "going along in the same old way" in awarding contracts.

Deputy Minister M. A. Elson of the highways department said later the figure of 80 per cent, as given by the previous contract, was entirely wrong. The firm actually had a working contract, about 40 to 41 per cent.

He said the firm had limited its bid at a major part of the contract but this had been changed. He could not recall the original figure.

Mr. Elson said department officials met with representatives of the firm for nearly a day and are considering the firm has the equipment, experience and financial backing to do the job.

Court of Appeal Raps Magistrate For His Comment

TORONTO (CP)—A magistrate and a crown counsel Tuesday were severely criticized by an Ontario Court of Appeal for their "highly improper" remarks during the trial of a man convicted on an assault charge.

At the same time, the court ordered a new trial for Kenneth Hamilton before a magistrate and counsel not prejudiced or biased.

Magistrate I. B. Craig and crown attorney A. D. Bell were criticized for their conduct and unfair comment made during Hamilton's trial at Chatham, March 14. The court said Hamilton was convicted "on his reputation and not on the evidence."

Hamilton was convicted on a charge of assault occasioning bodily harm when Charles North was beaten, kicked and severely injured in a fight at Thamesville in February. He was "sentenced to six months definite and three months indeterminate.

REMARKS NOTED

Hamilton's appeal counsel, W.E. MacDonald gave extracts of remarks made by the magistrate and the crown counsel to the appeal court.

Hamilton was warned by the magistrate not "to go near one crown witness or interfere with any witness," and the case was adjourned one week at the preliminary hearing of the charge. Mr. MacDonald said the police were told that Hamilton "will intimidate witnesses if he can get at nothing."

He also told the appeal court that magistrate Craig had started the trial "with an unfavorable frame of mind because of his personal knowledge of Hamilton as a Chatham district during the last several years."

Mr. MacDonald said that during a cross-examination by Mr. Bell, the crown counsel had said to a defence witness:

"Did you ever hear of Kenneth Hamilton backing away from a fight?"

The witness answered "no."

"You never did and neither did I" said Mr. Bell.

COMMENT RECALLED

Magistrate Craig, when questioning a witness said: "If the witness had ever seen Kenneth Hamilton "go looking for a fight," and the witness answered "no."

"I have," said the magistrate, "but I suppose that Hamilton's reputation was "a smart-alec, a big shot —he has been pushing his way through life for 20 years; everybody is frightened of him. I am not frightened of him; he is a great big lout."

Before passing sentence on Hamilton, the magistrate had turned to counsel of the accused and said:

"Speak as to sentence if you wish, he (Hamilton) is going away the longest time I can give him."

Permit Granted To Build Apt.

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice Gordon Wismer Tuesday granted a court order requiring the city of Toronto and building commissioner William F. Holden to issue a permit to Kensington Industries Ltd. for erection of a $2,000,000 Rosedale ravine apartment.

The court order based his ruling on material placed before him showing that plans for the 225-unit project had a report of no objection by proper authorities.

Residents in the area recently protested against permitting the building's construction.

FRENCH MEMORIAL TO RCAF FLIERS

"The hub of an aircraft wheel and two machine guns complement a memorial to five Canadian airmen in the town of Maisons-Laffite, France. Group Capt. L. D. Armour, RCAF, dedicated a wreath at an annual ceremony honoring the fliers who were shot down in 1942 after completing a mission near Paris. Inset shows some of the relatives of the airmen and kept flowers on the grave all during the occupation. (Central Press Canadian).

Liberal Asks for Two Billion Dollars Outlay for Roads

OTTAWA (CP) — A five-year, $2,000,000,000 program of federal highway building across Canada was proposed Tuesday night in the Commons by Paul T. Hellyer, Liberal member for Toronto Davenport.

He said it would bring new towns and industrial developments, help civil defence preparedness, boost the tourist trade and the crown council had said is a defence witness:

"Did you ever hear of Kenneth Hamilton backing away from a fight?"

The witness answered "no."

"You never did and neither did I" said Mr. Bell.

COMMENT RECALLED

Magistrate Craig, when questioning a witness said: "If the witness had ever seen Kenneth Hamilton "go looking for a fight," and the witness answered "no."

"I have," said the magistrate, "but I suppose that Hamilton's reputation was "a smart-alec, a big shot —he has been pushing his way through life for 20 years; everybody is frightened of him. I am not frightened of him; he is a great big lout."

Before passing sentence on Hamilton, the magistrate had turned to counsel of the accused and said:

"Speak as to sentence if you wish, he (Hamilton) is going away the longest time I can give him."

U.S. Officials Expect Early Red Acceptance of Invitation

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials anticipate early Soviet acceptance of the Western invitation for a top-level Big Four meeting this summer. It would be the first since the post-war conference at Potsdam in 1945.

President Eisenhower joined with Britain's Prime Minister Eden and Premier Edgar Faure of France in dispatching the invitation last Saturday. Russia's Premier Malotov in Moscow is expected to act soon.

The time and place have yet to be worked out. These details may be settled when the Western Big Three foreign ministers meet Russia's V. M. Molotov in Vienna at week's end to conclude an Austrian state treaty.

Coincident with the Western proposal, Russia has begun to liquidate withdrawal of the bulk of foreign forces from both West and East Germany. Making public declarations submitted to a United Nations disarmament commission in London, Moscow coupled the proposal with a repeat of its previous demands for barring atomic weapons.

In London, a foreign office spokesman said there seemed to be some new movement in the Russian proposal which called for study. There was no immediate comment here, but the state department has been cool to any scheme which would have the effect of neutralizing Germany while leaving the Red army on her eastern border.

Privately, however, seems likely to press the idea at a BigFour meeting.

Eisenhower is described as willing to journey to some country on the edge of the Iron Curtain to meet Russian leaders, but he is known to be against a summit conference because of its association with the "parleys" of Britain's wartime leader Churchill.

The French made a settlement giving part of Indochina to the Communists. Another central issue, which has figured in speculation is Stockholm. Vienna has been mentioned, too.

The note sent by the Western powers suggested, subject to Moscow's approval, a two-stage attack on the "sources of conflict." No specific topics were mentioned, but American officials say the Western powers will be concerned primarily with (1) German unification, (2) freedom for the people of the satellite states, and (') removal of the threat of hydrogen warfare through steps toward disarmament.

A session of only a few days' duration seems likely.

No Canadian Scientist Available For Trip to Ice Island in Arctic

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had no scientist available to send along with Americans returning to the floating ice island T-3 in the Arctic ocean.

The United States scientists invited Canada to send one along this trip. But there wasn't one available, the defence department said Tuesday, so the invitation was turned down.

RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. Keith Greenaway of Woodville, Ont., one of the world's leading aerial navigators, discovered T-3 in April, 1947.

The U.S. occupied and worked on Ice islands T-1, T-2 and T-3 after the Second World War. The Russians have at least two permanent drift stations in the Arctic ocean. But no Canadian has ever been on research work on an Arctic ice island.

The department of mines and technical surveys, however, is sending two teams to the Far North this summer.

One will seek mineral deposits in the Queen Elizabeth Islands. The other, using a plane, will try to determine whether the underwater Lomonosov mountain range, discovered by the Russians, extends from the Soviet side of the Arctic to Ellesmere island, Canada's most northerly island.

American scientists abandoned T-3 a year ago when it drifted too close to a above weather station on Ellesmere to make observations on the area of much use. The ice island, however, has drifted north toward the pole again and the American scientists plan to occupy it until Sept. 1.

Main purpose of stations on floating islands is to get information about weather, ice movements and ocean currents.

Saskatchewan's Floods Are Over, Manitoba's Near

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — The worst of the flooding appeared to be over in the Saskatchewan but western Manitoba communities braced themselves against two Assiniboine river crests moving in from the neighboring province.

The first crest was reported in the Virden area, 30 miles east of the Saskatchewan border and 50 miles west of Brandon. The second and larger crest was near St. Lazare, five miles east of the border and 55 miles upstream from Virden.

The Virden area's river valley was inundated and valley roads were cut, but there were no reports of evacuations. Virdin itself, some 500 feet above and a mile away from the river, was not in danger.

CITY SAFE

Brandon was expected to be hit by the first crest about Friday. Trans-Canada Pipe Line Co. Ltd. Monday or Tuesday.

Brandon itself is not threatened as it is on high land. The district expected to take the brunt of the flood is the low-lying flats on the northern outskirts, which include rich market gardens.

Meanwhile, in eastern Saskatchewan, water levels Tuesday night were not up appreciably and some areas reported the water was going down.

Main trouble spot this week has been the Qu'Appelle river valley and Qu'Appelle river just west of the Manitoba border. Sixty persons have been evacuated and a number of homes damaged.

But indications were that roads into the village of Lake Alma were in fact becoming passable. The four-room school, closed earlier, was reopened and classes were to allow students to write examinations.

TRAIN STARTS

A train was standing by ready to evacuate residents of Archerwill if necessary. Between 30 and 40 of 300 miles east of Regina, but 30 miles east of Melville, were closed only. Officials said there would be no danger unless it rained.

Rail defence authorities have started a survey to estimate damage. They presented a detailed report on floods to the Saskatchewan cabinet Tuesday. The Qu'Appelle system was declared a disaster area Friday following a devastating 36-hour storm earlier last week.

Negro at 104 Making Plans For Plane Ride

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Benjamin A. (Dad) Trimble celebrated his 104th birthday Tuesday by:

Sawing a log. Chopping wood, seeing a doctor for the first time in 40 years, and making plans for an airplane ride over a Seattle aircraft plant.

Dad Trimble who was born into slavery in Virginia and says he remembers Abraham Lincoln as "Honest Abe" Lincoln, says wood-chopping is a morning exercise. He says the day he planned a brisk walk up and down Tacoma's hills, finishing with a dozen one-arm push-ups.

"It's good to keep young," said Trimble, "That and sassafras tea and putting my faith and trust in the Lord."

He got the medical checkup to make sure he is physically fit for the airplane flight. The doc said it was.

On the Spot Polio Vaccine Check Will Begin Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — On-the-spot checks across the United States of the effectiveness of the polio vaccine were expected to begin today, amid indications that vaccine supplies may be adequate soon.

A team of public health service scientists was dispatched to inspect vaccine manufacturing methods at the Cutter Laboratories in Berkeley, Calif., a reliable source here said it would be reasonable to expect action late in the week on requests to release some Parke-Davis- vaccine for public use. Supplies from other manufacturers should be released by early next week, he added.

Pending rechecks at all vaccine manufacturing plants, the U.S. Public Health Service, Surgeon General Scheele, has called for a halt in the mass inoculation of school children. But he has said he will not withhold approval for use of vaccine from any plant which meets the safety requirements.

Gas Pipeline from Alberta Cannot Be Financed on Merits If All-Canadian Route Used

---Premier Manning

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning of Alberta says the proposed natural gas pipeline from Alberta to eastern Canada cannot be financed on its own merits with the federal government insisting on an all-Canadian route.

The premier also told the Alberta legislature Tuesday night that the $350,000,000 project as proposed at present cannot be built in the foreseeable future without some assistance from outside normal financial channels.

Reporting on developments since the session adjourned last month, Mr. Manning said a meeting will be held in Ottawa within the next few weeks to find out definitely if western gas can be carried to the East.

THOSE ATTENDING

Attending the meeting will be representatives of the federal, Alberta and Ontario governments, Trans-Canada Pipe Line Co. Ltd., gas producers and others. No date has been set for the meeting but Mr. Manning said the understanding is that it will be held within the next few weeks.

The premier, telling of discussions he has held since last month, said the delay in building the proposed pipeline is "stifling" development in Alberta and the problem cannot be allowed to drag.

Some decisions must be reached "mighty fast."

The consensus of pipe line company officials, gas producers, the Ontario government, the Alberta conservation board and the Alberta Gas Trunk Pipeline Co. is that the Trans-Canada Pipe Line "should stand on its own feet without government intervention."

Jury Acquits Accused Of Kidnapping Girl

WELLAND (CP)—Paul Valsnott, 22, of Port Colborne, Tuesday was acquitted on charges of forcibly selling and kidnapping Grace Gay Marie, 17, of Welland last Feb. 7.

The verdict was returned by a 12-man jury which deliberated about two hours in Ontario Supreme Court.

The girl, a telephone operator and a ballet student, said she was forced into Valsnott's car at one point early in the morning of Feb. 8 and driven to Niagara Falls and Bay. There she wrote a plea for help on the flyleaf of a prayerbook with an eyebrow pencil and threw it to a railway ticket agent who saw her shelter until police arrived.

Valsnott testified she got into the car of her own free will, with the intention of going with him to Cochrane where he intended to take over a bakeshop. He said she had several opportunities to leave the car but did not.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells admonished a man-about-town, to "take stock" of himself to avoid more trouble.

Given More Time

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has decided to allow food manufacturers a little more time in which to replace banned transparent cellophane packages with new wrappers.

The deadline for replacing the wrappers has been extended to June 30 from May 9, a health department spokesman said Tuesday.

He said the extension was granted after a businessman in the printing trade caused by the rush of manufacturers to print new wrappers and labels.

Radio station CKSO and television station CKSO-TV were not included in the sale.

K. R. Thomson, executive vice-president of the Thomson company, publishers of newspapers in Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States, said:

The Star became a daily in September, 1939. Its circulation is 23,925.

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)— A diver searched Tunnel lake Tuesday for the bodies of two tugmen after dredging operations were thwarted by the log-strewn bottom.

Ted Thompson, 31, and Alex McKinnon, 35, were drowned Monday when their diesel tug sank while towing barges for the J. J. McFadden Lumber Company.

John Anderson, 50, the only survivor, said McKinnon was trapped in the cabin and Thompson was drowned later. All were from Blind River.

Company officials said the cause of the sinking was unknown.

Uranium City

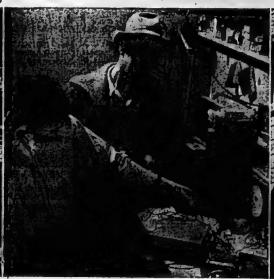
Canadian Town Centre of World's Uranium Supply

Chipewyan Indian, Isadore Voyageur, is veteran prospector and an expert with a Geiger counter. He has sold one group of claims for $9,000, reportedly turned down $20,000 for claims he still holds.

Under the rocky hills and woodlands of 750 square miles of northern Saskatchewan wasteland lies what may prove to be the biggest known supply of uranium in the world. With some development companies in the area already proving up to $100 million dollars worth of ore, veteran sourdoughs, geologists, and even a few hopeful tenderfeet are combing Beaverlodge region, with chattering Geiger counters as their key to potential riches. Hub of all this feverish activity is Uranium City, which takes its name from the glistening coal-black atomic age mineral.

Beaverlodge's first boom (gold) petered out in 1935. But when, in 1949, the area proved hot with fissionable ore, exploration of the area was restricted to Crown and government-chartered companies. Since 1952, when the field was thrown open to the public, over 13,000 claims have been recorded. The Crown-operated Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited has a 500-ton per day processing mill working a full schedule, while Gunnar Gold Mines, another major producer, is building a $10 million dollar mill with a daily capacity of 1,250 tons.

Today, with the initial hectic get-rich-quick boom levelling off, Uranium City is a thriving town of 1,000 people, with an additional 2,000 living at various mine-sites within a 12-mile radius. The town boasts a theatre, 20 taxicabs, 14 miles of roads, and a recently-constructed 50-room hotel that is already finding it hard to meet demands for accommodation. And energetic town-planners, determined to save Uranium City from the "shack town" fate of many another boom community, are laying the groundwork for a permanent, model community with a population of 10,000.



Aerial view of Uranium City in heart of Beaverlodge district. Town is administered by Resident Administrator appointed by Saskatchewan government, which also provides regularly-scheduled DC-3 flights from Prince Albert. Majority of living necessities are freighted in by barge from Waterways, Alberta.

U.S. Planning Closer Check On Salk Vaccine

By CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Democratic congressman Tuesday said the United States government evidently plans a "much closer" check in the future before clearing supplies of Salk anti-polio Vaccine for public use.

Some Democrats in Congress say undue confusion marked the Republican administration's handling of its part of the program, but J. Percy Priest (Dem. Tenn.) described as "well in order" the recommendation for a temporary halt in mass vaccinations.

He is chairman of the commerce committee, which handles most health legislation. On the basis of consultations with administration officials, he said in an interview that he understands the health and welfare department is planning a much closer laboratory check on future supplies before they are released.

Mitchum, in a suit filed in Superior Court, said the story is "completely and entirely false and untrue." His suit also stated that the article was "an attempt to defame and ridicule" him.

Cardinal McGuigan Completes 25 Years as Archbishop

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A man who once said he would have preferred to be a student and a teacher completes next Sunday a quarter-century of service as the archbishop of the Roman Catholic Church.

James Charles McGuigan was consecrated Archbishop of Regina May 12, 1930. He was 36 at the time, the youngest Roman Catholic archbishop in the world.

In the 25 years since then he gained promotion to a larger charge, becoming Archbishop of Toronto in 1934, and was created Canada's first English - speaking cardinal in 1965.

DEVOTED LEADER

Despite advancement in the hierarchy of his church, Cardinal McGuigan has remained a man of modest mien and simple tastes, devoting himself unsparingly to improving the spiritual and secular welfare of the people of his archdiocese.

"My dream was to be a student and a teacher; if I had my power of choice that is what I would be," he said after his appointment as Archbishop of Toronto.

The Cardinal's personal aspirations have not changed since then, but he has found satisfaction in the wider field of service his greater responsibilities opened up for him. He told a reporter, on the eve of his anniversary, that he really never ceased to be a teacher for it is the function of the clergy to teach religion.

Many honors have come to Cardinal McGuigan in his quarter-century as archbishop, but it is typical of this warm, friendly man that in looking back on the last 25 years he cites not these but his association with the people as bringing him greatest satisfaction.

CLOSE TO PEOPLE

Visits to the parishes, confirmations and other duties that might be considered routine have kept him close to the men and women in his archdiocese. He has been tireless in working for their interests and growth of population provides no let-up in these duties.

Cardinal McGuigan declined personal recognition when he observed in 1943 the 25th anniversary of his ordination as priest. Instead, he made the anniversary an occasion for an appeal for funds to build high schools for Roman Catholic students. The objective was $800,000; the campaign realized $1,571,940.

His is parroting a similar course for the forthcoming anniversary. May 15 will mark the opening of a public campaign for $2,000,000 for new churches in the archdiocese, where the Roman Catholic population has more than trebled since he became archbishop and doubled since the war to approximately 300,000 today.

Toronto is a cosmopolitan archdiocese, embracing extremes of poverty and wealth in a large city and reaching out through its 140 parishes and 30 mission churches to the rural areas of Lake Erie and Georgian bay to the west and north and to Oshawa in the east.

IN 21 LANGUAGES

In Toronto itself the gospel is preached in 21 languages, from those of central Europe to Italian, Maltese and even Japanese. The influx of Europeans to Canada since the Second World War is one reason for the campaign for new churches.

Facing up to the task is not a new problem for Cardinal McGuigan. When the Prince Edward Island-born prelate, who still visits his native province almost every year, was chosen to head the Regina archdiocese in 1930, southern Saskatchewan was gripped by drought and depression.

Priests could not pay their grocery bills and some closed their churches and held services in their homes to save coal. The young archbishop travelled thousands of miles begging financial aid and it was chiefly through his efforts that the problems of the depression years were solved.

Today, he still recalls "the wonderful people" among whom he laboured in those years.

ABLE ADMINISTRATOR

Close associates of the cardinal have unqualified respect for his ability and affection for him as a man. A round-faced, ruddy-cheeked man of medium stature, Cardinal McGuigan is an able administrator but is vitally interested in human problems.

He is an early riser and, after mass, has a simple breakfast at his north Toronto residence where his staff is provided by the Sisters of Martha.

He is at his office in downtown Toronto at 9 a.m. and remains there until 4:30 p.m. except at weekends when he visits parishes for functions such as the blessing of new schools or churches.

His first job of the day is to deal with his extensive correspondence, much of which he handles personally. Then he discusses diocesan problems with priests or meets lay visitors to whom he is as accessible as his crowded schedule will permit.

Reading and prayer occupy his evening hours and he retires early, although frequently this routine is broken as he continues to study parish affairs with priests he invites to his residence.

STUDENT OF AFFAIRS

Cardinal McGuigan keeps well abreast of current events, through newspapers and periodicals. He has an excellent library, particularly of Roman Catholic writings.

Rather shy in nature, although an able speaker with a warm smile, good sense of humor and a hearty laugh, the cardinal has an impulse to retreat from crowds and usually is seen in public only at official functions requiring his presence.

"His whole concern is his work, and his interests centre around that," one of his associates said.

Yet there is warmth about him that wins confidence and quickly puts visitors at ease. His office in St. Michael's Palace is simple, the atmosphere friendly and the formality that one might expect to surround a prince of the Roman Catholic Church is reserved for occasions demanding it.

POPE'S RECOGNITION

When Pope Pius XII raised Archbishop McGuigan to the College of Cardinals he told him he did so because of:

"Your absolute loyalty to the church and to this apostolic see; your great interest in Catholic education as shown by your determination and success in providing high schools for your boys and girls;

"Your love for the missions through the Catholic Church Extension Society and your development of the propagation of the faith."

These qualities are still predominant in the cardinal who rarely has been involved in public controversy. His archdiocese is his first concern and he is most eloquent when the spiritual and physical welfare of his parishioners are concerned.

"I will sell my cross and my ring to give to our Catholic young people what you owe to them," he said, appealing for funds for high schools.

And, in connection with the present drive for churches, he told campaign workers:

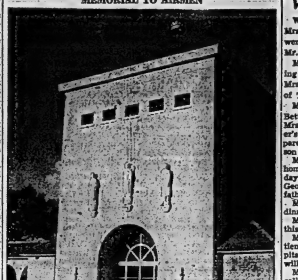
"You have no security, no matter how many bonds you have in your vault, no matter how many stocks you possess. The only security you have in this world is your trust in God. Without that and without your contribution to God according to the needs of the times, all your worldly possessions mean nothing. They can perish overnight with one simple bomb."

'Paris of East' Wears Battered, Blackened Face

By LARRY ALLEN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)— This "Paris of the East" wears a new face. It is battered, blackened, twisted girders and shattered furniture of homes destroyed in civil war.

In the city's pockmarked opera house, in the heart of Saigon, are clustered nearly 1,000 men, women and children living on food gifts from relief agencies. The only symphony heard there now is of want and hunger.



On the streets a thousand more lie under mosquito netting or on straw matting, sheltering each other from sudden beating tropical rains.

Raps Hospitals For Not Seeking Accreditation

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian hospitals which have taken no interest in standardizing their procedures have been rapped over the knuckles.

Dr. Kirk Lyon of Leamington, Ont., has told the biennial meeting of the Canadian Hospital Association only about 40 per cent of Canada's 1,853 hospitals with 22 beds or more have shown interest in the association's accreditation plan, started two years ago.

Under the plan hospitals are surveyed for safety, maintenance, medical, surgical and nursing service, and documentation.

Dr. Lyon, chairman of the Canadian commission on hospital accreditation, said only one-third of Canada's hospitals have met the standards.

"It must be evident," he said, "that if we believe in this program there is much yet to be done in Canada."

He said 16 hospitals across Canada were rejected for accreditation last year, while another 38 had received conditional accreditation.

Commonest reason for rejection was fire hazard. Others included poor housekeeping; unethical practices by the medical staff; poor operating records, especially unnecessary operations, which he called "excessive removal of normal tissue"; too many caesarian sections in birth delivery, and poor organization and clinical records.

Vietminh Troops Take Over Port

HAIPHONG, Indochina (AP) — Communist Vietminh troops converged on Haiphong Tues. to take control of one of Southeast Asia's biggest seaports as French Union forces paid the last instalments in the price of peace in Indochina.

Trim, clean-cut fighting men of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh, wearing straw sun helmets and snappy jungle-green uniforms and wielding rifles and pistols, rumbled into the suburbs in long lines of Russian-made Molotov trucks.

As they hoisted the red yellow-starred flag of Ho Chi Minh's Democratic People's Republic of Vietnam, embittered, muttering and disillusioned French soldiers and officers bounced southward in long convoys of jeeps, trucks, armored cars and tanks.

British Envoy Meets With Chou

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's charge d'affaires in Peiping saw Communist China's Prime Minister Chou En-lai recently to discuss the Formosa situation, it was learned Tuesday.

The envoy, Humphrey Trevelyan, sought clarification of Chou's offer during the recent Afro-Asian conference at Bandung, Indonesia, to discuss the Formosa issue with the United States.

The Foreign office here said Trevelyan's call took place Monday, but disclosed no details.

Two Mechanical Masterminds Move Into Election

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Two mechanical masterminds have moved in on the British election campaign.

Electronic brains known as "Leo-gabac" and "The Deuce," they are the first to be used in computing British election results and trying to forecast the outcome after the close of polls May 26.

The Deuce, 4½ feet high and 14 feet long handled by an operator at a desk in front of the sloping control board, will work for the BBC. It gets its name from the full title, "digital electronic universal computing engine."

The brain, which was unveiled last February, will roll out progressive vote totals and figures on seats won and will also attempt to calculate the swing or trend toward any particular party.

Past trends will be fed into the brain beforehand and it will try to make comparisons which will indicate the outcome of this election.

Logabac—equivalent of 126 adding and calculating machines—is getting a trial run from the Conservative party which rented it for the election. It will run through the results of borough elections already held and provide information which might help the party detect any trends to be applied to the forthcoming national voting.

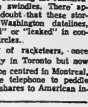
BIRD IGNORES BORDERS

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—A duck banded on the Arkansas pass refuge near here in 1951 was reported killed at Kvesta bay in Russia last spring. Refuge manager Julian Howard said Monday he learned of the duck's flight in a report from the Washington office of the U. S. fish and wildlife service. A Russian official relayed the news to Washington from Moscow.

Probing of Stock Racketeers May Be Instituted in U.S.

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—A move is quietly afoot in United States congressional circles to launch a full-scale Senate investigation of stock racketeers who peddle phoney securities to American investors from across the Canadian border.



There's nothing official yet but bits and pieces of information popping up on the Washington scene indicate the build-up of a pressure campaign to steer the powerful banking and currency committee into a formal inquiry into the stock frauds.

Stories are appearing periodically in American newspapers saying that such an inquiry is being considered by one committee or another and outlining the ramifications of the swindles. There appears little doubt that these stories, under Washington datelines, are "planted" or "leaked" in congressional circles.

They tell of racketeers, once based mainly in Toronto but now believed to be centred in Montreal, who use the telephone to peddle their hey-day, took in a million dollars a day. Another says they have clipped U.S. investors for $1,500,000,000 over the last decade.

The problem is a long-standing one. Two years ago, Canada and the U.S. tightened up their joint extradition treaty to cover this type of crime The Ontario Securities Commission also increased its safeguards and most racketeers moved eastward to Montreal.

Porter Sees No Grounds To Prosecute MLA

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Porter of Ontario said Tues. he has seen no evidence on which a prosecution of James S. Dempsey of Renfrew for alleged breaches of the Elections Act might be based.

He was asked about a letter from Eamon Park, Ontario CCF president, inquiring whether such a prosecution is planned.

Mr. Porter said all he knows about the Dempsey case has come from press reports which in some cases have appeared inconsistent.

FOUR MONTHS LIMIT

"There are apparently documents which I haven't seen which are in the hands of federal authorities," he added.

Government authorities said the Elections Act provides that any such prosecution must be launched within four months of the offence complained of

6th Sidney

6TH SIDNEY — Mrs. Vera Sine visited her son, Mr. Carl Sine and Mrs. Sine over the week-end.

Several ladies attended Uniondale W. I. May meeting at home of Mrs. Bert Bush, 4th line.

Mother's Day was observed on Sunday. Many thanks are due the decorating committee for their lovely floral arrangement. Arlene Doddz read the story of Isaac, his birth and dedication. Mrs. Farmer read a story on prayer, where the boys explained it as a conversation with God, the boys talking to God, then waiting for His answer.

Rev. W. E. G. Dovey spoke on "Christian family week," showing the responsibility of parents. He used as text, "Bring up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Generally speaking, the influence of mothers can make or break a home. There is no telling how far a goodly influence can spread — the same with an evil influence.

The influence, good or bad, lives on from generation to generation. Examples were given from the Bible. We must learn to employ God's ideals and do without so much hustle and bustle — more Godly living and more consecrated living in the homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sine and Betty spent Sunday with Mrs. Morton and Leona in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Dafoe and boys spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gray and Mrs. Lloyd, 4th line, the occasion being Mrs. Lloyd's birthday.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

HIGH COST OF FUCK-CHASING

Belleville has officially joined the select circles of Ontario hockey centres which finished the 1954-55 season "in the red." It was announced at the city council meeting Monday night that the Memorial senior "B" hockey club had a reported deficit of $4,183.

It is a sad state of affairs and a general one, which merely emphasize how costly it is to promote a hockey team and the gamble the sponsors take. Taking everything into consideration there appears to be put one answer to the future success of hockey, both here and in other places—cut down the overhead.

It was stated at the council meeting that one of the reasons for the deficit was the lack of support on the part of the hockey public. While this is true it is extremely doubtful if the attendance of normal years would have overcome the high cost of operation that has become increasingly apparent the last three or four seasons.

There is no indication that fan support will increase in the future. In fact the opposite has been the case in most leagues. Several reasons for the decline in attendance can be advanced, such as television, unemployment, tighter money and increase in admission prices. But when you come to the final analysis the same result boils up—expenses are too high. And the biggest expenditure is the salary list.

If it is any consolation, Belleville is but one of the six teams in the Eastern Ontario senior "B" group to finish the season "in the hole." It is stated that Kingston was the lone entry to report a profit.

Actual figures are not available for all the clubs. Cornwall reported it lost $2,400. Brockville about the same. The Peterborough team played to the smallest box office in the group. Whitby's deficit is not known.

The fact that these clubs were operating at a loss is exemplified in the fact that mid-way through the season, Cornwall, Brockville and Whitby threatened to leave the group unless more support was forthcoming.

And that the high cost of player operation was the bugbear was proven by the fact all three clubs decided to remain in the field after a "new arrangement with the players" had been reached. The Petes stuck by their guns on a purely player operation effort. And the national "cut of the melon" was an added inducement. This amounted to some $1,900 per club. This "melon" was made possible by the donation of 15 per cent of the gross take to the group fund, five per cent of which was returned during the season to offset transportation costs. The Belleville donation was $3,500. Figure it out.

It has been stated that the city arena commission will not sponsor the hockey club next season. It is further stated that a private sponsor is being sought in such a case. The club would a man in his right mind be considered if he took a franchise that has been a losing proposition for the past two years, and with no sign of lessening of operational costs?

It looks to this corner that Belleville will be without a senior hockey club until there is a general movement all over the province to cut overhead, mostly player salaries or a private "sugar daddy" willing to spend money for the fun of losing it.

The transition of sport to business . . . big business . . . has been taking place for years. The reasons? The National and other professional hockey leagues and greedy sponsors who operate at a win-at-any-cost basis. The National League scouts "and lifts" scores of the cities and hinterlands for promising junior talent. Once located a prospect signs a vicious "C" form for a "bonus", and his hockey life is tied up forever with the club he signs with.

Junior "A" players once demanded fantastic salaries. In fact the situation got to the point where a year ago the CAHA ordered a maximum of $60 a week for these beardless players . . . a bridge that was easily crossed by some clubs.

In the upper brackets intermediate and senior clubs were allowed a certain number of imports. Competition became keen. Sponsors went "shopping." So did the players. It was a case of the highest bidder getting the product he wanted. The "roundup" usually started in the spring, with the "amateurs" under contract. As the situation developed, prices became higher. Salaries of from $100 to $125 per week were paid senior "B" players, if they had a record.

Then the local situations arose. The home-brews demanded their cut of the spoils or a salary. This demand was met, with the result operational costs of clubs gradually mushroomed until the present status. Now the toll is being taken. Clubs drop out of competition each year. It is doubtful if the famous Quebec League, an out-and-out professional loop, will function next year. From all parts of the province come stories of staggering losses by clubs and arenas and in some cases communities. It cost the Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, club $40,000 last season.

A few years ago junior "B" hockey flourished in Belleville. The Belleville Hockey Association, junior division, a group of business men sponsored the club, with a working agreement with the Chicago Black Hawks. What happened is history. It was the same story. Exorbitant costs of operation, with player salaries and expenses the big item. The junior "B" club folded. Nor will it return under present conditions.

We are not aware of the financial condition of the city arena commission. We do know that senior hockey is the arena's main source of revenue. If a senior club is not operated here next season, what are the chances of the arena continuing in operation? It is doubtful if other sources of revenue will pay for year-round maintenance.

It has been said that a new community centre like that of Kingston will provide the answer. All that is necessary is about $750,000.

There are many citizens who feel that a new community centre is needed here, especially if senior hockey is to be continued. As a matter of fact, with the present tremendous cost of operation of hockey clubs, new arenas built for customer comfort and capacity is the only answer to the hockey problems in many centres, unless, of course, there is a general movement all over the province to cut down these costs, which is unlikely.

And with these costs still rising, centres like Belleville with occupied arenas, will find it impossible to operate at a profit, even if they have capacity "houses" every night of play.

White Sox Take Place Spot With 4-2 Win Over Boston; Newcombe Flings One-Hitter

By The Associated Press

Bob Lemon finally is catching up with the New York Yankees.

They're the only outfit that has an edge on the big Cleveland righthander, building it up during that five-year championship reign from 1949 through 1953.

Lemon, the 34-year-old ace of the Indians' pitching staff, has had six seasons of 20 or more victories since switching from third base back in 1946.

Lemon split even in two tries against New York this season by beating the Yanks 5-4 Tuesday night, with the help of Don Mossi.

His victory was his sixth of the season, against that lone defeat by the Yanks last week, and it tumbled New York into third, three games behind the pace-setting Indians. Chicago took over second by defeating Boston 4-2 in a day game.

TIGERS LOSE

In two other night games, Washington moved into fifth, knocking off Detroit 7-4 while Baltimore was living it up with a 21-5 romp over Kansas City.

It was the same old story with a new twist for Detroit. Rookie Ryan won another, but Don Newcombe tossed himself a one-hitter in beating the Tigers 5-0 and facing the minimum of 27 men.

Pittsburgh surprised Milwaukee and while St. Louis nudged Philadelphia 3-2 in 10 innings and New York beat Cincinnati 8-4.

Lemon had the Yanks grabbing at straws for six innings Tuesday night, giving up four of their six runs in the second period in the fourth inning. The four singles scored two runs, but Lemon was still on the hook.

His lead was 5-4 by the seventh when two singles sandwiched around Andy Carey's triple brought in two Yank runs. That's when Mossi, another California guy, strolled in and fanned Elston Howard and Bob Cerv in pinch-hit assignments to end the threat.

NEWCOMBE TOPS

At Chicago, Brooklyn had a romp with Newcombe breezing all the way. He now has faced only 33 men in 11 innings, the shortest stint ever. Gene Baker's single in the fourth Tuesday was the only hit off him in that stint.

Duke Snider homered for the Dodgers' first run and Warren Hacker to start the Brooks to their 11th straight success and 22nd in the last 24 games. It left Newcombe at 4-0 for the year and gave him his first shutout since Sept. 29, 1951 the spent 1952-53 in the army.

An eight-run eighth inning—all after two were out—sent the Pirates into their fourth straight over the Braves. It was the Freese brothers—Gene and George—who left Milwaukee out in the cold. George knocked a two-run single in the eighth and Gene smacked a grand slam.

TWO-RUN HOMER

The White Sox made the jump past the Yankees on George Kell's two-run homer in the eighth, giving Harry Dorish his first victory of the year. Jim Rivera and Chico Carrasquel also homered to give Tom Brewer his fifth setback without victory and send Boston to five straight defeats.

Johnny Antonelli and Willie Mays a pretty potent combination as the Giants won the pennant last season, got together again to knock off the Redlegs. Two of Cincinnati's seven hits were homers by Wally Post and Chuck Harmon, but otherwise the Giants' lefty ace had little trouble beating the Redlegs for the seventh straight time.

Mays homered twice, one a two-run blast in a four-run sixth that beat Johnny Klippstein and shoved New York above .500 for the first time.

Slugging Don Mueller, who has been in 21 straight games and tops the National with a .421, missed the game because of an ankle injury.

Rookie Bill Virdon's two - run homer snapped a seven-game Cardinal losing string. Stan Musial homered too, as rookie Luis Arroyo fanned nine and gave but five hits for his second victory.

Leafs Sign Billy Harris

TORONTO (CP) — Slender, 19-year-old Billy Harris has signed a contract with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Leafs general manager Hap Day announced today.

Day said signing of the University of Toronto student is "our first move to fill the big gap left by Ted Kennedy's retirement."

Seven years a member of the Leafs' amateur organization, Harris was a potent goal-producer with this year's Marlboros OHA Junior A team in his march to its first Memorial Cup in 26 years. In 24 playoff games, he scored 15 goals and 24 assists.

Johnson Was Victim of Dope, Governor Suspends Pro Boxing

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A state athletic commission doctor Tuesday reported Harold Johnson was drugged before his nationally televised fight last Friday. Gov. George M. Leader promptly suspended all professional boxing in the state for 90 days, except for bouts already arranged.

Dr. Alfred S. Ayella, jr., commission physician, turned in a report to Leader and the athletic commissioners which said a barbiturate, such as seconal or amenobital, caused Johnson to collapse after two rounds of his heavyweight match with Julio Medevez at the arena.

Ayella said other possible causes of Johnson's collapse were ruled out in the four days of tests, adding "there was no evidence of any pre - existing medical condition which could account for Johnson's symptoms."

Leader termed the whole affair "shocking" and said the report "leaves no doubt that Johnson was drugged and further that knowledge of Johnson's condition was available to his handlers prior to the entry into the ring."

Leader said the commission was starting at once to look into all the circumstances surrounding the affair. Police reported Johnson was a 4-1 favorite the day before the fight but at ringtime the odds had dropped to 2-1.

A Philadelphia police source said three members of the narcotics squad had been assigned to work on the case. Meanwhile, Johnson was still confined to his hospital room under 24-hour police guard.

The police source said Philadelphia authorities were inclined to discount Johnson's post-fight story that an orange given him by a stranger was the cause of the trouble. Johnson said the stranger gave him the orange after the weigh-in ceremonies and he didn't eat it until shortly before fight time.

Leader's statement said:

"If there are individuals or groups of underworld control in boxing who would not hesitate to endanger human life for whatever nefarious purposes they might have in mind, and under the present circumstances, it would appear that they were obviously sinister, it is indeed high time for the sports loving public . . . to have a most searching investigation of the entire sport."

Individual trophy winners in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association, 1954-55 season presented with their trophies at the annual presentation party held at the Capitol Theatre last Saturday morning. Approximately seventy hockey players were present to cheer the city champions and trophy winners. Also present were movies for the occasion and receive treats and free ice cream.

Bowlers Plan For Opening Of Season

The lawn bowling season is fast approaching and those interested in the advancement of this pleasing pastime gathered at the clubhouse of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club over the week-end for the spring meeting. Plans were well advanced for a successful season.

It was the opinion of those present that a general clean-up program should be inaugurated, and that the work should be done by voluntary labor of the members. It is likely that the fence surrounding the greens will be painted and many of the shades on the lights will be replaced in order to give more light and preserve the bulbs from burning out too quickly.

The opening of the season was discussed and this was left entirely in the hands of the greens chairman, Sam Johns. Incidentally, the greens came through the winter in fairly good shape. Some of the grass was winterkilled but with patient tending the bowlers had the grass in beginning to peep through and it is expected that there will have the same fine greens they have had fit former years.

The season opened over the Victoria Day holiday there will be a local mixed fitting event, with Bruce Miller as chairman, and Bill Wright in charge.

CHAIRMEN REPORT

Other chairmen to report were those of membership, tournament and club games. Considerable discussion was heard on classification of the bowlers of the club and it was moved that a secret committee be appointed by the president, Orville Smith, which committee to make a selection of the club officers, greens and leads and this selection be accepted by the club as a whole. Gerry Wade, chairman of the Gordon Gold Cup trophy, and Bruce Miller, secretary, reported to the meeting that plans are already started for the holding of this trophy competition at Civic Holiday, and the president urged that every member support all the activities that is possible to make it the success it always has enjoyed.

NEW TROPHY SECURED

Claude D. Tick notified the meeting he was endeavoring to secure another trophy to be played for mammoth triple tournament to be played locally on August 20th. He announced that he had been in correspondence with the Toronto Argonauts football club to sponsor this event and in conversation with Argonaut manager of the firm, Doug Delaney of Kingston, today, the company has agreed to supply the tournament and supply the prizes as requested. This will be a tremendous boost for the club and it is expected the largest entry for the year, excepting the Gordon Gold Cup, on hand. More details of this tournament will be announced later in the season. It is likely a special committee will be appointed to chairman, Percy Graham, will be appointed to handle the tourney.

Of his 58 fights, he won 38 by knockouts and nine by decision and intervention.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Player and Instructor

The historian who first described a pitcher as a "mound magician" understood not all of pitching. The ability to keep a batter off balance by throwing the ball at different speeds with the same motion, to confuse him by hiding the ball in his view until the last possible moment, and to distract his attention from the pitched ball by various arm and leg motions, often means the difference between success or failure for the pitcher.

Dazzy Vance, one of the all-time stars of the Brooklyn Dodgers, developed such an effective camouflage that baseball officials barred it as unfair. He rigged into ribbons the lower part of his undershirt sleeve so that the ribbons waved in the air as he threw the ball, and the batter had trouble following the flight of the ball.

However, there are many acceptable methods of distracting the batter, such as swinging your gloved hand in front of your throwing hand as you pitch. Early Wynn, Virgil Trucks and Preacher Roe are masters of the art of keeping the glove in front of the ball to hide it from the batter, while other pitchers get help from the leg kick particularly by such hurling artists as Warren Spahn, Bob Feller and Van Mungo.

'Big Newk' Tossed Only 96 Pitches In First One-Hit Shutout Effort

CHICAGO (AP)—Even if the Brooklyn Dodgers don't win all their remaining games, Walt Alston will be "manager of the year" as far as Don Newcombe is concerned.

"With the start we've got, I don't see how he can miss being named manager of the year," said Newk, who last week was suspended by Alston for refusing to pitch batting practice, then 24 hours later was relented after a $100 fine.

"I've always liked Alston," continued the strapping righthander who faced a minimum of 27 batters in a record 3-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

"This is a great club and I didn't feel I was much a part of it pitching in batting practice instead of in games. I didn't want to appear to be defying Alston. I just wanted a chance to help the club keep winning . . . It was the best game I ever pitched, but that suspension didn't make me bear down any harder. I always bear down everytime I go out on the field."

HAD ARM TROUBLE

Newcombe had records of 17-6, 19-11 and 20-9 for the Dodgers before entering military service in 1952. After his return, he had arm miseries and plugged along for 9-8 in 1954 with a hefty 4.56 earned run average.

"My arm feels great now," he said. "But I haven't let my arm go for number of wins. I'll never do that. I just want a chance to pitch, that's all. Right now I haven't been told when I'll go again."

In leading the blazing Dodgers to their 11th straight victory in a fantastic start of 22 decisions in 24 games, Newcombe threw over 96 pitches for his first one-hit shutout. Eighth inning relief specialist, 34 curves and one change-up.

He struck out six Cubs and walked none. Only six batters were able to hit the ball beyond the infield.

Cockell Camp Alerted By 'Dope' Scare

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It might not be common knowledge, but there has been a serious "nobbling" fright for the last several days in the Brooklyn camp of Don Cockell, the British challenger for Rocky Marciano's heavyweight title.

We might not have heard of it at all, except that Cockell is important enough to look through London's weekend sports pages. It's pretty heavy stuff as it is related to millions of British fans by a dozen special correspondents on the spot.

"Nobblers Guard for Don Cockell," shouts the headline in the London Herald. "Dope Scare Alert's Cockell Camp," says The News Chronicle. "Cockell Camp Puts Ban on Food Gifts after Drug Scare," cries The Daily Express in black type.

FEAR MICKEY

To "nobble" a man—or a horse—in Britain's heavily-betting preserves roughly, to slip him a mickey. The alarm in the challenger's camp rose last Thursday when, from the suspicion that Harold Johnson, the ex-light heavyweight champ before his bout with Julio Medevez last Friday night in Philadelphia, another story broke.

"Immediately the Cockell camp heard of this," the Herald told its readers, "manager John Simpson impounded every packet of Johnson's favorite beverage—sent to the British champion by well-wishers—and sent for his first meal.

"Up to now anybody has been permitted to pay a dollar to watch Cockell at his work-out but from today special guards are being posted at the gymnasium entrance to check the credentials of everybody going through."

Andrews Rallies To Beat Slade

BUFFALO (AP)—Paul Andrews of Buffalo made his heavyweight debut a successful one Monday night, coming off the floor to win a unanimous 10-round decision over Jimmy Slade of Jersey City.

Andrews finished strong after Slade, alternately cut and tough, piled up an early lead and dropped Andrews for a mandatory eight-count with a hard right to the jaw in the third round.

Andrews, 22, - ranking light heavyweight weighed 183½. Slade weighed 182¾.

Death of 'Little' Tommy Burns Recalls Colorful Old Days

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tommy Burns, only Canadian ever to win the world heavyweight boxing crown, died here, Tuesday at the age of 74.

"He died of a heart attack," said coroner Glen McDonald.

Born Noah Brusso in Hanover, Ont., Burns fought the best all over the world, retired at his life was till, aged and ailing, he turned against the ring and devoted his life to religion.

He came here a month ago from his home at Coalinga, Calif., to visit John Westaway, leader of the John Westaway Society, formerly the Temple of Christ Healing.

He is survived by his widow, Coalinga and a son-in-law who is an evangelist.

Westaway said Burns was choking downstairs at his home when he suddenly sat down on a step and called him.

"I went to him, but he was gone," Westaway said.

Burns will be buried here.

During his long life Burns was prize-fighter, gym owner, speakeasy operator and evangelist.

In his early fighting days and before, Irish-named fighters ruled the heavyweights—such as John L. Sullivan, Gentleman Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries.

So, Noah Brusso became Tommy Burns and went on to rule the division himself.

Only five-feet-seven-inches tall and weighing 175 pounds in his prime, it took Burns more than five years of battling to reach the top. And when they called him a pseudo-champion because he did not win the title by the ring from some officially-reigning champion.

He held his disputed title only three years before losing it to a younger Jack Johnson, the great Negro fighter who trifled him halfway across the world.

Burns rose to the title through a fight between Marvin Hart and Jack Root at Reno, Nevada on July 2, 1903. Hart stopped Root in 12 rounds and Jim Jeffries, retired heavy titlist who was referring, presented the title to Hart.

Jack O'Brien outpointed Hart's right to the crown and claimed it himself. Then, on Feb. 23, 1906, Burns defeated Hart in 20 rounds to claim the championship. He boxed Jeffries twice with a 20-round victory in Los Angeles over O'Brien on May 6, 1907.

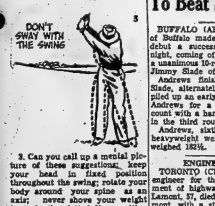
Burns fought seven more times in 1908, winning easily in London, Dublin, Paris and Sydney, Australia.

It was in Sydney that Johnson caught up with him. The bait that stopped Burns was a $30,000 guarantee—unheard of until then.

They met Dec. 26, 1908, and Johnson prolonged Burns' agony as long as he could, tearing away at him but refusing to put him away. Police stopped it in the 14th.

He quit for four years, returning with a string of four wins—over Bill Long in Australia in 1912, Bill Richard at Saskatoon the same year, Arthur Pelkey in 1913 in Calgary and Tex Foster at Prince Rupert five years later.

His 1920 comeback fight—against Bill Beckley in London—ended with Burns being knocked out for the only time in his career.



Burns fought a gob in London and made it a meeting-place for ring fans. He made a fortune. In the 20s, he operated a speakeasy in New York.

He suffered a bad attack of arthritis and moved to California where, friends said, he "got religion."

Burns joined the Westaway group of fighters.

Of his 58 fights, he won 38 by knockouts and nine by decision and intervention.

Sam Snead's Golf School

3. Can you call up a mental picture of these suggestions, keep your head still, head position throughout the swing; rotate your body around your spine as an axis; never shove your weight back to the dotted line position shown in the illustration? If you can you are getting something out of these articles. If you sway to the outside position these things will happen the least of which will be that you'll top the ball or miss it. Don't sway with your swing, instead rotate, or revolve, from the address position. Remember that the head must never move throughout the backswing and downswing until the ball is away. Some of our very best golfers do use a slight, sliding - forward hip - action at the bottom of the downswing. But it's such a delicate maneuver and so filled with potential danger for the average golfer that he should stick to the idea of no body sway. Revolve, don't sway.

'Mad Russians' Here Friday

The Kalmikoff Brothers, whose rugged ring methods have earned them the name of the Mad Russians, will put their Canadian Open tag team championship on the line in the feature wrestling bout at the Memorial Arena on Friday night. They'll face the challenge of the top-flight twosome of Whipper Watson and Pat Flanagan, an experienced partnership that formerly held the team honors themselves.

The Whipper and Flanagan hope to dazzle the rough-shod, beard-od-brothers with speed and the precision team-work that's made the challengers one of the outstanding outfits in competition. Tex McKenzie will oppose Lee Henning in the semi-final; Chief Sunl Wee Cloud will wrestle Tom Collins in the first bout.

Jethroe Stars But Leafs Lose to Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The International League set back its opening day a week this year to avoid bad weather, but it didn't entirely succeed.

Buffalo, for example, which had three games postponed because th weather, was the only league playe Tuesday night in a drizzle and cold weather. In the only other game, the league-leading Montreal Royals had their game with Rochester and Wings called off because of rain.

The Bisons outlasted Toronto Maple Leafs 8-7 before a small turnout of 629.

Rookie Steve Demeter's second homer of the year with two men on in the first inning allowed Bob Schultz to even the season's record to one victory and one loss. Buffalo scored four runs in the first and three in the second off first Toronto hurler.

Sam Jethroe starred in three runs for the Leafs with four singles in four attempts.

Ex-Canadian Heavyweight Champion, Spent Later Years as Evangelist

TORONTO (CP)—Tommy Burns, only Canadian to win the world heavyweight boxing championship, who died in Vancouver Tuesday, spent the later years of his life as an evangelist spreading universal love. He termed boxing "vicious and full of hatred."

In February, 1954, while he was in Toronto as guest of the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association annual celebrities dinner, Burns told an interviewer he was "just starting to work real well."

He said he was no longer interested in the boxing game, although he followed it, fights over television "once in a while."

"I've got something better than that now. I have room for my fellowman," he said. "My main object in life is to help the sick and the distressed."

He blamed his loss to the great Jack Johnson at Sydney, Australia, Dec. 26, 1908, on the "power of hate." Police moved into the ring and mercifully stopped the bout in the 14th round with Burns badly beaten.

"I had the power of hate when I fought Johnson," Burns recalled. "I hated him so much that I beat myself and hate nearly put me in my grave because I took a terrible beating."

Tommy campaigned around the world after his title loss to Johnson and his last bout was in 1920—when he was 39.

After that he blossomed out as a pub owner in Dublin, operated a New York speakeasy and was an added attraction in a burlesque show. He "got religion" in 1928 after a severe attack of arthritis.

"Doctors sent me home to die, but Tommy Burns refused to die," he said, "with the power of Gospels outlined with love I was before in two months."

He carefully steered the conversation from his boxing career and handed out evangelical typewritten cards bearing the words:

"Compliments of Tommy Burns, former world's heavyweight boxing champion. A demonstrator of universal love."

On the reverse side of the card was the following:

"Dear Friend,

"Friend, when you love, you are happy — you radiate that inner smile. Continue in this love and it becomes universal. Love is eternal. Love is life. Love is the harmony of Christ. Love lies deep within all life. . . ."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Xhibitor

The big trouble with your double is usually your partner. He may not understand when your double is for penalty and when it is for takeout. It could lead to worse than bloodshed.

If partner has already bid, your double is always for penalty. If partner has not yet bid, your double is for takeout if made at the first opportunity and the bid is not more than three in suit.

All this is pretty well known to those who play much bridge. But some do not carry the takeout double rule far enough. They are inclined to consider only one double as takeout.

Actually, the rule for takeout doubles is far beyond the first double. A player may double two or three times and still keep it within the rule of takeout, inasmuch as partner.

Sit west in the deal shown here:

	♠K 4
	♥8 7 3
	♦A Q J 9 7 2
WEST		EAST
♠A J 10 8 6		♠9 5 3 2
♥K Q J 10 5		♥9
♦5		♦10 8 6 5 3
♣K 4 3		♣10 7 2
	SOUTH
	♠Q 7
	♥A 8 4 2
	♦K 4
	♣Q J 8 6

Let the bidding go like this:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Double	1 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Double	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♦	Double

Your first west double was for takeout. So was your second a takeout double. So was your third double for takeout. You still asked partner to take you out. How does he know?

Your double was made at the first opportunity. The opponent still bid in more than three. Your partner has not yet bid. All three of the takeout double requirements still exist.

If at any previous time east had bid (anything except pass), the conditions for a takeout double would no longer exist. Or if you had bid before either double. Or if the bid was four or more.

You may well ask: "What if you would have to defend for penalty the bid of two or three by either opponent." The answer is that your double does not mean penalty under existing conditions.

You would have first defended with a bid of one spade and then doubled for penalty. Or bid one of your suits on the second round and then your double would have been for penalty.

A double is either fish or it is fowl.

NOHA Clubs Deep 'in Red'

Forced to retrench by cutting down on players' salaries, said to have been as high as $200 per week, the five senior "A" clubs in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association may interlock with the six OHA clubs for the 1955-56 season, provided suitable arrangements can be worked out between the two organizations, says the Hockey News.

Although the NOHA clubs in some cases averaged around 4,000 attendance for league games, the four qualifying teams for the playoffs, Soo (Ontario) Greyhounds, North Bay Trappers, Soo (Michigan) Indians and Pembroke Lumber Kings, all lost money on this season's operations, to the extent of amounts reported to range from $10,000 to $20,000.

The strange part of the picture is that the Sudbury Wolves, last season's champions, the only club failing to make the NOHA playoffs this season, finished the season on the right side of the ledger and wrote a balance in black ink in their ledger, amounting to about $8,000.

During the 1954-55 season the two wealthier clubs, Soo Greyhounds and Sudbury Wolves, subsidized the other three clubs to the extent of $10,000 each in order to keep them in the league this season. Neither Soo and Sudbury clubs say they will have no part of such a deal again.

AT THE McCARTHY

The French Have a Name for It —Odile Versois

Scintillating Odile Versois, the most enchanting of French actresses, has just that misty-eyed quality that can readily move a huge theatre audience to tears—whether they be tears of sadness or of laughter.

Just what the exact quality is, is difficult to say. The French simply look puzzled, shrug their shoulders and reply . . . "Mlle. Versois is . . . French".

The implication, of course, is that a Frenchman or woman, just naturally possesses such qualities and if Odile Versois is typical of her countrymen, you are we to doubt it? We are still trying to recover from her exquisite performance as Anna in "The Young Lovers."

Now in "To Paris With Love," a sophisticated comedy, in Technicolor, starting tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, Odile is seen in the role of a humble, but most winsome Parisian shop assistant, who makes the heart of a middle-aged British visitor (Alec Guinness) miss a beat—and ours as well!

Radio Networks Plan Strong Measures to Halt Decline

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — The radio networks, much harder hit than individual stations by television's inroads, plan strong measures to try to halt the decline in their fortunes and audiences.

NBC Radio, starting June 12, will toss out its entire weekend schedule to inaugurate what it calls, a new concept in radio programming. Entitled "Monitor," it will be a continuous integrated schedule of news, music, discussion and entertainment from 8 a. m. Saturday to midnight Sunday.

CBS Radio is breaking with tradition to keep most of its major shows on the air right through the summer, traditionally the time for lightweight replacements. Bing Crosby, Amos 'N' Andy, Rudy Vallee, Art Linkletter and others will continue to be heard.

ABC Radio is putting heavy emphasis on frequent newscasts during weekends and revising its sales pitch to sponsor. ABC emphasizes the strength of its programs in daytime, when radio still has a bigger audience than TV.

SALES DOWN

Mutual, only one of the radio chains that never ran into TV network operations, has notified affiliated stations of a forthcoming announcement of an entirely new approach to radio network service. It's to be announced May 22.

In contrast to the radio networks, individual stations have fared much better. Total broadcast time sales for radio in 1954, including both stations and networks, were estimated by Broadcasting-Telecasting Magazine at $435,000,000. That was down only five per cent from the record high of $477,000,000 in 1953. But national radio network accounted for only $76,000,000 of the total compared with nearly $93,000,000 in 1953 and nearly $134,000,000 in 1948 when network radio reached its high. So far this year network radio is running 18 per cent behind a year ago.

The answer is that individual radio stations are relying less on network programs and sponsors and more on local shows and sponsors. The networks hope to reverse the trend.

MANY NEW STATIONS

But there are some bright spots in the network radio picture and even more in the over-all radio situation. The sets showed a gain in business in 1954 of $1,000,000 over February, although their cumulative totals remained behind last year.

Radio gained 140 new stations last year and now has more than 2,700 standard stations and 500 FM stations in operation. And manufacturers' production of radio sets, which generally reflects retail demand, is running 40 per cent ahead of a year ago and well in excess of 2,000,000 sets a month.

SEASON BEGINS MAY 23

CHATHAM (CP) — Western Counties Baseball Association Senior-Baseball League will open its 60-game schedule May 23 with all six entries in action. Windsor East End is at Strathroy in a floodlight game. Blenheim goes to Dresden and Bothwell to Chatham.

AT THE CAPITOL — Dreamers Cary Grant and Myrna Loy dream of their country home but they face the nightmare of reality when they build it in "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House". Melvyn Douglas also stars in this RKO Radio re-release of the gay and witty film opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program and having its first city showing "The Cattle Queen of Montana", in Technicolor starring Barbara Stanwyck and Ronald Reagan.

Dennis O'Keefe Well Prepared For Future in Movie Industry

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "There comes a time in every actor's life when he has to think about the future."

This truism comes from Dennis O'Keefe, who not only has thought about the future. He has done something about it.

"In a few years, I would have to start slipping out of leading parts and into character roles," he remarked. "If an actor is of the calibre of Walter Huston or Lee J. Cobb, the transition isn't hard. He can become a character actor and make good money at it. But lesser actors don't face as promising a future.

"And as I grow older, I feel the urge to do the things I enjoy doing. When you're young, you're more interested in making money and you take whatever parts come along. But as you mature, it becomes more important to do the things that satisfy you."

A good many actors aim at directing as their life's ambition, but not many achieve it. O'Keefe now has, and he couldn't be happier.

He nurtured the idea for years, but when he broached it to producers, they would bluster, "Shut up and get back to the set!"

Observed O'Keefe: "I had chances to direct—but on a 15-day schedule. That's too tough for a guy who would be trying to learn. Stars like Robert Montgomery or Burt Lancaster could have long schedules when they start directing, but it was impossible for me."

O'Keefe got his break in Europe. He starred in, wrote, directed and produced a picture called "Angels" in Italy. Still unreleased, it already appears to be a success for him. The picture was bought by Columbia and will be released by 20th Century-Fox.

Windmills in Netherlands Becoming Scarce Quantity

By STERLING SLAFFEY

REEGEN OP ZOOM, The Netherlands (AP)—Windmills for tourists to have their pictures taken in front of are getting scarce in the Netherlands.

There were 8,000 of the big breeze-catchers 100 years ago, but wars, fire, decay and the advance of modern machinery have cut the number now to 1,100.

That is a serious trend. To the Netherlands, the windmills are what the pyramids are to Egypt, the Alps to Switzerland and the Eiffel Tower to Paris. Without windmills the Netherlands would have only its wooden shoes to fall back on as a major tourist attraction.

A big effort is under way along the polders, dikes and canals to save as many old mills as possible, both for their value as backdrops for tourist pictures and because they do a pretty good job of pumping water away or grinding grain.

HELP CREATE FARMS

Much of the land here once was not land at all. There was water all around. Farmland was scarce. About 1330 some unknown genius looked at a windmill that was being used to grind a crop, probably corn, and decided it could be made to lift water. Along with improved dikes, the water-lifting windmills turned underwater land into dry farm land—or polders — in the years that followed.

Some still pump water out of flooded areas, grind corn, saw wood, husk rice, mash oil from seeds, provide power in making paper and prepare spice. Two mills near Rotterdam still grind snuff for monasteries in France just as they did hundreds of years ago.

The Dutch do not claim they invented the windmill. The credit goes, probably, to the Persians or Arabs of a thousand or so years ago. But the Dutch brought windmills to a fine level of efficiency and usefulness.

In the Zaan valley there once were 900 mills—a big wheel every 100 or so yards. Today there are few in the valley. Power pumps do much of the work.

Weddings once were traditionally announced by dressing up windmill sails with bunting and streamers.

In the lovely old city of Utrecht, there's a monster windmill which serves as a grocery store and residence, but its working days are over. The grinding mechanism has long been cut of commission.

GERMAN TOURISTS WIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Germany's touring Nuernberg football club defeated the United States National Soccer League all-stars 5-3 Sunday in Hanson Park Stadium for their third victory in four games in their American tour.

TB STILL A PROBLEM

TORONTO (CP) — Canada now has the fourth lowest tuberculosis death rate in the world, but despite great advances the disease remains one of the country's major health problems, Health Minister Martin said Thursday night. Addressing the annual meeting of the Ontario tuberculosis association, he said Canada's aim should be to have the lowest TB death rate in the world.

First Hurricane Of Year Will Be Named Brenda

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Who will be Miss Hurricane of 1955 — Brenda? Stella? Yvonne?

Regarding of which tropical storm ends the wildest swath, it still have a brand new name.

Alice, a rare out-of-season creature and the first hurricane of 1955, came too early and for that reason she was given the same name as the first of 1954.

Those still to come will have names selected by a committee of navy, air force and weather bureau officials to avoid confusion with storms already on record.

NOT LADYLIKE

Hurricanes are totally unladylike creatures, and giving them feminine names created something of a disturbance itself last year after Carol, Edna and Hazel brought death to 279 persons and property damage totalling more than $1,000,000,000. All three raked the northeastern United States and eastern Canada after whirling up from the tropics.

This year's Alice was far less formidable. She popped up in January to lash the Caribbean islands of the Lesser Antilles with 75 m.p.h. winds.

The next hurricane will be named Brenda. Her successors will be called Connie, Diane, Edith, Flora, Gladys, Hilda, Ione, Janet, Katie, Linda, Martha, Nelly, Orva, Peggy, Queena, Rose, Stella, Trudy, Ursula, Verna, Wilma, Xenia, Yvonne and Zelda — if the season runs that long. Last year the list stopped with Hazel.

FIVE-MONTH SEASON

The normal hurricane season runs from June 15 to Nov. 15.

Gordon Dunn, chief forecaster of the storm warning service here, said "We intend as a regular procedure to place areas under a hurricane alert when a storm threatens and is 36 to 48 hours away."

"An alert is not a warning, but merely tells the public to keep in touch with future advisories.

"Actual hurricane warnings, whenever practical, will be given 12 to 24 hours in advance. There are instances when these storms generate close to a coastline and sweep across within 12 hours. At other times they lag along until caught in a jet stream, then quickly develop a swift forward movement.

"In such circumstances shorter warning periods may occur but in general a minimum deadline of 12 hours for warnings can be met."

Half Century As Jurist Marked By St. Laurent

QUEBEC (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, celebrating his 50th anniversary as a jurist, says he has always tried to make cooperation with all Canadians the keynote of his distinguished career.

"We must remain what we are—the sons of our ancestors, but we must not sever the providential link that binds us to all other Canadians," the prime minister declared at a dinner attended by French-speaking Canadian judges and lawyers.

The dinner was tendered by the Quebec City Bar Association to mark 50th anniversaries of Mr. St. Laurent and six other members of the legal profession. Political allegiances were forgotten.

"I have the sentiment that in practice of law I have helped maintain ancestral traditions," Mr. St. Laurent, who spoke in his native French, said.

"The law is not only a list of things to do and not do, it is the synthesis of the rules of good conduct as outlined by our forefathers and all civilized men living in society, way back to the days of the Roman empire."

STIRLING

River Valley W.I. Hears Fine Address on 'Hydro Safety'

STIRLING.—On Thursday 21 members and three visitors were in attendance at the regular meeting of River Valley Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Bob Philp.

The new president, Mrs. Roy Bush, opened with the ode and prayer and a sing-song. Mrs. Ralph Ulman presided at the piano. The new secretary, Mrs. Thomas Hanna, gave a full report and read a large number of thank-you notes.

The president read a farewell letter from Miss Anna P. Lewis, who recently retired from the Toronto office. She was married on April 16, and will reside in Guelph. A copy of her wedding and photo taken from a Toronto paper was displayed.

Mrs. Ross Bush gave a full report of articles in the school cupboards.

Folks who are eligible to use the chairs and tables are to telephone the president or secretary when they wish to borrow them.

Ovations were extended to several folks who had contributed special work during recent weeks.

On motion it was decided to give the teacher and janitor $5 in recognition of their assistance during the winter months.

Mrs. Ed. Hosman reported for the district executive meeting. The West Hastings district will convene at Sidney Baptist church, on Tuesday, June 7. Chatterton W.I. will provide a 50 cent box lunch. Four delegates will vote from River Valley. The department representative will be Mrs. Ethel Hayes.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ken Morrow, with Mrs. Don Donohoe, convener, and flower slips will be exchanged.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen will give the address.

The president spoke of the Folk School which will be held this summer at a cottage. The Extension Service booklets were distributed and routine business discussed.

HYDRO SAFETY

Mrs. Percy Ulman presided over the program and Mr. Bruce Servos of Frankford, gave an informative address on "Hydro Safety." He said rural Ontario is recognized as one of the most highly electrified farming areas in the world. The head office is located in Toronto. For the purpose of administration, the province is divided into nine regions with regional offices located at London, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Barrie, Belleville, Ottawa, North Bay and Port Arthur.

Each region is divided into rural operating areas under the supervision of the area manager. There area offices operate the local rural hydro systems and answer all enquiries regarding service as their staffs are familiar with local conditions, they are able to assist and Ontario Hydro's motto is "The gifts of nature are for the people."

Mr. Servos is area manager in Frankford. He displayed several hydro booklets that would be of interest to farmers, explained the new hydro bill; demonstrated how to read a meter and return the postcard, and said this assistance saves many dollars.

ELECTRIC ENERGY

The speaker gave a vivid description of electricity and how it is generated by way of water power, hydro stations, transformers and lastly your home. Electricity is an energy which cannot be stored. He explained conductors, voltage, kilowatt hours, breaker boxes, panel boxes and fuses.

Mr. Servos emphasized that adequate wiring is a necessity in every home for safety measures. The appliances in use today use more electricity and so wiring done 20 years ago is not adequate for these high speed appliances like electric tea kettles, clothes driers, irons and toasters.

The speaker warned re the use of high voltage fuses, worn appliance cords, and demonstrated effectively what can happen when the circuit is overloaded.

Mr. Servos also said he did not wish to scare his audience but that he was pointing out many hazards that can happen in any farm home. He gave several special points to avoid shocks, and fire.

INTERESTING FILMS

The department has several films that would be of interest. Mr. Servos answered a number of questions and explained the proper way to telephone in for an emergency call.

Mrs. Don Donohoe voiced grateful thanks to Mr. Servos for giving his time as well as his informative address.

The convener read an excerpt on the motto, "Kindness is like grain, it increases as it grows."

Mrs. R. Hulin and Mrs. H. West sang two duets in keeping with "Mother's Day" and Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh read two appropriate poems on the same theme.

The roll call on Mother, was omitted and the lunch committee serving sandwiches and cake, closed a profitable afternoon with thanks to the hostess for hospitality.

A box of individual gifts each nicely wrapped was packed for a life member who is ill in hospital.

Major Railways Invest $850,674,823 In New Rolling Stock in 8 Years

By FORBES RHODE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Miles of shiny new equipment—passenger cars, freight cars, locomotives—are streaming on to the rails across Canada.

Few Canadians and few Canadian communities have failed to hear the jingle of the money it costs as it is paid out for wages and materials and passes from pocket to pocket in ever-widening circles.

It put it into figures: In the years 1946-54 inclusive Canada's two major railways invested $850,674,823 in new rolling stock and they are still at it.

MEET MODERN NEEDS

The Canadian National Railways put into service 867 new passenger cars, 38,982 freight cars, 321 diesel locomotives, six steam locomotives and 288 pieces of work equipment.

The Canadian Pacific Railway put on to the tracks 541 passenger cars, 29,984 freight cars, 471 diesel locomotives, 100 steam locomotives and 194 pieces of work equipment.

New passenger cars of both railways would make a train some 23 miles long and the freight cars a train 375 miles long—or about the rail distance from Montreal to Windsor, Ont.

Passenger cars are glamor exhibits of the new equipment. They represent attempts by the railways to coax Canadians, of whom one in eight has never made a train trip, into becoming bigger rail travellers, and attempts to turn the money-losing passenger service into a profitable one.

The problem of making passenger service pay is common to all North American railways but it is emphasized in Canada by the combination of long distances and relatively sparse population.

LUXURY ACCOMMODATION

To coax the public, railways have on hand brought out a wide range of roomette, bedroom, compartment, drawing room and lounge cars to provide comfort, privacy and luxury for those who want it and are willing to pay for it.

On the other hand they have gone all out to attract the far larger group of travellers and potential travellers who wish comfortable low-cost transportation without frills. For them railways have provided modern day coaches whose seats recline into restful positions at the touch of a button.

Other passenger-coaxing attractions include mid-week and family-group fares, and dinette cars with lunch counters, which can provide a meal for less than $1.

Most dramatic expressions of service and cost are seen in the transcontinental trains—virtually mobile hotels—operated by each railway between Montreal and Toronto and Vancouver.

FASTER TRAINS

New fast trains on these runs have jumped the wealth of equipment constantly on the move between East and West — but before their advent each railway had its trains speeded across the country to maintain a daily cross-country service.

Each train may have as many as 21 cars and, including express, baggage and postal employees, a crew of 27. Each may carry rolling equipment worth as much as $2,300,000 for a total of something like $100,000,000 for both railways.

Traffic patterns will determine how much cost the new trains will add. A day coach costs around $130,000; a parlor car $190,000; deluxe roomette and bedroom-buffet lounge, each about $200,000; and a dining car $490,000. The unglamorous work-a-day freight cars of various types—box cars, flat cars, tankers and many others—provide the financial lifeblood of the railways.

Perhaps their outstanding operation is in the movement of the wheat crop when at the peak season the two railways assemble some 46,000 cars in a vast movement of loaded cars from the farms and country elevators to storage points and seaports, and of empties returning to be filled again.

ADVENT OF DIESEL

Locomotive figures reflect displacement of the steam locomotive by the diesel. CNR put its last steam locomotive into service in 1949 in Newfoundland and its last in other provinces in 1946; and CPR put its last into service in 1948.

The diesel, however, may itself be a passing phase if experiments with coal-burning turbine locomotives are successful, or if atomic power takes to the rails.

The new equipment does not represent a net increase in numbers because thousands of pieces of depression- and war-weary rolling stock have been retired.

The CPR, for instance, while acquiring 29,984 new freight cars, retired 24,420. At Dec. 31, its inventory showed, with net increase from Jan. 1, 1946 in brackets:

Freight cars 81,122 (5,585); passenger cars 2,896 (177); locomotives 459 (421); steam locomotives 1,322 (decrease 225); work equipment 6,548 (1,033).

CNR INVENTORY

CNR's inventory showed: freight cars 115,902 (16,825); passenger cars 2,749 (378); diesel locomotives 615 (578); steam locomotives 2,133 (decrease 365); work equipment 9,168 (1,741).

The two railways plan the following new equipment deliveries this year:

CPR: 740 freight cars; 87 passenger cars; 97 diesel locomotive units; two work equipment units.

CNR: 320 freight cars; eight passenger cars; 120 diesel locomotive units; two work units.

Across Canada, from New Glasgow, N.S., to Vancouver, 36 establishments, including the railways' own shops, have rolled out most of the new equipment—three plants in Nova Scotia, one in New Brunswick, nine in Quebec, 15 in Ontario, four in Manitoba, three in Alberta, one in British Columbia.

In 1953 alone, the last year for which full figures are available, they produced equipment worth $238,321,229; paid $118,098,350 in salaries and wages to 33,447 employees, and used materials worth $119,882,257.

Niagara River Will Not Be Exploited--Moses

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Moses, chairman of the New York State Power Authority, has declared in a letter that private power companies are "not going to be allowed to exploit" the Niagara river.

The letter was addressed to Earle J. Machold, of Syracuse, N.Y., president of the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation.

Referring to Niagara Mohawk and four other private power companies, Moses wrote:

"Let's be sensible. You gave up the fight to get the St. Lawrence some time ago. In the end, you are not going to be allowed to exploit the Niagara either.

"SAVE THE CASH"

"You may as well get reconciled to this fact, save the cash you are wasting on attacks and propaganda and work with the authority."

Charging that private utilities once "made a shambles of our side of the Niagara frontier," while Canada "protected, saved and improved" its heritage on the other side, Moses declared:

"You are not going to get another opportunity to grab any of our greatest remaining natural state resources."

Machold's brief letter of reply, dated Saturday, said he was "grateful" Moses did not "minimize" the job the utilities had done in the state, and agreed with Moses "fully" that present power should be increased.

PROMPTED BY BOOKLET

The Moses letter was prompted by a private power industry pamphlet entitled "There is no Power Shortage in New York State."

"We are interested only in the development of state-owned hydroelectric power on the St. Lawrence and Niagara rivers," said Moses.

"The rights to these flows of water belong to the people. They are inalienable and cannot and will not be given away to your private group or any other."

As to rates, Moses said "You do not mention the little fact that your domestic rate in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls area is about twice that charged by Ontario Hydro across the border."

INSTALL ESCALATORS

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of Maple Leaf Gardens are making it easier for some of their customers.

Four escalators valued at $170,000 will be ready in September to carry patrons to the second-story blue sections. Those in the greens and greys will have to take to stairs at the end of the escalator run.

England, With Most Seats, Holds Key in British Vote

Canadian Press Staff writers have toured England, Scotland and Wales to assess the political atmosphere in the current British election campaign. This article tells of the narrow balance in some English ridings. Tomorrow: Scotland.

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—England is the crucial cockpit of the British general election. She has the most seats and seems most susceptible to the sudden gusts of opinion that change governments.

Of 630 seats at stake in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the political destiny of 511 will be settled on English soil. There are 71 in Scotland, 36 in Wales and 12 in Northern Ireland.

The English total compares with 506 in the 1951 general election, five being added through redistribution. The lineup last time was 372 for the Conservatives, 232 for the Opposition Labor party and two for the Liberals.

Three Canadian Press reporters who made a pre-election tour in England, Scotland and Wales reached the general conclusion that little change can be expected in the latter two countries. If any big shift develops, it may be in England.

MANY MARGINAL RIDINGS

Politically, the country is hard to classify. Although it is broadly true that the south of England is predominantly Conservative, just as the mining valleys of Durham and Yorkshire are wholeheartedly for Labor, most areas are mixed. Marginal ridings are scattered across the country.

Nevertheless, the Conservatives speak of "solid" Surrey and Sussex and consistently do well in such counties as Kent, Cornwall and Devon. Rural areas usually favor the Tories, too, though less overwhelmingly than in the past. Labor's strength is mainly packed in the industrial towns.

East Anglia may be the most sensitive region in the May 26 election. Seen on a map, this is the stubby area bulging out on the east coast between The Wash on the north and the Thames on the south. Its counties include Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex, Cambridgeshire and Huntingdon, and it is possible the election could be decided here.

Many seats are held by a fragile sail grip. A slight trend either way could be vital. Of six seats in Norfolk, the Conservatives won two in 1951 by majorities as small as 537 (King's Lynn) and 443 (Norfolk Southwest).

In Norfolk North, Labor had a tenuous edge of 279. The average British constituency has about 58,000 voters.

ANYBODY'S GUESS

East Anglia participated 10 years ago in the general swing to the left that surprisingly propelled Labor into power. The Conservatives regained ground in 1951 but organizers say it is anybody's guess what will happen this time. Possibly Tory optimism runs higher but last January's by-election in Norfolk South discourages any expansive feelings. Here the Conservative majority slipped from more than 3,000 to 500.

Two factors may influence results in Norfolk and Suffolk. In both counties, Labor has won a substantial share of the farm vote in an area which was the cradle of the National Union of Agricultural Workers. Another point stressed is that Norfolk particularly has a strong Liberal tradition. In a two-way fight between Labor and Conservatives, this could decide the issue.

Now let's look at an industrial city on the east coast. A reporter visiting Manchester found both big parties convinced that the key seat will be Ardwick, where the Labor member, L. M. Lever, had a majority of 4,418. Redistribution has put it in the marginal category.

"We will hold it," said a Labor party spokesman. Conservative headquarters countered by predicting a Tory majority of 1,500 to 2,000.

"If we can take Ardwick, we will probably get a majority of about 100 in the new House of Commons," said a party agent. For the 3½ years of the retiring government, the majority was under 20.

The nine Manchester seats were five for Labor, four for the Conservatives. The Liberals contested only one seat in 1951, Blackley, where the sitting member was a Conservative, E. S. T. Johnson, once a rancher in the Canadian Cariboo. This time the Liberal standard is flying only in Withington, a solid Tory constituency.

A Liberal spokesman, who declined to be quoted by name, said the decision of ex-Liberal MP Lady Megan Lloyd George to join Labor might have an effect on the "wavering" voter in his area.

"We had a bit of a drive on, partly because of our better showings here in council elections, and Lady Megan's action will make it harder for us. But it will make no difference to the solid Liberal voter."

As with most Liberal spokesmen, he acknowledged that the big problem is to try to make people feel that their vote won't be "wasted" if they decide for the Liberals. Many who feel attracted to the Liberal cause vote Labor to keep the Tories out, or vice versa.

"Why vote for the Devil to keep Satan out?" is one Liberal answer.

The two sitting Liberals in England, Donald Wade in Huddersfield West and A. F. Holt in Bolton West, won the constituencies in straight fights against Labor, the Conservatives having withdrawn under regional electoral understanding with the Liberals. It is a measure of Liberal weakness that only one of its six members of the last Parliament conquered both Labor and Conservative opponents. He was Joseph Grimond, winner in Scotland.

Issues in this first May election for 26 years have not yet developed sharply. Organizers in areas visited complained that elections have tended to become centralized under the impact of radio and television.

LOSS OF COLOR

"The people get their information from national sources these days," said a Tory worker in Manchester. "This tends to make local issues less important. It takes some of the color away, too."

The most common comment on this fourth post-war election is that people generally just aren't interested. The Conservatives claim this is a sign of a contented electorate and add that the apathy may disappear when the campaign really gets going.

A lively regional issue concerns the Lancashire cotton industry, hard hit by Japanese and Indian competition. Labor and Conservatives both pledge measures to aid the industry. Some Liberals take a more detached view, contending that at least part of the trouble lies within the industry, regarded as too prone to price-fixing arrangements and unwilling to face the changing times.

The full slate of candidates will not be known until May 16. Both the big parties are expected to contest virtually every seat and the Liberals about 120, of which perhaps 100 would be in England.

Postpone Ceremonies

OTTAWA (CP) — Ground-breaking ceremonies for the St. Lawrence seaway, scheduled for June, have been postponed indefinitely. The delay will not affect work on the project, already in progress.

The formalities had been planned for an unspecified June date at Cornwall and Massena, N. Y., across the river. Announcement of the postponement was made in a joint statement by Hon. Lionel Chevrier, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, and Lewis G. Castle, administrator of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp. of the United States.

A simultaneous statement by Drummond Giles of Cornwall, chairman of a Canadian committee on the ceremony, said the delay was caused by "unforeseen and unpredictable obstacles to the proper celebration of this important event."

CAMPBELLFORD

J. F. McGregor Honored for 50 Years' Service

CAMPBELLFORD—The Parish hall here was packed to capacity on Wednesday evening, when nearly 100 citizens gathered to honor John F. McGregor, who completed a half century of service to the town this year.

Mr. McGregor was appointed clerk of the corporation on January 24, 1920, by by-law 1777. Prior to that he had served as acting clerk and also on the Public Utilities Commission. He is now 74 years old.

Mayor R. J. Locke acted as chairman of the meeting, and ladies of the parish guild served a turkey dinner.

A. J. Meyers, for some time chairman of the PUC, presented Mrs. McGregor with a bouquet of red roses, saying that she deserved a great deal of credit for opening her home in such a manner that Mr. McGregor could devote himself to the duties thrust upon him by the town.

GUEST SPEAKER

R. N. Carr was guest speaker of the evening. He told of some of Mr. McGregor's accomplishments, and described his life of service to the town, his services to the town in an advisory capacity were invaluable, and his knowledge of municipal affairs gained through his lengthy service, saved much time and helped to guide councils along the proper paths. Mr. McGregor recalls the building of the Trent Canal, and probably knows more about the history of the town than any other person.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation by Mayor Locke, on behalf of the citizens of the town, of a 21-inch television set to Mr. McGregor, who was deeply moved, and said that he was unable to find words to properly express his appreciation.

BOYHOOD ADVENTURES

Speaking of his early life, Mr. McGregor told of some of his boyhood adventures in the town, and of some of the troubles that beset at that time could get into. He described how he came to be appointed clerk and the circumstances leading up to the appointment.

Although he is still secretary of the Public Utilities commission, of which his son, Robert J. McGregor is chairman, Mr. McGregor retired as clerk on January 1st, this year.

He is widely known for his humor and knowledge of mechanics. Following the banquet, Mr. McGregor and his wife mingled with the guests talking over highlights of his municipal life and thanking all those who came to honor him.

Shirley and Raymond Stevens gave a novelty number entitled, "A Paper of Pins" as an added feature on the program.

Leaders of Hitler's Wehrmacht Say War Could Have Ended Sooner

By DANIEL DELUCE

BONN, Germany (AP) — Ten years ago the shooting stopped in Germany. The war was over, but arguments would go on for years about how it was fought. From the perspective of a decade, how does it look today? Did the Allies make grave mistakes? Could the war have been ended sooner?

Some of the leaders of Hitler's Wehrmacht say yes. And they single out one thing which, they believe, gravely delayed Allied victory in Europe. It was the pronouncement issued at the Casablanca conference in 1943: "unconditional surrender."

The demand was made in remarks to the press by President Roosevelt Jan. 24, 1943. Prime Minister Churchill was present.

WERE BLUNDERS MADE

Five former high German officers, now prominent in civilian life in the West German republic, were asked by The Associated Press, for the 10th anniversary of VE-Day to reply to this question:

"In your opinion, did the Allies make blunders which prolonged the war, and if they had followed some different course of action, could they have brought about the earlier surrender of the Reich?"

Replies came from:

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, president of the Stahlhelm, a veterans organization, and last commander-in-chief in the west.

Gen. Guenther Blumentritt, now a military historian, who was chief of staff in the west in 1944.

Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel, now a Free Democrat deputy in Parliament, who commanded the 5th Panzer Army in the Battle of the Bulge.

Vice - Admiral Helmuth Heye, now a Christian Democrat deputy in Parliament, who commanded one-man torpedoes, frogmen and all small combat units in the war.

Col.-Gen. Hans - Juergen von Arnim, commander of German forces in Tunisia in 1943.

Next to "unconditional surrender," these ex-commanders listed the Allied decision to invade southern France instead of the Balkans as a factor lengthening the war. All regard the Normandy landings in retrospect as a military masterpiece without a major flaw.

Their replies included these views:

Kesselring: "After Stalingrad, or at latest after the fall of Tunis (May, 1943), it was apparent that German victory could not be counted on. Wise, far - sighted Western policy—if Casablanca had not stood in the way—could have worked for a peace settlement that would not cripple future progress, and perhaps could have shortened the war one to two years.

"In no case should the southern French landings have been carried out after the Normandy invasion had gathered such extensive ground. An attack through the Balkans, or from northern Italy, into the area east of Vienna would have stopped the Russian advance outside of occidental terrain. With this and a speedup of the Allied advance in the west, the war definitely could have been ended in 1944."

STRATEGIC MISTAKE

Blumentritt: "Had the Anglo-American armies been able to mount a large combined offensive at the beginning of September, 1944, German defence west of the Rhine would have been broken down completely."

Manteuffel: "The big strategic mistake, in my opinion, was that the Allies did not land in the Balkans. They would then have encountered less resistance than, even in southern France."

"The halt of the Western armies at the Elbe in 1945 was a political-military mistake, which left Berlin, the capital, to be captured by the Soviets, and did not take advantage of the opportunity to run over weak forces on the Elbe and further shorten the war."

Heye: "I regard the Allied invasion of southern France as a decision of extraordinary importance, which in its consequences can certainly be regarded as a missed opportunity.

"Just as Churchill proposed in the First World War to break the ring of central powers at one of their weakest links, namely the Dardanelles, I believe, in studying the Second World War, that Churchill was on the right track, not only politically but also militarily, in proposing the invasion of southeastern Europe."

Von Arnim said the North African campaign might have been shortened by months had the Allies pursued different strategy:

"After Rommel, contrary to expectations, was not cut off at El Alamein, and by, by two Allied divisions, from Tebessa directly to the Tunisian coast, which would have separated the two Axis armies in Africa, Rommel would have run out of supplies in six days and been forced to surrender."

"He's psychoceramic."

"What's that?"

"Crackpot," replied the boy.

Japan May Become as Big Buyer Of Canadian Wheat as U.K.

By FORBES HUDDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP)—Japan may become as big a buyer of Canadian wheat as the United Kingdom is today.

This one possibility alone illustrates the stake which Canada has in the full recovery and prosperity of her trans-Pacific neighbor.

It is only one of many commercial and international political interests which are drawing some 50 Canadians to Tokyo for the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce May 15-21.

BIG CUSTOMER

Japan is already Canada's third biggest customer, with purchases in 1954 of $96,500,000—far behind United States purchases of $2,312,000,000 and Britain's $632,000,000, but ahead of any other country.

Leading purchases by Japan from Canada in 1954 included:

Wheat $51,000,000, which was about one-third of all Japanese wheat imports; barley, which the Japanese mix with rice, $13,000,000; wood pulp $6,500,000; flaxseed $3,800,000; iron ore $3,700,000; asbestos $2,300,000.

The potential market in Japan for Canadian wheat is described by one Canadian observer as tremendous—based on increasing population, rising standards of living, a post-war — developed taste for wheat, especially among the younger generation; and Japanese millers' liking for Nos. 2 and 3 western hard.

Expressed in bushels Japan took 4,416,379 bushels of wheat and flour in the crop year ended July 31, 1954 while the United Kingdom took 82,039,682. In the period July 1, 1954, to March 31 this year Japan took 15,470,260 bushels and the United Kingdom 70,976,696.

RECOVERY A FACTOR

Increased purchases of wheat, like purchases of anything else, depend upon Japanese recovery from economic problems left over from the war—problems with which she could at present scarcely live without help from the United States.

Even in present circumstances, however, Japan is regarded as an expanding market for certain Canadian products, even though her purchases dropped $22,100,000 in 1954 from 1953's $118,600,000.

In 1954 wheat was up in volume but down in price; barley was down because of poor 1954 grades; flaxseed was up $2,400,000; iron ore was down and in this Canadians apparently were losing ground to Asian suppliers.

Canada on her part bought $13,-800,000 worth of goods from Japan in 1953 and $18,300,000 worth in 1954.

This gave Canada a big surplus in trade between the two countries and Japan would like to see this levelled off somewhat. However, the picture may not be as disadvantageous to Japan as it looks because Japanese purchases are mostly of primary products which she needs.

BOUGHT FROM JAPAN

Canada's top purchases in Japan in 1954 were iron and steel wellcasings $1,487,000; oranges $1,477,-000; toys $1,272,000; cotton manufactures $712,000; fresh tuna fish $705,000; canned tuna fish $605,000; plywood $644,000; wool gloves and mitts $604,000; silk clothing $363,-000. Other items were under $300,000 each.

Canada's attitude towards import trade with Japan seems to run about as follows:

Canada buys some $4,000,000,000 worth of goods from other countries and it is up to Japanese business men to compete with businessmen of other countries for their share of the Canadian market. She can do this in a wide range of goods, especially of a capital type, which do not compete to any great extent with Canadian producers. Other countries didn't build up their Canadian markets overnight.

In goods which compete with Canadian products, Japan's businessmen are advised to use good judgment, to compete at prices and under conditions which will not be considered unfair in Canada, and to avoid steps which might disrupt Canadian markets.

In an international political way Canada, as a north Pacific country, looks at Japan with probably even more concern than in a commercial way.

ASSET TO FREE WORLD

She sees Japan as a skilled and disciplined reservoir of manpower and the greatest integrated industrial establishment in the Far East —a potent asset to the free world and a tremendous loss to the Communist world if she should fall within the West's orbit.

In Canada's view, too much attention cannot be given to solution of Japan's problems so that she may re-establish her economic independence.

As one solution, which would relieve her of too much dependence on dollar markets, Japan is attempting to re-establish her former position in Southeast Asia. To this end she has joined the Colombo plan for assistance of Southeastern Asian countries and is contributing technical knowledge and skills.

On both the trade and diplomatic fronts Canada has ironed out most of her post-war or potential difficulties with Japan. The two countries have signed agreements on commerce, civil aviation and other matters, and Canada has supported Japan's entry into the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

On the whole, however, considered opinions seems to be that neither Canada nor Japan know enough about each other's trade possibilities or their importance to one another as Pacific neighbors.

MARMORA

Five Children Receive Rite Of Baptism

MARMORA—Centred with the administration of the sacrament of baptism to five infants, the special Christian Family Day service at St. Andrew's United church on Sunday morning was most impressive to the large congregation assembled.

As in former years the teachers and scholars of the Sunday school participated therein with the special order of service issued by the Ontario Council of Christian Education, with only a slight deviation.

The regular choir was augmented by the junior choir and the pastor, Rev. K. J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., who officiated, was assisted by the Sunday school superintendent. James Sproul, who gave the call to worship, offered the invocation and announced the hymns.

FIVE BAPTIZED

The 100th Psalm was read by Mrs. James Auckland. A three-fold prayer with congregation, parents and children each taking a section, was led by the pastor.

The junior choir rendered "When Mothers of Salem", a prelude to the five baptisms, which embraced the following: Douglas Brent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Haggadorn; Kim Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith; Penny Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Neal; Christopher Eldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Killan; and John Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds.

The special solo, "The Boy Isaac", to follow at this point, was read by Miss Barbara Meiklejohn and the second story "Prayers in the Moonlight" was read by Miss Marion Reynolds, with intervening Scripture reading taken by Mrs. J. Auckland.

The closing prayer and benediction were taken by the pastor.

Flowers on the Communion table were in loving memory of the late Mrs. John Vanvelkenburg Sr., the gift of her family and baskets of delphiniums in the choir further beautified the interior of the church.

'Community Night' Attended By Many

MARMORA—Community Night' consisting of bridge, euchre and dancing was held by the Literary Society of Marmora High School in its auditorium on Friday evening, with a good attendance.

Prizes for best bridge players went to Len Begley, and Mrs. Albert Wells, Stirling, while at euchre, Leo Doyle and Mrs. Robert Gawley had highest.

Madoc

MADOC — Mrs. Jas. Kincaid accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fox on a week-end trip to Galt, Ontario, where they visited Mrs. Kincaid's son, Walter and Mrs. Kincaid.

Miss Margaret Derry, of Ottawa, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Derry.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Smith, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with relatives in Madoc.

Miss Hazel Thompson of Belleville spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. D. Carman.

Misses Joyce Fleming, of Scarboro and Marjory Fleming of Peterborough spent the week - end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Munro, of Stirling, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Duffin.

Mrs. Ed. Mann and Mr. Alex Mann, of East Lake, Pr. Ed. Co., spent Sunday with the former's daughter, Mrs. Ross Fleming, and Mr. Fleming.

TRINITY UNITED W.M.S.

Trinity United Church Women's Missionary Society held its May meeting at the home of Mrs. Joe Rollins, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Carmen was in charge and opened with words of welcome to members and visitors and read a quotation on "Faith".

Mrs. Empey, stewardship secretary, gave a short talk and offered prayer for the missionary, Miss Kilpatrick.

Mrs. F. Fleming reported on community friendship, and Miss Holmes on supplies.

The members were reminded of the summer bazaar, usually held in July.

Mrs. W. McCoy was in charge of the worship service and program assisted by associate members. For the worship service, she chose as her theme "Give And To Give". Mrs. Kenneth Gordon read the Bible story as related in Cor. 2-9. This was followed by a short meditation given by Mrs. Lawson.

A skit "The Business of the W. M. S." was put on by Mrs. Albert Bailey, Miss Holmes, Mrs. Arbic, Mrs. Bennet and Mrs. Storring. The story of how the money made by the societies was used in both overseas, home and foreign missions, was most interesting and informative.

Concluding with a review of the last two chapters of the Study book "India" entitled, "We must Share", appropriate hymns were used during the meeting.

A short social period followed with Mrs. Rollins and her assistants serving refreshments.

MADOC

Mother's Day Service Held At Trinity United

MADOC—A large congregation attended Mother's Day service held in Trinity United church on Sunday morning. The order of service for Mother's Day prepared by the Ontario Council of Christian Education, was used with the Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Wanamaker, in charge assisted by Jim Hatch and Bruce Duffin, who gave readings bearing on the theme "Parents, —First Teachers of Religion."

Special music by the senior and junior choirs in keeping with Mother's Day was sung.

The minister, Rev. J. K. Lane, gave a short address using as his subject "Standards of Worth and Character Building", reminding parents of the responsibility that it is theirs in the molding of the young lives.

A baptismal service was held and seven little children were baptized: the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fleming, Helen Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pigden, Noreen Florence, and the sons of Mr. and Mrs. R. Moon, Richard Anthony; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, Jack Donald and Brian Keith; Mr. and Mrs. Statham, Daniel Howard; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith, Stephen Raymond.

A basket of spring flowers were placed on the rostrum by Mrs. Ken Holmes and Mr. Keith Chambers in memory of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers and many more baskets of flowers were also on the rostrum.

Sea Cadets' Brigantine Has Masts Installed

KINGSTON (CP)—One of the few square-rigged sailing ships to be built in Canada in more than 100 years will soon be sailing Lake Ontario.

The 60-foot St. Lawrence II, launched last summer as a training vessel for the St. Lawrence sea cadets, had masts stepped or installed Saturday.

A brigantine designed especially for the cadets, the ship will sleep 22. Sixteen cadets are required to handle her 2,000 feet of sail.

Little Benny's Note Book

I've been saving some of my allowance on account of ma telling me I ought to get used to saving money instead of keeping on being used to spending it, and this afternoon it was still drizzling outside, and I was in ma's room, and I said, Hay ma, I've only been saving for 9 days and I've got 18 cents already.

That's a nice beginning, and now that you've put your mind to it, I expect to hear better and better reports, as time goes on, ma said, and I said, Anyways, time has gone on for 9 days now.

Exactly, and money is like time, if you just have patience it mounts up, ma said, and I said, Cmir G, ma, you cant stop time from mounting up, but you have to help money.

That's right, and you've been helping it very nicely, ma said.

Practice makes perfect, and some fine day will come when you'll find more pleasure in saving money than you do in spending it. Frugality is becoming a long lost virtue, and I'm glad to see you practising it, ma said, and I said, Well ma, will it be all right if I put on my raincoat and rubbers and go up to Weinstine's Novelty Store and see what I can get for 18 cents? This is the first time it's rained since I started to save, I said.

Well of all the sudden ideas, and what has the rain got to do with it for land sakes? ma said, and I said, Well jimminies, ma, you told me I was suppose to be saving for a rainy day, and this is one, aint it?

Of course it's not, I mean the kind of a rainy day I meant was a day when you'll have enough saved to buy yourself something useful that you really need, no matter what kind of day it is, ma said, and I said, Aw heck, ma, that's a heck of a way to twist the weather.

Which it was, but ma claimed I was the one that twisted it, and made me change the subject.

Textile Companies Impressed By Claims Made for New Yarn

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Textile companies in several parts of the world have been impressed by the claims made for the new durable yarn invented here by two experts in the defence department.

"Inquiries for permission to use the new spinning process have reached the department from several European countries, the United Kingdom, the United States, South America and Australasia, not to mention Canada. And they keep coming.

It could mean big savings in Canada's armed forces bill for uniforms and other textile-wearing equipment, if all the claims for the new spinning method prove true. NO MORE EXPENSIVE

The defence department makes these claims for what is termed the "engineerd yarn":

1. Cloth woven from yarn spun the new way has from five to 10 times the strength and wearability of ordinary materials;

2. The new spinning process can be easily adapted to existing textile manufacturing equipment;

3. Fabrics from the new-spun yarn will cost no more than those spun the present standard way and have all the good pressing qualities of present materials.

4. The spinning innovation can be applied to any fibre.

The tax-saving angle involved in a stronger, longer-wearing cloth for Canada's servicemen appears in the claim that material woven from yarn spun the new way will wear up to 10 times longer than present cloth, and annual clothing bill for the three services is about $25,000,000.

STILL BEING TESTED

Cloth from" "engineered yarn" however still must prove itself; it now is only in the testing stage. Inventors are confident it will pass these tests.

No licences to produce cloth from yarns spun the new way have yet been issued, but they are expected to be as soon as licensing details and royalty arrangements can be worked out. Several weights of material from the yarn currently are being tested by the Canadian Army and by U.S. and U.K. military forces.

Credit for developing "engineered yarn" has been given to two defence department research-ers: Col. H. A. Deleeuller and Dr. out in a matter of weeks.

Dr. Weinberger, educated in Geneva, Zurich and Prague before coming to Canada in 1939, once ran a rabbit farm in Nova Scotia for the provincial government. He tried to develop a strain of Angora rabbits with hollow hair that could be used for insulation purposes. As far as is known, the rabbits still have solid hair.

He has been an industrial consultant, specializing in textiles, with offices in New York and Montreal. An inventor most of his life, he also holds patents on a bullet-proof vest.

TEAM-WORK SUCCESSFUL

Col. Deleeuller was born in France in 1902. He came to Canada as a youth and studied at McGill University, Montreal, graduating with a bachelor of science degree in 1924.

During the Second World War he served in the Royal Canadian Artillery and filled several army posts around the capital before taking over his present job in 1952. In his spare time, he plays the cello in the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra.

A director of inter-service development in the department, Col. Deleeuller, former consulting civil engineer in Montreal and Ottawa, initiated the search for a stronger, lighter material for Canada's armed forces. He contributed ideas that Dr. Weinberger, who joined the defence department in 1953, added to his own several years of experimentation and fail-ure.

In the end, the idea for what Col. Deleeuller describes as "engineered yarn" popped up and was worked out in a matter of weeks.

"This is only the beginning of a new era in textile production," says Dr. Weinberger, 51-year-old native of Czechoslovakia.

"We have only scratched the surface of its possibilities," he said in an interview. "We cannot even guess where we'll end up."

SEE ANY FIBRE

The secret is all in the spinning. The thread is spun with two core of filaments, usually strong nylon, and these are wrapped with an other fibre—any other fibre. Thus the process can be applied to any fibre, building a powerful inner framework covered with material that is soft and pliable or tough and hard as required.

Samples of cloth from the new-method yarn shown to a reporter at the defence department ranged from a heavy, soft-wool similar to serge to a light, smooth material like gabardine used in many summer suits. The only apparent difference was in the amount of energy required to rip the new cloth—it required more to tear than standard materials of similar weight.

Just how much stronger and longer-wearing clothes woven from the new yarn will be is not definitely known, Dr. Weinberger said, "we don't know yet when it breaks, down."

The army is trying it in several hundred combat uniforms. It will be spun in heavier weights and from tougher fibres for trial in tents, sleeping bags and other textile equipment the army uses.

One weakness it could share with standard materials is the danger of the outer fibre fraying. A suit, say, might have a shiny seat in time just like present suits, though the new material likely would take longer.

In test runs at a few Ontario and Quebec mills, yarns have been spun the new way for cloth as light as four ounces. That's about right for shirts and dresses, underwear and the like.

Dr. Weinberger said it also could be applied to knit-wear such as sweaters and socks. About the only thing he wouldn't say it could be used for is the filigree yarn for women's stockings.

On the other hand, the process will turn out yarns for everything from stronger gloves for foundry workers to canvas, seat covers and material for luggage. Dr. Weinberger felt it could broaden the field in which textiles can compete to include items previously made of leather and similar non - woven materials.

Bluecoats Find It Hard To Forget No. 1313

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago police department is replacing its officers' stars with new badges, but the bluecoats are finding it hard to forget old star No. 1313.

Patrolman Charles Schwertgerbad No. 1313 in 1939. He and his partner were suspended, accused of shooting a youth. A civil service hearing cleared them but the youth's family filed a damage suit. While the suit was pending Schwertgerber died, in his 13th year in the 13th police district. His star was returned to the department May 12.

Sgt. Joseph Sevich was assigned No. 1313 in 1936. Within six years his wife, two daughters, a brother, his mother and father died. He asked for, and received, a new number.

HE DIED, TOO

John O'Bryant took No. 1313 in 1923. A short time later, a cornice fell from a building and knocked off his hat. He was uninjured. He said he wanted a new number. He changed his mind and kept No. 1313. A few years later he died at the age of 32.

No. 1313 was issued to Roy Dillon in 1922. He was suspended from the force three months later and never returned.

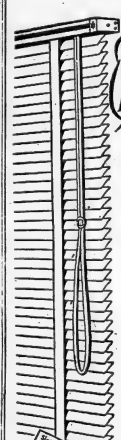
Howard Seabury now wears No. 1313. It was issued to him after he lost his original star. Since then he was bitten by one prisoner and fired at by another.

Asked if he would be glad to get rid of No. 1313, Seabury replied: "No, I'd like to keep it. I think I've worn the jinx right off it."

He may have a new No. 1313, buys the police department. So does one has to go. Not that there're superstitions, they added hastily.

Parents Urged Not to Use TV As Baby-Sitter

TORONTO (CP)—A CBC television official has urged parents not to use television as a baby-sitter.



Dr. Frederick T. Rainsberry, supervising producer of children's programs for CBC-TV in Toronto, said parents should watch television with their children. He was speaking to the conference of the Nursery Education Association of Ontario.

Dr. Rainsberry said that a child is unlikely to adopt anti-social attitudes from watching television if he or she is normal in social behaviour.

"At the same time the child will not be unaffected by his experience of television violence. So great care must be taken to keep down the number of cowboy and similar serials and select only the best of them."

Joyce Cornish Bowden of Toronto was elected president of the association, only organization of one-school teachers and interested parents' groups in Canada. Elected chairman of the professional section of the group which runs nursery schools in 11 Ontario centres was Miss Graham Stewart of Toronto. New directors are Miss J. Weir, Sarnia; Constance Ross, Kingston; Mrs. H. Shardlow and Beth Currey, St. Catharines; Mrs. C. E. B. Payne, Lambeth; Mrs. W. Swanson, Brantford and Mrs. C. A. Wight, Bowmanville.

HISTORY MADE AS FIRST ORE SHIPPED

Three Killed In Bomb Blast At Valcartier

Shown at the 85-foot level of the open pit mine at Marmora where they were viewing at close hand the operation of the company's skip hoist are, from left to right: Donald Gordon, CNR president; Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce; Ontario Premier Leslie Frost; Hon. Ralph Campney, Minister of National Defence, and His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton.

These men headed the impressive delegation of government, railway and industrial leaders that paid an official visit to the Marmora workings yesterday prior to ceremonies at Picton that saw the first load of Hastings County iron dispatched to the Bethlehem Steel Company's blast furnaces at Lackawanna, N.Y.

In the background of the above picture can be seen the mast of a mobile drill which was being put into the ore body that is expected to yield 20,000,000 tons in the next 18 years. (For more pictures see page 5)

Civilians Were Seeking Salvage At Big Army Camp

Woman Hurt Dogs Self Two Miles to Obtain Help

By SHIRLEY MORRIS

VALCARTIER, Que. (CP) — A three-age girl and two men died at Valcartier army camp Wednesday night in the explosion of a rocket they were collecting for scrap metal.

The blast which dismembered the three also seriously injured the wife of one of the men, but she was able to make her way for help.

Army headquarters in Montreal first reported the girl was the daughter of the couple involved—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Odilon Daigle—but sources at the scene later explained this report was in error.

The dead, all civilians, were identified as: Paul Odilon Daigle, 25, Marie Claire Daigle, 16, and Adrien Labranche, 21, all of St. Gerard-Majella, a community eight miles from the base.

Mrs. Odilon Daigle walked two miles for help after the explosion despite a badly injured arm. She now is in hospital where officials said they expect her to recover.

Army spokesmen said the group was dug up a rocket range for a prohibited road at the rear of the camp. They had collected about 50 unexpired rockets when they touched off the live one.

Officials said the victims apparently were collecting the rockets to sell the copper casings as scrap metal. They had parked their car just outside the camp limits and were carrying the rockets from the range.

The range is located more than a mile from the main barracks and the group apparently slipped past the sentry to reach it, army spokesmen said.

The army said the used rockets are usually left lying on the range for a time after they are set off. They are then collected by the army and sold.

The accident occurred about 10:30 p.m., but was not reported until about midnight. An investigation was launched early this morning.

The road at the rear of the Valcartier camp leads from the civilian village of Valcartier to Lac St. Joseph, a resort centre to the north. Provost officers patrol the rear of the camp constantly but the group apparently used darkness as a cover to sneak through, the army said.

An army spokesman said residents of the area have been warned repeatedly to stay off the ranges and that it has continued to go through to collect the scrap metal. Warning signs are posted.

"We do not want to find anybody in his right mind who travels inside the fenced firing areas and know he is taking a great risk," an army spokesman said.

Mrs. Daigle told police she lost consciousness after the explosion and ran over to find the dismembered bodies of her three companions lying beside the car. She then dragged herself to the nearest house for help.

FLOOD PROBLEMS OF SASKATCHEWAN BEFORE COMMONS

CCF Wants Payment For Flooded Lands

OTTAWA (CP)—The problems of Saskatchewan's flood - harassed farmers have been placed before the Commons in the closing stages of its budget debate.

Two CCF members from the province said Wednesday the federal government should pay $10 an acre for farmland flooded out of production as a result of last week's storm.

H. A. Bryson, Humboldt-Melfort proposed the payment be made on any land unseeded after June 1. A. M. Nicholson, Mackenzie, backed the suggestion and estimated it would cost about $20,000,000.

Henry Mang (L—Qu'Appelle) said fast action is needed to help farmers drain their land, especially in eastern Saskatchewan where three or four years of excessive water had deteriorated the topsoil.

They spoke as the budget debate which now has gone through 12 days and 94 speeches, neared its end. Expectations were that the debate would close Wednesday with a vote on a Progressive Conservative motion of non-confidence in the government.

James McBain (PC—Esdin) said the government should have cut the excise tax on cigarets to permit a three-cent reduction in the price of a pack of 20. He said the tobacco industry in his southern Ontario district "cannot continue to carry on under the huge burden of federal taxes." It had been forced to make a voluntary cut of 30-per-cent in acreage this year.

Before the debate, Prime Minister St. Laurent commented on a proposed meeting here with Alberta, Ontario and gas company officials about plans of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., to pipe natural gas from Alberta to eastern Canada.

He said he has told Premier Manning of Alberta that he hopes the meeting will make real progress in solving the problem of Alberta's export gas supplies.

APPROVE PORT AUTHORITY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The Buffalo common council Wednesday unanimously approved the city's participation in the newly-created Niagara Frontier Port Authority.

The council resolution affirmed 15 months of work by port authority backers. The port authority is envisioned by its backers as Buffalo's answer to the challenge of the St. Lawrence Seaway. The authority's principal source of revenue will be from the Buffalo International Peace bridge, which crosses the Niagara river between Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The weather will continue warm today and Friday in Ontario. A rain area is moving toward Lake Erie and will pass along its south shores. Some rain will reach western Ontario and the Niagara peninsula close to this rain area deadline and a few showers are likely in these regions Friday. In northern Ontario some thunderstorms and a few showers may be expected late tonight and Friday morning. Light frost in low lying area is again likely in eastern and central regions tonight.

Giant Lake Vessel Sails From Picton With Marmora Iron

Government and Business Officials Among Big Crowd

PICTON (Staff Special) — Perfect weather prevailed here Wednesday when some of Canada's foremost government figures and steel developers from the United States witnessed the first shipment of iron pellets from the Marmora Iron Mine near Marmora to make history in two counties. The ceremony took place on a cliff overlooking Picton harbor high above the giant ore carrier Powell Blackhouse at the dock readied to transport the first shipment across Lake Ontario. Some 3,000 people collected to watch the memorable event.

Harvey J. McFarland, chief magistrate of this bustling Prince Edward County community described the inaugural movement of Marmora iron products as the greatest happening in the history of Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Dressed in long black robes and wearing the official chain of office Mayor McFarland played host to important personages from three groups of government and U.S. and Canadian Bethlehem mining executives.

Mayor McFarland told 2,000 people gathered at the Bethlehem loading dock here "this is the most important day of my life." The event here was the climax to a visit to the multi-million dollar ore pelleting plant situated east of Marmora. Mayor McFarland welcomed Canadian government officials and "our good neighbors Bethlehem Steel people."

WILL REAP BENEFITS

Mayor McFarland said the children of Picton looked forward to would reap the benefits from the development of a new industry at Marmora.

Trade Minister C. D. Howe concluded that the opening of the Marmora enterprise was of importance to all of Canada as well as the local area. He revealed that he discovered the Marmora iron project by mistake a few years ago when he came to the county to convert the residents to Liberalism. That was a mistake, he said because the candidate he backed got out in the election.

He explained that steel manufacturers were hunting for ore deposits since the rich ores of the Mesabi range in the U.S. were becoming exhausted.

"We find here in this area Marmora's are the first development of the taconites," Mr. Howe remarked. "Canada was in a deficit position for iron ore until two years ago. This year for the first time we should be net exporters" he added.

Iron and petroleum discoveries in the area have more than reduced the drain on Canada's national economy. He credited scientific research with the new finds and unlimited possibilities of this great wealth.

Merger of Two Transport Unions Is Possibility

OTTAWA (CP)—Merger of two transport labor groups into Canada's biggest union climbs in a possibility.

The impending unification of the Canadian Congress of Labor and the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada has revived steps pointed at amalgamation of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL) and the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks (AFL-TLC).

Such moves are in a highly tentative stage but if they came about, it would create a group with nearly 60,000 members in Canada. This would be exceeded only by the approximately 70,000 membership of the CIO-CCL auto workers and steel workers.

The 40,000-member CBRE is the largest transport union in the country and the largest all-Canadian group. The Veterans have 31,000 members in Canada under Frank H. Hall.

Hall indicated interest in a CBRE-clerks merger in reporting to his annual convention at Borden recently. He said it is probable an amalgamation committee will be set up shortly.

Meanwhile, it was learned here the CBRE had broached the merger question originally with the clerks and other non-operating unions on the railways. That was about two years ago, and the overtures got nowhere.

China Pledges To Assist Russia In European War

WARSAW (AP) — Communist China pledged today she will fight alongside the Soviet Union and her allies if war is unleashed in Europe.

Premier Chou En-lai, defence minister and deputy prime minister, made that declaration in the name of the Peking government at this afternoon's session of the Warsaw conference of Soviet bloc nations. The conference was called to set up a Communist counterpart of NATO.

The Red Chinese delegate declared too that Peiping stands firmly for peaceful coexistence. He said his government is ready to negotiate on any international differences, including Formosa.

TO BEAUTIFY FALLS

TORONTO (CP)—Work on the Canadian part of the project to preserve and enhance the scenic beauty of Niagara falls will start soon, Dr. Otto Holden, chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro Commission, said Wednesday.

He said one of the speakers at the inaugural luncheon of the Engineering Institute of Canada.

McCann Accused of Political Motives in Dempsey Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister McCann has been accused of using his knowledge of an Ontario Progressive Conservative's campaign funds for political gain. And he has been challenged in the Commons to tell all.

George Hees, National president of the Progressive Conservatives, has charged Dr. McCann deliberately withheld his knowledge that James Dempsey failed to report a $6,800 political contribution. Mr. Hees said Dr. McCann kept it quiet for two years so that he could make political capital of it on the eve of the provincial election, called for June 9.

Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin) taking it up in the Commons Wednesday, challenged Dr. McCann to make public everything he knows about the contribution, made to Mr. Dempsey's 1951 election campaign for the Renfrew South seat he has held in the Ontario legislature for the last 10 years.

And, Mr. Zaplitny added, if what Mr. Dempsey says—that he discussed the matter with Dr. McCann two years ago and was told income tax officials would ignore it if the MPP minded his P's and Q's—if that is true, then the revenue minister should resign.

Heatedly, Dr. McCann said that statement by Mr. Dempsey is "absolutely false in every particular."

Mr. Dempsey has admitted he received the money, which he said was closer to $5,000 than $6,800, on behalf of the Progressive Conservative party from the late Jamie Drohan, a constituent.

Dr. McCann, Commons member for Renfrew South and a director of the trust company that is executor of Mr. Drohan's estate, has admitted telling Premier Frost of Ontario about the contributions.

The information cost Mr. Dempsey, 56-year-old Ottawa valley lumberman, the office of support of the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. Zaplitny asked Dr. McCann to disclose under what statute he told Premier Frost about the contributions. And Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) demanded that Justice Minister Garson say whether he will prosecute Dr. McCann for alleged violation of a secrecy provision of the Canadian Elections Act in connection with the issue. Mr. Garson did not reply.

45 Engineers, CNR Firemen Are 'Locked Out'

HAMILTON (CP)—Forty-five engineers and firemen "locked out" from their jobs at the Canadian National Railways voted Wednesday night not to take legal action against the company.

The men adopted a wait-and-see attitude following news that CNR officials had ordered Montreal's Turcot terminal employees back to work.

A spokesman for the "locked out" employees here said a letter had been sent to S. F. Dingle, vice-president of CNR operations, requesting the company to extend a similar procedure to other employees across Canada. The letter asked that workers be allowed to return to their jobs.

The CNR refused to allow the men to work Wednesday because they had not paid their union dues and were in breach of a contract signed earlier this year with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive firemen and Enginemen.

Reach Agreement On Final Draft Of Austrian Pact

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Big Four ambassadors tonight agreed on the final draft of the Austrian state treaty, an official source said.

He said: "All is over bar the shouting. Everything has been agreed."

The source said the settlement apparently meant that Russia has given up its claim on the German assets issue which had bogged down the discussions Wednesday.

Russia also agreed to incorporate a reference to the Moscow agreement with Austria in the treaty. The Moscow agreement touched off the present negotiations. Agreement clears the way for Dr. signing this weekend of the treaty restoring Austrian independence after 10 years of four-power occupation.

British Foreign Secretary Macmillan, U. S. State Secretary Dulles, French Foreign Minister Pinay and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov are due here shortly to sign the independence treaty.

In 1960 Two Airliners Will Carry As Many Passengers as Queen Mary

TORONTO (CP) — Huge turbojet passenger airliners, carrying 100 passengers each, and flying the Atlantic in a few hours, were predicted today for five or six years hence by Clayton Glenn of Trans-Canada Air Lines' engineering department.

Addressing the 60th annual meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Mr. Glenn said:

"The turbo-jet transport aircraft in use five or six years from now will easily almost twice as fast, have three times the fuel capacity, cost 2½ times as much to build, will carry 100 passengers in place of the current 60 and will cross from Montreal to London in half the time."

Two such aircraft, flying a daily schedule could carry as many passengers as the Queen Mary does in the same time it takes the ship to cross."

Mr. Glenn was one of several speakers at the institute meeting here today. The speakers' remarks were contained in excerpts released to the press before delivery.

R. B. Bennett, hydraulic engineer with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission in Toronto, told the meeting the use of by-draulic test models for the redesigning of the Niagara river has saved Hydro at least $5,250,000.

"Hydraulic models are a relatively new design tool," Mr. Bryce told the group. "Previously only separate models have been tested by the individual firms, the first dating back to 1918.

"Today, however, later models are much larger and more comprehensive than were the earlier ones, and illustrate the increasing confidence in such tests and the value attached to them."

Dr. Richard L. Hearn, Ontario Hydro chairman, told the institute that "excellent progress" is being made on all phases of construction of the Sir Adam Beck Niagara generating station No. 2.

Wants Kitchener to Restore Bust Of Kaiser But It Was Broken Up

KITCHENER (CP) — A German kaiser's statue was tossed into Victoria Park pool as a patriotic gesture during the First World War. Now residents are trying to figure out what to do about it.

The question is whether it was Wilhelm II, or his grandson, Wilhelm III, the German ruler during the 1914-18 conflict.

Records of the statue, a bust, was urged by a former Kitchener resident, Rev. Karl Lautenslager of Sudbury, last Friday at the centennial celebrations of Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate.

Dr. Lautenslager urged Kitchener residents to put more stress on their Germanic background and said he felt it was too bad the bust was broken up in London, Ont., after it was broken into pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

He explained in his talk that he was referring to the statue of Kaiser Wilhelm I, Somehow reports of his address outside Kitchener said the statue was that of Kaiser Wilhelm II, and attempts to confirm the reports resulted only in confusion.

Many residents said they always thought the bust was that of the second Wilhelm. However, Prof. Alex Foller, retired Waterloo College history professor and an authority on Kitchener history, said the statue was definitely that of Wilhelm I.

In any event, the bust is not likely to be returned to the park because it's gone forever.

An old-time Kitchener militia man said the bust, fished out of the pond and removed to local barracks, ended up in London, Ont., where it was broken into pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

Quebec City Too Poor to Run Dog Pound

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec City is too poor to run a dog pound, city council decided Wednesday.

After complaints from aldermen that homeless dogs are certain are running loose on freshly-planted lawns and flower-beds, the council asked the Quebec Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to open a dog pound and trap the animals.

The society agreed provided the city footed the bill—about $3,000 a year.

"Ridiculous," protested councillor Henri Gagnon. "We need the money for more important things." The by-law was dropped.

W. E. Sandercock Unanimous Choice of PC Convention As Candidate for Hastings West

Riding representative at Queen's Park since 1948, W. E. Sandercock Wednesday evening received acclamation as the Progressive Conservative candidate for West Hastings at a party followers gathered for their nomination convention in the town hall at Marmora.

Close to 400 party delegates and supporters from the various municipalities in the riding crowded into the Marmora village hall to see Mr. Sandercock receive the nomination unopposed. One other nominee, Dr. F. A. Carleton, of Stirling, asked that his name be withdrawn.

A full minute of applause sounded through the hall when Dr. R. T. Potter of Belleville, association president, announced that Mr. Sandercock had received acclamation as candidate.

"I feel very humble," Mr. Sandercock told party delegates, "but at the same time I am proud of you people. After the last election gave me a big majority. It is really a thrill to get the nomination so easily and it really takes the wind out of me."

Guest speaker at the nomination meeting was Provincial Secretary Hon. William Nickle, Q.C., of Kingston, who told the crowded hall that the Frost government sought re-election on its accomplishments and stood on its record alone.

A new slate of riding officers, brought in by the nominating committee, was unanimously adopted by the meeting. President is Dr. R. T. Potter, who succeeds Dr. J. Russell Scott as the association head.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other officers include Ralph Neal of Marmora, and Clarke T. Hollister of Coe Hill, as vice-presidents; Claude Graham of Trenton, as secretary, and Harry Francis of Stirling, as treasurer.

Associate president is Mrs. Dorothy Scott of Belleville, with Mrs. R. Blatherwick of Bancroft, and Mrs. Walter Elliott, of Stirling, as associate vice-presidents.

Nominations for district board of trustees of Belleville Separate School Board will be received by the secretary, Rev. Father J. Kelly, at the office of the board, 29 Bridge Street East, Belleville, on Monday, May 16th, 1955, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 12 noon.

Dated at Belleville, this 12th day of May, 1955.

REV. FATHER J. KELLY,
Secretary.

upkeep of highways.

ALWAYS FREE ROAD

He assured that even if toll highways were introduced in Ontario there would always be 'free' roads on which motorists might travel.

Mr. Sandercock referred to the Frost government's support of education and noted that at least 15 schools had been built in West Hastings since 1948. Hydro was available in all areas of the riding and he had not received a single request for such service within the past six months.

In conclusion he again expressed his appreciation for the confidence of party supporters. "If you would vote for me for the next 30 days, I will work for you 365 days a year," he said.

Dr. Carleton, former county warden and party candidate in the last federal election, spoke briefly assuring that the national Progressive Conservative party was far from being dead and voiced the presidency of George Hees would see rejuvenation.

Madoc Poolroom Gutted by Fire, Loss Is $3,000

MADOC (Special) — Fire of undetermined origin Wednesday night caused damage estimated at $3,000 as it gutted a poolroom owned by Arnold Gasbel, of St. Lawrence St.

Madoc's volunteer fire brigade under chief Leonard Mulrooney confined the blaze to the poolroom. Smoke and water damage was heavy but the fire did not spread to the Canadian Legion Hall on the second floor of the building, which is located in one of the village's chief business blocks.

Six school cadets in uniform directed traffic on Highway No. 7 as firemen fought the flames.

The fire started about 11.00 p.m. and is thought to have gained headway behind one of the poolroom's counters. It is thought that the furnishings were partially covered by insurance.

Frost Govt. to Stand on Record Of Achievement in Coming Election Convention Told

The Ontario Liberal party's program, if put into effect, would bring a raise in taxes, Provincial Secretary William M. Nickle told Conservative convention meeting in Marmora last night.

"The only money any government has is in taxes," Mr. Nickle said.

If Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver's program, "from the point of view of assistance," was ever legislated he would have to raise $400 million more than the Frost administration has raised in the past three years, Mr. Nickle claimed.

The Conservatives "are not in the auctioneering business" and are going to the country on their record of achievement.

"That is the pledge, in the future as in the past, we will do the best we can to relieve you of the taxes we collect, without peddling you with any further burdens."

He also took Mr. Oliver to task for Liberal chief's branding of the Frost administration as "cheapskate" in a judicial committee inquiry in Guelph Tuesday night.

"If what we have done in the past three years in the province of Ontario without raising taxes . . . if that is what you mean by 'cheapskate' then I am quite prepared to accept the definition of being 'cheapskate'," he said.

Noting Mr. Oliver's avowal to appoint a judicial committee to enquire into "maladministration" in the highways department, he said: "A judicial enquiry is a royal commission."

But in 1949 Mr. Oliver went on record in Hansard as dubbing royal commissions "a pain in the neck."

"Now he is advocating something which has caused him "physical distress," Mr. Nickle said.

At the provincial-municipal conference in Ottawa, Premier Frost placed on the agenda for discussion at the next conference in October the Federal contribution to a national health scheme, predating Mr. Oliver's health program manifesto.

Outlining aspects of the present provincial administration, he said: "It is the belief of the Frost government that the Labor Relation Act of this government, by-and-large . . . is the best labor code of any country in the world."

The government has placed on statute an anti-discrimination law, guarding the rights of all its citizens, regardless of race or creed.

This year $101 million is being spent on education, while in recent years also the province has absorbed some 53 per cent of the immigration quota.

He emphasized the plans for developing the St. Lawrence as a hydro project.

"You will never reduce taxes in real value unless you get new industry," he said, and "industry goes to power, not power to industry.

He urged support of Premier Frost if for no other reason than that he is entitled to a mandate to develop the St. Lawrence as a hydro project.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission is taking an increased interest in atomic energy as a power source and if it is successful it will relieve some of the worry of providing power from present sources available.

Apropos aid to the municipalities he pointed out grants to local governments last year totalled $165 million.

"We have measured up—I suggest lived up—to our obligations of being fair to the municipalities.

The only reference Mr. Nickle made to Conservatism on the national level was to party leader, George Drew.

He said he first met Mr. Drew during World War 1, adding:

"He was a brave soldier. He fought then for democracy. He is fighting for it now."

Referring to Hastings-West's candidate, Elmer Sandercock, he described him as "an indefatigable worker" in the interests of the people.

Stuttering Twins Are Acquitted

QUEBEC (CP)—Pierre and Raymond Marie Blouin, a pair of stuttering twins who find sign language more convenient than talking, were acquitted Wednesday of attempted robbery.

Their wild gesticulations had frightened a taxi-driver into believing they'd told him to drive them to the scene of a holdup.

The 25 -year -old brothers explained to session court judge Alphonse Caron that they started to badly it's easier for them to talk to each other in sign language. On the night they hailed the taxi, some two weeks ago, they'd both been drinking and their gestures were abnormally wild, they said.

When they saw that the driver was frightened, one told him reassuringly that they were not the type to commit holdups.

At this the driver snatched the keys from the ignition and fled. He told police he thought the pair were armed and had told him they were going to hold up a grocery store.

ALBERTA LIBERAL SAYS ALL SOCREDS HAVE BROKEN LAW

Status of Legislature Members Is in Doubt

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta legislature was scheduled to sit this afternoon with doubt still existing as to the status of all 49 Social Credit members.

The legislature adjourned abruptly Wednesday after a brief sitting when Opposition Leader J. Harper Prowse, Liberal, chief questioned the legality of the membership of Social Credit members.

Premier Manning immediately called a three-hour emergency caucus. There was no announcement following the meeting.

Mr. Prowse contended that members who had accounts with or borrowed money from the government-owned treasury branches, which perform functions similar to bank branches, had violated the Legislative Assembly Act.

CLAIMS QUIBBLING

Mr. Manning said Mr. Prowse was "quibbling over a legal technicality."

A new act, passed at this session, allows members to deal with the branches but the previous legislation prohibited them from holding a contract with the government.

Mr. Prowse argued that members of the legislature who had accounts with the branches had an effect held a contract with the government.

Four-eight treasury branches operate in the province. Social Credit won 55 seats in the Nov. 8 election and two are vacant. Two Social Creditors resigned this session to run federally and they were part owners of an Edmonton radio station being leased to the government. A Calgary lawyer has filed a claim for the $200-a-day penalty stipulated in the Legislative Assembly Act.

LEGAL OPINION

Attorney-General Lucien Maynard said Mr. Prowse is "wrong in law."

The Liberal leader said every Social Credit member has had dealings with the branches. It was time to know whether any of the Opposition members had any dealings with the branches.

Premier Manning abruptly moved that the House adjourn until today and called the caucus. He said the implications were "too serious" to be discussed.

The premier said it was strange that a practice of years' standing was being challenged. He said most members of the House since 1936 had dealt with the branches which were established in that year.

Husbands Need Long Week-End Every Month

BY MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ladies: does your husband start fidgeting as soon as he's sat still for 30 minutes?

Does he take a vacation only to race around to see how much you can see and do within allotted time?

Is he getting a paunch?

What he needs, said a psychologist-lately, is one long week-end every month.

Just a blank weekend—not lost by drinking, but simply lost.

"You should order your life so that there comes a long weekend every month, or every two months at the most, when there is nothing wrong with doing nothing," said Dr. Nathan Kohn Jr., a personnel consultant from Clayton, Mo.

He was talking to wives of delegates to the convention of the National Industrial Advertisers Association.

STUNNED BY THINKING

"Your husbands and all of us who try to think have tremendously increased pressure," he said.

"When he comes home he wants to discharge tension; he wants to get something out of his system. But there's the wife; she's thinking, 'Oh, good, he can watch out the kids while I can get things on the table.'

"Then to put yourself in his place; try to understand.

"But don't feel sorry for him. Don't think 'Oh, the poor thing.' Then you become mothers instead of wives. You create new tensions."

Dr Kohn had this advice on the care and feeding of husbands: Give them a good, varied diet; do not let your family living get into a stereotype; arrange times for doing nothing.

Accept your husband without reservation, be critical of incidents but not of him.

GIANT LAKE

Mr. Howe said the Marmora deposit was found by the application of the magnetometer from the air. Engineering and surveys made the mine possible. It was up to make the orebody commercial.

ENCOURAGED DEVELOPMENT

Premier Leslie Frost followed with conclusions that the Marmora find was encouraged development. He credit for encouraging the development when he as Minister of Mines for Ontario. He was convinced by Hurst and Rickaby in the same department. The latter he asked Mr. Howe for the loan of a plane to carry out the surveys because "I think that survey accounted for the great gathering here today."

Mr. Frost went on to say that the 20th century was indeed Canada's. One of the needs of this era is the development of our country. Picton's place in Canada's progress was foreseen by the United Empire Loyalist. The forerunners of the Canadian people should find satisfaction in what is being accomplished here today by Bethlehem, C.N.R. and other people who have contributed to the occasion Mayor Gibbs.

Ralph Campney, Minister of National Defence, recalled that he was a guest of Mr. Gordon Sinclair at the opening of the Colonial Steel shipping facilities and the Bethlehem executive on choosing Picton as the port to ship from.

WORD OF ASSURANCE

Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa laid claim to ancestors who settled in Hastings County and Sidney Township. She also claimed property associations with the village of Carrying Place 25 miles north of Picton. She has a diary among her treasured possessions that records the events of the Rev. John Grove the Anglican rector who founded St. John's Church at Carrying Place. The diary tells of Mr. Grove travelling the area on horseback to search out settlers of Anglican faith. "That is how old and historic a county this is and which is awaiting development," she said.

In his remark about Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railroad, Senator W. A. Fraser referred to Mr. Gordon as the president of the greatest railroad in the world. He recounted the story Mr. Gordon had taken to reach the top executive positions on the Canadian Dominion - wide transportation system.

Mr. Gordon said it gave him great pleasure to be taking part in the ceremonies.

"While new discoveries are usually found in areas where there are railroads already," he said, "we find an unusual situation. It reads like a detective story. Bethlehem Steel's vital link to a shipping point was ready and waiting. This was no accident because our plan kept right in step with the Bethlehem development."

Mr. Gordon then pressed a button that released the last carload of pellets into the freighter docked at the new 1100 feet berth.

Mr. Gordon emphasized that the CNR is right in line with Canada's development. "We owe Mr. McFarland a great deal for his help, and we are always ready with good advice although he is not always ready to reach for the lowest tender," he said. "We owe the nation 'We serve the nation' synchronizes with this opening ceremony."

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

A. B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel, expressed deepest appreciation "for all the very gracious things said about our company. In turn I want to express Bethlehem's appreciation on opening new projects. I am very pleased indeed to have had such a nice day for these ceremonies."

He related the history of the

3-Year-Old Cigar Smoker Has Sworn Off

BETHALTO, Ill. (AP)—Earl E. Welton, the 3½- year old cigar smoker, has sworn off.

Instead of a good five-cent cigar, he now reaches for a good five-cent ice cream cone.

Earl's mother, Mrs. Earl C. Welton, says she began weaning Earl from cigars last week. Wednesday she said Earl hasn't "smoked for six days but he has eaten about 20 ice cream cones."

Mrs. Era Weeks, an elementary teacher, is credited with having had a lot to do with Earl's swearing off. She told him he couldn't go to school if he smoked.

That bothered Earl, his mother says, because he spends a lot of time admiring older boys playing at recess at the school playground next to his home.

Mrs. Welton said she was delighted with her understanding that she break him of the habit of smoking three cigars a day.

Marmoration mine.

"Five years ago we started to investigate. Three years ago we decided to proceed with the development. Today we are shipping the first load of taconite pellets. And we expect to be shipping them for a long time to come."

Mr. Homer assured his listeners that the Marmoraton and Picton operations would be continuous 12 months a year. I feel this will be a great advantage to the communities and the transportation company.

In expressing thanks to all those who made the first boat shipment possible Mr. Homer said: "We have had the finest co-operation from everyone in Canada to make this possible. It is the finest example of co-operation between two countries. We have worked together as though we are members of the same country. It is nice to join in the celebration."

CUTS RIBBON

Mr. Homer with gold-plated scissors in hand put the ribbon that let Capt. Leonard Bradley move away the first carload of pellets for Bethlehem's smelter across Lake Ontario.

The RCAF Command Band provided music at intervals during the afternoon.

Some 1,500 Picton and Prince Edward school children were given a holiday to take part in and witness official send-off of first shipment of iron pellets from Marmora.

Included in the nine-car train was Donald Gordon's business car "Bonaventure."

The train, powered by twin diesels, was crewed by Belleville trainmen R. C. Jones, engineer; T. Rees, car inspector; Jack Boyle, fireman; John MacQuarrie, G. Bristol and Peter Scott, brakemen.

The beautiful train attracted attention at every station along the 66-mile route.

War Museum Requests Copies 21st Communique

Signal honor has been paid to the "21st Battalion Communique" publication of the well-known "fightin'" unit of the Fourth Infantry Brigade, Second Division, CEF, editor Fred Hart of this city announced today.

Editor Hart said he was in receipt of a communication from the Imperial War Museum, London, England which requested copies of the "Communique" from the original publication to be present for its collection of war periodicals.

The letter stated "It is with much interest that we have learned of the 21st Battalion publication. We should be most grateful if you can secure for us a complete file of issues published and also future numbers as they appear."

The "Communique" was first published in 1930 and continued until the outbreak of World War II. Publication was suspended during the war years, and resumed in 1952 under the editorship of Mr. Hart. The first editor was the late Captain D. M. Coady, M.C.

The Imperial War Museum located on Lambeth Road illustrates and records all aspects of both world wars and other operations in which British Commonwealth forces have been engaged since August, 1914. It houses exhibition galleries; art galleries, photograph library; reference library and a cinematograph film record. It is open to the public every day except Christmas and Good Friday. Woman Drives Blazing Car To Fire Station

The old saying about the mountain coming to Mahomet proved true when nothing on members of the city fire department, who yesterday had a blazing car brought to them.

A Prince Edward county lady was driving her car when she suddenly discovered that the rear cushions were ablaze. She was in the vicinity of the fire hall so instead of calling the department she drove her blazing car to the station and firemen extinguished the blaze. How the fire from a cigarette was blamed for the fire.

Otherwise firemen had a fairly busy day with calls being received for a grass fire, an overheated stove and a rubbish fire.

Late Wednesday afternoon they were called to the hay front opposite South Foster, where a sailboat owned by George Haggis, had gone on a shoal. A motor boat put out from the shore and hauled the sailing craft off the sandbar.

TB

TB is still a major health problem, not so much because it kills a person, as because so many people have it—don't know it and infect others!

It is usually passed from one to the other through the air into the lungs!

Tuberculosis has no early symptoms!

After catching TB you probably will not feel ill for a long time.

But meanwhile, you can infect others.

This same, simple process has been going on since the beginning of history!

The great tragedy is that those closest to you are most likely to be infected.

THESE PROTESTS ARE JUSTIFIED

Progressive Conservative and CCF members of the House of Commons were on sound ground on Monday when they criticized an amendment to existing unemployment insurance regulations which would reduce the maximum period for which payments may be received from 51 weeks to 30 weeks.

The fact that one Liberal member, Dr. W. H. McMillan of Welland, agreed with Opposition speakers is adequate proof that the Opposition was not merely playing politics.

There are many Canadians who have contributed weekly to the unemployment insurance fund since it was first established, but have never received a cent from it.

Some of these contributors cite this fact as a reason for criticism. On that point they are wrong. They are fortunate that they have had no occasion to make a claim against the fund. In any insurance scheme some must pay in more than they get in return before it would be impossible for some to receive more than they pay in.

That, however, is no reason for reducing the period for which benefits may be paid at the very time when the possibility has increased that benefits may be required for this lengthier period.

Those who have paid for 51 weeks' insurance are entitled to expect that the benefits for which they have contributed will be forthcoming if necessary.

We are told that the proposed legislation provides a three-year change-over period, so that those now insured will not lose financially from the changes if they become unemployed.

The government is to be congratulated for this clause. But it does not deserve congratulations, but rather blame, for suggesting that the period for which benefits can be paid should be reduced at the time when the growth in unemployment enhances the possibility that claims for the lengthier period may be made.

Since the unemployment insurance fund was inaugurated, there cannot have been many people who have been unable to find work for 51 consecutive weeks. But there is no guarantee that what has been true in the past will remain true in the future, and the government appears to be playing with fire in the insurance company which, noting that the patient looks poorly, tears up the existing contract and writes a new one for a smaller sum.

A DISTINCTION WITHOUT A DIFFERENCE

Leaders of the Soviet Union and its satellites in eastern Europe are gathering at Warsaw to confer about a distinction without a difference.

They are going to establish a Soviet security bloc, pooling the armies of the USSR and its seven Communist allies. This is the Communist answer to the West's successful strategy in admitting West Germany to NATO.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization was necessary because the member powers were sovereign nations and only through such an alliance could they agree to cooperate for their mutual defence.

The Soviet security bloc, on the other hand, will bring no change in the existing situation. Russia has long been in control of the armies of its satellite states. Their combined pooling of these forces is just window-dressing. What benefits could be obtained from unity have long been enjoyed by the Communists. No formal agreement will remove the flaw in the system, the possibility that if war comes, the armies of the satellites may, at an advantageous moment, fight against rather than beside the Red Army.

BANKS CUT MORTGAGE INTEREST

Last Saturday in an editorial this column commented on an address made earlier in the week by Mr. Jack Pembroke, president of the Dominion Mortgage and Investments Association.

Mr. Pembroke said that the country may soon face a situation where a tightening of mortgage credit, rather than a liberalization of it, "may be necessary and desirable."

Monday of this week the Royal Bank of Canada announced that it was reducing the interest rate on mortgage loans from 5½ to 5 per cent. By Tuesday afternoon three other chartered banks had followed suit.

Most laymen will regard this as a further liberalization of mortgage credit, which Mr. Pembroke hinted was undesirable. However, it is worthy of note that whatever other means of liberalizing credit, such as an increase in the amounts of mortgage loans and a lengthening of the period over which they are repayable, lead to higher purchase prices for houses, a reduction in the interest rate will have the opposite effect. It will therefore be welcomed by "consumers," those Canadian families which desire to acquire homes of their own.

The chartered banks are new to this field of providing mortgage money. The Canadian public is likely to regard this voluntary reduction as the rate of interest as concrete evidence that the Federal Government acted wisely when it made it possible for the chartered banks to enter this field.

SELF HORN BLOWER

You needn't brag about it. If you've skill your work will show it.

If you've done something very well your friends will surely know it.

You needn't blow your horn yourself. Some one for you will blow it.

If you have worth, there's not a doubt that many will discern it.

Give praise to others when you can and some day they'll return it.

Not what you say, but what you do must be the way to earn it.

The pronouns "I" and "me" and "my" make dreary conversation.

Good work is always understood without an explanation.

Merit distinguishes the man and not self-commendation.

5,000 Oysters Equal A Pearl

(By R. Tucker Abbeli, in Natural History Magazine)

When you sit down to a plate of oysters on the half-shell or a bowl of oyster stew your chances of discovering a pearl are about one in 5,000, and when we consider how many thousands of bushels of these bivalves are eaten each day it is not surprising to learn that Americans annually find several hundred good sized pearls in seafood restaurants.

Unfortunately these pearls are of no commercial value, except perhaps to a few people who especially collect odd type pearls.

Almost every kind of clam, oyster, and mussel, and many species of snails, whelks and conch shells are capable of producing pearls, but only the true pearl oyster of the Indian seas can make the familiar gem pearls of jeweler's quality.

Pearls, usually of lesser value, are found in certain species of river mussels, the most notable example being one from New Jersey, which was sold 100 years ago to Queen Eugenie of France for $25,000.

The common blue mussel of our northern coasts produces a small, highly iridescent pearl, while the giant tridacna clam of the Indo-Pacific region has been known to make whitish porcelaneous pearls larger than golf balls.

Among the marine snails the queen conch of the West Indies occasionally makes large pink or coral red pearls which have a silky gloss to them, but the California abalones are highly lustrous, and many of these are of quite large, although usually misshapen.

Pearls are formed inside the soft parts of the clam or snail in the same manner as the shell itself is built. It is the fleshy mantle, richly endowed with shell producing glands, which deposits the pigments and layers of shell. The color and lustre of the pearl, therefore, are always the same as that found in the shell of the pearl producing mollusk.

Views Vary About Rising

(High River Times)

There seems to be two extremes of thought with respect to getting up in the morning. On the one hand are those who exclaim happily about the lengthening days, saying: "it makes a person feel like leaping out of bed to greet the sun." On the other hand are those who harbor the dark thought "what good can come out of a day that has to start with getting up?" In between are the silent majority who are the willing slaves of the alarm clock, too broken for actual revolt, but certainly taking no pride in peremptory ringing which announces the coming of another day.

Wage Secrets Are Studied

(Hamilton Spectator)

Professor Barbara Wootton, of London University, went to the zoo before the last war, and saw an elephant giving rides to children. On enquiring how much the elephant earned, the professor discovered that it was exactly as much as she herself was making at that time. The elephant was therefore worth one woman professor—at least as far as wages went.

After the war, Mrs. Wootton visited the same zoo. This time there were two elephants paying for the kids and together they earned a little more than twice as much as the single elephant had earned before the war. But Mrs. Wootton had also received pay increases in the meantime and, by coincidence was now earning almost exactly as much as the two pachyderms together. The elephants had therefore become worth one professor.

This awakened Mrs. Wootton's mathematical interest and she began a study of "earnings inequalities." In a book entitled "The Social Foundations of Wage Policy" Mrs. Wootton inquires into such intriguing questions as why Tom earns more than Bill, although Bill really deserves more than Tom, and why the whole wage anomalies in what she calls the "crazy-quilt smash-and-grab" her expression—are negotiated in wage increases.

It seems that if we thought long enough about Mrs. Wootton's theories we might discover why a man on the movies who sits with his eyes into his head, clutch a microphone and sings mating song receives as much as fifty cement, hard-working men. It has always puzzled us.

Time Please, Gentlemen

(BBC London Letter)

People who live at Marsh, near Huddersfield in Yorkshire, are still laughing about the mystery of the borrowed clock which Alan Dixon told in a BBC-1 Lancashire Magazine program.

In 1918 a strange man walked into the Marsh House Inn and after buying a drink asked the landlord to lend him a grandfather clock. Shortly afterwards he walked off with it. The parcel was carried under his arm. The landlord later discovered that the marble clock which had been left in exchange, piece in the lounge had disappeared and wrapped in a brown paper had been used to wrap it up.

A few days ago another stranger walked into the inn and gave a parcel on the bar before the landlord could say anything. "I've brought the clock back." Without another word he walked out, climbed into a car and drove off. The landlord opened the parcel and sure enough it was the missing grandfather clock which was recognized by the pub's old customers and is now restored to its old home in the lounge.

The parcel also contained a card which read, "Time once lost is never regained but this 'Time' has been found." Glad as the landlord everyone is to see the old clock back again they would be even gladder if they could know why it was taken away and where it has been in the meantime.

Sign of the Times

(Ottawa Citizen)

A commentary on the times is contained in the bright and informative U.S. Chamber publication a few weeks ago for economy but still circulating its last issue. "Do you drive?" says the U.S. Chamber salesman. "No." "Do you fly?" "No." "Sorry, our company no longer insures pedestrians."

Rainbows On Wheels

(Toledo Blade)

A crude fellow we know, who does not have an artistic bone in his body and in general is unsympatico when the finer, more vibrant expressions of modern creative beauty, has been watching the new cars go by.

His reaction, we regret to say, is much the same as if he had been served up a Dali for lunch. Says he feels as if he'd sampled all 26 ice cream flavors at once.

Now color is known to produce certain emotional and physical reactions, and this may be part of our friend's trouble. He is accustomed to a good plain diet, so to speak, of white, blacks, greys, greens, browns, reds and yellows. His palate is unaccustomed to the subtle refinements of hue and tint now showing in such rich automotive profusion. Confronted by such new shades as bubble ochre and canary, watermelon pink, Nile green, turquoise and cinnamon, lavender and carmine, chartreuse and polka dot, he gets just a bit queasy.

He has been thinking of buying a new car and, frankly, we can't he says if this is the sort of world we live in a fellow just can't give up the ship. With the help of artistry, extroversion, game or sport every car model to take aim onto when without it he or she is likely to be relegated to the chimney corner.

Well, the doctor arrived within minutes, and took good care of me.

But I realize I was lucky. Had it not been for bowling the robber, by the way, beat me in the final for the Hall Enrlich trophy and he has never stopped crowing about it) we would have had great difficulty getting a doctor at midnight in the rain.

Whose fault is it that doctors are not generally available when you want a doctor at night?

Our slanted notion is the question a great deal and seems to me the answer is fifty-fifty—that is, doctors and people are equally to blame.

Take my case, for instance. Specialists, most of them trick specialists, are a dime a dozen in this neck of the woods but general practitioners are scarce and outstanding steadily scarcer. Fortunately we happened to know of two, both good sensible doctors, the kind you can trust. I happened to know them only because of a bowler scarcity because I'm a doctor. Otherwise, I imagine, we would have made a federal case of it—called an ambulance to take me to a hospital, and all that runs into hundreds for a comparatively minor emergency that any real doctor could handle in his office or at the patient's home.

I believe the AMA is chiefly to blame for the scarcity of honest general practitioners. From the time the late Pooh-Bah Flexner slapped the officers of the Association around and started changing the medical info a business, the twin evils, trick specialism and "clinical" intolerance reared their ugly, holiday, Sunday, early morning or other calls at inconvenient times, they complain bitterly.

Time Easier Made Thinking

(New York Herald Tribune)

The first industrial revolution lightened the burden on man's muscle; the second, now in the making, will lighten the load on his brain.

Last week engineers and scientists showed, and reported on, hundreds of gadgets designed to make thinking easier and quicker.

The gadgetry was displayed at the Kingsbridge Armory in the Bronx at the 1955 Institute of Radio Engineers annual meeting.

There was a demonstration by Dr. Herbert Grosch, of Boston, of how to control a freight yard with punched paper tape giving the yard's whole operation.

The Raytheon Co. showed how a machine can be taught to learn around the clock with magnetic tape playing music, making animated movies and even carrying out the presence of a single person.

In a film, the General Mills Co. showed how the automatic electronics — parts — assembling machine. The device can turn out thousands of radio, television or computer sections a day with only a few human operators.

A little magnetic "doughnut" was introduced by the Potter Instrument Co. that behaves much like a radio tube to be better for electronic computers and electrical signals. This device may make possible the construction of an electronic brain with the capacity and versatility of the human brain.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If I were an Asian or African, I would hardly celebrate getting rid of one white man, in the end of the tired, weary conscience-smitten French, Dutch a n d so forth, by swapping him for another man in the shape of a brand new, energetic, Russian suffer-hating the first newfound excitement and glory of exploration and exploitation.

The Russians, as we know, have never given up their desire and thirst for something until just lately. While the rest of Europe has been busy for four centuries or so exploring and exploiting the world, the Russians have been content to engage in their frequent bloody fisticuffs with their immediate neighbors, and when the other European countries were neither the heart nor the liver to follow their example in their subject peoples—except in a couple of instances that grew hotter every day—Russia is suddenly smitten with the greed of empire. But as far as Asians and Africans are concerned, it is probably too late. It will be one of the great ironies that will offend.

The new European thinkers already suggesting that the rest of the white world should come to some kind of accord with Russia in defence against Asia and Africa. This is the most ingenious fraud from the fellow travellers' repertoire could be that the rest of the white world should have to come to the rescue of a chastened Russia if her imperialism, about seriously offend those races that have learned their lesson about the palaces. In the hard land for empire, the Russians are under an unfortunate disadvantage. Their arrogance comes easier to them than the almost any other of the white races. Their whole history is one of choir; and while it may be Bye Baby Bunting, it sounds like Cotton Strad England, especially in the bases. Both the gloomiest and the most whoop-de-doodle of symphonies is music in Russian. When Russians dance, they squat, leap and hoot.

If I were an Asian, I would be leery of taking one of them for brand new white brother.

Are Doctors On Duty At Night?

Save in his own house—I had to learn the hard way that a doctor should not attempt to serve members of his family professionally.

Thinking about this I recalled just such an emergency. One midnight I ran out to drive the chariot out of the rain, slipped on the wet porch step and took a header onto the cement walk, sustaining a nasty ear over the temple, a small cut over the eye and inspected Colles fracture of the arm.

A telephone call to the home of a doctor I had met (and loved) on the bowling green—

Incidentally, folks, I'm not at all the convivial or gregarious but rather the cold aloof type—this I suppose is my monumental deafness which makes it difficult for impossible to understand what anybody is saying in a group of people. In all my half-deaf life, since I first realized my deafness I was never conscious of so much attention as I have for my bowling cronies. I appeal to you men, and women too, who are not absolutely quiet with the ball, for your activity, extroversion, game or sport every week. Don't be lazy, unto when without it he or she is likely to be relegated to the chimney corner.

Well, the doctor arrived within minutes, and took good care of me.

But I realize I was lucky. Had it not been for bowling the robber, by the way, beat me in the final for the Hall Ehrlich trophy and he has never stopped crowing about it) we would have had great difficulty getting a doctor at midnight in the rain.

Whose fault is it that doctors

QUALITY OF MIND

We wonder why so many painlings immediately stir our emotions and interest us. The artist couldn't stay out of them. Look upon a painting as a masterpiece and you will understand. There is a beautiful painting before me as I write. I am so familiar with this artist's work that I can see him in all he does and I see sincerity, depth, beauty and character—things that characterize the man.

There is a quality of mind not only in all great works of art but also in literature. You can't always read Emerson, Thoreau, Dickens, Hugo and Tolstoi without having the fact flash through your own mind. You will feel it in every word while you read. The more you boldly simple that work may be, the longer will it last and inspire others.

It is this quality of mind that attracts us to those of the past. We can't help but admire the roots of a tree edging into the earth always for a better foothold. We can't help but think that is not it is this quality of mind that we immediately sense when we newly met person. Like looks for like. We are happy with those of our kind. There is not a book in my library that wasn't purchased because of some outstanding fact about it. A certain quality of mind went into a book. This must be so for there are books on my shelves that almost talk to me at times. I see some quality, some hope and comfort.

A great deal of crudeness can be overlooked and forgiven in others if we are satisfied that this quality of mind exists in those about us. Silently invite as friends. Greatness is not always sincere, never boastful. It's our inner self that doesn't go visiting everywhere! Sincerity is the quality all had this God-given quality of mind.

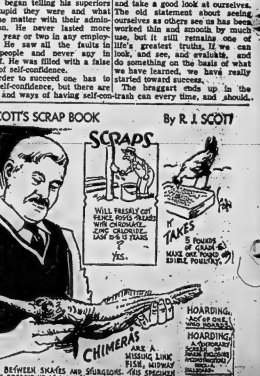
"FATE OF THE BRAGGART

Looking back more than a half century, I can recall a series of braggarts with whom I came in contact. Not one of these persons is now alive. Not one of them is the only thing they made was enemies all along the line.

One man in particular was rather able, but as soon as he got a job he began telling his superiors how stupid they were and what was the matter with their administration. He was lasted more than a year or two in any employment. He saw all the faults in other people and never say in himself. He was filled with a false sense of self-confidence.



In order to succeed one has to have confidence, and the person who thinks that he cannot throw his weight around and trump under foot at every visible opportunity is going to find it is going to be a job and without friends.

All knowledge is the key to capacity for self-critigism. Nothing is more detestable than a man who lives as to be able to stand off and take a good look at ourselves. The old statement, "Let us examine ourselves as others see us has been worked this statement to good use, but it still remains one of the greatest truths. If we can look, and see, and analyze, we can do something on the basis of what we see and what we have really started toward success.

The braggart ends up in the ways and ways of having self-con-trash can every time, and should.

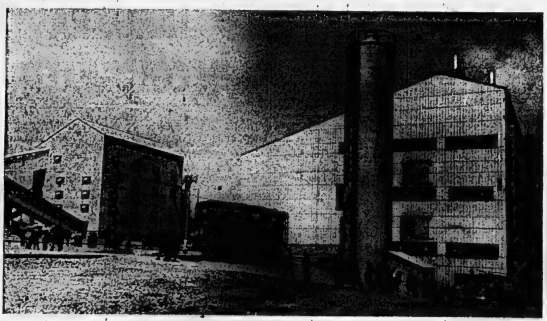
Ceremonies Mark First Shipment Iron Ore From Picton



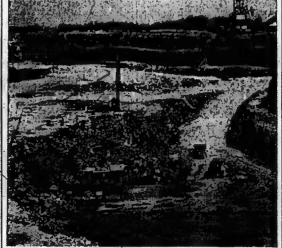
Some of the most important people in Can ada gathered at Picton yesterday to witness ship ment of first cargoes of iron pellets milled from ore mine in Hastings County at Marmora. Left to right shows: Senator W. A. Fraser; Ontario Premier Leslie Frost; Philip Kelly, Minister of Mines for Ontario; H. J. McFarland, Mayor of Pic ton and host to dignitaries; A. B. Homer, Presid ent of Bethlehem Steel; Donald Gordon, Presi-dent C.N.R. and Charlotte Whitton, Mayor of Ot tawa.

Shown above is the skip hoist at the open pit mine of the Marmoraton Iron Mines that lifts ore 120 feet from the bot-tom of the pit to the primary crusher, as seen from the 85-foot level of the com-pany's one-half by one-quarter mile wide pit.

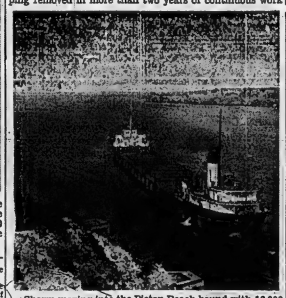
The two 20-ton buckets that move up and down the inclined railway can be seen at the top and bottom of the hoist. 1,250-horsepower engine supplies the pow to lift the loaded ore buckets.

Clearly shown are the 45-foot ledg cut into the limestone overburden, 2 000,000 tons of which had to be remov before the Bethlehem Steel Co. subsidia reached the ore body containing 40 p cent magnetite.

Members of the official party of Federal, Provincial and local government leaders, railway and industrial exe-cutives which visited the Marmoraton Iron Mines multi-million dollar plant at Marmora on Wednesday are seen emerging from the building at right housing the com-pany's four-storey pelleting furnace.



At left is the building housing the rod and ball-mill grinders which reduce ore to the consistency of talcum powder. The portion of the main building to the left of the water tower houses the magnetic separators which increase the concentration of ore from 40 to 65 per cent. The pelleting furnace produces from 1,500 to 1,750 tons of concentrate pellets per day. Pellets are about half-the size of a golf ball.



Shown is a view of the open pit operation of the Mar-moraton Iron Mines a mile east of Marmora and just south of Highway No. 7. The 20,000,000 tons of limestone cap-ping removed in more than two years of continuous work can be seen at the top of the picture as a hill. Blastin took place Wednesday morning in the area to the left; centre just 90 minutes before an official party of gover ment, rail and industrial leaders descended into the pit-view workings at first hand.

Warden of Prince Edward County, Murney Parks, pre-sented Bethlehem Steel President A. B. Homer with in-scribed-imported Irish black thorn cane as token of appre-ciation of county people.

Canadian National Railways have completed a 65-mile rail line from Picton, Ont., to this new open-pit iron mine at Marmora, Ont. Production is expected to top 500,000 tons annually of high-grade iron-ore concentrate when the mine hits its stride.

Shown moving into the Picton Reach bound with 16,000 tons of iron pellets for Bethlehem Steel's blast furnaces at Lackawanna, N.Y., is the S.S. Powell-Stackhouse under command of Capt. Leonard E. Bradley.

CNR President Donald Gordon pushed the button that dumped the last load into the ship's hold just before Bethlehem president A. B. Homer gave Capt. Bradley the signal to proceed to Lackawanna.

Ritchie Wells, Reeve of Marmora, and Irwin McCo Reeve of Marmora township, welcomed C.N.R. Preside Donald Gordon and distinguished personages to Marmo visiting Bethlehem Steel's Marmoraton mine project ye terday on the occasion of the company shipping the fi cargo of pellets from Marmora to smelters in Buffalo.

Island Colony Proposed For Drug Addicts

OTTAWA (CP)—A special insti-tution for the confinement of Cana-da's estimated 3,000 drug addicts again has been recommended to the Senate's special committee in-vestigating the illegal drug traffic.

The proposal was made Wednes-day night by Edmonton police chief M. F. E. Anthony, former assistant commissioner of the RCMP. A sim-ilar suggestion was made to the committee some weeks ago by Van-couver police chief Walter Mulli-gan, who proposed an island col-ony.

But chief Anthony said it shouldn't be a home in which ad-dicts could take a "rest cure." They should be put to work to help maintain themselves and should be released only under a strict parole that would continue until it was certain they were rehabilitated.

GOT TO BE RUTHLESS

The veteran of 37 years' police work said:

"If you're going to try to help these people, you've got to be ruth-less about it. The gloves have to come off if you're going to save them from themselves and save the waste in the country."

A federal agency such as the RCMP should be put in charge of enforcement of the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act throughout Can-ada. At present RCMP, provincial and municipal forces all could act under the statute. This often re-sulted in overlapping between dif-ferent forces and sometimes in the spoiling of months of investigation by a premature arrest.

CHELSEA DRAWS

AMSTERDAM (Reuters— Chel-sea, the English League football champions, drew 2-2 with a Dutch national eleven here Wednesday night. The London club led 2-1 at halftime, but the Dutch equali with a second-half penalty. At Z ich, Switzerland, Arsenal, Engl first division team, drew 3-3 w Zurich Grasshoppers, Swiss fi division squad.

Victorian Order Nurses Sponsor Charming Blossom Tea

Tall, white standards of fragrant white apple blossoms, potted ferns—guarded by a life like VON nurse in her uniform—and dotted with chic little white collar—and vases of golden forsythia, lent a pleasing atmosphere to the airy spaciousness of Club Commodore yesterday afternoon at the "Blossom Tea" sponsored by the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The receptionists included: Mrs. M. E. Bulger, Mrs. H. A. Parker, Mrs. V. Lynch, Miss Dorothy Connor, Miss Theresa Callaghan and Miss Grace Connor.

Mrs. J. A. Brownlee presided as treasurer for the afternoon.

ATTRACTIVE TEA ROOM

The tea room, with its soft lighting effects was most attractive with its floral arrangements and the twin tea tables, each with its damask cloth, its lovely centrepieces of pink snapdragons, tall spikes of white stocks interminged with asparagus fern, and flanked with tri-branched silver candelabra with their tall yellow and green candles, and silver services.

The little quartet guest tables were prettily appointed with cloths in yellow, blue, green and white, and centred by a colorful tulip rising from a lacy, white collar tied with harmonizing shades of satin ribbon.

Those convening the tea room were: Mrs. J. H. Grant, Mrs. H. Quinsey and Mrs. A. E. Miles, while those who poured during the afternoon were: Mrs. G. A. Morton, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, Mrs. E. E. Folwell, Mrs. J. Vanover, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, Mrs. H. Ackerman and Mrs. F. H. Deacon.

Replenishing the dainty pansy adorned plates of sandwiches and cakes were, Mrs. R. Bowden, Mrs. A. Gilroy, Mrs. E. Neil, Mrs. William Judge, Mrs. G. P. Slemon, Mrs. A. Newman, Mrs. Fred Wilson, and Miss M. B. Byers, Mrs. S. E. Morton and Mrs. R. J Miles were in charge of the teapots

The three sales tables, homecooking, candy and draws, were alluring with their individual offerings. The homecooking was in charge of Mrs. R. D. Finkle and Mrs. R. M. Francis, as convenors, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Medill, Mrs. N. E. Edwards and Mrs. Robert Allore. There were taffy and butterscotch apples, chocolate cakes, lemon pies and date breads, pretty little cup cakes and many other delectable confections.

CANDY

The candy table also had its quota of sweeties, chocolates, divinity fudge, maple creams and chocolate fudge, tastefully arranged in little green cups and boxes. Convening these were: Mrs. H. R. Glen, Mrs. W. H. Stovin, assisted by Mrs. William Fox, Mrs. H. Seldon.

The "draw" table had three items which would go to the holders of the lucky tickets: a cosmetic kit, a hucklebucking angel cake and a hamper of groceries. These were in charge, of Mrs. Clarke Hanes and Miss Eleanor Newman. The draw was made by Mr. E. K. Folwell, and the winners were: Miss Donna Plumpton, Nurses' residence; Mrs. Jack Vanover, 196 Bridge Street, East, and Miss M. Connell, 101 South John Street.

A charming tea, splendidly arranged, bringing appreciative thanks and much commendation to Mrs. Cleo Colling for her untiring work in the successful culmination and to all those others who assisted so willingly.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY STREET WMS

Holloway Street United Church WMS held its May meeting in the church parlors with Mrs. Coulter presiding.

Mrs. Welborne, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Bunnett also assisted with the Scripture reading and prayer.

A most interesting part of the program was a series of questions and answers regarding financial policies of the WMS as outlined by the Dominion Board with Mrs. McMurray as interrogator and Mrs. Coulter and Mrs. Wilson giving much valuable information regarding salaries, funds for overseas.

Music was supplied of recordings by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Templeton with Mrs. Campbell as operator.

Mrs. Bunnett expressed her appreciation of valuable articles donated for the bales to be sent to overseas missions and also to Dr. and Mrs. Ross Green at Ethelbert, Manitoba.

Mrs. Percy White brought a complete and interesting account of the presbyterial held in Picton recently.

Refreshments were served.

'Three Crosses of The Flag' Topic at St. Julien Chapter

The monthly meeting of St. Julien Chapter IODE, was held Monday evening in the chapter rooms.

Mrs. L. Ponger, regent, presided.

Following the business session a resume of the annual meeting held at the Royal Connaught in Hamilton was given by the regent, the chapter's appointed delegate. A paper was also presented by Mrs. F. Carscallen who accompanied her. The gratitude and importance of the IODE activities throughout the Dominion impressed all members.

The guest speaker the Rev. Dr. George W. Birtch spoke on the "Three Crosses of the Flag"—a consecration of which follows:

Mr. Birtch recalled some of the things that make up the symbolism of the flag. Showing the three separate crosses which make up the flag, he recounted the familiar legends and stories surrounding the crosses of St. George, St. Patrick and St. Andrew.

St. George was the dragon slayer, and because the dragon is the ancient symbol of evil, St. George is the patron saint not only of England but of all who fight against evil.

"Fighting against evil has become a major preoccupation of our time," commented the speaker. "It is doubtful if ever in the history of the race there has been a keener consciousness of the dark forces there are arrayed against the good life, or indeed against life in any form. It is not only ignorance and disease and poverty that are the enemies of man. There is also that strange demonic force that makes us capable of turning gifts that should be blessings into curses, powers that could be life-preserving into instruments of death.

"We watch our statesmen struggling for the triumph of reason in world affairs, only to discover that in our own backyards exists the very moral plague against which they contend. The highest patriotism now is no limited thing, but a wider sympathy and a larger loyalty to every child of man," he added, in pointing to the "real and practical measures the IODE is taking" in this field.

GOOD FOR EVIL

The speaker went on to picture St. Patrick as the returner of good for evil. "Gradually we learn that punishment is not enough. Hope lies not in meeting evil with evil but in overcoming evil with good. This has become the higher patriotism."

The Cross of St. Andrew recalls that "St. Andrew is the patron saint not only of Scotland but of all responsible persons, of all those who know that no person or limited group can be an island of self-sufficiency. It is rather that we live to continuously bring those around us the highest that we know." For St. Andrew was the one who "found the One that he called the Master, and went first and found his own brother" and urged him to come and see.

So the symbolism of the Union Jack today represents the fight-er against evil, the one who returned good for evil, and the one who remembered to bring his brother to the Highest he knew, concluded Mr. Birtch.

Are You Making Plans For a June Wedding?

By Mary Moore

All year letters reach me asking for help with wedding receptions. Some of you are ambitious, wanting to serve your guests sit-down meals with turkey and all the trimmings.

Our recent wedding was at 7 p.m., and this type of feasting was not in order, so we had buffet service, and I have kept detailed notes of all of the items served, because our guests were kind in their comments about the food. The highlights seem to have been the delectable hot items —bite-size little morsels that melted in your mouth. Mothers who have daughters about to be married in June may be interested in the menu.

TABLE ARRANGEMENTS

Four long tables were set up roughly in a U-shape in the social hall of the church. These tables were garlanded by the florists and each was centred appropriately. (1) The punch table featured a huge punch bowl. (Mr. Sylvia says by the gallons that disappeared, some of the guests must have liked the innocent stuff very much.) (2) Bride's table featuring Marianne's cake and along its front edge her bouquet flanked by the bridesmaids' bouquets. (3) Long buffet table centred by low tulip and sweetpea arrangement and candelabra and at each end colorful sunbursts of china on vari-colored paper-frilled toothpicks. (4) Tea and coffee table dominated by a huge copper coffee urn with silver tea services at each end.

When guests had gone through the receiving line they were shepherded to the punch table and as soon as all had been received the waitressed brought in the piping hot food.

WEDDING RECEPTION FOOD

Shrimp Trays (see above).

Hot —Chicken Bouchees (rich creamed chicken in tiny "cream puff" shells. (2) Small cocktail sausage rolls; (3) Bite-size tea rolls (like hot-dog rolls in miniature) split and spread with cheese and bacon and toasted. (4) Bite-size patty shells (French pastry) filled with mushroom a la king.

Sandwiches — On vari-colored and white and whole wheat bread —lobster, sliced chicken, chicken salad, tuna salad, pinwheels (centred with cherries, stuffed olives, banana), ribbon, checkerboard, open face.

Relishes—Celery hearts (outer stalks finely diced for "salad-type" sandwich fillings), green and ripe olives, radish rosettes, gherkins.

Cakes and Cookies —Petit fours (these seem to be a "must") decorated vanilla cookies, tiny tarts and butterscotch and apricot tarts, cleverly decorated with icing tube using mixture of whipped cream and "piping jelly" which I would dearly love to know about.

Confections—Marzipan strawberries and vari-colored mints.

Beverages — Non-alcoholic punch (consumption sky-rockets during hot summer months), with ice cubes in which lemon slices and cherries were frozen; tea and coffee. We had a plentiful supply (and needed it!) for all guests were refilled later for toasts.

Early in the reception Marianne and Herbie "cut" the cake but Marianne had made an extra large "cutting" cake which was cut in advance and ready to pass at once, thus the toasting time was not delayed.

My brother, who was master of ceremonies and introduced Dr. Bates who proposed the toast to the brids'. He has known her since she was a little girl and in her nursing years they were hospital regulars. He made quite a hit. He said M.C. after Herbie's name didn't mean so much Military Cross to Marianne as "Married Couple." Herbie responded to that most lovingly and graciously and proposed a toast to the bridesmaids, to which Bob Pitts (best man) responded and then in turn engagingly proposed a toast to the bride's parents. Pete rose to that occasion. It was his privilege to toast Mrs. Pitts (now senior-in-law) for Mr. Pitts' mother is still living) which was easy to do for in the six days she had been our guest we had a delightful time. Dear darling Herbie responded to this toast to his beloved mother and was the star of the roster of speakers.

IMPORTANT NOTE:

If you want to write to me for quantities and recipes for fillings you will have to wait until the last week in June for I am going to be in England and Scotland and France that month. Will readers please take note of that: do not write to me after May 20 until June 20. After June 20 I shall be glad, as always, to hear from you again.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE SHOULD PUT THE PAST BEHIND HER

When a woman has married an unworthy husband, but is still in love with him, it is understandable that she may feel life will, on the whole, be less unhappy if s h e sticks with him than if she gives him up. But when it is a case of a young unmarried woman who believes herself in love with an unworthy young man, the situation is entirely different. With time to catch herself before she goes into a marriage that seems predestined to unhappiness, she is foolish indeed if she refuses to heed the danger signals.

A letter I have just received from a young divorcee of 28, points up the sort of thing I mean.

"About a year ago, at the time I was separated from my husband but not yet divorced, I met a 28-year-old widower," she writes.

"He was wonderful to me and my child, but shortly after I met him, he lost his job and became very depressed and unhappy. He came to my house often, and we spent most of the time just staring home watching television. I tried every way I could to help him.

"Eventually, he persuaded me to get a divorce so that later on we could be married. I didn't want to get a divorce because of my religion and also because of my child, but because I loved this man I did divorce my husband.

"About a month ago, he got a well-paying job, but since then his attitude toward me has changed. He now comes over very seldom, and he's not sure he wants t o get married. I'm very hurt, because I helped him when he needed me, and now, when I was hoping marriage to him would make things better for my little girl and myself, he seems to have lost interest.

Do you think that this is just something temporary on his part, and should I keep hoping that things will straighten out?"

To begin with the last sentence of the letter, I would answer this question by saying that if the young woman is so eager to marry this particular young man that she is willing to be patient and wait to see if his present attitude is, as she says, "just something temporary." There certainly is no great harm in doing so. The only possible harm is that which she may do to herself. If she continues hope over an extended period of time, and then, in the end, is forced to realize that she had hoped and waited in vain.

But my own feeling is that she would do better to make up her mind right now that the young man is not worthy of the confidence she placed in him, and turn her thoughts to other people and other things. As it is, it is extremely doubtful that, whatever his original intentions may have been—that he don't feel at all sure they ever were very sincere—he intends to marry her now. If he did so intend, his behavior would be quite different. Instead of neglecting her, now that he has a good job again, a man who truly loved her would be making every effort to show her how grateful he was to her for her help and companionship at a time she needed them.

She has legally freed herself so that she can marry again any time. She says she did not want the divorce because her principles were against it. But since she did take that step, she should put the whole thing behind her and set out to make a new future for herself. If she will go about it with determination, now allowing herself to brood over anything that is over and done with, and purposefully looking about her for new friends and new activities, she will certainly find happiness again.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NAME AND RING WHEN LEGALLY SEPARATED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have just obtained a legal separation. About this I have two questions.

1. I would like to discontinue using the name (for example) "Mrs. Henry Davis." Instead I should like to use "Mrs. Atwater Davis" (Atwater, let's say, being my maiden name). Would this be correct?

2. I would also like to discontinue wearing my wedding ring. (I have two children, who live with me.) —Legally-separated

1. Even though a legal separation has taken place, you and your husband are still married, though not living together. Therefore you are still "Mrs. Henry Davis." The form of name you would like to use . . . the combination of your maiden surname and your husband's surname . . . is the form correctly used by a divorcee.

2. A wife legally separated from her husband usually continues to wear her wedding ring. Since you have two children, it would seem most important for you, to continue to wear your wedding ring.

THEY MUST INVITE EVERYONE IN THE COMMUNITY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Where my fiance and I live everyone knows everyone else. We are to be married very soon, and we just cannot invite some to our wedding and not all the others. So we have the problem as to how we can announce the date and the place of the wedding and the fact that everyone will be welcome to come. Is it proper to put an announcement in the local newspaper? — A.B.

I imagine that, in these circumstances this is an accepted custom in the community where you and your fiance live. If so, it would be practical to follow this custom, and it would probably be expected that you would. However, it would be more gracious and personal to invite those whom you know very well by word-of-mouth or by telephone or by notes, and also, if you wish to, ask the ministers of the churches to make the invitation-announcements at their services.

WHO PAYS FOR THESE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

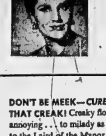
About wedding expenses: Who properly pays for the liquor to be served at the reception—who pays for the orchestra—and who pays for the wedding pictures? — C.

These expenses . . . beverages served at the wedding reception . . . the orchestra . . . and the wedding pictures, formal photographs or candids, are the responsibility of the bride's parents.

PHOTOGRAPH OF WEDDING GROUP

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to have quite a number of bridal attendants, is it the proper thing, for me to buy every one of my attendants a group photograph?



If you can afford this, it is a generous gesture to make. Or if it is evident that you are not planning to do this, they will undoubtedly wish to order their own from the photographer. Very often the bride, instead of giving a formal photograph to the attendants, gives copies of some of the candid shots to her attendants, perhaps in a small album.

DON'T BE MEEK—CURE THAT CREAKY! Squeaky doors are annoying . . . to milady as well as to the Laird of the Manor creeping in late! Easy to fix—just work moist soap between the loose boards!

SPACE-SAVER—AND SMART! If you don't have room for belts in your dresser, put small metal hooks on the undersids of a wooden hanger. Hang belts on hooks and they stay in neat row in your closet.

BACON LIKE YOU SEE IN THE ADS! You're right if you think there's a trick to cooking bacon so that it looks the way it does in the ads! It is! Put bacon in cold pan, cook at low temp, and drain fat regularly.

BE GENTLE WITH THAT SUEDE, LADY! Best way to freshen suede shoes and bags is to brush with a dry, soft-rubber sponge. This gentle brushing brings out the softness and beauty of your suede.

Avondale H-S Association Holds Season's Last Meeting

The last Avondale Home and School meeting for the season was held in Avondale school, Monday evening, with a large attendance. President, Mrs. R. Knowlton, presided.

The treasurer, Clifford Champaign, reported a successful year.

A talk on "Cubs" was given by assistant Cub leader, Mrs. A. Daniels. Since two of the Cub leaders have recently left, Mr. I. Knight is the successor and is doing fine work. There are 18 Cubs on roll.

It was explained that when new Cubs join the organization they are called "New Chums," from there, they are "Tenderpads." When they are invested, they work to obtain their 1st star. Their next aim is in working for their 2nd star. When this is attained they in the language of Cubs, "Have both eyes open." They are then ready to work for the proficiency badge.

In Avondale there are three 1st star Cubs and three 2nd star Cubs. In the fall the latter three will have completed Cubs and will join the Scouts.

A talk on Scout activities, given by Ralph Stevenson, Scout leader of Avondale.

In January 1954, DSM Herb, Middleton organized the Scout troup of Avondale, with Ralph Knowlton as Scout leader. There were 11 Tenderfoot Scouts; one 2nd Class and an additional two to be invested. By the end of the Scout year in June, the following activities had been accomplished —went on two week-end camping expeditions; earned two 1st aid re-grading tests; earned three proficiency badges; obtained a troup flag from the local association; added two first aid kits and two silver compasses to the troup equipment; built two patrol boxes; the whole troop uniformed; attended a Scouts' training course consisting of four evenings; attended the Wm. Mrs. conference in Trenton; was assistant camp chief at annual camp.

PATROLS ORGANIZED

In the present year, three patrols have been organized with a yearly competition and prizes being given. The troop now stands: four Tenderfoots; nine Second Class; one First Class. Three of the above Scouts are nearly ready for First Class.

The activities this year consisted of the following: Two week-end camps; one winter hike; one combined exercise with 1st Belleville troop; three Scouts qualified for Ambulancemen badge.

PLANNED ACTIVITIES

Planned activities in the near future are: Camp at Scootamata with Fellowship trophy being awarded to the best patrol; annual camp trip; world jamboree.

Fifteen from this district are attending the latter. Two Scouts qualified from Avondale for camp.

Troop must be sponsored by an established club, church, Women's club or Home and School association.

The sponsoring group in accepting the charter undertake to provide: a suitable meeting place; supervision and leadership; a group committee of influential and active members whose job is to develop gradually a complete group if possible; give due emphasis to the religious aspect of Scouting; to ensure that the various sections of the troop receive progressive training in character, health and handicraft; provide the necessary headquarters, equipment and opportunities for training; accept any conditions laid down in policy, organization and rules of the Boy Scouts Association; to look after the "business side" of running a troop as to raising funds or administering property; nomination of new Scouters and Assistant Scouters.

The sponsoring group and the group committee are not directly concerned with the actual practical training of the troop. This is the responsibility of the Scout Master and he is accountable to the district commissioner.

The purpose of scouting is to build character.

SCOUT PROMISE

Scout promise: "On my honor I promise to do my best, to do my duty to God and the Queen, to help others at all times."

The subject of numbering the houses on No. 2 highway was approached at on earlier date. A report on same was given by Mr. A. Clare to the effect that council was approving of this step.

It was announced that Mrs. Gorrill, teacher of Avondale, is leaving Avondale school. She and her husband, who is also a school teacher, have accepted positions elsewhere.

In June, 47 students from Avondale school will go to Toronto by bus, accompanied by Mr. K. Bird and Mrs. Carswell. They will visit the Royal Museum, the Parliament Buildings, and Casa Loma.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

At this time, a slate of officers was brought in by Mr. G. Ackerman, the following were voted in by acclamation:

President, Mrs. R. Knowlton; vice-president, Mrs. L. Jones; treasurer, Mr. George Day; secy, retary, Mrs. A. Ackerman.

Installation was made by Mr. K. Bird.

Monthly program conveners are, Mr. and Mrs. L. Jones; Mr. Bird and company; Mr. and Mrs. G. Ackerman; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis; Mr. and Mrs. Musgrove; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver; Mr. and Mrs. Renouf; Mr. and Mrs. Ling.

It was announced that on June 15, the Queen Elizabeth school is sponsoring a Work Shop.

BANNER WON

The monthly attendance banner was awarded to Mrs. Gorrill's class room.

Mr. and Mrs. Renouf, who were in charge of the program for the month of May, had two talented young people, one a former Avondale school student now attending Quinte Secondary school, Mary Catherine Clare, and a present Avondale school student, Roger Ling, render piano solos. This entertainment was much appreciated by all members present.

Refreshments were served by mothers of Grade 1 students, ending another pleasant Home and School year.

President of H-S Assoc. Presented With Gold Pin

The May meeting of the Queen Victoria and Sir Winston Churchill Home and School Association held Monday evening at Queen Victoria school closed the 1954-55 season with an attendance of approximately 150 persons.

Mr. E. Fairman's class sang "O Canada" after which The Lord's Prayer was said in unison. Mrs. C. C. Powell read the minutes. Mrs. A. A. Wilson, who, along with Mrs. D. Garlepy represented the association at the convention in Toronto in April, gave an interesting report on the subjects discussed. A motion was made by Mrs. Clark Potter, seconded by Mr. R. Tanner that the association sponsor a Cub Pack to be held at Sir Winston Churchill school. Mr. W. St. Pierre, treasurer, gave a report on the children's St. Patrick's Fair, and also the year's financial statement. A motion was made by Mr. R. Randell and seconded by Mr. E. Wollons that the sum of $50 be used to purchase nursery kitchen equipment for Sir Winston Churchill school.

ANNUAL EXCURSION

Mr. Fairman gave an explanatory talk on the purpose of an annual day's excursion to be taken by the pupils of Grade 7 to observe personally methods of community and industrial science. Several members of the conservation committee will accompany the students. Mr. Fairman moved that the Home and School Association spend the sum of $400 to cover the expenses of a bus for this trip and that this be a yearly event. This motion was seconded by Mrs. J. Dyble. Mrs. N. O'Neil spoke on the invaluable facilities to be gained by attending the leadership camp at Lake Couchiching. Mrs. G. A. Bradford moved that the sum of $50 be spent for the purpose of sending two delegates from the association to the Couchiching conference. Mrs. J. Winstanley seconded this motion.

Attention was called to the Workshop to help leaders to be held June 13, at 8.00 p.m., at Sir Wfnston Churchill school. Mrs. Brooks of Kingston, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Brooks took special course in Chicago on Parent Education.

The attendance count was won by Mr. Dier's class of Sir Winston Churchill school, and by Mr. Fairman's class of Queen Victoria school. Mrs. C. C. Powell gave a resume of the year's activities and reported 238 enrolled members.

Mrs. N. O'Neil, retiring president, after two years' earnest and unceasing effort to the betterment of the association, gave her report to members of the executive. Mr. Fairman, Mr. Frederick and all teachers and parents for their co-operation and interest in Home and School. Mrs. O'Neil wished the officers elect a successful year and asked the parents to stand behind the executive 100 per cent.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

Mrs. G. A. Bradford presented the new slate of officers as follows—president, Mrs. A. A. Wilson; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. L. Hitchon and Mrs. C. C. Powell; recording secretary, Mrs. D. Garlepy; correspondence secretary, Mrs. R. Randell; treasurer, Mr. K. W. Hunter; general members, Mrs. M. Willistion, Mrs. F. Benson, Mrs. J. Winnerley, Mr. B. M. Kerr, Mr. Edward Wollons, Mr. R. F. Cooper.

The incoming executive for 1955-56 were installed by Mr. R. Tanner.

Mrs. A. Wilson, president, thanked the parents for their confidence in her.

Mr. William Bray, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Ruth Watson, in glowing terms. Sponsored by the Lions Club in District A, Miss Watson started out with a field of approximately 1,500 students. Speaking at Napanee to emerge the winner, and again in Peterborough with similar success Miss Watson represented Belleville in a group of 5 persons from Ontario and Quebec to again make a wonderful showing and placed second in the girls' section.

Miss Watson's talk was an unusual address in which the association visited with her the land of Formosa, walked down a busy street to the market place, and on to a leper colony seeing sights vividly and hearing, sounds foreign to our ears through her polished presentation of these things. Miss Watson's clear ringing voice, naturalness and ease of manner were no doubt a great asset to her in helping to bring recognition to the City of Belleville.

PRESENTATION OF PP PIN

A colorful and pleasant show of talent was presented by a number of the students. Miss E. Horton, a teacher on the staff of Sir Winston Churchill school, favored with a piano solo.

Mr. E. Fairman thanked Mrs. N. O'Neil for being a co-operative and helpful president and presented her with a gold past president's pin.

Mr. H. A. Lloyd led the choir in a rendition of "God Save Our Gracious Queen" to close a full but satisfying evening.

Tabernacle U.C. WMS Entertains Sister Societies

The Tabernacle U.C. Woman's Missionary Society entertained the members of Foxboro W.M.S. and College Hill W.A. at its meeting on May 10th and it was an inspiring sight to see the parlors filled to near capacity for the occasion.

The president, Mrs. W. B. May, extended a gracious welcome to the visitors. She spoke of a share of the work as the influence exerted here extends to far lands. "Our talents are God's gift to us and should be used for the extension of His kingdom." As each is given a bag of tools, a shapeless mass, and a book of rules and each must make 'ere life is flown, a stumbling block or a stepping stone. Those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves. Case somebody's heartache and you will soon forget your own.

Mrs. A. D. Archibald thanked Mrs. Wesse for her interesting and stimulating address, also the Foxboro ladies for their part in the program and Mrs. West of College Hill, for her lovely solo.

A happy social time was spent over a cup of tea with light refreshments before the ladies departed for their homes, bringing to a close a worthwhile meeting. Mrs. Shorten, of Foxboro, speaking for the visiting societies, thanked the Tabernacle W.M.S. for the invitation and said it was stimulating to all to get together this way.

Mother's Work With Retarded Son Starts First School for Children

EDMONTON (CP) — For more than 20 years Mrs. Winnifred Stewart taught her retarded son to fit into society despite his handicap.

Today, thanks mainly to her work, the first school for retarded children is being built. Now classes for 45 retarded children are being conducted 15 hours a week in the city's recreation centre.

Valued at $100,000, the new school will provide 100 children with full-time instruction. It will have five classrooms, a kitchen and auditorium.

The organization for the rehabilitation of retarded children, of which Mrs. Stewart is president, is building the school. It is spending about $1,500 for materials and paying for labor. The rest has been donated.

EACH PAY HALF

The provincial government and local school boards are each paying half the salary of three teachers. Two years ago school officials classified the children as "uneducationable."

"It has been shown now," says Mrs. Stewart, "that about 80 per cent of retarded children can be rehabilitated to self-management and partial self-support.

"Less than five per cent are completely hopeless."

The IQs of all the pupils are below 50.

Until the first trained teacher was hired recently, all teaching had been voluntary, headed by Mrs. Stewart, a registered nurse.

UNEQUAL CONTEST

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A rattlesnake with six rattles went down swinging Tuesday in Bakersfield's downtown traffic. It hasn't been determined how the snake got into the traffic lanes, but he was coiled and striking from time to time at passing cars. Finally a vehicle ran over the snake's head and killed it.

STIRLING

NERVOUS; ALWAYS TIRED LIMBS, BACK SORE, PAINFUL

Surprising How Much Better I Am Since Taking Syntona Says This Grateful Woman.

"I am so pleased with the way I feel that I am anxious to let other sufferers know how Syntona has helped me," said Mrs. Ethel Edgar, 947 Oxford St., London, Ont., in a recent statement. "My nerves were very bad and I felt tired out all the time. Especially in the mornings after a restless night I just seemed to have no energy. I had a constant backache, my limbs ached and my limbs, joints and muscles were sore and painful.

Mrs. Ethel Edgar

Feel Better In Few Days

"After I started taking Syntona I felt so much better that I do my work around the house, although I didn't have the energy to do this before. As I continued with Syntona the aches and pains disappeared, my nerves calmed down so that I am getting sound sleep at night. I cannot begin to tell you how pleased I am to be feeling better and I owe it all to Syntona."

Easy to Take

Although Syntona is made from Herbs and Roots, its fine flavor makes it extremely agreeable to the taste. And its invigorating tonic action has helped thousands of men and women like Mrs. Edgar to feel their very best—through the use of this time-tested combination. Those who are nervous, rundown and general tiredness conditions. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

MARSH HILL

'Fellow Laborers' Talk At WMS Meeting

MARSH HILL—The May meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Fields with 12 members present. The president, Mrs. Leslie Fields, opened the meeting with a reading, "Your Friends."

The members reported making 18 hospital visits and sending 31 cards and one letter. Mrs. Fred Campbell reported on racial brotherhood. Mrs. E. B. Finkle, the group leader, conducted the worship service, the theme being "To Live and To Give."

Mrs. Fields introduced Mrs. Darke who gave a talk on Corinthians 3, 9, "For ye are God's fellow laborers." What is the biggest question we can ask? Why am I here? Why have I been sent into this world? We are sent into this world to be fellow laborers with God.

"We have a definite and clear purpose in life that implies two things: First, we cannot do anything without God. Second, God cannot do without us. Some work is religious and some secular, as we are all fellow laborers with God, you cannot have the one without the other. Christ needs the products of our work today just as much as He needed the hands and help of James and John, the fishermen, Martha, the housewife, gentle Mary, the worshipper, Peter the rock, and even Thomas the doubter. Christ's disciples and friends were ordinary people until they answered the call.

A WILLING SPIRIT NEEDED

"We need a spirit that is willing to work. Christ has no hands, no feet, nor tongue to do this work, but our feet, tongue and hands. Christ could have saved the world by His own effort, but He did not. He chose it. He risked everything upon their love and their loyalty. The same is true today.

"The challenge of today is that Christ counts on all, the youngest and the oldest. Let us join hands before it is too late."

Mrs. Walter Lindenfield gave a reading, "A Secret to Share."

Mrs. E. B. Finkle was assisted in the special program called "We Must Share," by Mesdames David Hollinger, Frank Finkle, Berson Mitts and Fred Campbell.

From this program several questions were answered, such as "How many members of the Dominion Board are salaried officers?" "How allocations are determined?" "How the Women's Missionary Society co-operates financially with other boards of the church?" "Why funds are needed in overseas work today?", and "Why Dominion Board objects to scattering of W.M.S. funds?"

Mrs. Lindenfield closed the meeting with prayer, after which the hostess served refreshments.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — The United Church and Sunday School observed Mother's Day by holding a union service at 10 a.m. There was a good attendance. The junior choir assisted in the singing and rendered an appropriate hymn. Mr. Harold Morton, the Sunday School superintendent assisted the Rev. R. G. Chapman in conducting the service. Mrs. Ed. Way, representing the mothers of the church, was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Previous to the regular, program of service, a baptismal service was held when Lynda Marian, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Morton received the rite of baptism.

Service in Christ Church on Mother's Day was also held in the morning. There was a good attendance.

Several of the Sigma C members of Thomasburg attended the Friday evening meeting in Moira Church.

The CGIT group met last Tuesday evening in the vestry. Their project for the last two meetings was the making of gifts for their mothers for Mother's Day. From reports received these have given great pleasure.

Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. A. Jones were Napanee visitors last Thursday. Mrs. H. Hennessy returned to Thomasburg with them.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Griffin, Dennis and Wayne, of Tweed, have taken up residence in Mrs. Richardson's home.

Thomasburg had many visitors on Sunday when many families returned of honor their mothers on Mother's Day.

All social and church activities have speeded up in Thomasburg violin-ity, and the village is buzzing seems to be the order of the day.

FOXBORO

S. Hastings E.A. Sponsors Music Festival

FOXBORO — The music festival sponsored by the South Hastings Educational Association was held in the school auditorium on Wednesday evening with a large attendance.

Mr. E. Cummins, assistant inspector, was chairman for the evening and the adjudicator was Mr. Both, of Belleville.

The primary grades with Mrs. R. Chapman, as teacher, opened with a rhythm band with Brian Derry as leader. This was followed by a comic song by Shirley and Raymond Stevens, which in turn was followed by a girl's song chorus and then a boy's song. Three choruses were sung by the juniors, "Playing Ball," "Tick-Tock," "Prayer."

The junior grades 4 and 5, with Miss Marilyn Parks as teacher, opened wit ha chorus, "Sing a Little Song When You are Happy," followed by "The Mercies Lord." The boys sang in unison "The Huntsman," while the girls sang "Freckles." A two-part song followed with a unison song "Around the World."

The junior and intermediate grades 6, 7 and 8, with theacher, Mrs. M. Hayton, opened with a unison chorus, "Children at Play." The girls followed with "Apply a Lovely Lady," and the boys' unison "The Fox and the Grapes." A two-part song, "The Fairy Dream." The girls sang a three-part song "All Through the Night," with the boys singing a "Spring Song." A three-part song, "Now the Day is Over" brought the evening to a close.

Mr. Both commended the music teacher, Miss Grace Pitman, on such a fine program.

McCANN ACCUSED

Meanwhile, in Smiths Falls, before the Eastern Ontario Conservative Association, Mr. Hees said:

"And how did the minister give the information to Mr. Frost? He just happened that Dr. McCann and Mr. Frost were at the Dominion — provincial conference March 28-31 together' and it just happened that Dr. McCann has some photostats of the Dempsey receipts (for the contributions) in his pockets.

IN A CORNER

"Dr. McCann just thought Mr. Frost might be interested in these photostats, strictly from the succession duty point of view,' of course, and so he drew Mr. Frost into a corner and let him have a look at the photostats, just like a Parisian postcard vendor trying to peddle his wares.

"And so we have the picture of a minister of this government using his department for a purely political gain. . . It is, however, a little surprising to find a minister if the crown stooping to such colour and dirty tactics as Dr. McCann has done in an effort to defeat the provincial member in his own riding."

Dr. McCann told the House Monday he had a talk with Mr. Frost at the Ottawa conference. But he did not disclose the nature of the discussion.

He said that under Income Tax Act and the Succession Duty Act he could not disclose anything concerning estates to persons not entitled to this information.

SECRECY STIPULATION

Mr. Zaplitny said the Succession Duty Act provides that information may be disclosed only to persons entitled to it. One would expect that these persons would be officials of the revenue department and that they would be sworn to secrecy.

Did Dr. McCann consider Mr. Frost in the same category as department officials? Was the Ontario premier sworn to secrecy under the provisions of the Income Tax Act?

". . . If that is not the case . . . the minister had no business to disclose information to a person who is not bound by the secrecy provision, when he has refused to give the same information, or similar information, in the House of Commons," Mr. Zaplitny said.

Dr. McCann said Mr. Frost had a right to the information because he is treasurer of Ontario.

HIS DUTY

Mr. Zaplitny continued:

"If the information which came to the hands of the minister as the result of the administration of an estate—and we are given to understand that this happened a few years ago—was in his possession, and if he felt that the law of the land was being broken or that regulations were not being lived up to, then it was his duty at that time to notify the proper authorities.

"If he (Dr. McCann) felt that it was an evasion of the Income Tax Act and that undisclosed income was involved then I think it was his duty to lay a proper charge and to start action at that time.

"And the fact that he did not do so lends credence to the statement made (in Smiths Falls) by the president of the Progressive Conservative Association (Mr. Hees)."

"WOULD BE ENOUGH"

Mr. Zaplitny added that if Dr. McCann had received information that indicated a law had been violated and withheld it for political purposes, "that in itself, in my opinion, would be enough for the minister to be charged with a great misdemeanor."

It was not the prerogative of a minister to use confidential information for political purposes. That was a dereliction of duty and an abuse of public trust.

Mr. Frost was shown photostats of receipts for the contribution to Mr. Dempsey's campaign funds. The receipts were found when Mr. Drohan's estate was being probated after his death in 1952.

After returning to Toronto Mr. Frost asked Mr. Dempsey to drop out of the coming election.

DEMPSEY WILL RUN

Mr. Dempsey, who has called his failure to report the Drohan contributions an "indiscretion," argues that he has committed no crime and has decided to run for the Progressive Conservative nomination at Renfrew Saturday.

But Mayor Robert Simpson of Arnprior, Ont., has announced he will compete with Mr. Dempsey if the party doesn't endorse the MPP. And Premier Frost in a statement Wednesday night said he will continue to withhold his endorsement of Mr. Dempsey until he has given a complete explanation of the unreported funds both to his constituents and the premier.

Mr. Frost said Mr. Dempsey has made a number of statements to the press. But these statements were "very conflicting."

Quiet Quebec Area Becomes "Co lum bium Capital of the World."

Cheese made by Trappist monks of Oka, Que., has made them famous, but the one cell in the left hand of Andree Arbour, local bank manager's daughter, is making Oka more famous still. The ore is columbium, used in the hardening and rust-proofing of steel and aluminum, and drill samples have proved Oka to have the Western world's largest deposit, valued at three more than that.

Senator William Euler Wants Senate Brought Up to Strength

OTTAWA (CP) — A self-styled Liberal rebel says the Senate cannot be made useful merely by keeping it at its full strength of 102 members.

Senator Thomas Reid (L — British Columbia) said in the upper house Wednesday that "it is not the numbers that count, but the quality of the appointees."

He was speaking on a bill proposed by Senator William Euler (L—Ontario) to amend the British North America Act to compel the government to fill all Senate vacancies within six months from the day they occur.

Senator Euler, former trade minister, said "if we are to have a Senate at all, it should be fully constituted and not be destroyed by the slow process of attrition."

The Senate now has 23 vacancies. The last appointment was that of Senator Nancy Hodges, former Speaker of the British Columbia legislature, in November, 1953. Some seats have been vacant five to seven years.

Appointment of 21 men or women of ability and mature judgment "not too old and with a reasonable degree of permanency" would increase the efficiency of the Senate and raise it in the estimation of the people, Senator Euler said.

However, Senator Reid, who opposed the bill, said quality of appointees is more important than numbers.

He took the occasion to chastise "many" Conservatives in the Commons for being "afraid to get up on their feet and express their opinions" on Senate matters.

He said he was regarded as a rebel when he sat in the Commons as the Liberal member for New Westminster. He is independent might have cost him a cabinet post but he spoke up just the same.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, supported the bill and said the trouble with the Senate is lack of opposition. There are very few Conservative representatives compared with 74 Liberals.

Senator James King (L—British Columbia) agreed that the Senate should be kept up to strength, but didn't think the upper house should tell the government what to do about vacancies.

At one point, Senator Norman Paterson (L—Ontario) asked Senator Euler what the 21 vacancies had saved the country. Senators get $10,000 a year.

Senator Euler replied the saving "would be still more if you abolish the Senate altogether."

Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba), a former trade minister, seconded the bill. He said that in these days of challenges to the institutions of democratic freedom, they should be kept at full strength.

The Senate was set up at Confederation as an appointed house—the members getting appointments for life. There were suggestions it should be made elective but he would vote to abolish the Senate before he would see it become an elected body.

Senator Reid expressed surprise at Senator Crerar's remark that he would vote for abolition before making the Senate elective. Senator Crerar himself had set that view about abolishing the Senate as "it'd reign right now."

Small Supply Of U.S. Vaccine Being Withheld

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is withholding from public use a small supply of imported Salk polio vaccine manufactured in the United States, where mass inoculation programs have been held up pending a government check of production methods.

Health Minister Martin disclosed this Wednesday in the Commons in replying to CCF Leader Coldwell, who asked whether steps are being taken to prevent Canadian children suffering ill effects from privately-manufactured vaccine.

Mr. Martin said steps have been taken to ensure vaccine imports are investigated. A small supply came from one U.S. company about a month ago.

"There are some supplies in Canada now that are not at the moment being released," he added.

PARKE DAVIS COMPANY

Later, a health department official said the shipment being held back was brought in by Parke, Davis and Co., one of two U.S. companies with Canadian plants which have been licensed to manufacture the vaccine. The other firm is Eli Lilly and Co.

Federal health officials said Monday no trouble has been found with the Parke-Davis vaccine. Dr. Devic Co., which sold about 15,000 doses, reported that it had received 300,000 coming from the Connaught Laboratories in Toronto.

Further imports from the U.S. are being held up until the U.S. completes its inoculation programs, halted early this week after more than 50 persons among millions inoculated came down with polio.

Congress May Give President Wide Control in Distribution And Prices of Salk Vaccine

WASHINGTON (AP)—A move is gaining momentum in the United States Congress to give President Eisenhower sweeping stand-by powers to clamp controls over distribution and prices of Salk polio vaccine.

Republican Senator Wolcott (Rep. Mich.) said the proposal seems to be a "happy compromise" between mandatory demands for only voluntary guides and for drastic compulsory and immediate controls. He thought stand-by powers should be satisfactory in the Administrative Administration, which has opposed federal controls so far.

MANY BILLS STUDIED

Wolcott, usually a foe of federal controls, is senior Republican on the House of Representatives banking committee, now considering a wide variety of vaccine control bills.

The U.S. public health service meanwhile continued a search for spot recheck of vaccine manufacturing at the Parke-Davis and Co. laboratories in Detroit. Nine of five manufacturers to be inspected. The U.S. surgeon general, Dr. Leonard Scheele, has called for a halt in the vaccination of America's children pending these plant-by-plant rechecks.

Dr. Scheele agreed to go before the committee Friday to explain the situation further.

Steelworkers Map Strategy to Secure Increased Wages

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The United Steelworkers (CIO) mapped strategy today for a fight to secure a substantial wage increase in unprecedented simultaneous negotiations with six major American steel producers.

The union's 170-member wage policy committee Wednesday approved the "substantial" boost demand of USW president David J. McDonald. McDonald declined to reveal the exact amount. Steel workers now average $2.33 an hour in the United States.

The union has some 600,000 American workers in basic steel plants, and as many more in steel fabricating firms.

For the first time, talks will be held with six major steel firms concurrently. The union plans to open bargaining sessions with U.S. Steel Corp., June 7.

CHANGE IN PROCEDURE

Until now, the union has negotiated individually with U.S. Steel, world's largest producer. The settlement with U.S. Steel usually set the pace for the other producers.

This year talks will be held with Bethlehem Steel Corp., Republic Steel Corp., Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., Inland Steel, and Youngstown Sheet ad Tube Co., in addition to U.S. Steel.

Terms of a new contract from the companies on the union action. McDonald said the chief demand was wage increase.

Observers feel the union will settle for about a 12½-cent-an-hour raise, and that there will be no strike.

Co-operative Bid for Industrial Development Considered By Northeast Ontario Delegates

NORTH BAY (CP) — Delegates from 16 northeastern Ontario municipalities agreed Wednesday to give full consideration to a plan to unite the area in a co-operative bid for increased industrial development.

They agreed to meet again June 15 to make their final decision. In the interim discussions will be held in each of the four zones which would be subdivisions to the proposed regional unit.

The plan was explained to delegates by A. V. Crate, assistant director of the trade and industries branch of the Ontario department of planning and development.

During the meeting, Mr. Crate appealed to municipalities to forget their differences and unite in a determined move to secure new industrial stability.

MUST LOOK AHEAD

The time had come, Mr. Crate told delegates, for northern towns and townships to give up "individual jealousies and selfishness".

"If you are not prepared to look with great vision to the future, to look 50 years ahead, you may as well put on your hat and go home," he declared.

Four regional development associations, modelled on proposals made by the department of planning and development and the mining industry branch, are now in various stages of organization in Ontario. One, in eastern Ontario, has been in existence for a year and its members are reported to be considering increasing their financial contributions in order to extend its services.

The schemes provide for the financing of a full time development into the area and to act as its representative in negotiations with the government on development problems.

FOUR ZONES

The northeastern Ontario plan provides for the division of the territory into four development zones. These are first, districts of Algoma and Manitoulin; second, district of Sudbury; third, districts of Nipissing and Temiskaming; and fourth, district of Cochrane.

Chairman of the session was W. Roy Thompson of Kirkland Lake, president of the Northeastern Ontario Associated Chambers of Commerce. Mayor L. A. Landreville of Sudbury was chairman at the dinner following the session. Delegates were welcomed to North Bay by Mayor M. E. Dickerson.

Ontario Diocese Anglican Synod Ends Sessions

KINGSTON (CP) — The 89th session of the Anglican synod of the Ontario diocese of Kingston were here Wednesday after a long session on synodical matters.

Earlier Prof. R. G. Smalls of Queen's University presented the budget for 1955.

Delegates passed a resolution calling for a theological college to be established upon the true income of the parishes, less certain deductions.

In morning sessions the synod decided to continue broadcasting the National Sunday School of the Air program over radio station CFCH in Brockville, despite opposition from Rev. T. H. Good of Kingston.

Mr. Good said the broadcast was for children in a limited area who should be at Sunday school.

POINTS TO AUDIENCE

But Rev. J. L. Nicholson of Brockville said the program has a potential listening audience of 10,000 and is broadcast at an hour when Sunday school is not normally held.

Ald. to Probe Dismissal Of Two Constables

HAMILTON (CP)—Ald. William Harris said Wednesday night he will conduct an intensive personal investigation into the dismissal of two Hamilton police constables.

The officers, Eugene Lisiecki and Jack Turner, were dismissed from the force Tuesday by Inspector Howard Moreau for alleged "irregularities." The constables were tried at two secret hearings last week behind closed doors. Charges against the men were not made public.

Ald. Harris said he was not satisfied by the explanations given in the case. He said taxpayers have the right to know what's going on.

Insp. Moreau Wednesday night declined to confirm or deny the constables' statement that he had fired them. He said an official department announcement might be prejudicial to the men if they decided to appeal the case.

Both Turner and Lisiecki said they intended to appeal the decision before the police commission.

Drew Sums Up Principles Of Party at Assoc. Meeting

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader sums up the principles of the party in five "Cs".

The conserving of the crown, the Commonwealth, the constitution, the Commons and country.

"In some measure," he said, "every one of them is challenged by the present government, which has been blinded by the love of power, challenged on constitution, derided the rights of Parliament, disregarded its responsibilities to the people, adopted many practices of socialism and given but lukewarm evidence of its acceptance of our part within the Commonwealth."

Mr. Drew, speaking Wednesday night at a meeting of his party's eastern Ontario executive, criticized the Liberal government for refusing "flatly to discuss like subject of unemployment as though it simply did not exist." He also said the federal government has repudiated the promises on which it was elected.

The government now regards itself as free from the obligation to fulfil the proposals it made in the 1945 federal-provincial conference, he said. They are Liberals but pledged in 1949 and 1953 elections to be bound by the proposals, which involved plans for full employment, public works and investment and social security.

The reorganization meeting elected Dr. J. A. McCue of Smiths Falls president of the 14-riding eastern Ontario association. O. F. Howe, Ottawa, Mrs. Lawrence Gligh, Brockville, and James Bushkin, Renfrew were named vice-presidents with Miss Louise Radnic, Ottawa, secretary, and John Steer, Cornwall, treasurer.

Dunlop Denies Stalling Charge Made by Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Dunlop of Ontario says he is inclined to understand an alleged Wednesday by the Ontario Teachers' Federation at the province's three-teacher public schools.

The minister in a statement Wednesday night denied a charge he is "stalling" on a proposed meeting with the federation's executive.

"I told them several times I would be glad to meet with the executive of the federation's council," he said.

Dr. Dunlop also denied he promised to set up a committee of department officials and teachers to discuss elementary school training. Another charge in the federation's statement.

The minister said he only promised to "consider" the matter. He said he has since examined reports from principals of teacher colleges and inspectors which indicate "summer course people are fine students and successful teachers."

Mother and Three Children Perish in Fire at Amherstburg

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP)—A mother of three was burned to death in an effort to save the youngest of her three children when flames raced through their dwelling early today. All four were in bed when a boarder escaped through a window.

Firemen in this town of 3,600 on the Detroit river about 10 miles south of Windsor found the body but could not attempt a rescue.

Dead are Mrs. Marjorie Smith, 30; her daughters, Patsy, 12, and Carol, 12; and her son, Billy, 8.

Witness accounts said Mrs. Marjorie Smith dead in the boy's bedroom. They said her arms were around the child and she appeared to have been overcome while trying to get him to safety.

Carol and Patsy tried to make their way down the blazing stairway from the second floor but died at the door of their father.

In each case suffocation was given as the cause of death.

Police said the fire might have escaped unharmed if they had been awakened sooner.

Pvt. Lloyd Luff, a boarder, was in the rear of the house in his room when he heard cries. He was able to get down the hall, was beaten back by heat and smoke. Finally he went out the window and escaped.

Mrs. Betty McAndrews, 41, owner of the house, was treated for shock and hysteria by the family doctor. She was in the house when the fire started but escaped to give an alarm.

She remained with cuts in her son, Andrew McAndrews, 21, a Korean veteran, who was most close to the fire. Dr. J. G. Leonard of the Fire Marshal's office believed to have started in the living room. He said a lighted cigarette was found in the window of Dr. Leonard's door.

Mrs. McAndrews and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Smith, were in the kitchen at the rear of the house when they first saw the fire.

Mrs. Smith raced to the front portion to save her children and Mrs McAndrews ran outside in her night clothes to call firemen.

Apparently the flames reached the bedroom seconds, even before Mrs. Smith could get to her son. She got to her son but never succeeded in bringing him to safety.

Within seconds, even before an alarm was given, the entire house was a seething furnace with flames shooting high into the air.

First actual alarm came from senior constable Sidney Doble of the Amherstburg provincial police detachment. He was driving on routine patrol about 2 a. m.

"I saw the fire and ran to get help," he said today, "it was a huge torch. There was not the slightest chance of saving anyone. I knew all I could be done."

Mr. drove to the fire station and gave the alarm. Right behind him was cab driver Alvin Lewis who had also seen the fire.

In the meantime, Luff awoke to find his room filling with smoke and to hear screams from the room occupied by Mrs. Smith and family.

He went out into the hall but the heat was so intense he was forced back and had to get out the window to save his own life.

Another boarder, Pete Rock was out at the time the fire started. Strangely enough, he was able to raise the alarm from a telephone in his clothing. It is believed the blood door of his room kept heat and smoke out.

Steel Senator George Warns Against Defeatist View

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has allowed himself involved in harder bargaining than he seems to expect if and when he meets with Premier Georges Premier Nikolai Bulganin at Big Four talks, Senator George (D-Ga) wrote a whole set of basic demands outlined in a new program for disarmament and banning the H-bomb which Moscow made public Tuesday night.

A word of caution against approaching any heads-of-state talks with "a defeatist attitude" came from the 77-year-old Walter George of the Senate foreign relations committee. Georgia Democrat, who had urged such talks at a time when the Republican president was cool to the approach, said the administration should take the "strong initiative" in approach.

BY EISENHOWER REMARKS

His comments were obviously prompted by Eisenhower's statement Wednesday that his willingness to meet with the heads of state of Britain, France and Russia was based in part on "a vague feeling some good might come out of such a meeting."

"One thing that is disturbing to me," George said, "is that before we are moving with any real conviction to take the initiative, rather than just acquiescing.

"There seems to me to be a lack of enthusiasm and a lack of positive attitude on our part toward a top-level conference which, if we take the wrong initiative, might do some good.

"We must recognize all the possibilities of failure in any such conference, but we should have a positive, not a defeatist attitude toward it. If we are going to accomplish anything at all, we must have to have such a positive attitude and I'm afraid we don't have it now."

Ticket-Fixing In Quebec City Annoys Police

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec City's police are slapping parking-law violators with tickets, but traffic director Gerard Girard wonders whether it's doing any good. It seems many of the tickets are being fixed, he says.

Girard, a deputy police chief, Tuesday demanded a written explanation from municipal court on alleged ticket-fixing. Some offenders have been tabbed with as many as 35 tickets in the past three months but they just seem to ignore it, he said. Police doubt that all these are being paid and want a thorough search of the municipal court files to see how the offenders are getting away.'

Ticket - fixing undermines the prestige of the police force and the effectiveness of the city's recently-launched safety campaign, Girard said.

Quebec Will Hold 3 By-Elections

QUEBEC (CP)—At least three by-elections—and maybe more—will highlight a busy political season in Quebec province this summer.

Premier Duplessis is expected to announce the by-elections sometime this month, and polling probably will be in July.

The three by-elections, in the urban ridings of St. Hyacinthe, Montreal Laurier, and Montreal Westmount—St. George, are looked on by political observers as the first big test of the voter reactions to Quebec's provincial income tax.

The tax, 15 per cent of the federal income tax, hits city dwellers hardest. They generally make more money and have fewer dependents than rural workers.

The high basic exemptions, coupled with large families on the farm, leave most farmers unaffected by the tax.

Student Loan Fund Set Up

SHAWVILLE, Que. (CP)—There is a shortage of qualified teachers in Pontiac county schools and the central board of education in this Ottawa valley town has set up a kind of student loan fund to remedy the situation.

Board chairman Arthur Dagg has described the fund this way: — High school graduates in the county can borrow $350 interest-free figure the board to assist them in completing their teacher's training at a college—if the student agrees to teach in the county for at least a year after becoming a teacher.

If the student agrees to teach two years in the county, he can borrow $700.

The money must be paid back during the period of teaching in the county.

It is hoped the plan will produce possibly 10 or 12 teachers a year, ultimately solving the shortage in the county

Scotland's Balance of Power Depends on 17 Marginal Seats

How the British general election campaign is shaping up in Scotland is told in the following article by a Canadian Press staff writer. Tomorrow: Wales.

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDINBURGH (CP) — Scotland's political balance of power may depend in the May 26 British general election on 17 marginal seats.

In the 1951-55 Parliament, the ruling Conservatives—known north of the border as Unionists—and the Opposition Labor party each held 35 of the 71 Scottish constituencies. The other sitting member was Liberal Joseph Grimond.

No decisive shift is anticipated, Nash prophecy of sweeping gains tends to be restrained by such factors as redistribution, the inscrutable floating voter and the unpredictable course of the election campaign. The election will be a "name the wave" for the uncertainty, however, as the Scots say.

MOST STAND PAT

"Voters don't change their allegiance overnight up here," said a party worker, voicing a view common among many Scottish politicians. "A gain of 10 seats for any party would be a landslide."

Scotland had its social revolution some 20 years before England, and the party alignment has tended to stand pat, barring Labor's gain of 13 seats in 1945.

With the pattern set in the 1951 election and in five by-elections blurred by a redrawing of constituency boundaries affecting 27 seats, neither big party is making extravagant claims.

Both will contest all 71 ridings, looking particularly to those 17 seats won last time by a majority of fewer than 3,000 votes. The Tories held 10 and Labor seven.

OPPOSITION HOPES

Labor officials in Glasgow, the predominantly working-class city where 12 of the 15 ridings have been sharply recast to keep pace with extensive population shifts, expect to take two Tory seats.

The Liberal party, backed into the far north where Grimond held Orkney and Shetland against Labor and Conservative opposition last time, should hold its single. But high hopes of winning back Inverness and Peebles, Roxburgh and Selkirk are discounted elsewhere.

Liberals plan to run "about 13" candidates this time, compared with nine in 1951. The Communists will run five, against four last time, and the Scottish Nationalists again will have two candidates.

The total number, with its sprinkling of independents of one kind or another, will come close to the 160 candidates who in 1951 produced 54 straight Conservative-Labor fights, 16 three-way battles and one four-way contest. The Tories gained three seats, two from Labor and one from the Liberals.

The Communists, who have had two Scottish MPs, all lost their deposits, along with three Liberals and one Scottish Nationalist.

LOCAL ISSUES MINOR

Unless the present campaign differs sharply from the three post-war ones, issues will hew close to the national line rather than those peculiar to Scotland. Nationalism, home rule, the plight of the depopulated highlands, and conditions on the Clydebank or in farming, fisheries, and industry are expected to play little part.

Nationalism is a widely-dispersed sentiment, giving rise to two main organizations and a number of speaking ones. Their demands range from the total independence sought by the politically active Scottish Nationalist party to the vaguer objective of the Scottish Convenant Association, which claims 2,000,000 members but steers clear of political efforts.

"Nationalism transcends political parties," said a party official. "Scots wit varying degrees of passion share the whole question can be found in them all."

The Nationalist vote touched its peak in 1945 with nearly 31,000 ballots cast for nine candidates. It sank to 7,299 in 1951 for two candidates. A Motherwell by-election a few months before the 1945 general election produced the only Scottish Nationalist MP in history. He was not re-elected.

FLOATING VOTE FACTOR

A big riddle here, as elsewhere in the United Kingdom, is the floating or undecided voter wooed by the politicians and examined by the experts in an effort to find which way he is likely to go. Liberals contribute heavily to the classification, as do neutral—or apathetic — citizens, putting the onus on the big party constituency machines to oul polls on election supporters election day. Scotland scored a record vote in 1951 when 2,777,747 of the 3,421,419 eligible voters — or 81.19 per cent — responded.

It is a rough political rule of thumb that two of every three Scottish Liberal voters, shorn of candidates, tend to support Tories. But that does not hold true everywhere, particularly in some parts of the Highlands where radicalism of the old school still runs deep, tending to hurt the Conservative vote. In the last election, 76,000 Liberals voted for the party's nine candidates.

Three Liberal-Conservative candidates won in Scotland in 1951. There will be two or three this time, too.

KEY CONSTITUENCIES

In the over-all picture, these appear to be the key Scottish seats:

In Glasgow, where Labor holds eight seats, the Tories seven.

Scotstoun—Conservative by 625, reshaped by redistribution and reclaimed by Labor as "almost certain," with some reluctant Conservative support.

Provan (formerly Camlachie)—Labor by 1,025, reshaped, and Conservatives say in opposition to Labor expressions of confidence that it may be traded for Scotstoun.

Pollok — Conservative by 3,651, but a major question mark due to redistribution. Labor claims it is one of the two Glasgow seats to fall to them.

Craigton (formerly Govan)—Tory by 241 but generally agreed safer type.

In Edinburgh, with four Conservative and three Labor seats.

Leith—Labor by 2,, but Tory hopes are dampened by a Liberal opposing the Conservative and Labor candidates.

Central—Labor by 1,582, with an influx of 3,000 new voters said to be evenly divided politically.

Elsewhere, Rutherglen in Lanarkshire is a stronger Labor hopeful, with its slim Tory majority of 1,332. The Western Isles, Labor by 1,330 after a four-way 1951 fight, is a Conservative target.

The Liberals regard the Inverness by-election last December, in which a Liberal candidate came within 1,000 of unseating the Conservative, as a pointer to victory this time. Peebles Roxburgh, and Selkirk, won for the Conservatives in 1951 by C. E. M. Donaldson, formerly of Victoria and the Canadian Navy, is another of their hopes. Donaldson, who is defending, rolled up a majority of 820, and Labor and Tories say that redistribution has made him safer.

Other marginal seats that might swing either way are (majorities bracketed): Glasgow's Kelvingrove (C—1,431) and Woodside (C—2,343); Lanark (C—1,702); Renfrew West (C—2,963); Berwick and East Lothian (C—2,358); Stirling and Falkirk (Lab—2,108); Ayrshire Central (Lab—1,693).

44 Big Companies Made One-Third Of Profits in '54

NEW YORK (AP) — Forty-four big companies made about one-third of the profits reported by U.S. corporations in 1954.

The giants, by and large, had a more comfortable time than many a smaller company that found last year a trying period.

Financial reports for 1954—a period of highly mixed business experience with 334,000 business casualties—underscore the trend in recent years toward bigness. But the big getting bigger didn't discourage newcomers. The department of commerce says 341,000 new companies started up in 1954, making the total in the United States about 4,200,000.

One stock brokerage firm, W.E. Hutton and Co., lists today 44 companies making in excess of $40,000 each last year in net income after taxes. The top 44 raked in a total of $5,500,000,000. Those 22 per cent of the total amount earned by all U.S. corporations reporting for the year.

Two Elderly Women Tortured; Beaten by Two Drunken Thugs

HARROW, Ont. (CP)—A modern parable made up of scenes of provincial police and irate residents combed this district through the night in search of two drunken thugs who beat and tortured two elderly women.

In severe state of shock and suffering multiple bruises and cuts are Miss Nina Renaud and her sister, Miss Mary Renaud. Both women were so hysterical after spending a nightmare hour with the two men they were able to give only sketchy stories to investigating police officers.

The Renaud sisters were treated at their home by Dr. R. W. McCormick and left in the care of neighbors throgh the night.

Police are looking for one man in particular who they said was between 30 and 35 years old, is five feet, five inches in height, has brown, brush-cut hair and weighs about 130 pounds.

This man, known to Harrow residents only as "Larry"., supposedly came from New Brunswick several weeks ago.

Police said one of those sought contacted the two women and talked them into giving him $60 to paint their home. He received the money Monday and left for Windsor to purchase the necessary paint. When he didn't show up Tuesday, Miss Mary Renaud reported to the police.

Police said this man and the accomplice returned to the Renaud residence Wednesday night to get more money from the two women.

When the two sisters told the men they had no more money the men began beating and torturing them.

Frost Says Liberals Silly, Should Study King's Writings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Frost suggests the Ontario Liberal party study the writings of the late prime minister Mackenzie King.

Then, he said, "perhaps they wouldn't be as silly as they are at the present time."

The premier, addressing a York North nomination convention at Maple, 15 miles north of Toronto, referred to the 25-point Liberal platform for the June 9 provincial general election.

The Liberal platform, he said, consisted of promises "of everything that anyone could think of." He had done very three-quarters of the 25 points and had totalled the cost of implementing them at $250,000,000.

Computing Device Wins Navigator Aviation Trophy

OTTAWA (CP) — Wing Cmdr. Jerauld G. Wright, DFC, at 37, one of Canada's outstanding navigation specialists, has become the 28th winner of the McKee Trans-Canada Trophy.

The trophy is usually given for some actual flying distinction, but it went Wednesday to Wing Cmdr. Wright for his technical achievement in inventing the fl theta computer, a navigational device that quickly and simply gives the direction and distance of any position a pilot sets into the computer.

A native of Liverpool, N.S., Meanwhile, at Galt, Ontario Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver to da nomination meeting that recent scandals in the provincial government add up to the conclusion that all is not well at Queen's Park.

"We in the Liberal party have started to tabulate such scandals," he said, and the time has come for a "sweeping-out" in the next lature.

Premier Frost attacked a statement by Mr. Oliver that provincial government financial assistance to municipalities has not been increased in ratio to increased government revenues ..

Provincial revenues, he said, have increased 3½ times in the last 13 years while in the same time assistance to municipalities has been expanded nine times, to $165,000,000 from $18,000,000.

whose interests have centred in navigation from the day he joined the RCAF in 1940, Wing Cmdr. Wright during the Second World War served as a navigator in flying boats out of England and India. He logged 1,200 hours in the air in sorties to such places as Spitzbergen and Russia.

CANDLE CAUSES DEATHS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four small boys were burned to death Wednesday night by a fire that swept through their second-story garage apartment. Investigators believe the blaze was started by a candle, being used in the small apartment which had been without electricity for two months because of the family's shortage of funds. The boys were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Franklin.

Guided Missiles May Be Adopted In Near Future

OTTAWA (CP) — An indication that the Canadian Army may adopt guided missiles before long is contained in the current issue of the Canadian Army Journal.

An article by Col. A. J. B. (Tony) Bailey, director of artillery, shows clearly that senior officers have reasoned out pretty thoroughly how guided missiles can be fitted into the artillery structure.

Col. Bailey writes that surface-to-surface and surface-to-air guided missiles are an "indispensible" part of the artillery family of weapons.

Col. Bailey says adoption of guided missiles will increase the proportion of technically trained personnel in the army at all levels. He adds:

"We have available now a large pool of men who can be readily retrained in the field of guided missiles. ...

"The guided missile is merely an extension of the gun and it can be absorbed into the Royal Canadian Artillery just as other new weapons have been absorbed in the past."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Glasses Magee, and we went past the house where the 2 bewly looking twins live down in the next block, being as good a place to walk as any, and we walked past as if we didn't even know they happened to be sitting on the frupt steps, and Glasses said, I know a guy that knows them, he goes to their school, and he could interduce us.

Does he ever come around? I said, and Glasses said, No, that's the trubble.

And we got to the corner and turned around and started to walk back again, and we walked past their house keeping in step like 2 soldiers, counting, One 2 three 4, one 2 three 4, and one of the twins said, Oh my, aren't some people just too funny? apd the other one saying, I'd laff right out if I didn't have a crack lip.

Being sourcastic, and I said, Aw in the jail three times a week.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

GOOD COMPANIONS!

The pair of handsome Muscovites you see pictured in this column are none other than the Kalmikoff Brothers. Russia's gift to wrestling, who make their Belleville debut in Memorial Arena tomorrow night. The Russkys, Karol and Ivan are the current holders of the Canadian Tag Team Championship and by gadsky, they intend clutching the pewter-ware for some time to come. But Whipper Billy Watson and his drop-kicking buddy, one Pat-rick Flanagan have other ideas. That mug will look good over figure, adorning an Easi York mantel—and that is where they intend to take it following Friday's tussle.

But they will know they have been in a scrap before that happens. These caviar cut-ups are tough tovariches. They are big, rough and husky, and disdain any of the nicer things of wrestling, if such things exist. They have been knocking over the better tag teams of Toronto quite regularly, but they may meet their Waterloo in the person of Timber Tillyard.

And our old paley-waky Lee (The Leer) Henning, another ring rogue, and well-known to Belleville fandom, will stage his first appearance here against towering Tex MacKenzie, while Hoss Big Chief Suni War Cloud will try to remove the scalp of one Tom Collins in the opener.

"TOUR HEALTH, SUH!"

Nashua may have been beaten in a terrific upset in the Kaintucky Derby last Saturday, but this was but a slap in the equine kisser compared to the shellacking absorbed by Ole King Julep.

The King was king for the day and his courtiers numbered in the thousands. The "bourbon with the grass in it," instituted by that roving Tennessean lesislator away back when, was a 100,000 to one favorite and it romped home ahead of the pack in easy fashion. We do not know how many of its devotees did the same thing.

According to statistics dug up by a Wall Street Journal reporter after the rest of the typewriter hounds had scraped the publicity barrel dry, the Julep Joes down Louisville way could have floored 1,800 tons of beverage from the North Canadian and before derby time sent out "s-o-s's" for more frozen water.

It is reported that one of the Louisville ice companies transported to the track enough ice to cover a twenty-acre field a foot deep. In all it amounted to 3,440,000 pounds. Now take four or five thousands of that and you have a julep and you can figure how dusty were the gullets of Blue Grass racegoers.

The Wall Streeter said the big job started a month previous to the Derby when ice-making equipment began freezing, processing and packaging julep ice, cubes and bulk ice in 300-pound blocks.

Delivered to the track were 50,000 pounds of julep ice crushed so thin it looked like snow, 50,000 pounds of ice cubes; 5,000 pounds of crushed ice and 301,400 pounds of ice in 300-pound blocks. The ice was used in 50 stands, in bars, mint julep stands, soft drink pavilions and restaurants.

Churchill Downs started selling juleps in 1947 when 40,000 pounds of julep ice was used. This year this amount was tripled. And standby trucks were available in case a shortage occurred.

HODGE-PODGE

Shades of "Peewee" Colden and the Bombersettes. There is a movement afoot to organize a ladies' softball league in the district and present indications point to a seven-or-more loop coming into being. A meeting will be called probably next Monday to lay the groundwork of the lassie loop. Teams said to be interested are the Belleville General Hospital Nurses, Trenton, Wellington, Colborne, RCAF, 8 R.D., Belleville, Picton and possibly some from the Marmora-Madoc district . . . . The meeting of the district midget baseball league will be held for Colborne tonight. . . . A six-or-seven team circuit will likely emerge . . . . Johnny Mowatt is taking medical treatment for a chipped bone in his "trunnin'" arm . . . . To "Soccer Fan": sorry this department has not received any schedules for any soccer league. A Peterborough story says Belleville defeated a Petes team 6-1 last Saturday . . . . Ken Dunsmuir, the Belleville District Softball League demon secretary, wants it known that the schedule recently released will be adhered to, to the letter. Any change of dates must be sent to the secretary for approval, and will not be played until that approval is obtained. Thatisboy, Ken. . . . . Is it true that Walter O'Malley, Brooklyn Dodger boss-man, has appointed "Peev" president of the Belleville "Bums" Rooting Fraternity? Well, one good club deserves another. How about calling them the "Zager Peevers!" . . . . The Belleville District Baseball League crashes at CJBQ Monday night next at eight o . . . . "Red" Doran would like all clubs to be represented at this meeting. . . . . The winner of the famous Tam-o-Shanter world golf tourney this year will pick up $108,000 in prize lettuce $50,000 cash and fifty exhibition tournaments at one grand per appearance. Boy, hand me that mashie. The caddy gets the odd thousand . . . . They're calling the Dodgers' Don Newcombe the "Dark Dizzy Dean" after that prize one-hitter shutout. The "Newk" goes again come Sunday . . . Said the left to the right ear, "I should know you. We live on the same block" . . . . The six top leglers of the Central Ontario Bowling League go to Toronto Saturday to compete in the Ontario Bowling Association championships. They include Ewart Guay, Trenton; Wally Dingman, Stirling; Joe Legault, Cec Hardwick and Dave Hitchcock, all of Belleville, and Ed Peacock, Batawa. They will compete in teams, doubles and singles events.

First-Inning Five-Run Burst Paves Way for Third Defeat; Yanks in 3rd Four Games Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia Phillies didn't think much of Terry Moore as a manager, but the old Gas House Gang guy really belted one on the button when he wished his successor Mayo Smith "a lot of luck because he has a tough job ahead."

That was last October, after the Phils had wound up fifth, 22 games behind the pennant-winning New York Giants and owner Bob Carpenter decided Moore hadn't shown enough "experience" in his three months as manager.

So they called upon Mayo, six years a minor league manager, to take over as top guy.

Now Mayo and the Phillies are on the cellar, 14 games back of pace-setting Brooklyn and snarled in an 11-game losing streak. The St. Louis Cardinals extended Mayo's troubles Wednesday night, beating the Phillies 6-3.

THREE SHORT

So now the Phils are just three short of their all-time losing slump of 14 in 1883 when they began back in 1883.

Brooklyn also "slumped" Wednesday, or what amounted to a slump for the Dodgers. They lost one. The Chicago Cubs did it, beating Don Newcombe 5-4 and snapping the Brooks' 11 - game winning skid. It was only Brooklyn's third defeat.

Elsewhere in the National, Milwaukee flattened Pittsburgh 8-3 and New York defeated Cincinnati 6-3.

In the American League, Cleveland swept its two-game series in New York, beating the Yankees 4-3 despite Bob Turley's three-hitter and 11 strikeouts. Boston edged Chicago 4-3, ending a five-game losing string. Ned Garver threwhit Washington for his 7-6 Detroit victory, and Kansas City beat Baltimore 8-5.

BEAT METER

At Chicago, the Cubs beat Meyer for the first time since July 16, 1950. The Boston right-hander had won 17 straight from his ex-mates in that span. A five-run first inning, featuring Ernie Banks' first major league grand - slammer blasted Meyer to the showers. Jim Dee Fondy homered for three runs off Clem Labine in the third and Billy Loes, fifth Brook pitcher, gave up a pinch single to Walker Cooper in the seventh that provided the winning marker.

Jim Davis was the winner in relief as Brooklyn outhit the Cubs 14 to 8 but slammed into five doubleplays.

Cleveland knocked Turley off his five-game winning streak by making the most of nine walks. Turley, who now has 11 victories in 12 outings, also hit a batter and wild-pitched the first Tribe run home. It was the Indians' sixth straight and dumped the Yanks four games back in third place.

Boston beat the White Sox on Billy Klaus' first major league homer, a two-run job in the seventh plus some brilliant relief work by Willie Kinder that saved Tex Hurlivan's third victory. Virgil Trucks was the loser, for a 2-3 record.

DROVE IN TWO

Washington had only one hit off Garver until the seventh with the Detroit righthander going to work with the bat as well to drive in a pair of runs. Al Kaline homered for the Tigers, who got 206 scores help on errors by Harmon Killebrew, Washington home run leader. Garver now is 3-4. Dean Stone was the loser.

Little Bobby Shantz two-hit the Orioles for Kansas City, taking over for Alex Kellner who pulled out with a kink in his back in the fourth. Singles by Gus Zernial and Jim Finigan scored the two runs off loser Lou Kretlow.

Whitey Lockman's three - run homer and Monte Irvin's two-run clout were all Jim Hearn needed to post his fifth victory for the Giants at Cincinnati. He gave eight hits, including a Wally Post homer in the ninth. Don Mueller and his 21-game winning streak rode the bench as he rested his sprained ankle.

A three-run homer by Eddie Mathews and Joe Adcock's two-run double powered the Braves to their first success against Pittsburgh this season after four defeats. Chet Nichols remained Milwaukee's only unbeaten starter, claiming his third decision with an eight-hitter.

Terriers Meet Panthers In League Opener

KITCHENER (CP) — Galt Terriers, who won the league schedule but lost in the playoffs to St. Thomas Elgins last year, open the six-team Intercounty Baseball League season against Kitchener Panthers here tonight.

Elgins meet Red Sox at Brantford Friday night and London Majors start their schedule against Merchants in Oshawa Saturday afternoon.

Panthers, who started last season by losing nine successive games, but missed the playoffs by only a few percentage points, open this year as favorites to take the pennant.

In pre-season action their pitching corps, led by Johnny Maldovan of Buffalo, Peyton Elkins from Idah and Bill Allan, a St. Catharines southpaw, looked good.

Panthers also have an experienced infield starting with Pat O'Keefe at first, George Boulface at second, Fry Ler at short and Ken Hargreaves at third.

Joining Panthers later this month will be shortstop Dolph Regalski from Detroit Red Wings, both United States college stars.

Terriers' hope is uncertain since nearly all their players are from the U.S. and they only reported Monday.

Their heavy-hitting lineup of last year has been only three holes overs were on hand for workouts this week.

They'll Do It Every Time

They have a "preacher" up at Rochester who has become an occupational hazard to opposing International League teams and cause of considerable annoyance to the Montreal Royals. He is pitcher Jack "The Preacher" Fazzholz.

The 28-year-old righthander, who was optioned by the parent St. Louis Cardinals last week, raised his string of consecutive scoreless innings to 22 with a three-season span by blanking the Royals 6-0 in the second game of a doubleheader Wednesday at Red Wings Stadium. Montreal ran its winning streak to three games, 6-4.

In other games, the Havana Sugar Kings moved into fourth place by defeating the lowly Syracuse Chiefs 5-1, Toronto moved to within 2½ games of the top by tripping Buffalo Bisons 5-3 on Lou Berberet's 11th-inning homer, The Richmond Virginians downed the slumping Columbus Jets 6-2.

Fazzholz, a graduate of Concordia seminary in St. Louis, limited the Royals to four hits for his second victory of the season. He fanned five and walked three. The split moved Rochester to within 2½ games of the league-leading Royals.

Rochester tallied four runs in the first inning on one hit and four Montreal errors. The loser was Ken Lehman, who collected his first loss against four wins.

LONGEST STREAK

In the first game, catcher Johnny Bucha's three-run homer and the brilliant pitching of Glenn Fox enabled the Royals to rack up the longest winning streak in the league this season. The win gained his fourth straight victory, needed help from Wade Browning in the last inning to halt a Red Wing rally.

Berberet's two-run homer in the 11th enabled Jack Crimian, ace re-

Williams Back to Baseball Will Join Red Sox Friday

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Unpredictable Ted Williams' sudden decision to return to baseball is expected to give American League attendance a shot in the arm as well as bolster the sagging Boston Red Sox.

Williams will join Boston Friday from Miami where final terms of his divorce settlement were recorded Wednesday.

"I'm not going to wait any longer," the tall Kid said Mgr. Joe Cronin in a phone conversation Wednesday. "I've spent two days with my daughter. I'd made up my mind to play baseball again before the settlement was completed."

Reached later in his Florida Keys seclusion by the Miami Herald, Williams added: "I'll just do the best I can, and hope I can help the club."

"I haven't done any running," Williams continued in speaking of his conditioning. "I weigh 210 pounds (15 more than his playing weight and I may be lousy. But, the Red Sox need me, they want me, so I'm going back."

While the great lefthand hitter with a .348 lifetime average steadily repeated his decision to quit after the last game of the 1954 season, speculation ran high as to whether he really meant it. Friends closest to Williams insisted his baseball future hinged on his marital difficulties which were the main reason for his retirement.

The court ordered Williams to pay a total of $104,000 in its decision finalizing $50,000 for his ex-wife, court costs, and $100 per month for his 7-year-old daughter, Barbara, until she is 18. In addition Mrs. Williams was awarded the family's $42,000 South Miami home and the family Cadillac.

In 37 games this year Boston has played to 309,916 fans—averaging 11,564 in 17 road games and 12,033 in 10 home appearances without Williams. A year ago in the same 37 games the total was 403,872 with an average of 15,598 in 18 away games and 12,856 in nine home starts.

Though terms of the contract to be signed with Mgr. Paul Friday were not made public, Cronin said Ted would not get a full year's pay.

"He will have to be paid at the rate of the contract," Cronin explained. "He'll have to lose money by coming back at this time."

Williams received an amount reported between $30,000 and $100,000 annually over the past several seasons.

Slaughter, Sain Sold to Kansas City, Hal Newhouser Cut Adrift by Tribe

NEW YORK (CP)—Two longtime big league stars changed uniforms and another for the 23rd consecutional release Wednesday as major league clubs whittled their rosters to reach the 25-man limit, plus newly returned servicemen, by midnight Wednesday night.

New York Yankees cut loose Enos (Country) Slaughter, lifetime St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, and Johnny Sain, the Boston Braves' workhorse and former boss of the Yankee bull pen, selling both to Kansas City A's, who badly need pitching and hitting strength.

Hal Newhouser, once the mainstay of the Detroit pitching staff, who had a 7-2 record in relief in a comeback effort with Cleveland last season, was cut adrift by the Indians.

The Yanks completed their cutting by sending southpaw Art Schallock to Baltimore and optioning right-hander Don Larsen to Denver of the American Association.

A'S SHELL OUT

Kansas City, their overcrowding problems complicated by acquisition of outfielder Harry Simpson from Cleveland and pitcher Ray Herbert from Detroit as well as the Sain-Slaughter transaction, and the recall of second-baseman Hector Lopez from Denver, Columbus farm in the International League, lopped off players right and left.

Last year's free agent Athletic pitcher Arnold Portocarrero went on the disabled list with a sore shoulder.

To the Yanks, for prompt relay to Denver, went right - hander Sonny Dixon, Second-baseman Ferrest (Spook) Jacobs went to Columbus in exchange for Lopez. San Diego of the Pacific Coast League got first baseman Don Bollweg and pitcher Charley Bishop. Portland of the PCL received catcher Al Robertson while pitchers John Gray, Marlon Pitman and Ed Burtschy went to Columbus for later disposition.

The Tigers got down by sending utility man Steve Souchock to Buffalo of the International League as well as selling Herbert, and asking waivers on infielder Ronnie Samford.

SIDETRACK RUBLERS

Baltimore dropped pitcher Bill Miller for later reassignment, optioned pitcher Don Ferrarese to Oakland of the PCL, and put sore-arm pitcher Joe Coleman on the disabled list.

Boston got down by selling reserve infielder Owen Friend and pitcher Joe Dimmle and optioning pitcher Bob Smith. Friend and Smith went to Louisville of the American Association and Trimble to Hollywood of the PCL.

National League deals included: St. Louis — Optioned pitcher Floyd Wooldridge to Houston, first baseman Tom Alston to Omaha.

Pittsburgh—Optioned pitcher Fred Baczewski to St. Paul. Sent pitcher Jerry Lane to Nashville.

New York — Offered catcher Mickey Grasso for waivers.

Philadelphia — Sent outfielder Mel Clark to Syracuse of the International League, and infielder Luis Ortiz to Seattle of the PCL.

Milwaukee — Optioned pitcher Ray Crone to Toledo of the American Association.

Williams Back No More Press Moans Pitcher

BOSTON (AP—"I want to say goodbye to you fellows," Boston Red Sox pitcher Mickey Kiely said to reporters in the clubhouse Wednesday.

"Where are you going?" asked.

"Well, when Ted Williams comes back, I guess Athletic pitchers won't pay any attention to the rest of us again this year."

Jackie Robinson Sued by Fans For $40,000

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A $40,000 damage suit has been filed in federal court against Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodgers first baseman, and the Brooklyn ball club by a Milwaukee husband and wife who claimed they were hit by a bat thrown by Robinson June 5, 1954.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wolinski, charged they were both struck on the head when Robinson, returned to the bench after being evicted from the game at County Stadium, tossed his bat over the top of the Brooklyn dugout and into the box seats.

The Wolinskis claimed they both suffered brain concussions, severe headaches and cuts and bruises. Mrs. Wolinski said she was confined to bed for several weeks and Wolinski was unable to work.

Their complaint, the Wolinskis charged that Robinson "in an excited, angered and ill-tempered mood" carelessly and recklessly threw the bat over the dugout into the box seats.

Copies of the complaint will be served on Dr. Robinson and the Dodgers today when they arrive here for a two-game series with Milwaukee Braves.

Athletics Play For Big 'Steaks'

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A Kansas City baseball fan, hopeful he can help the Athletics, has sent a present ahead of the team to Boston.

The whirlwinds at home have won only one game out-the road, a 3-0 victory Wednesday over Baltimore. After they dropped Tuesday night's game 11-1 to Baltimore, Eddie Williams decided they not only needed some hometown support but also some Kansas City steaks.

So Williams sent 40 steaks, packed in dry ice, on a plane Wednesday to Boston, where the A's open a three-game series today.

After the game—win, lose or draw—the A's can settle down to a big feed—rare, well or medium.

Bill Gault Sets New Record In Annual Cross-Country Race

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Finishing with a terrific spurt, Bill (Sam) Gault, 18, Belleville Collegiate Institute, set a new course record in the eleventh annual secondary schools cross-country race here Wednesday afternoon.

Gault registered his second successive victory in the event flashing across the line in the new time of 22.55. His time was 2 to 3 mile course in 31.23, Gerald Hill, who finished third crossed the line in 32.54, a second off the old record pace.

Gault's brilliant spurt, a last-seconds effort that carried him up the heart-breaking Church Street "hill" from Station Street, was the victory factor.

SHOULDER-TO-SHOULDER

A few minutes after BCI principal A. E. Orr sent the field away at 4.40, Gault and Green trotted into the lead. They ran shoulder-to-shoulder practically all the way, until they crossed the "top of the hill". Then Gault made his successful bid with a sharp burst of speed that left his younger rival a few yards in the rear.

Green raced over the finish line thirty seconds behind Gault, running strongly. Both runners finished in good condition.

Finishing in the other prize-winning positions were Glen Maracle, fourth; G. Beeby, fifth and R. Brant, sixth. Green was the only Quinte Secondary School student to finish "in the money".

Nineteen of the scheduled twenty-one runners started in the event. This is another record for the annual classic, the former largest entry list being sixteen a few years ago.

Gault was the recipient of the Ken Colling Memorial Trophy which was donated some years ago by Mr. Cleo Colling, brother of the late sports editor of the Ontario Intelligencer.

PRESENTED TROPHY

Mr. Colling presented the trophy to the winner before a large crowd of cheering students of both schools. He extended his congratulations with special tribute to the record-breaking effort. He also presented crests to each participant in the race.

Mr. H. M. (Red) Townsend, BCI physical director, who has organized the race since its inception, said there is a strong possibility that the annual harriers' event will be made open to all secondary schools in the city and district. This was the first year that two schools competed. He said Albert College and Trenton High School had indicated strong interest for next year, while it is possible that the OSD may enter competitors.

KEN COLLING MEMORIAL TROPHY

The race was run under ideal weather conditions yesterday with a cool breeze tempering brilliant sunshine. The contestants were addressed briefly by Principals Orr, BCI and Leslie Reid, Quinte Secondary, prior to the start. One of the largest crowds on record viewed the start, and lining Church Street for the finish. A number followed the pack over the course. Gault and Green were given fine ovations as they crossed the finish line.

The first six to cross the finish line divided forty dollars in prize money.

The entries, their school and their starting position were as follows: 1, D. Vance, BCI; 2, R. Hurst, BCI; 3, G. Hill, BCI; 4, W. Dickey, QSS; 5, T. Batchelor, BCI; 6, N. Stellier, QSS; 7, R. Morris, BCI; 8, W. Gault, BCI; 9, J. Green, QSS; 10, D. Alexander, BCI; 12, D. Boddie, QSS; 14, S. Alcorn, BCI; 13, G. Maracle, BCI; 18, W. Latchford, BCI; 17, J. Kennedy, BCI; 19, R. Brant, BCI; 20, G. Beeby, BCI; 21, W. Hitchie, QSS; 22, N. of Jamieson, QSS. The posts were drawn for with no 13th position taken.

Three timers were in attendance from each school. The BCI timers were Fred Bradley, D. Stirling and J. Musgrove while Principal Reid, John Hayman and Jack Sisson were the QSS clockmen.

Argos Sign Lions Star

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Martin, defensive line star of Detroit Lions, is leaving that National Football League club to become one of Toronto Argonauts' assistant coaches.

The news that Martin had definitely been lined up as line coach came Wednesday from head coach Bill Swiacki at Southbridge, Mass., and was confirmed here by team manager Harry Sonshine.

The Big Four football club has been dickering with Martin, former All-American lineman from Notre Dame, for weeks.

Grapple Champs Seek Honors

REGINA (CP)—Four Canadian wrestling champions will seek honors at the Dominion wrestling championships here Friday and Saturday.

As many as 40 entries are expected for the event, one of a series being held in Saskatchewan which is celebrating its golden jubilee this year.

Keith Millman of Quesnel, B.C., heads a impressive list of grapplers. Current Canadian heavyweight title-holder, he was runner-up to his elder at the British Empire Games in Vancouver last year.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (CP) — Delaware Park, a daring young horse track outside Wilmington, is preparing to bust loose this summer with the greatest series of stake races for two-year-olds in the history of the turf.

In the space of three Saturday's, June 18 to July 2, fillies and mares will shoot at a grand total of unprecedented $500,000 — Delaware. The crowning piece, the Delaware Handicap on July 2, is expected to gross around $150,000, with the winner taking more than $100,000.

We asked Bryan Field, Delaware's general manager, how he happened to think up such a distinctive gimmick to get horsemen plus fans excited. The answer was simple — he didn't. A lady did.

"All the credit goes to my assistant, Helen Stalwart, who has been with me ever since we reopened the track in 1944 and has helped me do just about everything except clean the stables," Field said.

"By setting bold of this, we give a great lift to the breeding industry. As you well know, fillies always have been a drug on the market."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You do not play much bridge before learning that there are two kinds of doubles; penalty doubles and takeout doubles. Even though they sound alike they are as different as you and me.

When you double for penalty you ask partner to leave you alone; you say you can defeat the contract. When you double for takeout you ask partner to take you out; you tell him to bid something.

What do you show partner when you double for takeout? Simply remember one short sentence and you are on the beam. The sentence is: A takeout double shows a hand as good as an opening one bid.

This has been my rule since the beginning. Experts have scoffed at it for almost a generation. Now it is beginning to appear in the books of prominent masters; another step in their improvement.

A deal that was sent me is shown here:

NORTH
♠J 9 7 5
♥9 3 2
♦Q 10 6
♣8 7 5

WEST
♠A 8 6 4 2
♥A K 8
♦K
♣K 10 9 3

EAST
♠10 3
♥J 10 6 5 4
♦9 3 2
♣Q J

SOUTH
♠K Q
♥Q 7
♦A J 8 7 5
♣A 6 4 2

West writes that the bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 D	1 S	Pass	Pass
Pass

Since game in hearts might flave made, west wants to know why the east hand did not keep the bidding open. The answer is that the one spade defensive bid was a simple overcall; not forcing.

West should have said double instead of one spade. This is by way of saying: "Partner, my hand is as good as an opening one bid and this is my only way of showing it after an opponent opening."

It says further: "Thus do you know I can take care of a bid by our side. So, if north does not intervene with a bid, I insist on your bidding something to show what you have."

You have no right to expect partner to anticipate the strong hand you hold. Come right out and tell him.

Carol Richards Gives Up Ghost, Will Sing for Herself in Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Carol Richards is giving up the ghost from now on she's going to sing for herself.

The red-haired lively from Rockford, Ill., has earned a nice living by acting as the voice double in film stars.

Does it come as a shock to learn that when Cyd Charisse opens her mouth to warble on the screen it's really Carol that comes out?

And when Vera-Ellen bursts into song in a movie, that's Carol again.

Hollywood, you see, leaves nothing to chance. If a screen beauty hasn't got a singing voice that will titillate moviegoers, she is provided with one. Sometimes this use of ersatz talent can be carried to extremes.

Once Betsy Drake was cast in a musical called "Dancing in the Dark." Since Miss Drake is not a musical performer, both her singing and dancing were done by other girls. She did her own acting, however.

Carol Richards has performed as singing ghost for Cyd Charisse in "Brigadoon," "Deep in My Heart" and the unreleased "It's Always Fair Weather". She did Vera-Ellen with a Lichtenberg accent in "Call Me Madam," and the child-like singing for Betta St. John in "The Robe." She performed a double chore in "Pretty Girl"—in Spanish tones for Movita and plain style for Joan Caulfield.

Carol now has put an end to singing behind the scenes. She landed a job on Bob Crosby's daily TV show and has prospects of getting into pictures with her own face.

'The Name's the Same' Latest TV Show for Goulding, Elliott

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding describe themselves as the "most successful moderator in their latest television show, "The Name's the Same," on ABC Monday nights.

Bob and Ray jointly preside over the show in which panelists try to guess the names of guests whose names are the same as those of prominent persons in current news or history. They succeeded Dennis James, who asked to be relieved of the job because of too many other TV activities.

Bob and Ray are hopeful of success in their new role because they feel they're better with ad lib than with prepared material. A couple of years ago they were on TV five nights a week and had to rely heavily on prepared script. Their show ultimately caught on radio and they went back to radio and were off TV several months.

Red Barber, veteran sportscaster, is switching networks and fights in his weekly post-boxing comment and interviews. Starting Friday night he will begin his new program on NBC-TV to be a regular feature after the Friday night fights. He has been doing a similar show following the Wednesday night fights on CBS-TV. The Wednesday bouts switch to ABC-TV after the telecast of May 25.

The durable Arthur Murray Party returns to the air June 28, on NBC-TV as a 12-week summer replacement for half of the Milton Berle-Martha Raye-Bob Hope hour. . . . Roy Rogers will ride on for 52 more weeks along the NBC video circuit. His sponsor has renewed for a full year.

BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN THEATRE "ON THE WATERFRONT"

Marlon Brando, a young express fighter, is the pampered darling of a dock union leader because his older brother is the man's chief henchman. Violence, beatings, unexplained and unavenged deaths keep the longshoremen in submission while the corrupt leaders profit from their labor. Karl Malden, the local priest, tries to instill enough courage into the down-trodden men to make them testify to the crime investigation committee, but to no avail. At long last Brando comes to see through the proddings of the priest and his love for the sister of one of the murdered men that he must stand up against the gangsters and tell the truth as he knows it. Through his testimony and his courage in leading the men back to work, in spite of the union leaders' machinations to strike, the grip of the union on the dock industry is broken.

"THE HITCH-HIKER"

Edmond O'Brien and Frank Lovejoy head for Mexico on a fishing trip and, en route, pick up a hitch-hiker, William Talman, who runs them at gun on them and reveals he is the escaped convict and murderer for whom the police are searching. Talman keeps the gun in their backs and orders them to speak no Spanish, even when they stop at a gas station. However, Lovejoy manages to leave his wedding ring and the police pick up their trail at the car heads for San Lorenzo, where Talman plans to kill them and complete his escape. When the car breaks down, Talman forces the men to walk over the desert. At the Mexican Gulf, the police are hiding and Lovejoy manages to knock the gun out of Talman's hand, making the killer a coward, who gives himself up.

Committee Will Recommend Altered Execution Method

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons Senate committee on capital punishment will recommend to the government the retention of capital punishment but that another form of execution be substituted for hanging.

A high informant said the joint parliamentary committee on capital and corporal punishment will urge that either electrocution or the gas chamber be used to executed condemned persons.

The committee is expected to recommend abolition of hanging on grounds that it belongs to the middle ages. Its report will say that electrocution or the gas chamber is more humane.

The committee Thursday held its last public meeting in a two-year study to determine whether capital punishment should be retained or abolished and whether a different form of execution should be employed if the death penalty is to be retained. It now will hold a series of closed sessions to prepare its report to Parliament.

The committee hopes to be able to present its report early in June, if necessary, by holding action on any proposals acceptable to the government is expected this session.

Thursday's meeting was the 55th held by the committee in the last two years.

Bulk of the evidence submitted to the committee has been in opposition to capital punishment. Nearly all witnesses recommended that if the death penalty is to be retained a less brutal form of execution should be used.

The witnesses most violently opposed to capital punishment were psychiatrists, welfare workers, criminologists, sociologists and representatives of public bodies. Those who wanted it retained included police officers, judges, crown attorneys and some prison officials.

The main submission of witnesses recommending abolition of capital punishment was that it is not a deterrent to murder. However, police officials feared the effect it has on law-enforcement officers would be further endangered if criminals knew that the maximum penalty for murder was life imprisonment.

The committee also is expected to recommend major changes to present laws governing administration of corporal punishment. It may urge its abolition as part of a sentence and that it be used only as a last resort to ensure discipline in penitentiaries. Some reports say the committee may even recommend its abolition for this purpose.

Alberta Election Called By Manning To Break Impasse

Liberal Leader Has Charged Socred MLA's Violate Law

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Manning says he will call an Alberta general election "at the earliest possible date" and the date is expected to be announced by Sunday.

The announcement was made in the legislature Thursday, climaxing an impasse over whether Social Credit members of the House violated the Legislative Assembly Act by depositing in or borrowing money from the provincial treasury branches.

Mr. Manning, head of the Social Credit government, said the argument by the Liberal party and opposition leader, J. Harper Prowse, that Social Creditors violated the act is "absurd, irresponsible and without foundation in fact."

CALLED RIDICULOUS

Attorney-General Lucien Maynard said the "ridiculous" nature of Mr. Prowse's legal technicality is shown by the fact members could be disqualified from sitting in the House because they have a government-owned telephone.

The Manning government, first elected in 1935 and in power since then, captured 52 of 63 seats in the last general election three years ago. The Liberals won seven seats, the CCF two and five Conservatives each two and Independent Social Credit one.

Since 1952 there have been two by-elections, Social Credit retaining one and losing one to the Progressive Conservatives.

At dissolution Thursday the standing was Social Credit 49, Liberal four, Progressive Conservative three, CCF two, Independent Social Credit one and vacant two.

The Manning government's action Thursday members formerly were authorized to deal with treasury branches, which operate similar to bank branches, in the Treasury Branches Act.

The stipulation had been put in its "proper place," the Legislative Assembly Act, when the act was enacted this year. The authorization was not to be in effect prior to this session.

An election must be held no sooner than 14 days and no later than 44 days after the writs are issued. An announcement had been made as to when that will be.

Suicide Club's Ten Survivors Grow Thirsty

AMHERST, N. Y. (AP)—Members of the Amherst Suicide Club will kick off their 19th annual "funeral" in this Buffalo suburb tonight—Friday the 13th—with a program of mirror-breaking, black cat-collecting and walking under ladders.

The club was formed in 1936, with 13 members, of course. Only three have since died—natural deaths.

The surviving member of the club gets to drink to the well-being of departed members with a bottle of wine put away for that purpose at the time of the club's founding.

Rioting Sweeps Singapore Isle, Result of Strike

SINGAPORE (AP) — British authorities moved swiftly today to send crack Gurkha and Malayan troops into emergency positions today as a continuing wave of rioting swept this island colony.

The violence already has claimed the lives of an American correspondent and two other persons. At least 36 persons have been injured in the outbreak, touched off Thursday by demonstrations supporting a bus strike.

Gene Symonds, United Press manager for the southeast Asia, died in hospital here this morning of injuries he suffered head injuries in the start of the disturbances. Hospital officials said the 36-year-old correspondent never regained consciousness.

The government early today ordered Singapore's own military force to report for emergency duty. British army authorities said their troops, standing ready in Malaya across the island, may go into action immediately if called upon by civil authorities.

The colony's worried new council of ministers met in emergency session to discuss the deteriorating situation. As they gathered, fresh violence threatened to add to the woes of the rioting by 300 striking busmen and several thousand of their supporters which raged throughout Thursday night.

COMMONS GIVES VIRTUAL OKAY TO HARRIS BUDGET

Govt. Defeats Motion Of Non-Confidence

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has given its virtual okay to Finance Minister Harris' April 5 budget in a vote defeating a Progressive Conservative non - confidence motion 131 to 66.

The vote Thursday ended the Commons budget debate in its 13th day.

The Liberal majority was supported by four independent members, including former CCF member Ross Thatcher, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre, in opposing the four-point motion proposed April 18 by the Progressive Conservative financial critic, J. M. Macdonnell.

CCF and Social Credit members backed the official Opposition's four-point motion. It charged that the budget "failed" to give effective stimulus to enterprise for creation of jobs and opportunity; to reduce taxation in line with low incomes; to curb government waste, and to recognize the serious position of producers.

AMOUNTS TO APPROVAL

The vote, together with approval of a resolution to send tax change proposals to committee for study, amounted to approval in principle of the budget.

The Conservative motion met the same fate as a CCF motion of non-confidence, defeated 131 to 65 on May 3. That one said the budget "failed" to help provincial governments so they could plan their financing to help ease the burden of heavy municipal taxation.

In the debate's final stage, Sybil Bennett (PC—Halton) said the government should have removed the 15-per-cent excise tax on automobiles instead of reducing it to 10 per cent.

E. G. McCollough (CCF—Moose Mountain) asked that a national authority be formed to study flood control. It would help prevent recurrence of the present prairie floods.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Mostly sunny weather is expected in Ontario today except in the southwest. On Saturday this cloud will spread into much of southern Ontario and in addition along the north shore of Lake Erie and over the Niagara peninsula there may be some light rain. In northern Ontario, some cloud and a few showers may drift over from Manitoba this morning but in central regions Saturday will likely continue sunny and warm.

Cornerstone of New Addition To Hospital Well, Truly Laid By J.N. Yanover, McLean Haig

J. N. Yanover and A. McLean Haig together laid the cornerstone of the new $1,250,000 addition to the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, National Hospital Day.

Mr. Yanover, chairman of the hospital's Board of Governors, and Mr. Haig, chairman of the campaign for funds to build the new addition, tapped the stone with silver trowels as the nurses' choir sang "Bless This House."

City and council officials, architects and builders and some 100 spectators looked on as the stone was declared to be "well and truly laid."

Bright blue skies and moderate temperatures formed a perfect combination for the ceremony which was chaired by His Worship Mayor Jack Bush.

Laying of the cornerstone was the highlight of the special Hospital Day program which included guided tours of the hospital and new construction, a tea in the nurses' residence served by members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, and presentation of prizes to winners of the Hospital Day poster contest.

Rev. J. S. A. Spearman of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, and Rabbi M. Kutzner dedicated the cornerstone prior to its official and symbolic laying by Mr. Yanover and Mr. Haig.

W. M. Ferguson, a senior partner of the architectural firm of Govan, Ferguson, Lindsay, Kaneaker, Haig and Gordon, Toronto, presented engraved silver trowels to Mr. Yanover and Mr. Haig.

"It is a pleasure to provide the tools necessary symbolically for the laying of this stone," said Mr. Ferguson as he presented the trowels.

James H. Sprackett, Warden of Hastings County, another dignitary before reading a history of the hospital prepared by the architects for enclosure in the cornerstone.

MUST WORK FOR SUCCESS

"This hospital will fill a much-needed place in the community of Belleville and the County of Hastings," said Mr. Sprackett. "Hastings County has a vital interest in the Belleville General Hospital. We in the county must work for its success."

His Worship Mayor Bath said that "this is one of the most eventful days in the history of the Belleville General Hospital. It is a great pleasure to take part in this occasion," he said:

"I should like to express my feelings of gratitude to those who gave so much time and energy to make this addition a reality. It is a much-needed thing. hospital addition is necessary to complete the building of our city and to take care of the needs of our people," said Mayor Bath.

"I commend the foresight of the chairman of the fund campaign and the chairman of the Board for their work which has made this possible. But this chore is too big for two men to do alone. I should like to compliment all those people who took part in the campaign in any way, large or small.

"We can look back with pride in the years to come on this job of work which had to be done and which has been done well."

Placed in the cornerstone before it was laid was a copper-case box containing the history of the hospital on parchment, a gift of the ratification of the treaty of peace for 1954; a program of yesterday's ceremonies; a set of coins of the realm; newspaper clippings of the fund campaign and a copy of The Ontario Intelligencer.

HUNDREDS FLEE AS COMMUNISTS OCCUPY HAIPHONG

Collaborators Ordered To Report to Police

By LARRY ALLEN

HAIPHONG, North Indochina (AP) — Hundreds of Vietnamese fled today in sharply reawakened fear as Communist Vietminh troops march in to occupy this big Indochina port, surrendered by the French after 72 years of colonial rule.

Vietminh army sound trucks, moving ahead of grim-faced soldiers shouldering rifles with fixed bayonets, blared into the city's people a chilling order:

"Every person who collaborated with the French and Vietnamese forces must report immediately to the nearest police station."

News of the order, first heard in the northwest part of the city, spread quickly. Hundreds of Vietnamese streamed to the Haiphong docks in a last-minute rush to flee Red rule.

Most were Vietnamese who apparently had delayed making their choice whether to flee or to try to live under Red rule.

TROUBLE FOR THOUSANDS

The Vietminh order threatened imprisonment or death for thousands. If they did not denounce themselves, they could never know when others would.

Thousands of Vietnamese had worked and helped in dozens of ways while Haiphong was the wartime port of entry for mountains of American war supplies for the French before the fall of Dien Bien Phu' and the surrender of North Viet Nam at the Geneva conference.

Conservatives Chalk Up Gains In Borough Council Contests

LONDON (AP) — Conservative hopes for victory in May 26 general election rose today as the Tories chalked up substantial gains in borough council contests throughout England and Wales. But party leaders warned against overconfidence.

Results from 399 boroughs gave the Conservatives a net gain of 310 seats. Labor dropped 341 seats to Tories, Liberals and Independents.

The Labor party lost control of councils in a number of big cities, including Llandidoes, Bolton, Morley, Northampton, York, Reading, Ipswich, Dudley and Walsall.

Lord Woolton, Conservative party chairman, hailed the results as encouraging but warned: "It will need sustained hard work during the next fortnight to secure a worthy victory at the general election."

There were more than 5,700 Conservatives, Labor, Liberal, independent and Communist candidates in the municipal election field. These contests were fought mostly on local issues.

The election began warming up meanwhile as a Labor party leader accused the United States of interfering. Labor speakers also denied Conservative claims that a Socialist victory would put Britain back on rationing.

Woodrow Wyatt, parliamentary undersecretary of state in the last Labor government, held a political rally in Sleaford that President Eisenhower agreed to top-level British talks with Russia only to help the Tories win on May 26.

Prime Minister Eden had said earlier he would rather lose every vote in the election than "take a step that would imperil negotiations with Russia," in a campaign speech at rugby the Conservative leader thus staked his prospects of being continued in power on the issue of the top-level talks.

Dangerous Convict Escapee Object of Wide Police Search

WINNIPEG (CP) — Alexander Zaleschuk, a scarred convict who escaped from the Selkirk mental home, began his appearance in court today as the police forces of Winnipeg district threw every available man into the search by land, water and air.

Although reports received hundreds of tips, investigators still were without a concrete clue to the whereabouts of the 36-year-old drug addict who was serving a 30-month term for possession of drugs and armed bank robbery.

Described by police as "extremely dangerous" and "one of the worst criminals we've had in Manitoba," Zaleschuk disappeared along a hospital ledge on the third floor of the home and down a fire escape.

A warrant still is held in Vancouver charging escape and on other charge of attempted murder of two west coast police officers during a gun battle May 1, 1952.

While RCMP began systematic searches of the 36-square-mile muddy confines of the Red river around Selkirk, police and provincial officers entered down every report of suspicious men seen around Winnipeg.

RCMP have been using aircraft to cover points in Southern and United States.

Police have warned that the escapee may have armed himself and obtained a change of clothing. An RCMP officer said Zaleschuk finds a weapon before he is captured "someone is almost certainly going to get hurt."

Zaleschuk was one of two bandits felled in the $50,000 holdup of a wild gun battle at Vivian, Man., in July, 1952, following a $6,000 holdup of the Kildonan branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada. His companion, Albert Prince, was also killed death while Mr. Zaleschuk was wounded. He later recovered.

Oldest Military Unit Will Mark Centenary

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's oldest military formation, the Royal Canadian Artillery, will celebrate its 100th anniversary May 26 with a parade and ceremony here. The artillery came into being with the passing of the Militia Act in 1855.

The regiment will put on a display of arms and equipment, until 1939 the drill during their centenary dress.

A detachment from old Fort Henry, Kingston, will participate in the intricate 10th-century ceremonial drill with Elizabethan guns. The gunners will wear 19th-century artillery uniforms.

Blend Bedlam, Nostalgia and Larceny On Manhattan's Last Peepshow Ride

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP)—With a final rattle, rumble and grinding stop, the Bowery elevated line closed up.

Rocking along Manhattan's sole surviving "peepshow" train—packed with sentimentalists and souvenir hunters—the last ride was from the Chinatown to 14'th St. Thursday night.

The half-hour ride on the 71-year-old line was a blend of bedlam, nostalgia, and petty larceny.

Among the 800 passengers were children fans scooting like mad. Children were in every car. A couple of youngsters found the train's whistle cord and — well, there was plenty of whistling.

Then few policemen aboard the train finally gave up as dozens of riders ripped down advertising placards, signs and anything not bolted to the wooden cars.

There was much waving out the windows, wide open on the balmy spring evening. And there were plenty of people to wave back from the adjoining buildings, as close that a ride on the old El provided a front row seat for the long teeming tenements along the route.

At 32nd street, two couples got off the train, produced a thermos of cocktails, and toasted the train as it proceeded by.

Eleven small fires, mostly caused by cigaret stubs tossed on the wooden floor, kept firemen busy during the El's final fling.

The line will do business on a schedule north of 149th St. to Gun Hill road in the Bronx. But it's the last of the elevated railways in Manhattan. The 2nd, 6th and 9th avenue Els preceded it.

The Third avenue was discontinued because its equipment was antiquated. It was called unsafe, was losing money, and would cost too much to rebuild.

Austria Tunes Up Joyous Waltzes From Vienna Woods to Alpine Snows

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP)—Austria tuned up its most joyous waltzes today in preparation for the long-awaited grant of legal freedom it is due to get Saturday.

From the Vienna woods to remote villages in the snowcapped Alps, the 7,000,000 Austrians began early this morning to get ready for their cherished independence day. As late as Thursday it had appeared another dream.

If no last-minute hitch develops, the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and Russia are scheduled to gather Saturday morning to sign the independence treaty liberating the country from 17 years of military occupation—seven under the Nazis and 10 under the wartime Allies.

The signing ceremony will put the stamp of legality on the freedom which in effect was won Thursday night when ambassadors of the four powers agreed on a treaty text. Within three months of ratification, the 70,000 occupation troops of the four powers are to be withdrawn and Austria's free-dom will be complete.

East and West had haggled for years over the treaty. As late as Monday the Russians precipitated a last-minute deadline by refusing to write into the treaty reparations concessions they had promised earlier. But they finally yielded to Western insistence.

The treaty provides for Austrian independence and sovereignty and the withdrawal of occupation forces. It sets the boundaries at those existing before the 1938 Anschluss—the forced union with Hitler's Reich.

Some TV Actors Should Do This More Often

BOSTON (AP)—Just before the television show went on, one of the actors was another actor.

Four types of reptiles were featured Thursday for a weekly nature show, "Discovery," over WGBH-TV, Boston's educational television station.

Shortly before show time a lizard, known as the "educated glass snake," ate a chameleon.

A member of the station staff rushed to Boston Garden, where Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey circus is playing and purchased another chameleon.

The show went on.

Fine Musical Entertainment Provided by Kitchener Choir

(By EUGENE LANG)

An evening of enjoyable musical entertainment was indulged in by over six hundred hearers, who were present in Bridge Street United Church last night to witness the first appearance in this city of the Schneider-Orpheus Male Choir of Kitchener. This group of 27 voices stems from all walks of life in the Kitchener - Waterloo district and are at present making their first tour of Central and Eastern Ontario. They are not classed as a professional choir, but consist of a group of fine fellows who do their singing for the pleasure and "kick" that they get out of indulging good choral singing to their audiences.

Mr. Paul Berg, a musician with choral leading experience in the U. S. and Canada, directs the music in the Kitchener - Waterloo Collegiate for five years is the conductor and director of this body of male voices, which under his expert guidance have given so generous of their time and talent with the result that the Choir has developed into a fine organization year for the past eight years, travelling about 15,000 miles throughout Canada and the northern U.S. points during that time. Yesterday alone, the Choir gave three concerts in three different cities, yet their voices were not strained or tired after completing a rigorous schedule such as this.

WELCOMED BY PASTOR

After a few opening remarks by Rev. H. M. Davis, Minister of Bridge Street United Church, the concert got under way with three favorite selections of varied contrast. The Choir's "Crown of Death" of Bach was intoned with a feeling of awed reverence and humility and was in the richness of four-part harmony at its best with the deep resonance of bass as the bases providing a solid foundation for the melody lines above. A refrain of "Stouthearted Brave Christian Soldiers" was realized in the Choir's singing of the Sinnen arrangement of this renowned hymn, in which sudden harmonic changes are set against dynamics ranging from pianissimo to fortissimo, giving the choir ample opportunity to expose their vocal talents to their listeners.

Three members of the Choir were heard in solo performances, attesting to the individual qualities of the personnel of this amateur organization of professional accomplishments. Robert Frey, baritone, attained his best singing in the dramatic phrases of the narrative-spiritual "My Journey's End". The eerie popular "La Donna e Mobile" of Verdi was one of three numbers, that was carefully wrought by the tenor voice of Ralph Wagner. The pleasingly rounded tones of the rich bass voice of Al Murray were heard to advantage in four selections, three and encore, that delighted the audience with their appeal. The jovial Handlin-Hine Folk song "Come, Let's be Merry", was flitingly balanced in content by the beautiful prayerful enunciations of "O Isis and Osiris" from Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and the pattering Gilbert and Sullivan resemblances of the lively "Fitzal Dance" of Mohr. The offering of Mr. Murray was very well projected in fullness and wholesome clarity.

NEGRO SPIRITUALS OFFERED

The stately old Silesian tune of hymnal significance "Sweet Hour of Prayer" was carved vocally with the same careful attention, that was accorded the Bach Chorale and the beloved "The Holy City". Negro spirituals have never been rubbishly painted into the four Negro Spirituals that exposed all the dynamic gradations and nuances of tone and timbre that the Choir could infuse into these selections. All three the singers had the blendings of a woodwind group that could not be bettered in vocal metamphone into the full bodied intensity of a church organ.

The final group of numbers consisted of five items that were as diverse in musical speech as possible in three different programs. From the joviality of "Dandy Dancer" to the simplicity of the Kentucky Folk Tune "Down in the Valley" and the novelty of the Choir's "Syncopated Clock" (with a metronome taking the part of Mr. Berg as conductor) the Choir displayed their best and could rightly be called "The Chameleons of Song" so varied is their scope of musical expression. Jack Houston was the accompanist and displayed masterly skill with all accompaniments.

The concert was brought here by Schneider Company Ltd., Kitchener.

Annual Cadet Inspection Held On Campus

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual cadet inspection was held on the high school campus on Tuesday with Major Gordon W. Free, E.D., of Campbellford, as inspecting officer and Capt. R. Evans, Cadet Training Officer of the Eastern Ontario Headquarters in Kingston.

Following the ceremonial parade, which included the full pipe band led by drum majorette Patsy Beamish, cadets went through arms and gymnastics on the mats and parallel bars were put on as well as a demonstration of first aid to a building.

Many in reading work and Morse signalling and radio work were also featured.

The girls of the St. John Ambulance Corps went through various First Aid routines.

Major Free complimented both boys and girls on all phases of their work and training.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Captain Evans presented awards for the smartest cadets on parade. These went to Barbara Hazell and John Davidson. The Strathcona medal for the best marksman was won by Gary Hall.

The cadet officers are: Company Cadet Major, Ellen Hendricks; second in command, Captain Jack Critchley. Cadet Lieutenants, Ted Newman, Gordon McCulloch, Robert Cowell, Lola Petherick, Jean Hall and Frances Barry. Jim McCulloch is the Cadet adjutant and quartermaster sergeants are Arthur White and Joy Craighead. Drum major is Patsy Beamish.

On Monday, as a forerunner to the inspection, the cadets and band paraded through town.

Spring Seeding Nearly Completed In Quinte District

Spring seeding was approximately 70 per cent completed in the Bay of Quinte district as of last week-end, according to the weekly report by Fairy Snell, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Hay and pastures have developed quickly and many apple orchards are in the pink stage and cherries are in full bloom. More raspberries have been set and Edward are being sprayed this year.

In Hastings county excessively high winds and following cool temperatures have caused concern for farmers with peas above the ground.

Police Blotter

Both city and provincial police reported a comparatively quiet 24 hours this morning with little more than routine matters coming to their attention.

Provincial police reported a break-in at the Doug Stork garage at Shannonville with less than $25 being taken. A young Shannonville man, Roy Pringle, has been arrested and charged with the offence.

A highway transport was forced to take to the ditch this morning to avoid striking a car which had turned around on a city hill just east of the city. The car had slowed because of the city buses, which had stopped to take on passengers and then turned out to pass just as the transport came up from behind.

Mild, but thieves were active in the Cedar St. district, while investigation and discrepancies in the Parkwood Heights area, where a contractor complained of windows in new houses were being broken.

Hospital's History Outlined In Scroll for Cornerstone

Following is the text of a history of the Belleville General Hospital prepared by architects for the new hospital addition for inclusion in the cornerstone, which was laid yesterday.

"This stone which is about to be laid by Jacob Norman Yanover, Esq., and Alexander McLean Haig, Esq., M.D., is a further stage in the history of Belleville General Hospital which was the first Canadian institute to be built, owned and operated entirely by women. In November 1879 the Women's Christian Association was founded under the guidance of Mrs. Jacques, wife of Rev. Jacques, Principal of Albert College. Mrs. Jacques was President for five months, after her death when Mrs. Nathan Jones was elected President and in 1884 Mrs. J. E. Wilkinson, wife of Professor W. McLean, Minister of St. Andrew's Church, took over the presidency.

"A Charter giving the Association power to built a hospital was obtained on May 13th, 1880. The sum of $15,000 was raised in five years and the building was started in 1885 and opened on the 1st July 26th, 1884, by Mrs. Nathan Jones, the corner-stone was laid on September 25th of that year and the hospital was opened on April 26th, 1886.

"In 1900 it was apparent that more accommodation was required and Mrs. Jones' wing was added modelled for hospital purposes. In 1909 the south-west wing was added necessitating a new boiler house for adequate heating and a larger and better equipped laundry. A Maternity Wing, with properly equipped delivery room, was opened in the third floor of the New Wing in 1919 and the Nurses' Home in the Hospital remodelled. The cost of these undertakings ($35,000) was met through the generosity of the citizens of Belleville and by a mortgage of $18,000 which was paid off in four years.

RESIDENCE BUILT IN '28

In 1928 "The Ritchie Memorial Home for Nurses" was built through the generosity of the late Thomas Ritchie, who died in 1921 leaving $40,000 for this purpose.

A few years later a second Nurses' Residence was built immediately to the west of the memorial reception room.

"In 1936 it was evident that more accommodation was required and new modern fire - proofing, with private and semi-private rooms and up-to-date operating and delivery suites, was opened in 1937.

"In May 1948 due to rising costs and need for further expansion, it was considered advisable to hand the project over to the City of Belleville.

"A new boiler house and spacious laundry, with new equipment, were built in 1950.

"In 1951 the Board of Governors again considered an addition to the hospital and delegates from the County of Hastings, the City of Belleville, the Board of Governors, and the medical staff of the Hospital inspected a number of newly erected hospitals and discussed plans to be incorporated in the new building.

"In 1952 a building raising campaign was commenced and the response of the citizens of the City of Belleville, the County of Hastings, both financially and as campaign workers, was revealing and a total of $600,000 being raised by public subscription.

"The first sod for their present addition was turned by Mrs. W. C. Mikel on October 29th, 1954. Mrs. Mikel represents Soroptimists at this ceremony as representing the Women's Christian Association, Mrs. Weston Lott, Past President, and the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital and in recognition of the amount of time and energy she has devoted to the interests of the hospital.

"The original group of valiant women would be pleased and indeed indeed it is a privilege for them to observe the growth of the Hospital that owes its being to their gallant efforts.

The parchetment

The parchment also contained the names of members of the Board of Governors; the firm of architects which designed the new addition; the names of the contractors and the job superintendent.

Holloway Street Church Drive Nets $117,000 in Ten Days

Holloway Street United Church last night had its canvassers that their work in the church's fund-raising campaign in 10 days had netted $117,000 — $2,000 over the guaranteed minimum of the campaign.

The campaign opened May 3 and still is continuing with some reports still to be submitted. This morning, Mr. Ralph Ketchum, representative of the Wells organization, who is managing the drive for the local church, said he expected to total another $10,000 as the pledges are spread over three years.

The meeting last night was attended by over 100 canvassers and their wives, assembled in the church to hear the results of the campaign to date.

Speaking on behalf of his workers, Fred Tilson, chairman for the drive, had this to say later: "I want to say how grateful we are for the co-operation shown by us and the spirit in which the pledges were made. Particularly gratifying are the pledges given by the congregation to our canvassers when they called upon them to make the pledges."

Results of the campaign not only are showing in the amount pledged toward the fund. Mr. Harding also noted that since the campaign started regular Sunday donations to the church have increased by $100.

Sometime in the near future the Wells organization, the world wide inter-denominational fund raising association, also will be back to conduct a series of executives of the church boards in fund raising and workers will be selected to take the course in Ted Poste and J. D. Robertson, clerk of the session.

At last night's meeting, most of the canvassers made impromptu speeches concerning their work during the campaign. The speech-making was highlighted by an address by the pastor, Rev. Sidney E. Larman.

The chairman noted the results of the campaign and what it would mean to the future of the downtown Christian worship in the city for 23 years.

In particular he emphasized to his workers the importance of placing the church above self.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Speculative issues with columbium and tantalum prospects, which sold off sharply in morning trading began to recover some of the ground lost in early afternoon transactions at the stock market today.

The sell-off came following reports that the United States government had filled its stock-piling requirements for columbium and tantalum, metals used in hardening steel and rendering it more heat resistant.

Companies hardest hit are in the Oka district in Quebec and around North Bay where the metals have been found.

Beaucage had the severest loss, dropping $1.60 in morning trade. It recovered a little in later trading and was down $1.10 to $4 in afternoon transactions.

Coulee dropped 70 to $1.35, Headway 66 to $1.24, Multi-Minerals 40 to $1.70, Inspiration 33 to $1.94 and New Fortune 21 to 31 cents.

Other sections of the market were thoroughly mixed. Price changer were mostly small.

Financial institutions, constructions and liquors were the only components of the Industrial list to show consistent strength. Gains ranged to less than two points.

Col. G. C. Leech To Be Promoted To Brigadier

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. George C. Leech, 43, of Winnipeg, will be promoted to the rank of brigadier in August and appointed director-general of plans and operations at army headquarters, it was announced Thursday.

He will succeed Brig. Robert P. Rothschild, 46, of Montreal, whose new appointment will be announced later. Brig. Rothschild last August became the first head of the new plans and operations branch.

Col. Leech was commissioned in the Royal Canadian Signals in 1933 and served overseas in the Second World War. U.S. Wants Canada's Water, Not Willing to Pay for It

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States, says Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, wants access to Canada's water resources but is willing to make no compensation in return.

The chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission told the Commons committee on external affairs Thursday that if the "friends south of the border" had their way:

"We wouldn't be even in the humble position of hewers of wood and haulers of water. We would be relegated merely to the inactive role of sinners of water."

The committee was discussing proposed federal legislation that would require even provincial governments to obtain federal licences before they could dam such international rivers.

Already approved in principle by Parliament, the bill is designed to head off a proposed deal between the British Columbia government and the Kaiser Corporation of the United States.

British Columbia wants to allow Kaiser to dam the lower Arrow lakes—a widening of the Columbia river—and channel the water to Bonneville, Wash., for generation into power, 20 per cent of which B. C. would receive free for 50 years.

Through Attorney-General Robert Bonner, B. C. told the committee two weeks ago that Parliament's legislation threatens to invade provincial rights, would invalidate existing provincial legislation and in effect nationalize B. C.'s resources.

Unknown Worker Prevents Major Refinery Blaze

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the Trinidad-Leasehold Refinery at suburban Port Credit today credited an unidentified worker at the plant with averting a major fire after an explosion rocked the area Thursday night.

For almost half an hour the company's 50-man fire brigade battled a gasoline-fed blaze around the plant's catalytic cracking unit. At times flames leaped 100 feet into the air and heavy smoke from the plume was visible many miles away.

Company officials said a worker dashed into the control room of the cracking unit seconds after the blast and closed down the main gasoline supply line feeding hundreds of gallons of partially processed petroleum into the unit.

The officials said this action and the absence of wind prevented the fire from spreading. Water was played on nearby storage tanks and pipelines to prevent further explosions.

Cause of the blast, which apparently occurred near the top of the cracking unit tower was not determined.

MODERN BRONCHO

BRANTFORD (CP) — Warner Emmott, 37, was severely injured Thursday when a tractor he was driving turned over twice, threw off the driver, righted itself and continued driverless. The victim's father, Harry Emmott, finally stopped the tractor and took his son to hospital.

FISHING IN FULL SWING SATURDAY

Another fishing season gets into full swing this Saturday.

This is the day it becomes legal to take pike and pickerel wherever they may be found.

There are limited devotees of the piscatorial art who believe that May 1 is the important day on the fishermen's calendar and that anything that comes between that date and the first snows of fall is strictly in the nature of an anti-climax.

People with this opinion are not fishermen; they are anglers.

There are sections of the province where catching trout is fishing, but that is not true of Belleville and district.

The fisherman after trout strolls whistling through dewy grass as the sun pokes its head above the horizon, selects a tree that shields him from observation from the house, tosses an inquiring look at the world-flowing stream and settles back to watch the grass grow.

The angler, having consulted tables telling him about the moon's influence on the tides, knows his forth to some extent, has ransacked it on tip-toe, gazes anxiously at the water to determine the nature of the hatch and then tries to match it from a large selection of flies.

Both methods produce fish in the end.

Around Belleville, though, streams flowing through the "back fifty" are not alive with trout. The angler fares far afield, to favorite haunts in the north. The fisherman relaxes in an easy chair, waiting for the arrival of mid-May, or if he is particularly ambitious, he heads out into the Bay of Quinte to catch pike, on which there is no closed season in these waters.

Pike and pickerel, and later bass and muskies, are the fishermen's fish in these areas. Of course, they can provide sport for the angler, too, for the man who fishes diligently and with skill. But they can also be caught by the man—or woman, boy or girl—who likes to loll lazily in the back of a boat, enjoying the sunshine and the breeze, hoping in the fish when they bite and enjoying solitude or company, as the case may be, during those intervals when the fish knew undisturbed.

The season opens this Saturday. Now it is the turn of the fishermen. Here in the Belleville district they do not have to make great preparations—all they need to do is pick up their rods and tackle boxes and cast their bait into the nearest waters, almost all of which hold fish.

GAS PIPELINE DECISION REQUIRED

Premier E. C. Manning will have the support of the majority of Canadians in his contention that decisions regarding a natural gas pipeline to eastern Canada should be reached "mighty fast."

A start on the big task of construction of this pipeline has been delayed by difficulties in financing it.

Premier Manning says that the pipeline cannot be financed on its merits if an all-Canadian route is followed.

If the route chosen was, in part, through the United States, the pipeline could tap the markets en route to eastern Canada and would thus be economically feasible.

The Federal Government has been insisting on an all-Canadian route.

If this route is followed, financial assistance will have to be forthcoming from some other source than private investors. It would appear obvious that the Federal Government, which wants the all-Canadian route, should be the body to provide this financial help if such a route is followed.

The decision which must be reached is whether the pipeline shall be built through the United States by private capital, or entirely through Canada, with Federal assistance.

Premier Manning's remarks may be interpreted by some as placing the blame for the delay on the Federal Government. But it is not so certain that is where it belongs. It is the province which is responsible and refuse to guarantee bonds for the pipeline company. But a counter-proposal that the Federal Government acquire shares of the company was apparently still under study when a private all-Canadian route decision was apparently reached because of the firm's antipathy to government participation in business.

The difference between the Federal Government backing the pipeline company's bonds and the same government purchasing shares in the company is a vital one. In the bond case, the government could not win but might lose heavily if the pipeline company failed to prosper. As a shareholder the government could lose, but might also be a heavy winner if the pipeline proved a financial success.

Most Canadians will approve of the Federal Government's refusal to risk a loss without any opportunity of realizing a profit.

As for the question of whether the pipeline should be built partly through the U.S. by private capital or wholly through Canada with government assistance, that is another matter. Here is, however, no good reason why a foreign-owned oil company should be permitted to assume the role of dictator. If it is decided that the all-Canadian route is feasible, the Federal Government will not lack widespread public support, from Canadians of all political faiths, for any legislative action it takes to compel companies exporting gas-producing wells to supply the pipeline firm with this gas.

GARDEN MYSTERY

While spading through a garden
I wondered as the soil I turned
And saw him bright and eager-eyed,
A robin, watching from a tree,
Flew down in front of me and said:
Just how that robin wise had learned
"Please dig a worm or two for me."
That man and spade would food provide.

I'll take that back. He couldn't speak,
But still to me he made it clear
Robins their secrets safely keep.
He knew the food he had to seek
And standing there with bright
Would be provided if I were in hand
I watched a mystery too deep
Spading. I was spading would appear
For men like me to understand.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 12, 1935

Christ church parish is now celebrating its 70th anniversary and for three Sundays the last three rectors of the parish will in turn be the special preachers. Last Sunday, Archdeacon the Ven. R. C. Bigwarne, D.D. rector of St. John's church, Peterborough, who came to the parish in 1905 and remained for thirteen and a half years, was the first of the former rectors to visit the parish. Next Sunday the Rev. C. E. Clarke, M.A., rector of St. Michael and All Angels church, Toronto, will be the special preacher and the concluding Sunday the Rev. Rural Dean W. G. Swayne of Rawdon, will visit the parish and it is expected that the sermons by Rt. Rev. John Lyons, will close the anniversary at the evening service. The present rector, the Rev. H. R. Hunt, has conducted the services in St. John's church in Peterborough, for Archdeacon Bigsarp's visit in order to enable him to be the first speaker at the anniversary services. The site for Christ church, which was a rough-cast building, was opened for service in 1885. It was situated on Moira Street West, not far from the upper bridge. This church was destroyed by fire in 1891 and as a result the present church was built on Coleman Street opposite the post bridge. It was dedicated on the 9th of April, 1892. The first rector was the Rev. Septimus Jones, who was become rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Avenue Road, Toronto. He resigned as Christ church from 1885 to December 1870. Since then the following have been rectors of the parish: Rev. Hans Caulfield, 1871 to 1873; Rev. R. S. Forneri, 1873 to 1875; Rev. J. R. Jones, 1877 to 1878; Rev. W. C. Allen, 1878 to 1882; Rev. E. W. Sibbald, 1882 to 1887; Rev. Samuel Daw, 1887 to 1894; Rev. C. H. Ullmann, 1894 to 1901; Rev. W. Birtal Heaney, 1901 to 1905; Rev. R. C. Blagrave, 1905 to 1918; Rev. W. G. Swayne, 1918 to 1923; Rev. C. E. Clarke, 1923 to 1929. The present rector, the Rev. C. G. Wright, became rector in 1932.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What dumb people like you and me would like to know is, where are the smart people who buy the new cars with those super horsepower engines and the sensational road-hugging chassis and ultra-dynamic qualities in all respects going to drive them?

Not on there highways and speedways the rest of us know nothing about! The only roads we know anything about are infested with cops equipped with radar outfits for trapping us if we go over fifty. And we can go fifty in any old jitney. We can go fifty, that is, if we can find a short stretch, for a few minutes with nobody in it. We get up at 8 a.m. either to go to or come home from the summer cottage, in the hope of having the highway fairly to ourselves, and no cops up yet. But what happens? About fifty thousand of our neighbors had the same idea. And there we go, bumper-to-bumper along at an average of about forty, just as bad as if we had slept in and taken the holiday highway at noon or five p.m.

And I must say, a beautiful streamlined car with so much horsepower you can almost hear them whinney looks a little absurd hugging the road at thirty-eight miles an hour.

What is the automotive industry for, if it is not keeping abreast of the saturation point not only in towns and cities but on our highways. The space available for the operation of cars efficiently, economically and comfortably is fast diminishing. Yet the automotive industry, which for full fifty years has provided us with some of the cleverest brains in finance, in engineering and in vision, continues to press the emphasis on power, speed, arrow-like design, when they surely should have started long ago, on redesigning the whole industry in conformity with the steadily narrowing space in which their product can function.

Of course, on the other hand, many a man owns a high powered rifle, which he shoots once or twice on the hunting trip. The rest of the year, he just fondles it. Maybe that's the idea in cars, eh?

Entertain Aboard Train

(Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., News)

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad now runs show trains to operas and broadway hits with stars along performing for the passengers. It runs sports trains to baseball games, and flights, with well-known athletes for entertainment.

Now it's about to run fun trains. This time it will feature animals and the fun will be for passengers who, it is expected, will be mainly boys and girls.

The idea behind all this is to lure extra riders by offering attractions that are not made any transportation can give. In the case of theatre and sports trains, the railroad sells tickets for the event one is travelling to as well as for the train. It even arranges dinner parties. The main attraction of the new program, however, is the entertainment aboard the train. After all, not many motorists can have well liked stars alongside them in their own automobiles and so a ride often means than an occasional bored or sleeping celebrity.

The new train does not seem to be carrying thing rather far. There's nothing wrong with a two legged train, of course. But real animals on the train, such as a snake, a baby bear or a possum, are dubious assets. Suppose the skunk or the snake should get loose, or escape the cage and hide in the train, making its appearance again the next time the train was due for a regular run. Imagine the reactions of passengers to a live snake or skunk in the aisles. This plan could boomerang easily, discouraging people to leave their cars or the airplane. The final argument for the railroad is the advantages of hauling a trailload of half-fares.

Octopus Meat Cost $26,171

(Edmonton Journal)

The weekly news bulletin of the dominion bureau of statistics is normally of specialized but sober collection of statistics on commerce and industry. The latest issue, however, is almost entirely devoted to odd and eccentric facts collected from the import and export figures for 1954, and it casts a curious light on our international trade.

It would appear, for example, that some Canadians have more rugged appetites than is commonly supposed. Last year Canada imported $26,171 worth of fresh octopus meat, chiefly from Japan and Mexico. In the same year, we apparently draw the line at frogs' legs, for the entire exports of this "delicacy" amounted to 19,200 pounds. Last year, but no imports are recorded.

Tell it not in Prince Edward Island, but we are the dominion exports of turnips to the United States. The figures were 2,377,343 bushels of turnips and 1,506,579 bushels of potatoes.

Canada has never been exactly noted as a nation of drinkers, but has made at least a beginning. Imports from foreign countries bought a total of $1,000 worth of Canadian paintings.

It's fairly certain we should one say tinkle!—from the past is the announcement that in 1954 Canada imported $2,974 worth of music for mechanical pianos.

Perhaps the most intriguing item of all, however, is that in 1951 Canada purchased $38 worth of dragon's blood from the United States. One conjures up a picture of stout-hearted American slaying dragons in some remote corner of the world, bottling the blood to Canadian wizards, to be used in secret rituals. Alas for fancy—it turns out that dragon's blood is just the trade name for a reddish gum resin employed in making lacquer and varnish.

Automation And Housewife

(Baltimore Sun)

The development of the washing machine provides a homely illustration of automation.

First there were set tubs and a scrub board; then the first crude woods machine in which various sorts of paddles and dunking devices were manipulated from the outside by wheel or lever. Then a small motor or gasoline engine was applied. Then the machine was rigged so that it first washed and then drained automatically. Then it was taught to spin, so rendering the wringer obsolete, and so on.

Now we have machines that, on being properly set, first soak the clothes, then wash them for the required number of rinsings, then spin out the final rinse water, then dry them. Others have a drying device and at a predetermined time deliver the clothes clean and dry — all done while the lady of the house is entertaining her bridge club, going to the movies, inserting a ready mixed cake into a preset oven, or doing little dummy in his arithmetic, or otherwise employing her time in useful or frivolous ways as circumstances dictate.

Pencils Cost $1.46 to Repair

(Sault Star)

How often when one is in the middle of making notes or calculations, one's pencil lead collapses with annoying speed. How very often one rummages to seek another sharpened pencil with which to carry on with the work.

Having discovered that we have no other sharpened pencils handy we then proceed to do, not always satisfactory, or take our pencil to the pencil sharpener and spend a few seconds putting another point on to it.

So far, after many years of suffering, we have admitted the inconvenience of the breakability of pencils, but we have never worked out the cost.

A recent advertisement in a trade newspaper, however, has done for us and we now know that, assuming a pencil can still be used after being sharpened twenty times and that the pencil taken to sharpen it once would cost an average of 7.3 cents of employee time, every pencil, we find, eventually does cost us $1.46 in maintenance charges.

As we have already pointed out few men do not automatically read the ads in their trade papers. their lead breaks, so that the employee time is figured at very conservative; particularly for those of us who habitually keep our desks in a state of untidiness. So that one is compelled to accept the cost as reasonable. Figure is really economical.

Pencils are purchased in bulk, pencils could be bought for as little as 5 cents a time, so that, if 20 pencils a time could be bought, as some pencils are, by the thousand, the cost of the pencils away when the lead broke and pitching up a new one, we would effect a saving to employers of 2.3 cents with every lead we broke.

All this seems logical enough in a way, and we have a feeling that something must be wrong somewhere. Perhaps the copywriter who has been at the pencils in connection with the advertisement made an error, perhaps his pencil-sharpener is one which puts a thread on the pencil instead of a point.

One of these days, we shall borrow a sharpened and check the time it takes on our office sharpener. In the meantime, it certainly gives one something to think about.

Wild Animals' Comeback

(Welland-Port Colborne Tribune)

A striking feature of rural conditions in Canada today is the return of some wild animals common in pioneer days but which have been practically absent since then.

Thirty years ago and more, old timers were mourning the passing of the deer, which in earlier days had been killed by forest glades, and provided a portable meat supply for the hardy clearing and hungry pioneers.

In our own time, a few deer herds have been established in Rondeau Park have increased and spread beyond the confines of park boundaries, have become something of a nuisance on the farms and railways.

The red fox, definitely extinct for a half century, has come back in the northern parts of Ontario, the payment of bounties, is more and more numerous. Like the fox, the beaver is also becoming really plentiful.

In northern Ontario, the prospects of wild life surviving would seem much better even than here. There is a larger area of cover per in the area north of the Algonquin river and it is separated following his tour of the trap line, stealing bait, and in the night killing and devouring as much as sleigh dogs.

From a picture, the Indian identified the predaceous animal as a wolverine, not a cougar. The cougar is thought to have inhabited Northern Ontario many years ago but there is no record of one having been killed for bounty.

It may be that, just as individuals acquire immunity to certain diseases, species acquire some of certain of our wild species acquire immunity to the encroachment and handicap of civilization and have the ability to survive under what are called civilized conditions.

A mountain lion might not survive a well placed bullet and might fare badly in a tussle with a motor car. But motor cars are few and far between in the northern parts, sometimes that on, on being properly set, first soak the clothes, then wash them for the required number of rinsings, then spin out the final rinse water, then dry them. Others have a drying device and at a predetermined time deliver the clothes clean and dry — all done while the lady of the house is entertaining her bridge club, going to the movies, inserting a ready mixed cake into a preset oven, or doing little dummy in his arithmetic, or otherwise employing her time in useful or frivolous ways as circumstances dictate.

Personal Health Service

Rheumatiz Sounds So Quaint

Our family enjoys reading your short items. . . many a chuckle over your down to earth remarks, writes Mrs. N. C. G. I'm sure that what my doctor thinks of "arthritis" is really rheumatism, because it acts so much like what my mother had before the days of arthritis. (Mrs. N. C. G.)

Mrs. G. is not quite so patronizing as a good many others who are mildly amused by my remarks concerning chronic joint disability, but she makes it plain that she doesn't take my teachings or advice seriously.

The lady informs me that she "tried" some capsules for two whole weeks and could not see the least bit of benefit, evidently she assumes I recommended the capsules, I didn't.

This is a bowling day, so I'm not going to call anyone knuckle-head, wiseacre, geek or any other improper name—unless perchance some characters in my column should get out of line. I must say, however, that Mrs. N. C. G's endeavor to impress me with a bit of humor—until I notice the lady refers to my short items, I may account for a good deal of the trouble with you poor souls.

When I submit my daily item, article, lesson, piece of contribution it is from one-half to a column by the time it reaches the office boy clips off the . . . overlap and tells 'em to start the presses. No wonder my typing, you are so easy to understand. There's a difference between what-I write and what I have called you long-suffering.

Well, now, let's forgive and forget and get on. Peace crossed and hope that this and the next few paragraphs will be printed. The distinction between what I call rheumatiz and what most joint disability patients and their doctors call arthritis is this: Rheumatiz is physical degeneration, and arthritis is inflammation of the joint. In most instances of joint disability of more than a year's duration there is no evidence of inflammation—now it is a mistake to treat it as arthritis (joint inflamation).

It is not unusual to say all chronic joint disability is rheumatiz. In my opinion this is a serious mistake is really joint inflammation (arthr-itis) due to one or other specific infection as streptococcus, pneumococcus, staphylococcus, gonococcus, tubercle bacillus, syphilis germ, etc. I do mean to imply that if your physician calls your trouble arthritis and proceeds to give this or that treatment you should further efforts to find out what ails you, he's just stringing you along.

THINK ABOUT THINGS

It's how we think, and what we think about, that influences us either the way of success and happiness or leaves us like one passenger who has just missed his train! Sad to relate, he has no companions or pesky irritations that help him pass the time.

Especially at the close of a day, when we should relax, shed all our thoughts be happy ones, for then they influence sleep and give to us refreshment which is always a wonderful medicine. I have a shelf of some fifty books and I keep them (or they are good companions to each other) and I select from them for fresh and happy thoughts nightly every night before taking up with the best of the night. You'll sleep if you keep supplied with happy and inspiring thoughts!

Think about things not fears and irritations and troubles. Think of pleasant things, think of things that have given you pleasure in days past. Have a useful hobby—think upon the joys it creates and use of trivial things.

of the people beside yourself to whom it gives pleasure.

Think about the things in life. There are more of these than the unhappy. Be an habitually happy person! Such a one is always liked to meet and be with—the kind who has invited and who is a source and an inspiration. It is easy to "class" a person after you have learned the things she or he thinks most about.

There is nothing so constructive as happy and pleasant thoughts. Some fifty years ago I began a activity of one as nothing else does. There is power packed away in the first words that makes all the difference in one's station in life. with the best of the night. You'll

THAT INNER KNOWLEDGE

We often use the expression, "the kingdom of God."

What is the kingdom of God? The kingdom of God is the rule of God in the heart. God is so intense that even Jesus himself did not try to describe Him except in any single declaration. Jesus broke up the idea, as it were, into little understandable pieces and presented the different aspects of the kingdom in terms of what were known as parables.

He said that the kingdom of heaven was like leaven in a lump of dough; like seed cast on different kinds of soil; like a grain of mustard seed which, when it is sown upon the earth is so small it can hardly be seen, but when it is grown becomes "greater than all the herbs, and shooteth out great branches." He said the kingdom was like treasure hid in a field, or like a field sown with wheat and tares, or like a pearl of great price.

We must always remember that the kingdom of God is as unseen

Sunday School Lesson:

When Power Corrupts

By ROY L. SMITH

The pages of history are filled with the sorry stories of strong men who have been corrupted by power. At the outset of their careers they were men of integrity, effectiveness, and honor. But coming into possession of power, and being entrusted with the fortunes of their fellows, they have become corrupt, sometimes so much so that those who heaped adulations upon them only yesterday become their bitterest enemies. Any man who exercises power over other men must stand constant guard against its seductions.

A GOOD BEGINNING

Uzziah, one of the kings of Judah, was such a man. As he ascended the throne of the little kingdom he was a man of fine humility, and much wisdom. He sought devout and righteous men at his advisers, and the welfare of the people was his supreme concern. The rich heritage into which he entered commanded his highest reverence.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for May 15: "Uzziah's Strength and Failure," II Chronicles 25-26.

No man is ever truly great who has lost the ability to stand in awe. He who can look upon the stars and feel no sense of vastness, he who can look deep into the heart of a violet and feel no sense of wonder, he who can read history and feel no sense of mystery, and he who can contemplate the storm and know no sense of awe has not really begun to live.

Great living begins with a great reverence.

THOUGHT GREATER THAN GOD

As king of Judah, commanding tens of thousands of men, in control of the destiny of a nation and with an ancient and honored people obeying his decrees, Uzziah began to think he was just a little bigger than God Himself. There was an ancient rule among the people to the effect that only certain priests were to officiate in certain ceremonies, at the Temple altars but Uzziah, with an inflated sense of his power, presumed to usurp that high office. He undertook to displace the priests.

There is a fine line between the function of the state and that of the church, and there is a fine line dividing men's loyalties. Said a courageous old clergyman to an American mayor and chief of police who were threatening him with economic sanctions if he did not desist from making certain statements from his pulpit, "You can take my property in the form of fines and taxes; you can throw my body into prison; you can perhaps fasten a padlock on the door of my church, but my soul belongs to God. To Him I must be true and above all other powers and authorities."

CHURCH STOOD FIRM

Albert Einstein is reported to have said that when the Hitler regime began to usurp power and authority in Germany he confidently expected that the universities would stand out against him, but they did not. Instead, they surrendered. By one device and another the Nazis took the labor unions captive. Business, education, the professions, art, the press—one by one the guardians of the rights of the people fell into his hell. Only one institution defied him and survived—the church (Catholic and Protestant) held out against him and all his power. This strange courage and defiance is never understood.

One of the major tasks of the church is to inculcate the principles of good citizenship. The Apostle Paul insisted that the church should conform to the laws of the Roman Empire. Every reputable church is loyal to the government under which it lives, but every reputable church also declares that there comes times when the church must call even the state to judgment.

Re-Dedication Church Ministers Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada Thursday announced a three-phase plan of re-dedication of church ministers, workers and members.

A national mission of evangelism will operate for at least the next 2½ years and is expected to reach United Church adherents in all walks of life.

Plans were announced at a meeting of a special committee on national evangelistic mission. Ministers will be asked to reaffirm this fall their ordination vows and to reconsecrate themselves to the work of the ministry.

Thousands of workers within the church will be asked to form local missions and examine work being done, then re-commit themselves to the work. The third phase of the plan calls for the rededication of the church's approximately 875,000 members during services to be held in Lenten season next year.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

Rev. W. G. Berry, present associate secretary of the board of evangelism and social service has been appointed director of the nation-wide campaign.

The announcement said the national evangelistic mission will attempt to reach industrial workers, university students, agricultural workers, miners and political groups.

Outstanding evangelistic preachers from throughout the world will be called to conduct the rededication services in many areas.

The mission will start at Windsor in September, 1956, following a "period of preparation."

Appointments to church posts were also announced by the executive of general council. They include: Neil A. Campbell, Port Arthur director of fund - raising campaigns for the committee on church extension.

There had been cheers when the green-clad Vietminh troops started into the city.

But fear was in the faces of those who decided quickly to flee. Walking or pedalling bicycle carts, they lugged what they hastily scraped together — food baskets, clothing and household furniture.

They were leaving centuries-old homes and rice lands.

RUSH TO FRENCH BOATS

At the docks there were joyful shouts from those boarding landing craft. The French - manned boats took them southward to Don Son peninsula, where United States Navy transports waited to take them to South Viet Nam.

In the shift from French to Vietminh rule, Haiphong is under a strict French curfew to prevent looting.

As the Vietminh occupation was completed, the French vanished into the last transports at Haiphong's quayside. They will go to Saigon and on to France.

Three National Parks in Ontario Are Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of three national parks in various parts of Ontario, was suggested in the Commons Thursday night.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) proposed taking over part of Long Point island, a sandy peninsula 22 miles long stretching into Lake Erie.

Henry Hosking (L — Wellington South) said the Long Branch ridge range between Toronto and Hamilton would be an ideal site for a park serving that heavily populated area.

Rev. Dan McIvor (L — Fort William) suggested Mount McKay near his home city as a national park.

The proposals were made during consideration of the estimates of the northern affairs and national resources department.

Mr. Nesbitt said 18,000 acres of Long Point island are owned by a private company, mostly of United States stockholders, which maintains gamekeepers as a sort of private police force to keep people away. Company members used the land mainly to hunt ducks.

He said much of the area still is in its virgin state with timber stands and abundant wildlife. He proposed negotiations with the Ontario government to buy most of the area for park purposes.

Mr. McIvor said he has been trying to have Mount McKay near Fort William turned into a national park. He had been unsuccessful because the federal government first required that the provincial government buy the land and turn it over for use as a park.

Eastern Ontario Football League

The Eastern Ontario Football League, which opened its schedule last Saturday, is comprised of four teams for the 1955 season. They are Belleville City, Kingston United, Batawa FC and Peterborough Scottish.

In the opening games, Belleville scored a 5-1 victory over Peterborough, while Kingston edged Batawa 3-1. D. Roelfsema starred for Belleville with four of their goals while J. Dolan and N. Carter booted the other pair. J. Daly was the Peterboro marksman. In the other game, Cooper, Machlin and Gillespie each scored once for Kingston with Curphey netting the lone Batawa goal.

Games scheduled for this week-end find Peterborough at Kingston on Saturday afternoon while Belleville visits the Batawa crew on Sunday.

Fred Jones, league secretary, reports that it is very unlikely that there will be a local league this summer. In the past local teams from Picton, Northern Electric, Batawa and other surrounding districts have formed the Bay of Quinte loop.

The Experts Say — Crafty Spring-Time Shopping For New Houses Pays Off

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TORONTO (CP)—Crafty spring-time shopping for houses pays off—it shows them at their worst.

This is the advice of Ottawa architect Mrs. Jean Strange, Canadian Association of Consumers housing expert.

"Road flaws, parking problems, snow shovelling, unwelcome watercourses and constructional flaws in the basement show up best at this time of year," she said. "A quick survey can save a lot of time and money later."

Mrs. Strange advocates a blanket appraisal of the area where the prospective house is situated. Proximity to shopping centres, schools, work, and transportation, policing and fire protection should all be considered.

MEAN MORE EXPENSE

Absence of paved roads and sidewalks, sewers and water mains will all involve extra expense in improvement costs. A good plan is to get the tax rate from local municipal offices.

Before actually looking at the house, consider the business reputation of the builder. Look at previous houses he has built and talk with people living in them if possible.

A fair guide, Mrs. Strange said, is a house built to National Housing Act or Veterans Loan Act standards.

Mrs. Strange recommends a pad, pencil and measuring tape as prime equipment for checking a house with a "comparative shopper's" approach.

On the outside, check the roof, finish of mortar joints, paint work, window sills, chimney caps and flashings of the chimney where it joins the roof.

CONSTRUCTION CHECKS

On the inside, construction quality shows up best in the flooring, walls, posts and ceiling joists in the basement.

Hot water tank capacity should be 30 to 40 gallons for one bathroom. Assess the electrical needs and have the wiring system checked by a qualified electrician.

Mrs. Strange warns househunters to watch the quality and finish of the plaster, paint and woodwork on

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THIS GIRL NEEDS HELP AT HOME—TRY TO PERSUADE HER TO GET IT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a good friend who tells me he is in love with a girl with a slight mental condition. He says that if she didn't have this condition, he would marry her.

I know this girl, too, and she says that if this fellow would come to her and tell her that he would marry her if she would go to the hospital for treatments right away, she would do that. She doesn't seem to care too much for living without him, and he seems to be so pleased to that he doesn't know what to do.

I believe she will take her life if he doesn't go to see her before long. As it is now, I know he goes to see her about once a week and also he goes

CORNER CLOTHES CLOSET, simply built of fir plywood, can replace a cluttered area in a kitchen. Simple construction details make this plywood built-in an addition any handyman can build himself.

Cluttered Corner Easily Replaced By Fir Plywood Clothes Closet

No one likes a cluttered corner of dirty overboots and outdoor clothing, yet in farm homes and in town too, such a corner often goes repeated for years without change. Why?

Usually the space is there and all that's needed is to enclose the space with a neat closet. One simple solution to the cluttered corner problem is shown above. Anyone handy with hammer and saw can build the closet.

Made of fir plywood, the clothes closet shown can be adjusted in size to fit the corner space available. Your lumber dealer can give you carpentry and paint finishing information and supply fir plywood and framing lumber needed.

The ¾-inch fir plywood doors are hung with standard door butt-hinges directly over the 2x4 main framing posts. Hinges are let into the framing. If posts are painted a solid colour to contrast with natural finish or wipe-down stain finish of the doors, a very attractive modular pattern will result. The whole closet could effectively be painted in solid colour to match any colour scheme of the room if desired.

Details of shelf and floor installation and framing are indicated. Note that shelves and floor are set back behind the 2x4 main posts so that air circulates freely, under and over the doors. This air circulation prevents mustiness if damp clothes are hung inside.

Steel Wool Buff Keeps Floors Clean

The smoother the floor, the easier it is to clean. This applies to any type of flooring. Buffing with steel wool with an electric polisher is usually the best method. In many places power buffers can be rented, or professional floor polishers can be hired to come in about once a month. Buffing simplifies the care of hardwood floors as well as asphalt and rubber tile floors.

Mud Can Make a Snug Home

Adobe House Of Southwest Holds Favor

By STEVE LOWELL

Mud homes are getting to be quite the thing again in the Southwest.

Dr. Sherman Smith, director of student affairs at the University of New Mexico, is one of the latest to move into one at Albuquerque.

"We like it," he says. "We like it for its looks, for its quiet, for its insulation."

His mud home is newly built of adobe—clay mud mixed with straw, cut into blocks and dried in the sun.

Does it look good?

The state administration thinks so. The university's buildings all hold to the plain, clean lines of the traditional architecture of this land of the Pueblo Indians.

And there is a rule that homes built by the faculty members on land they lease from the university also must be built in Pueblo style.

REVIVAL OF AN OLD ART

Dr. Smith went all the way. He'd seen lots of older adobe homes on his many visits out here from the University of North Carolina where he used to teach chemistry.

He learned of Bob Koehler, who was stationed here in 1941, "fell in love with the place" and came back after World War II to live. This modern adobe construction is a reawakening to the value of an ancient building material, and Bob is one of the very few on the ground floor as a builder.

Bob was in photography in Chicago before the war and came out here with an eye for art. After the war he married Mela Sedillo, from a widely-known and ancient New Mexico family, in 1946. Mela was teaching art at the university when Bob met her.

HOW HE GOT STARTED

He and Mela moved into an old adobe home on Guadalupe Trail north of Albuquerque. Bob remodeled it, then bought the "old ruin" next door and remodeled that. Then he began working for a conventional home builder.

"He saw my work in our home," Bob said, "and got interested in adobe construction. We were planning to go into business together, but he died. A lawyer, Dave Gallagher, now of Colorado Springs, saw my work and liked it and I built him a big home—my first one. Since then I've built about a dozen and remodeled a lot of old ones."

These new homes Bob builds of 'dobes made by Albuquerque craftsman Lolo Leyba, run from $20,000 to $30,000.

"You don't build them fast," Bob explains. "It's more a hand job than a conventional home."

ADDING MODERN TOUCHES

As for the old places that

Modern Mud Block (adobe) houses get special finishing. Here Dr. Sherman Smith, director of student activities at New Mexico University, is fitting metal lath over the adobe blocks with which he built his house. A hard plaster could be fixed up. "They're getting scarce," Bob says. "The choice ones have been bought and repaired. What's left usually is beyond repair."

Bob has just moved into one of the "choice" old ones he was repairing. It's on El Camino de la Lodera—the Road of the Foothills, long ago changed by the invading "Anglos" to Highland Road. Balbino Martinez, Bob's chief carpenter and a member of a family here since the days of the Spanish Conquistadors, Coronado, says the house is "at least 250 years old."

Bob builds his homes in the traditional manner but with modern improvements that make them more substantial. For instance, the walls of the old homes had no foundation. Most says, "The old places have grown into the earth."

The new ones stand on solid concrete foundations and have hard plaster inside and out to protect the mud blocks. They have the traditional six-inch-thick earth roofs, but on top of that they have guaranteed, modern tar-paper, asphalt and gravel surfaces. The traditional heavy decorative beams support the ceilings. On top of those are laid naturally-finished planks, straight or laid like herringbone. Above that is the earth roof.

or stucco is then applied over the lath to produce a wall as shown in the background. Southwesterners used to drive tenpenny nails into the blocks, leaving the heads protrude to give the stucco a bond. Metal lath is faster and better.

The inside walls are the traditional white. The ancients adopted that color because it was the color of the plaster they made from gypsum deposits like the huge dunes of White Sands National Monument.

The windows are deep-set with side sills as in the old homes.

Says Dr. Smith: "We live on a very busy street, but inside the house it's as quiet as can be. It's because the walls are a foot thick, and although we live under the approach to busy Kirtland Field, the thick earth roof keeps out the drone of propellers and the shriek of jets."

And Mela says: "In hot weather you don't know there's a summer outside, and winter storms never show a hint inside."

Does the mud hold up?

Scattered over New Mexico, Colorado, Texas, Arizona, Utah and California are buildings set up in the time of the Spanish conquest hundreds of years ago. Those that have been kept in repair still are substantial.

The Southwest also is filled with the ruins of those which weren't cared for. And you can still see the remains of ancient Pueblos built in prehistoric times.

In Santa Fe stands the aged church of San Miguel. It was built of adobe soon after the Spanish reached the ancient capital in 1540.

CONCRETE SEPTIC TANKS
STEEL REINFORCED

These tanks are made from a special mixture of cement very similar to the formula that is used in the manufacture of our concrete burial vaults and are fully reinforced with a steel wire mesh. The baffles are cast into the tank and no special or any fittings are needed to connect the tank to the sewer lines. Being a horizontal type of construction the above tank has a much higher rate of digestion than tanks poured into the ground.

All tanks are guaranteed waterproof as this is done in the batching of the cement, it is therefore not necessary to plaster or asphalt as in the case with poured tanks.

NHA SMALL HOUSE DESIGNS
—This attractive bungalow has a western flavor which is gaining popularity throughout the rest of Canada. Vertical lines, repeated in the large living room window, the slender supporting beams and the wood siding, give an impression of height to the gently sloping roof. The open porch provides a pleasant area for outdoor living.

Following the modern trend, architect T. M. Kirkham, of Winnipeg, has located the well-planned kitchen at the front of the house where a sunny nook for family eating overlooks the porch. Unbroken wall areas in the large living room allow for convenient furniture arrangement. The bedrooms have built-in closets and are separated from the living section by a hall.

The combined width of the house and carport is 43 feet, seven inches, while the depth is 33 ft. 6. Total floor area is 928 square feet, exclusive of carport, and the cubic measurement is 17,700 cubic feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 138, are available from Houston's at a minimum cost.

FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS

It's Fun To Paint, But Carelessness Can Burn Your House Down

When the most attractive house on the block burned to the ground, residents in trim little neighboring homes weren't surprised. They'd been expecting it.

Years ago Jonesey had turned his basement into a workshop, filled it with stores of paint and a clutter of old furniture and junk picked up at auction sales.

He liked to paint and make repairs. The neighbors liked him for it. Many of them were Do-it-yourselfers themselves. Only they knew when to stop, when to replace worn appliances, when to seek professional help.

Jonesey's basement was a mess—a combined factory, chemical laboratory, storage warehouse and recreation room. He was careless, too, in handling paints and solvents, even failing to provide good ventilation. And there wasn't an ash tray to be found.

No wonder his house burned down.

The likes of that guy Jonesey, says the National Board of Fire Underwriters, cause about 90 per cent of all fires. Their carelessness will cause 900 homes to burn today, tomorrow and every day. Not all will be lucky Jonesys. Many will die.

What is the hazard? The oils, turpentine, mineral spirits and other common ingredients in paints. Lacquers contain acetone and amyl acetate (banana—oil) and occasionally some benzine (petroleum naphtha). Paint removers usually contain some benzol. Even kerosene and turpentine give off flammable vapors when heated.

Rags containing paint or linseed oil or almost any vegetable or fish oil are subject to spontaneous heating under certain conditions. You're wise if you keep these in covered metal cans, or destroy them.

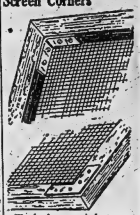
Paint remaining in open containers should be stored where wood storage is needed.

Note the grill-type bottom of the main box which permits chips and splinters to fall through to a chip drawer below. The paper holder could be placed on one end if more convenient.

The top should come to stove height so that when closed it will form a handy working counter alongside the stove.

This fir plywood woodbox, if securely put together, will stand up over the years to battering by armloads of wood. It could be painted any solid color or stained to match other fir plywood built-ins in your new kitchen.

What is the answer? Simply this: Be careful with paints, solvents and thinners around the house. Don't leave soaking brushes or turpentine soaked rags or papers around. Don't use a match to start a fire with paints, solvents and thinners around!

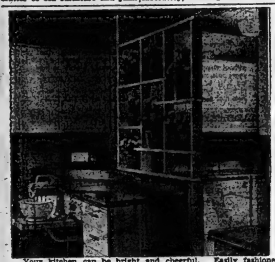


Home Fire Alarm Systems Provide Low Cost Safety

The first five minutes of warning are worth the next five hours in fighting home fires. That is why, says John L. Taylor, vice-president of the Edwards Company of Norfolk, Conn., low cost home fire alarm systems have been perfected. And they are so simple the average man can install them himself.

The new alarm systems, packaged with complete instructions for installation, include a signal unit with a loud, clear bell, a transformer and a test button, all enclosed in a shallow decorative box for mounting on the wall.

Thermal detector units are supplied! They set off the alarm when temperature reaches 140 degrees and provides protection for areas up to 400 square feet. ables as needed. They operate on low voltage, armored cables or conduits.



Add Strength To Wood Frame Screen Corners

Wood frame window screens are easily reinforced at corners by using angle straps such as these, available at any hardware store. Brass with brass screws will insure against rust.

Wood Box Needs Remodelling Too In a New Kitchen

Plans for remodelling your farm kitchen shouldn't overlook that battered old woodbox in the corner by the stove.

An old-fashioned woodbox sitting in the new kitchen could look as out of place as a buggy parked in the parlor. Sketched above is a modern-designed fir plywood woodbox any handyman could make himself.

Size of the box would be determined by the space available but a neat unit similar to the one shown would improve any kitchen where wood storage is needed.

Keeping a House Dry

Moisture is one of the worst enemies of a house. Often invisible in the form of vapor, it can permeate from all directions and destroy silently and unnoticed, it can cause the best of paints to blister and peel. It can feed the fungus spores of mildew and cause lumber to rot. It can eat away expensive metal work through rust and corrosion. And because moisture can cancel the value of insulation, the National Mineral Wool Assn. has compiled 'tis outline of a survey you can make—23 ways to keep your house dry:

1. Check singles for broken, loose, or missing units.

2. Look for rust, corrosion, or displacement of flashing around chimney, vent pipes, in roof valleys and at junctions of roofs and walls.

3. Keep gutters clean of debris and leaves. See that they are properly connected to downspouts with a strainer over connection. Cover gutters with ¼-inch hardware cloth if near trees.

4. Have downspouts drain into sewers, dry wells or on splash blocks to direct water away from the foundation. Are they of adequate size?

5. Examine eaves for signs of leaks, blistered paint, need for flashing under shingles to guard against ice dams.

6. Examine chimney cap, flue lining and brickwork for any cracks. Watch soot deposit.

7. See that skylights and other roof openings are tight. Check for leaks, loose putty, cracked or broken glass, flashing, or paint failures.

8. Check walls of brick for flashing and caulking around openings. Check stucco for cracks, discoloration, or wet streaks after rain. Watch wood for paint blistering, moisture content of bottom sidings, need for caulking and paint around openings, exposed nailheads.

9. Check windows on putty, paint, flashing, caulking and weather-stripping, storm sash, excessive sweating. Also for drip grooves under window sills.

10. Check under house crawl, spaces for ventilation and vapor spaces for ventilation and vapor barrier over soil.

11. Concrete Slab—Is floor insulated from foundation by a bituminous joint? Place a rubber mat on floor to see it. A dehumidifier may be needed in summer.

12. Basement floor—check with rubber mat, look for signs of flooded basement, eliminate moisture sources.

13. Foundations and basement walls—in most soils, walls below grade should be waterproofed. Check for and repair any leaks or cracks.

14. Window Wells—areaway walls should be of watertight materials. Bottoms of areaways should drain quickly. Ground should slope away from windows.

15. Capping over foundation walls —rustproof termite shields are most effective. Sill and outside sheathing and siding should be isolated from masonry.

16. Grading—ground should slope away from house in all directions. Trees and shrubs too near the house add to moisture hazards.

17. Inside House—check bathrooms for efficient ventilation. See that tile around tub or shower is water tight and properly caulked.

18. In kitchen, is there a ventilating fan? Cooking an average dinner adds 2.7 pounds of water to the air.

19. Does laundry have a ventilating fans? Are appliances, such as dryers, vented to outdoors?

20. Windows indoors—check for stained wall paper below. Check for signs of sweating, loose putty, worn paint.

21. Humidifiers on heating plants or portable space heaters should be discontinued if indoor humidity is above 40 per cent when outdoor temperature is above 10F.

22. Attic must be ventilated Check size and location of louvers. Every 300 square feet of attic floor under a gable roof calls for 1 square foot of free inlet and 1 square foot of free outlet of air.

23. Double check basement and other areas beneath living quarters for leaks, humidity level, ventilation, summer condensation, mildew and unvented appliances.

How Insulating Tiles Can Be Put on Ceilings

Insulation board tile offers the home handyman an easy way to create an attractive ceiling in basement or attic and at the same time block much of the sound and heat loss that otherwise would be transmitted.

Planning the job properly is the only phase that is not so easy The actual application of the material, for anyone handy with hammer and saw, is more simple than the planning.

So let's face it: First, get a few sheets of paper, a pencil and a tape measure. Find the length and the width of the ceiling and make a drawing of this area to scale.

Now draw a line through the centre of this rectangle vertically, and another line through the centre horizontally. This is necessary because application of ceiling tile begins at the centre of a room. This permits partial tiles along the edges of the finished ceiling to be of a uniform width.

VARIOUS SIZE TILES

Decide on the size of tile you plan to use—they come in 12 by 12 inches, 12 by 16 inches and other dimensions. Show on your scale drawing where each piece starting the first course lengthwise with the room along the horizontal centre line, with one end of the first tile flush against the vertical centre line.

Unless the ceiling has been finished before, you'll need furring strips. These should be 1 by 3-inch strips of boards, nailed to wall to wall across the ceiling at right angles to exposed rafters or joists. The furring strips must be spaced so that one side of each tile can be nailed to them. So if you're using 12 by 12-inch tile your 1 by 3 furring strips should be 9 inches apart.

To play it safe, show on your drawing exactly where the furring strips will go. After your sketch is complete, take it to your building supply dealer. He will be able to make any corrections needed and can tell you exactly how many pieces of tile and furring strips you need.

First find the length and width of the ceiling and make a drawing to scale. Draw centre line each way as shown here.

Before applying furring strips or tile, snap a chalk line each way to match the centre lines on your drawing.

Furring strips, 2 inches wide are nailed across the ceiling at right angles to rafters or joists. Space them so one side of each tile can be nailed solidly to each strip.

Nail the first course of tile lengthwise with the room along the centre line, with one end of the first tile flush with the intersecting centre line. The tongue edge should always be the leading or exposed edge.

With your material on hand, you're ready for a hammer, saw and nails. It's possible to use an automatic stapling hammer for faster application. Or you can apply the tile with adhesive. But it's wise to discuss these methods with the dealer.

Fastening the tile starts with the first course at the centre of the room, the same as you started your working sketch. One side of the first tile is placed flush with the horizontal centre line and one end is flush with the vertical line. The tongue on the tile, to be fitted into a groove in the next tile, should always be the leading or exposed edge.

On almost every ceiling tile job, the tile that goes up against the wall must be trimmed to fit. The width of these border units should be as nearly equal as possible on opposite sides of the room. This is why a careful drawing and good planning are necessary to get the job done properly.

You can use this same principle with virtually any type of ceiling tile, including perforated acoustical tiles.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1955

Prime Minister Satisfied McCann Did Not Violate Practice in Dempsey Case

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent won't act against Revenue Minister James J. McCann as claims the cabinet member misused information to hit at a political antagonist.

Mr. St. Laurent told the Commons Thursday, in reply to opposition suggestions of impropriety by his minister, that he is satisfied the 68-year-old doctor didn't violate accepted practice in his involvement in Ontario's politically hot Dempsey case of unreported campaign funds.

The prime minister turned down a CCF proposal that he make a personal investigation into Dr. McCann's part in the issue. He also rejected a suggestion that the minister is wrong in holding a directorship in a trust company that has dealings with the revenue department.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION

A further suggestion for a Commons committee investigation of the minister's role in the fund case was made by E. G. McCullough (CCF — Moose Mountain) who said Dr. McCann should resign or be eased out of the cabinet if found to have committed an "indiscretion."

Mr. St. Laurent, who gave up a half-dozen company directorships when he joined the cabinet in 1941, was not in the house to hear the McCullough proposal.

Dr. McCann, unanimous member for the Renfrew South riding about which the controversy boils, said in nothing at a series of opposition members took shots at him off and on during the day.

The Liberal minister has come under fire because of his apparent connection with a recent decision of Ontario's Progressive Conservative leader Leslie Frost to withhold support in the June 9 provincial election of Fred Dempsey, 66, who has represented the Renfrew South riding in the provincial legislature as a Conservative since 1945.

Mr. Frost is reported to have been tipped by Dr. McCann that Mr. Dempsey violated the law by failing to publish amounts of campaign contributions received in 1951 from the late Hugh Drohan, lumberman from Mr. Drohan.

Mr. Drohan died in 1952 and his estate is being wound up by the Guaranty Trust Co., of which the revenue minister is a director. Mr. Frost is supposed to have seen photostatic copies of receipts given by Mr. Dempsey to Mr. Drohan. There has been no denial of publication of these by Dr. McCann produced them while the premier was here for the June 26-27 federal-provincial conference.

An unanswered question has been whether the documents are in the Dr. McCann's possession as minister or as director of the trust company.

MINISTER DENIES

Mr. Dempsey has been quoted as saying Dr. McCann told him about two years ago he knew of the Mr. Drohan contributions but that no federal action would be taken if the Dempsey returns met the F's and Q's. The minister has denied this flatly.

Meanwhile, arrangements went ahead today for a new nominating convention for Renfrew South, to be held in Renfrew town Saturday. Mr. Dempsey originally won the nomination last month—before the fund disclosure—then announced an "ill health" withdrawal. He is unsure and later decided to get into the running again.

In the Commons Thursday, Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) asked Mr. McCann whether he would "personally investigate every aspect of the Drohan-Dempsey-Frost affair to ascertain whether or not the minister of national revenue acted in complete accordance—with his responsibilities as minister."

While Dr. McCann sat silently a few feet away, the prime minister said he does not think he should personally investigate "an incident that seems to be of considerable partisan political importance" at this time.

Mr. Knowles stated the case is of "concern to all of us." But Mr. St. Laurent said he is satisfied with his minister's behavior.

HEARD DENIAL

"I have heard the denial of the rumors that have circulated about the way in which this incident took place," he said, "and, having ascertained from the minister of national revenue what actually did take place, I do not think I need make any further examination of the problem."

Hon George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, asked whether Mr. St Laurent has been fully informed.

ATTENDS HISTORIC NATO SESSION

One of the founders of NATO, Canadian Foreign Minister Lester Pearson is shown on his arrival at Orly airport, Paris, for an history-making NATO session. Mr. Pearson led the Canadian delegation at which West Germany became a new partner in the Atlantic alliance. (Central Press Canadian).

"I am fully informed in respect of the information which has been given me," Mr. St. Laurent replied. "I cannot say that there is information other than that which I have received that might be given to me." Earlier, Mr. Drew had fully covered the incident.

Joseph W. Noseworthy (CCF — York South) said he Dempsey incident resulted from a growing tendency among the federal and provincial governments of relying on Tory members as government contracts and those who profit from government business to influence their re-election to office."

"QUITE PREVALENT"

The practice had become quite prevalent in Ontario. While members of the legislature and the government were not involved, the party machine was. Those receiving government favors got what amounted to a quota which they were expected to meet at election time.

"I think that is the practice which is back of much of the trouble that we see in this Dempsey affair and in other such affairs," he said.

Mr. McCullough described Mr. St. Laurent's statement as "incredible and amazing."

"One of the phrases which he (Mr. St. Laurent) used was that this matter was of considerable partisan importance," he said. "It is more than of partisan importance; it is important in the whole parliamentary system which we have here and indeed to democracy itself."

SEVERED CONNECTIONS

Mr. St. Laurent noted that he himself had severed all connections with commercial and industrial firms (he had been a corporation lawyer) when he became prime minister in December, 1941.

Whether other ministers should do the same, he said, "is a matter which each has to decide for himself."

In reply to a question by Opposition Leader Drew, the prime minister said that the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King had left him in 1941 that there was no rule of law or traditional practice that required a member of government to sever all business connections.

By CHARLES P. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP)—A possible resumption tomorrow of some polio vaccinations in the United States was indicated today as Surgeon-General Leonard A. Scheele was called for a new report at noon to the House of Representatives banking committee.

Even as the committee met, word from the U.S. public health service was that a new release of polio vaccine could be made shortly.

A spokesman promised such a release as soon as possible after testing from a safety inspection team at the Parke, Davis and Co. plant in Detroit, first of five American plants to be visited for a safety recheck.

Committee members said they were primed with questions as to why the health service, headed by Dr. Scheele, first released supplies of Salk vaccine and then declared last weekend for a temporary halt in inoculations.

Scheele said at the time that he was acting to permit further government checks as an extra safeguard. He has repeatedly voiced confidence in both the safety and the effectiveness of the vaccine.

Committee members wanted to ask more about that, and also whether federal controls are needed over distribution and prices.

The latest government count showed 54 vaccinated children in the U.S. had been stricken with polio, out of an estimated 5,000,000 shots of the Salk vaccine given.

(In Canada, some 500,000 children have been inoculated without a single unfavorable reaction, and there has been no halt to the Canadian program. Spokesman George Kitchen of The Canadian Press reports that there has been some speculation here that Canada's method — of a double check both at the Connaught laboratories in Toronto where the vaccine is made and again at the federal health department laboratory in Ottawa—may be brought up at the committee hearing as an example of common sense.)

Should Pay Full Taxes on Govt. Property Claim

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal proposals to increase payments to municipalities in lieu of taxes on crown property were described Thursday as "cheese-paring."

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) said in the Commons that the proposals, in a bill amending the municipal grants act, don't pretend to deal with the heavy financial problems of municipalities.

"It is cheese-paring," he said. "Its full effect is trivial, yet it is heading in the right direction."

However, Mr. Macdonnell and spokesmen for other opposition groups supported the measure although they said the central government should pay full taxes on its property.

The bill was given second reading —approval in principle—and sent to the banking and commerce committee for detailed study.

Under the measure the government would pay a municipality full tax rates where the value of federal property exceeds two per cent of total property assessment. At present, it pays only 33 per cent of the tax rates where federal property exceeds one per cent of total property assessment. As before, the grant will be paid only on the excess.

Neutral Canada Would Ask U.S. Troops to Leave

OTTAWA (CP)—A war involving the United States but not Canada would be met by a call for American troops stationed in this country being asked to leave, informants said.

Neutrality law is in a process of change and no definite word has been fixed for such development, they added Thursday. But current thinking in the prime minister must have doubts about the present system of appointment only support of the government of the day—of a system that in 20 years of Liberal government had left only seven Conservatives in the House.

The prime minister, Senator Farris said, must realize that a considerable segment of Canadians support the new party, the CCF and the Social Credit, who have no representation. The new party will not enter such a fight, unless it spreads to North America.

It is considered extremely unlikely, however, that U.S. servicemen would be removed in Canada.

2,000 ON DUTY HERE

At present it is understood there are some 3,000 American soldiers in Canada. Most of these operate damage North American defences, for some of the seven men operate stations in the Pine Tree radar line along the U.S.-Canada border.

And Pine Coulee, while primarily a warning device for enemy air attack, also operates Nike-Ajax interceptor planes that would be sent up after attacking aircraft.

Informants said Canadian defence experts now are considering the withdrawal of American defence troops meeting into Canada.

Senator Calls for New Concept In Appointments to Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—A veteran Liberal senator Thursday called for a new concept in Senate appointments to make the upper house truly representative of "the thought of all parts of Canada."

Senator J. W. de B. Farris, 76-year-old Victoria lawyer and one time attorney-general of British Columbia, said he believes the Senate is in the mind of Prime Minister St. Laurent in delaying the filling of 21 vacant Senate seats.

He told the Senate he believes Mr. St. Laurent realizes his responsibility under the constitution to fill Senate vacancies within a reasonable time. But he also believes the prime minister must have doubts about the present system of appointment only support of the government of the day—of a system that in 20 years of Liberal government had left only seven Conservatives in the House.

Sentries Guard Army Camp As Board Probes Explosion

VALCARTIER, Que. (CP) — A sentry guard is posted around Valcartier military camp today as an army inquiry board investigates an explosion that killed three civilians and seriously injured another Wednesday night.

The victims were collecting rocket shell fragments from firing ranges to sell as scrap metal when one of the missiles exploded.

The survivor, Mrs. Paul Odilon Dugas, wife of one of the victims, walked two miles to summon help despite a badly injured arm.

Killed in the explosion were Mrs. Dugas, 25, Marie-Claire Daigle, 10, and Adrien Labranche, 21, all of nearby St. Gerard-Magella. The 15-second blast left a deep crater, but no other damage.

Coroner's court inquest into their deaths was postponed pending recovery of Mrs. Daigle.

STUDY SAFETY MEASURES

Defence minister Ralph Campney said in the house today he will make a study to determine whether further safety measures are needed at the Valcartier base, eight miles from Quebec.

This was announced in the House of Commons Thursday by Defence Minister Campney. He was replying to J. Wilfrid DuTreme, (PC—Quebec-Montmorency) who asked if Mr. Campney did not think more sentries were needed at the ammunition dump. Defence said the defence department knew people were in the habit of picking up shells from the range despite bilingual warning signs.

Army officials here said the firing range is located about one mile from the main barracks and a dirt roadway leading to it is blocked at intervals by barbed wire.

Authorities said district residents often slip through the blockade to pilfer shells. Uncapsuled shells are marked with red flags until detonated the following day by camp explosives experts.

The inquiry also began an investigation, said the scavengers slipped into camp grounds after darkness and loaded the car with from 40 to 50 shells. When the car could not be started because of the weight some of the shells were tossed out of the window. One exploded.

The three killed were standing outside the car when the blast occurred. Mrs. Daigle, sitting in the back seat, was partially protected.

P. M. Will Confer

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday he will confer next week with Premier Frost of Ontario.

This was announced in the House of Commons by Defence Minister Campney. He was replying to J. Wilfrid DuTreme, (PC—Quebec-Montmorency) who asked if Mr. Campney did not think more sentries were needed at the ammunition dump. Report on Pilots

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 31 members of the RCAF and 22 NATO students from various countries were killed in pilot training flights in the last five years, the defence department said Thursday.

In a return tabled in the Commons, the department also said that the same period 59 members of the RCAF were killed within a year of graduation.

Central Fund Will Be Used For Advertising

TORONTO (CP)—Proposed collections from all Ontario dairy farmers for the creation of a central fund to promote the advertising of milk and dairy products, market research and surplus disposal, will become effective Aug. 1, it was announced Thursday by W. O. Coon, chairman of the provincial milk producers' co - ordinating board.

The decision on the date was made after a recent meeting with officials of the federal agriculture department of agriculture.

To avoid two collections and confusion on the part of producers and plant operators, the June setaside in Ontario will not be made, Mr. Coon said.

"However, with the inauguration of the industry's collection Aug. 1, an amount equal to the June set-aside potential will be paid over to dairy farmers of Canada for the national advertising program."

SET IN 1950

The June advertising set-aside was established in 1950 by dairy farmers to provide a fund for national advertising of dairy foods. Basis of the voluntary deduction was a cent-a-pound on butterfat or the milk equivalent, produced in the month of June. One of the advantages of the new plan, said Mr. Coon, was that it would provide a more equitable collection of advertising funds in Ontario, increasing the annual contribution to the national budget by about $60,000.

The chairman of the proposed self-help program by Ontario dairy farmers has been under study for some time by the Ontario milk producers' co-ordinating board. The board is made up of executive representatives of the four milk and cream producer organizations. It has been functioning since 1950 and has acted as a clearing house for industry problems.

India Quietly Lifts Ban On Monkey Exports

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India has quietly lifted the ban on export of monkeys to the countries of the production of the Salk polio vaccine.

No public announcement has been made here for fear of offending Indians who hold monkeys as sacred. But the Indian government is allowing the export of 30,000 monkeys up to the end of June. Three reputable American research organizations who are manufacturing the new polio vaccine from monkeys' kidneys.

The monkeys are being exported on condition that they be humanely treated in transit and that they will be used only for medical research.

The British Medical Research Council also is expected to ask India for a supply of monkeys for manufacture of the vaccine.

The ban on monkeys which threatened to hold up vaccine production was imposed in early March after 340 monkeys died of suffocation at London airport in transit to the United States.

CCF Leader Says Ontario Education Problem Neglected In Critical Review of Govt.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald says the Ontario government refuses to acknowledge the continued existence of an educational problem in the province.

In a campaign speech for the June 9 Ontario general election, he said Thursday night that the record of the government to contribute adequately to education, plus Education Minister Dunlop's Victorian approach to curriculum, inevitably "going to undermine the education standards of which Ontario is justly proud."

"As far as Education Minister Dunlop is concerned, black is white—if he says so or if it serves the political purposes of the Conservative party," the Ontario CCF head said

QUOTES TEACHERS

Although Dr. Dunlop had said in the last legislature that teaching standards had not been reduced but readjusted, the Ontario Teachers' Federation says there are 50,000 children being taught by teachers with no qualifications, Mr. Macdonald added.

"Mentally, Dr. Dunlop hasn't escaped from the little red school house yet. He is still living in a province giving speeches which are monotonous repetition of Victorian platitudes."

Meanwhile, Premier Frost returned to the Victoria Memorial Park has sent him to the legislature for 18 straight years, and said that factors he received were suggestion he has to draw a mantle over Ottawa's federal government to hide their alleged faults.

FIRST REFERENCE

In the first reference of the campaign to Mr. Diefenbaker, the premier said he regretted that the CCC leader had commenced his campaign by slandering a great political party, Mr. MacDonald spoke in Victoria Memorial Park.

"He mentioned me during the speech," the premier said. "Previously I had a friendly reference, but a kindly reference that slanders my party and myself."

(Mr. MacDonald said the Progressive Conservative party is "a party of the premier's high reputation "to hide from public view the whole sordid story of activity carried on by the rotten Tory machine."

It took exactly one minute to open nominations, receive the nomination of Leslie M. Frost and close nominations. The premier was the unanimous choice of the 800 persons at the meeting.

'HALF-TRUTHS'

He stated that his political opponents during the campaign will say "all manner of things against me — including the usual statements"—in an attempt to put the Progressive Conservative party out of power.

"When they have no policy or anything else to offer, they sling mud," the premier added. "They sit in the legislature and as you know when they have no case on the 14th concession of some township they say nothing."

He said he had looked forward to the presentation of the Liberal party platform at the legislature. Liberal members had sat in the legislature for 18 years without ever bringing anything constructive.

After carefully reading the 25 point platform he had come to the conclusion that a lot of items were in progress when the Tories left office.

"Others were taken from the Liberal platform of 18 years ago but never put into effect."

CRITICIZES MINISTER

The premier then criticized a statement by Education Minister Harris that he (the premier) "lacked vision in history." Premier Frost said Mr. Harris apparently meant history had been distorted. He haven't known Mr. Lawrence Seaway and power project, Niagara development, and Hydro and telephone development and uncontamination meeting which named Herbert H. Frost, Mr. Frost to date. Mr. Powell is a railroad engineer.

At Toronto, Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver welcomed a labor exemption from a tax that the Liberal party election candidates with a promise of similar action on behalf of labor. He spoke at a dinner in Toronto.

Mr. Oliver said reiterated his previous claim that all the benefits promised in his 25-point manifesto could and would be done "without any increase in taxation in the province." The Progressive Conservative and CCF candidates are getting old."

Scored Hits to Down Two Red Migs

Lieut. B. C. Phythyon of Wadsworth, Ohio, shown checking his gun sight before take-off, was identified by the U.S. air force as one of the two American "aimers" who scored hits on two Communist MIG 15 jets in a clash over international waters of the Yellow Sea off North Korea. A third Communist plane was damaged in the air duel which broke out when eight Sabre jets, on a routine patrol mission, were attacked by 12 to 15 Communist fighters over Cape Miles southwest of Sinuiji. The air force said all Sabres jets returned safely to their 5th air force base in South Korea. (Central Press Canadian).

say this cannot be done without boosting the taxes.

Premier Frost also reproved members of the Frost government for not "getting together in the interests of sensible" and constructive criticism of his 25-point platform.

In Victoria Memorial Park today, Progressive Conservative for Toronto Riverdale, as saying the promises made by the Liberal party would cost the province an extra $95,-000,000 in taxes.

"SHOULD GET TOGETHER"

"But last night at Maple the premier said the promises would cost $300,000,000 to $350,000,000 more." Mr. Oliver added, "I suggest it is in the interests of accuracy those two should get together. I don't think they could have compared speeches."

Mr. Oliver also accused Premier Frost of "getting hysterical" in his campaign speeches. Referring to Mr. Frost's opening address in Maple, Mr. Oliver said:

"His remarks come with illegrace from a man who in the election campaign of 1943 promised everything but the kitchen sink. They were the most extravagant promises ever made in any election campaign."

CHOOSE CANDIDATE

Mr. MacDonald spoke at a nomination meeting in Toronto Riverdale, T. D. Thomas, 52-year-old member for the old Ontario constituency in the provincial legislature, was chosen as the CCF candidate.

"The Liberals have had their fair basis," he said. "Of course emphasis on these things has become the seeking to equip the child with all the skills required to live and work in a modern society—but that doesn't mean we wish to cut our curriculum back to the simple hoozay days."

He said the education department refuses to give grants for anything other than the bare classroom items.

"Furthermore, Dr. Dunlop reveals the department is trying to discourage local initiative and not to offer instruction in workshops-or laboratories in high schools in high schools with an enrolment of under 300."

Mr. Frost adds up to two tragic developments, which the voters of this province will be wise to vote. Under the present Conservative government:

1. Our education standards are being undermined.

2. The quality of opportunity in education for children living in various parts of the province is being destroyed."

Students Welcomed

OTTAWA (CP)—A group of students from St. Catharines Collegiate Institute got a cheer from senators in the Senate Thursday. Senator W. H. Golding (Qu'Appelle) drew his colleagues' attention to the presence of the student group and expressed appreciation of their interest in Parliament and its proceedings.

Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (—Quebec) joined in Senator Golding's remarks.

Ladies Guild Holds Meeting

FOXBORO.— Mrs. Jack Juby opened her home on Wednesday, and entertained the Presbyterian Ladies' Guild at its monthly meeting.

Miss Watt had charge of the meeting. The theme was "Christ's victory over death."

Miss Bell had charge of the devotional exercises. Mrs. Bartlett gave a reading from "A House of Memories." Mrs. Chapell gave a reading on "Mother".

Mrs. Johnston reported on the synodical, which was most interesting. Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Juby each gave a reading.

Mrs. Duckard invited the ladies to her home for the June meeting and plans were again made for catering at the "Community Sales" barns at the end of the month.

Offering was $4.10.

Mrs. Juby served refreshments and a social half hour followed.

Foxboro

FOXBORO.—The Mother's Day service was conducted by the United church Sunday school on Sunday morning. The superintendent, Mr. Wilson, conducted the meeting following the leaflet of worship service. He opened with the call to worship.

The junior choir gave a lovely mother's day selection entitled "All the Happy Children", with Carol Stewart, at the organ. Two little boys took the offering and Mr. Fred Priddle gave the invocation to the dedication.

Tony Bahi gave much pleasure to her listeners when she presented the "Children's Story" from memory.

Mr. Wilson introduced Mr. Chase, student of Albert College, who gave a deep and delightful talk to the young people on "Mothers". He pointed out how important God was in the homes.

"God is far above us, we cannot get away from that." He stressed plainly his subject, "It was easier to become a Christian than to live it."

He emphasized "repent but do not stop there; don't worry over earthly love; think of the heavenly love."

His repeated "to find Christ through his own life, bring our supplications before God, and always, think of God as present, and by our work in Him and a right influence through parents, the younger class will find things they like and things they dislike."

His discussion was deeply felt by the younger classes. He closed with a lovely reading on "Mother and Prayer".

Mr. Wilson moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Chase for his fine message.

NIGHT SERVICE

At the evening service, the Rev. R. Darke gave an interesting sermon, taking as his subject, "The Christian Home", drawing a comparison between the century home life and the present and pointing out the full duty of mothers in the home.

At the begining of the service, a baptismal service took place when the minister baptized seven little babies. After prayer, the choir sang "Little Old Mother", Who makes life more worthwhile; with Mrs. William Rombough taking the solo part.

The church was a profusion of potted plants and cut flowers.

Mrs. E. Denyes donated a lovely pot of flowers in memory of her dear mother, the late Mrs. Gilbert Sills, who was for years a devoted Christian worker in this church and Sunday school.

"A MOTHER'S DAY THOUGHT"

Mother who understands and comforts;
Who's always helping others;
With a cheery word and smile;
Who just grows sweeter always,
and dearer always, too.
There's just one answer, Mother,
It's you!

All are happy to announce that at the last meeting of the Presbytery held in Belleville, Mr. W. E. Tummon of this church, was elected chairman of the Presbytery. He is the first layman ever to be chairman of the Presbytery.

MAY is Safety Month

Learn what engineering leadership brings to V8 power

Modern 12-Volt electrical system

This 12-volt system, with its hotter, faster spark, is exclusive with Chevrolet in the low-priced three — and no engine can operate at peak efficiency without it. It gives faster, surer starts on cold mornings, faultless performance at high speeds, and provides an ample reserve to meet the needs of all today's power features.

Better all-'round performance

Chevrolet's "Turbo-Fire" V8 was planned from the very first to make use of all the knowledge which General Motors has gathered through the years in making unbeatable V8's on higher-priced cars. That's why Chevrolet's V8 has these, and many other top quality features, which set it in a performance class unrivalled by comparable makes.

High compression economy

Chevrolet V8 has a comparison ratio that is unsurpassed anywhere in its field. In fact, its compression ratio of 8 to 1 puts the "Turbo-Fire" V8 in the performance class of high-priced cars. You can feel the result the instant you put your foot down on the accelerator. And, of course, high compression means high economy. Yes, Chevrolet, the valve-in-head leader, gives tremendous response and power with exceptional economy — a combination that's unbeatable in any car, in any price class.

Controlled full-pressure lubrication

Controlled full-pressure lubrication results in greater oil economy and in finer engine protection. This new system uses nearly a quart less oil than the old splash-type systems. And under pressure, the oil is forced to every working part of the engine, protecting them completely with a slippery, non-wearing surface.

Highest horsepower per pound

Chevrolet's "Turbo-Fire" V8 is the lightest engine in the "low-priced three". Thorough engineering has eliminated all the dead-weight and unnecessary bulk — both factors which drain the rated horsepowers of engines in comparable makes. "Turbo-Fire" weighs only 488 lbs. Compare that with the engines of other cars!

New, shorter piston stroke

In Chevrolet's "Turbo-Fire" V8 the piston moves only three inches. This greatly reduces cylinder wall friction, generates less heat and makes possible the more compact, lighter-weight engine design.

Saves 1 mile of engine wear in 12

Here is another marvellous result of Chevrolet's amazing new piston stroke. Because the piston moves a shorter distance, it actually saves 1 mile of engine wear for every 12 you travel. This also puts lighter loads on the bearings — another reason for "Turbo-Fire's" great new, all-'round engine durability.

Forecasters Detect No Signs Of Change in Vote in Wales

The British election campaign outlook in Wales, stronghold of Labor, is described in the following article by a Canadian Press staff writer.

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CARDIFF, Wales (CP)—Election winds are whistling over the Welsh hills but wet-finger forecasters detect no signs of a change in the prevailing political climate.

Wales, with 36 seats, returned 27 Socialists, six Conservatives and three Liberals in the last Parliament.

"And things will be just about the same after May 26," nodded a veteran Welsh political correspondent.

For the Socialist holdings in Wales—rugged nursery of the British Labor party—are as safe as anything in politics can be. Nothing short of divine intervention, observers say, can provide an upset.

FEW VOTE SOCIALISM

"You see," said a Labor official, "to the Welshman socialism is more than a belief—it's a way of life. His ancestry—Nationalisation, universal brotherhood and the rest."

A young Conservative candidate, unsuccessful in the 1950 and 1951 elections but trying again in 1955, sadly summed up his party's chances: "It's like ramming your head against a brick wall."

Two lean decades—the terrible 1920's and '30s—swung Wales to the left. Things have changed since the Second World War. Full employment and prosperity have come to the coastal cities and valley communities, but Wales remains firmly locked in Labor's embrace. It's generally certain that the party will again collar about 925,000 of Wales' 1,300,000 votes, compared with the Conservative share of about 470,000.

Cliff Prothero, Welsh Labor organizer, reflected the Socialist optimism: "We'll hold all our seats and we've an excellent chance of taking some away from the Tories."

Charles Chegwidden, Conservative political education officer, was more cautious: "I'm not making any predictions until I see the party machine."

LABOR WELL-ORGANIZED

All preparations for the campaign were made well in advance. The Labor machine, one of the party's strongest and most fervent, lined up its 36 candidates and made most arrangements, including the renting of committee rooms and halls, transport, printing and poster sites, long in advance.

"We have plenty of lively, well-attended meetings," Prothero said. "We start off with some community hymn-singing to get things warmed up and then all candidates must be prepared for dozens of questions."

The Welsh people carry a characteristic thirst for knowledge into their politics and traditionally are among Britain's best-informed electors.

Labor will again make full use of its most effective campaigner, rebel left-winger Aneurin Bevan, who held a 21,000-vote majority over his lone Tory opponent in Ebbw Vale. A Conservative official assessed the Bevan appeal:

"I can't stand the man but he's an election agent's dream. He has them jostling to get into his meetings and once there he can hold them in the palm of his hand. Never uses a note either."

OLDER PARTIES

The Conservatives are expected to run 28 or 29 candidates and lend support to two or three sympathetic Liberal and Independent candidates. The Liberal party will probably put eight in the field while the Plaid Cymru (pronounced plide cumry) or Welsh party, which seeks Dominion status for Wales within the Commonwealth, announced it will place 12, with little hope of success. The Communist party, which ran one candidate in the intensely industrialized Rhondda valley in 1951, has not announced its plans.

Enigma of the Welsh campaign is the Liberal vote. Wales, once a party stronghold and still a vault of Liberal tradition, returns three of the party's six members of the House of Commons, including Clement Davies, who has represented Montgomeryshire for 26 years.

Yet there appears to be no sign of Liberal party organization in Wales. A reporter, seeking the Welsh Liberal organization at an address supplied by London party headquarters, found the second-floor offices deserted. Welsh correspondents say they too have been seeking Liberal officials for several months, without success. "It's the invisible party," quipped one.

FLOATING VOTE

Nine Liberal candidates polled a total of almost 117,000 votes in 1951 and observers estimate there may be upwards of 250,000 more Liberal supporters in Wales, voting either Conservative or Socialist in the absence of a Liberal candidate. Both main parties woo these "floating" voters industriously, but it is guessed with most slip quietly into the Conservative fold.

Officials are somewhat vague about issues. Conservatives are counting on the appeal that more people are at work in Wales than ever before and unemployment has dropped to a record peacetime low. They claim the total number employed has risen since they took office in 1951 from 912,000 to 925,000 while the number of unemployed has fallen from 25,000 to 19,200 in the same period.

Labor, on the other hand, says these gains are due to the establishment of many new light industries in Wales, under the direction of the 1945-1951 Labor government.

HOME RULE ISSUE

On strictly Welsh issues, the Conservatives claim distinction as the first government to appoint a minister for Welsh affairs. The portfolio was held by the home secretary in the last government. Labor promises that it will make the Welsh affairs post an independent one with cabinet status.

Both parties assure voters they will nurture Welsh culture and language but both steer clear of proposals for Welsh home rule, terming it politically and economically impracticable.

Home rule is the main plank of the Welsh party which has contested seats in five general elections since 1929 but has never been successful. In 1951, the party, which claims a registered membership of more than 10,000, ran seven candidates and all but one lost his £150 deposit.

CLOSE RIDINGS

Here are the seats which observers say might change hands May 26:

Conway — Conservative Peter Thomas held a 585-vote margin in this northwest rural constituency, contested until 1945 by Labor's William Jones with a majority of 903.

Carmarthen—Sir Rhys Hopkins Morris, Liberal deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, had a slim majority of 467 and is opposed for the first time by a popular Labor schoolteacher, Jack Evans, who lost an English constituency to the Conservatives by only four votes in 1945.

Anglesey — Labor's Cledwyn Hughes won this traditionally Liberal seat from Lady Megan Lloyd George, now a Labor convert, in 1951 by only 393 votes.

Pembroke — The Conservatives will support independent W. L. Davies in his first contest against former Bevanite Desmond Donnelly who had a 9,026 plurality. A Conservative contribution of some 17,000 votes could push Donnelly out.

Barry—Raymond Gower, Labor, took the seat in 1951 from Mrs. Dorothy Pees, 57-year-old Conservative schoolteacher, by 1,649 votes.

Cardiff North—Conservative David Llewellyn, Cambridge-educated printer, held this urban seat with a comfortable majority of 6,017, but a swing of Liberal votes to Labor on a local issue involving lease-holding could prove decisive.

One Conservative cabinet minister, Peter Thorneycroft, 45-year-old president of the Board of Trade, runs in Wales. He has represented Monmouthshire since 1943 and last time had a 4,523 majority in a two-way fight with Labor.

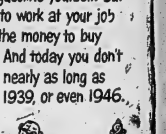
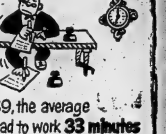
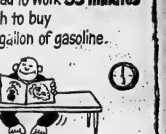
Takes Over Reins of Mail Order Empire



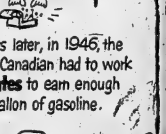
The reins of $200,000,000 mail order empire of Montgomery Ward and Co., tightly held for 24 years by 82-year-old Sewell L. Avery, have passed into the hands of a protege of Avery's, John A. Barr, 47, was named board chairman of the Chicago organization after Avery resigned at a special meeting of Ward's directors. A recent victor in a proxy battle over Louis E. Wolfson, Avery, however, will remain a director. Barr was formerly vice-president of company for which he has worked for past 22 years. (Central Press Canadian)



HOW MANY MINUTES PER GALLON?



Of course, you don't have to make gasoline yourself. But you do have to work at your job to make the money to buy gasoline. And today you don't have to work nearly as long as you did in 1939, or even 1946.



Back in 1939, the average Canadian had to work 33 minutes to earn enough to buy a gallon of gasoline.

Seven years later, in 1946, the same Canadian had to work 29 minutes to earn enough to buy a gallon of gasoline.

Today he has to work only 17 minutes—about half as long as in 1939—to buy a gallon of gasoline.

(It's much better gasoline, too. Two gallons of today's gasoline does the work of three gallons made in the 20's.)

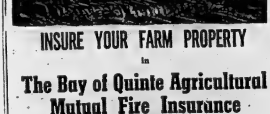
The best of Tall Tales



Mirages can be pretty realistic in the North African desert. In the shimmering heat one sees cities, palm trees, cool rivers and grazing cattle. Then the illusion suddenly disappears, and there is nothing but hot, yellow sand as far as the horizon. A few seasons ago a tourist there saw a lake with grassy banks and a little rowboat moored to a tree. It looked so real he climbed into the boat and paddled out for half a mile before the mirage disappeared. But the water was twenty feet deep there and the tourist was badly shaken after telling that distance.

Sam 'Toothpick' Jones First Negro To Throw No-Hitter In Major Leagues

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HOW ABOUT THAT!

The mad pace of the Glinks of the Gowanus, the Flatbush Fusiliers, the O'Malley Musketeers or whatever is your favorite name for the Brooklyn Dodgers (smile, podner if you calls 'em "bums") is causing much conjecture in the ranks of the faithful, not forgetting the unfaithful.

If you belong to the ranks of the faithful you will say the 1955 pennant is a shoo-in for "dem guys." If you belong to the baseball heathen, and follow the Cuties of Coogan's Bluff, Durocher's Ducks, otherwise known as the New York Giants, or any other squad in the National League, you will agree with the "expoits" who have been digging into the archives, and come up with good news. Good, that is, if the old adage "History repeats itself" still stands.

In short only one of 16 teams which started with the opening flourish like the Dodgers, went on to win a pennant. They were the Phillies in 1915, who won 11 of their first twelve starts and hung on to win by seven games.

That year the Pirates won 15 of their first 17 starts and 21 of their first 29, yet finished in seventh spot. That was the year the Boston Braves, nestling in the cellar on July 4, started a terrific win rampage that carried them through to the pennant. The Giants of 1916 won their first nine and on May 9 were on top of the league with an 18-1 record. The Cubs finished 10½ games in front of them.

The Giants of 1935 won 14 in their first 18 and on June 1 had a 26-9 mark. Yet they finished 8½ games behind the Cubs who grabbed the flag with one of the greatest stretch drives in history. The Boston Braves, resting in the cellar on July 4, started a terrific win rampage that carried them through to the pennant. The Giants of 1916 won their first nine and on May 9 were on top of the league with an 18-1 record. The Cubs finished 10½ games in front of them.

The hopeful in the ranks of the other seven National League teams will point to the fact that in 1916 the Giants ripped off a 26-game winning streak in the late stage of the flag flurry. Near the end of the same season they established a record of 26 consecutive wins. Yet they finished in fourth place.

Way back in 1907 the same Giants broke from the barrier and fashioned twenty-three victories and three defeats. They, too, finished just outside the money.

That 1916 26-win string featured a somewhat wacky season for the Giants. They started off like the traditional fortieth and last thieves of the forty seventeen starts. Then they grabbed seventeen wins in a row—all of them on the road.

The McGrawmen were struggling along in fourth place just prior to the start of the 26-win string. They won two in a row, which isn't anything to write home about. Then a pitcher named Perritt beat the Phillies, who promptly tabbed him a "lucky stiff."

Mr. Perritt promptly xot mad and asked Big John McGraw to "let me 'em" in the second half of the doubleheader. "Let me in Iron Man McGinnity, but I can beat those bums all day," screamed Perritt.

Perritt promptly proved his point with a four-hit shutout, and that was the origin of the phrase "And aw-a-ay we go." The Giants promptly banter than a firecracker and swept through 26 straight victories. Yet they finished in fourth slot. Treadmill baseball.

But the Brooklyn loyalty is as unshakable as a process server. That 23-3 record has the bunting practically on the market. Every Flatbush Apostle knows. Let the records prove what they may, if anything. "Dem was dose years. Dis is da Bum's". But to the rest of the pack it seems a bit premature to concede the National League gonfalon to the Flatbushers.

The Dodgers have some 130 games to play and much can happen on the umps signal the last man out in the final game of the schedule. There is a lot of hot, dry weather ahead and it is quite within sane reason to say the Dodgers are not that much better than the rest of a well-balanced league. And look out if these home-run sockers, who have been clouting the pill frequently for round trippers, especially in the clutches, run into a slight slump. The Brooks have not got the best pitching in either league for that matter.

Speaking of pitching, the surprise Detroit Tigers have come up with the best chucking chores to daty. And that goes for both leagues. Their hurlers (this was written yesterday) have been doing doughty deeds. Sixteen of the Tigers' 24 games have been completed by the guys who started them. That is five more than Cleveland and seven more than the Dodgers!

Over in the junior loop it looks like the Cleveland Indians' class is beginning to tell. Their vaunted pitching staff got away to a wobbly start but it appears they are getting their sea-legs and forming the pattern that swept them to the American League pennant in 1954. Up to a few games ago they held the opposition even, but their two-game sweep of the hated Yankees seems to indicate they are nearing their 1954 pennant-winning stride.

Walks Bases Full in Ninth Strikes Out Next 3 Batters In Cubs' 4-0 Win Over Bucs

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The major leagues have had 137 no-hit games pitched since 1876, but few probably were as thrilling as the one Sam (Toothpick) Jones threw at the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday for a 4-0 Chicago Cub victory.

In becoming the first Negro big league pitcher to hurl a no-hitter, the 29-year-old Jones walked the bases full in the ninth and then struck out the next three batters on 11 pitches.

The incredible finish, coming as Cub manager Stan Hack intended to remove Jones with one more walk, produced the first National League no-hitter in 38 years at old Chicago and the first by a Cub pitcher in 40 years.

As impossible as it sounds, Jones said he didn't know he had pitched a no-hitter until Cub teammates swarmed over him hilariously after he had struck out dangerous Frank Thomas to end the game.

FOURTH VICTORY

It was the fourth season victory for Jones against three losses.

Jones, whose quiet composition is hard to hear, credited his success to the fact that pitching coach Johnny Schmitz had told him:

"Clyde deserves all the credit. I just pitched the way he told me."

Jones, who chews toothpicks while he pitches, came to the Cubs from Indianapolis of the American Assn., in last season's deal which sent Ralph Kiner from the Cubs to the Indians.

SEVEN WALKS

It was not the neatest no-hitter by far, not with seven walks as Jones used 136 pitches, but the paltry crowd of 2,918 could never hope to see a more dramatic finish.

Jones seemed to lose all his stuff in the ninth, walking Ed Freeze, pinch-hitter Preston Ward and Tom Saffell. While pitching to Ward, Jones cut loose with a wild pitch.

Manager Hack strolled to the mound. "Get that ball over, that's all," Hack snapped. Hack didn't tell Sam that, as he explained in the dressing room, that one more walk and Jones would have been yanked.

Dick Groat was the next batter. Groat is the weakest hitly got a bit on a hot smash which Jones deflected to second baseman Gene Baker for a fine play at first.

DOWN ON THREE

Groat went down on three pitches. Roy Face, Pittsburgh relieveter, who nicked a foul, but went out on an 0-2 third strike. Last Pirate hope was long-ball hitting Frank Thomas. Jones was curving with a vengeance.

"No fast balls for that guy," Jones explained in the dressing room. Thomas swung and missed the first pitch. The next one was a ball. Thomas missed a swipe at a high outside pitch. Then came a sweet curve under Thomas' coiled hands for a called third strike that ended the game.

Jones had control trouble all the way—the reason the squat, poised McCullough at catcher's him exclusively. In the second, he walked Dale Long with one out, the first of three walks Jones issued to Long. That pass was nullified when Long was nipped trying to steal.

As a result of a pre-game jush by a TV announcer, Jones will get a gold toothpick. The announcer, Harry Creighton, had joked in batting practice he would present Sam with a gold toothpick, if he pitched a no-hitter. Creighton scouted around and found the gold toothpick—for $11.

Toronto Edges Bisons 5-4; Royals Nip Wings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The free-swinging Toronto Maple Leafs may have been issued atomic charged bats at the beginning of the season.

Last year's pennant winners finished nine games in front and sported a very respectable .324 team batting average. With only 23 games played this season Toronto's batsmen are hitting at a torrid .315 clip.

The Maple Leafs, however, collected only eight hits in 34 trips to the plate Thursday night, but it was enough to nip Buffalo 5-4.

In other games, the Montreal Royals made it 11 out of 12 by defeating the Rochester Red Wings 8-3. The Columbus Jets ended a seven-game losing streak routing the Richmond Virginians 8-1. The Cuban Sugar Kings sank Syracuse deeper into the cellar by downing the Chiefs 6-2.

EARLY LEAD

The Maple Leafs jumped to an early 3-0 lead and when starter and winning pitcher Arnold Landeck ran into difficulty in the sixth veteran relief hurler Ray Shore appeared. He got the side holding a 3-2 lead. Shore smacked a solo home run in the seventh to give Toronto a 4-2 edge. It was his first homer in his five-year league career. Sligo was forced to leave the game in the seventh after being struck in the leg by Pierce McWhorter's line drive.

The Montreal Royals came up with seven runs in the ninth inning to overcome a 3-1 Rochester edge. Jim Pendry got the late home run capped the Montreal ninth-inning uprising. Wade Browning, who came on to pitch in the seventh, was the winner.

The Royals rounded four Richmond pitchers for 15 hits to stop their mates. Bill Greason got the jump off to a five-run lead he the second with a home run.

Willie Pearson of Havana scored his second victory in three decisions as 12 batters walked five runs in the third inning and belted five Syracuse pitchers. Marv Morehead, who started the pitching parade for the Chiefs, suffered his third defeat of the season.

Fighters' Managers Will Debate Rules In What Could Be Mere Waste of Time

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —The managers of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and his English challenger, Don Cockell, appear today before the California athletic commission to debate the finer points of rules, the weight of the gloves and the size of the ring for the 15-round title fight Monday night.

Briefly presented, as the fighters themselves prepared in their respective camps to train for actual combat, the issues involved: The use of eight-ounce gloves, as California law requires for all bouts of 10 rounds or more, instead of the six-ounce gloves common in other states for title matches.

Marciano's manager, Al Weill, roared disapproval of the eight ounces, claiming his fighter, Cockell, expressed displeasure, although he was not as vociferous as Weill. After all, Marciano is noted as a knockout puncher.

EXPECTED TO STAY

The state law was expected to prevail by unanimous decision.

Then there was the size of the ring. California law says it can be anywhere between 16 and 24 feet wide.

Promoter Jimmy Murray has already installed a 16-foot ring in Kezar Stadium. It is, he says, more adaptable, especially for the many news cameramen who will photograph the fight.

The 16-footer is quite all right for Marciano. If Cockell has any plan of running, there will be less room to run.

Simpson said he wanted to compromise.

"We feel that a 24-foot ring would be to the advantage of Cockell and a 16-foot ring favorable to Marciano. So we propose a compromise of 20 feet."

Both fighters apparently wound up their severe sparring drills and little or no heavy action is in prospect.

Braves Beat 'Bums' in Twelve For Second Setback in Row; Senators Scalp Indians 3-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's getting so that only sometimes guys, castoffs and sore arms pitch no-hitters in the major leagues. The big name pitchers just come close.

Toothpick chewin' Sam Jones, a 6-4 righthander from Cleveland, ended up on because of a sore arm, added to the trend by handcuffing Pittsburgh's Pirates without a hit for a 4-0 victory for the Chicago Cubs Thursday.

Among other things, it was the first no-hitter since last June 12 in Milwaukee when Jim Wilson stopped Philadelphia cold 2-0 for the Braves. Wilson had been around since 1945, getting trials with the Boston Red Sox, St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia A's before joining the Braves in Boston in '53. Now he's with Baltimore.

HOLLOMAN DID IT

The most recent no-hit success before Wilson's was the 6-0 job a lad named Bobo Holloman hung on the Athletics for the Browns in 1953. Bobo did it in his first start for the St. Louis club but won only two more that season while losing seven. From then he trailed off to the minors.

You have to go back to 1952 before you find names like Virgil Trucks and Carl Erskine in the no-hitter list. Since then, the big guys in the majors have just missed. Over the past two seasons, Trucks has had three one-hitters.

Most recently, it's been Bob Turley, Don Feller and Don Newcombe, all with one-hitters.

The nine other National League games also was spectacular. Del Crandall broke it up in the 12th with a home run off Ed Roebuck—his first hit in 34 at bats—that gave Milwaukee a 3-2 victory over Brooklyn. The Dodgers now have lost two straight, a real slump after winning 22 of 24.

Rain postponed Philadelphia at Cincinnati and New York at St. Louis.

BROKE THREE STRING

In the American, Maury McDermott and Washington broke Cleveland's winning streak at six games by a 3-0 count, beating rookie Herb Score despite only two hits off the lefty in six innings. Chicago beat Baltimore 4-3 with four runs in the ninth and Boston whacked Kansas City 12-7. Detroit and New York were idle.

At Milwaukee, Gene Conley went all the way for the Braves after hooking up in a duel with Carl Erskine for 11 innings. Erskine was lifted for a pinchhitter and Roebuck came on in the 12th. Crandall smacked his second pitch.

Conley, now 4-1, gave six hits to Erskine's nine. Hank Aaron's second-inning single, Sam Jethroe's Amoros' blast in the fourth took care of the only other scoring. Danny O'Connell's terrific stop of Duke Snider's smash helped check Brooklyn in a rocky 11th for Conley, who got Jackie Robinson on a pop up to end it with the bases loaded.

Cleveland couldn't do much of anything against McDermott, who granted just four hits in his best performance since joining the Senators in a 1953 winter deal with Boston. He struck out nine.

TROUBLED BY WALKS

Score fanned seven, tying the Yankees' Bob Turley for the major league lead with 57, but was belted for trouble. Mickey Vernon singled home the first run after a walk and a wild pitch. A walk, stolen base, Ed Fitzgerald's infield single and an error scored another in the fourth. The third run came off Art Houtteman, who replaced Score after the sixth.

The leading active major league consecutive-game streak cat is to an end in the game as Eddie Yost, Washington third baseman with a string of 829 straight games, was sidelined by tonsilitis.

The White Sox moved to within two games of the first-place Indians with a walk, three singles and Jim Rivera's two-run double in the ninth inning.

Boston kicked up its first big storm in a long while, smacking 18 hits off three A's pitchers. G. Stephens and Jackie Jensen homered for four of Boston's five runs in the second. Gus Zernial's ninth and 10th homers and Bill Renna's fourth accounted for the A's runs.

4. I like this picture. Start your downswing in the form pictured here and you'll be doing plenty all right. This player is perfectly balanced on his feet, and has that straight left arm in there to guide the clubhead down in a wide, full circle. And his right elbow is under the shaft so that he can pull his hands down toward his right pocket permitting the hip and shoulder pivot to supply the necessary outward swing of the clubhead so that clubhead meets ball from an inside-out swing and passes slightly across the direction line. Swing for rhythm and remember your head must not move up or down or sideways until the ball is away and your right shoulder passing under your chin.

SHIP ARRIVES

MONTREAL (CP)—The arrival of the German liner Seven Seas on Thursday inaugurated a new passenger service between Montreal and European ports. More than 800 passengers from Bremen, Southampton and Le Havre arrived aboard the 21,754-ton ship, many en route to new homes across Canada.

Dressen Suggests Minor Seasoning For Bonus Babies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chuck Dressen complaining that some fine baseball potential is being wasted by lack of experience, came up Thursday with a new gimmick for changing the bonus rule.

"Let's change the rule so we can send these kids down to the minors for seasoning," the Washington manager said. "It hurts baseball when these kids have to watch the game sitting on the bench of a big league team."

Dressen had taken a good look Wednesday at what the rule can do to bonus player Harmon Killebrew, for whom the Senators reportedly paid $30,000.

The 19-year-old Idaho youth was tighter than a mainspring and his flubs at third base, which Dressen attributed inexperience, were costly to Washington against Ned Garver and the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers won 7-0.

The present bonus rule requires that any player signed for a big cash bonus must remain with his major league club for two seasons. Under Dressen's plan, a team could send a bonus player to the minors for seasoning but would be required to carry him on its roster which is limited to 25.

Athletic Brass Delays Probe Of Pro Boxing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania athletic commission today postponed until Monday the start of its scheduled probe of professional boxing in this state and especially, last Friday night's Harold Johnson-Julio Medoros bout.

Commissioner Al Klein, in a telephoned statement, said the delay was to enable further investigation of certain "leads" before the open hearing. The hearing was to have been held today.

Klein declined to be specific as to what he meant by "leads" the commission is investigating.

Chemical tests made on Johnson after he scored a knockout blow, traces of a barbiturate-type drug, a medicine often used to induce sleep or relaxation.

Gov. George M. Leader ordered a 60-day suspension of professional boxing in Pennsylvania after receiving a report on what happened to Johnson. At the same time he called for a thorough probe at this April 29 Philadelphia sporting situation by the commission.

Panthers Claw Terriers 9-3 In Opener

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Panthers ushered in the 1955 Intercounty senior baseball season here Thursday night with a 9-3 victory over Galt Terriers before about 1,000 fans.

Righthander Preston Elkins went the distance for the winners, scattering eight hits.

He contributed materially to his own victory by slamming a three-run homer over the left-field wall in the second inning.

Catcher Harry Pautke also homered in the same inning for the Panthers with nobody aboard.

The Kitchener team, piloted by playing manager Dick Welker, posted a 6-0 lead before the Terriers solved Elkins' slants with three runs on three hits in the top of the fifth. Bill Cooper started on the mound for Galt, but lasted only 1 1-3 innings, giving up five runs on five hits.

Righthander Andy Yednock went the rest of the way for the Terriers.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor

A common mistake made by young catchers is that of catching out of a crouch. It is true that a few professional catchers do it, too, but only when there are slow runners at bat or on the bases and the game situation doesn't indicate that the team at bat will be playing a running game. Even under these conditions, it is a dangerous practice.

The first thing a catcher should do after giving the signal to the pitcher is assume a good catching position with the weight on the balls of the feet, body bent forward, feet spread at least to the width of the shoulders, and the left foot slightly in front of the right foot.

As the batter swings, your mitt moves forward behind the bat. This forward motion gives you a better chance to catch foul tips and enables you to catch the ball sooner and to be moving in the direction you will throw in case a runner attempts to steal a base. Get into the habit of catching every pitch so that you will be ready to throw. You can do this only if you are in a position to step forward with your left foot and you are ready to make a snap throw with the throwing hand grasping the ball as soon as it reaches the mitt, drawing both behind the right ear and making a snap throw at eye level.

Cornwall Pays Tribute To Newsy Lalonde

CORNWALL (CP) — Newsy Lalonde returns home today to a city that has never forgotten him.

Hundreds of fans, players, officials and civic heads will be on hand when Newsy, now a 67-year-old resident of Montreal, comes back to the place of his birth to receive a tribute for his great career in sport.

It was more than 40 years ago that Newsy—Edward C. Lalonde—left Cornwall and struck out to gain fame in big-league lacrosse and hockey. He became a fabulous figure after 23 years in the sports and ended up by being named Canada's greatest lacrosse player of the last 50 years, a member of hockey's Hall of Fame and the newly-formed Canadian Sports Hall of Fame in Toronto.

Although Newsy has made frequent visits here, never before has there been a civic welcome for him. Today, Mayor Aaron Horowitz, township reeve Dr. E. Emard and other civic officials gather in a body to pay him tribute.

The day has been proclaimed Newsy Lalonde Day and there will be the civic welcome; then the sportsmen's dinner. Many other events are scheduled.

Newsy will meet former teammates and opponents. Among them will be such oldtimers as Punch Broadbent, Cy Denneny, Charlie and Alex Connel, Bill Beveridge, Dick Boulton, Rick Ruckett, Ed Hamelin, Eddy Longtellow, Bouse Hutton and Arthur Vinet. Newsy will also be made a chief of the Mohawk tribe.

Cockell Choice for Rocky No Mystery There Are Certain Rules, Says Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—There never has been much mystery attached to the choice of Don Cockell, the rotund Briton, as the fighter most deserving of a title fight with Rocky Marciano on Monday night. Al Weill, the champ's manager, simply wished to do his share in cementing relations between the two great English-speaking nations.

Not until now, however, have we seen an adequate explanation of the reason for gifting the great state of California with its fir heavyweight championship that amounts to anything since the gallit era. It seems there are rules in them thar hills that were only waiting to be dug up by a smart operator who can read, as Weill undoubtedly can.

A man who has waded through the volume in recent days cials there's a rule or two in there which might well have been written with Rocky's tender nose in mind.

One of Weill's problems, it will be recalled, was to appoint a worthy challenger who did not require to be bound long enough to reopen the gash which Ezzard Charles put in Rocky's beguile in the latter's most recent title defence here last summer.

This man claims the California code provides that if the referee is forced to stop a bout in the very first round because of a cut, the fight automatically is ruled a draw. In the event of a draw the champion would, of course, rain his bauble.

In succeeding rounds there is a difference. If the man who is cutting the blood is ahead on points when the referee steps in, he is the winner. If the wounded warrior is behind on the official score cards, he is the loser by a knock-

Sports Editor Raps Golf Star

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Bill Diehl, sports editor of the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch and Portsmouth Star, Thursday criticized national open golf champion Ed Furgol for the golfer's "conduct in the recent Virginia Beach open tournament."

Diehl, writing in his column, "Dealing It Out," said Furgol's conduct "was such that I feel the Professional Golfers' Association of America should take some action to preserve the good name the game enjoys.

"As golf's top representative, Furgol's bad manners were such that many spectators who saw him immediately after losing out on the final day were thoroughly disgusted."

Diehl said Furgol stormed through the clubhouse at the Cavalier Yacht and Country Club where the Virginia Beach tourney was played in April and was raging over what the golfer called the "failure of marshals to control the crowd during the final 18 holes."

"BE BAD BE-BAD" SAYS MOVIE STAR

(Current)

A Hollywood movie star advises hopeful young screen actresses to "go bad" today if they want an almost unbeatable method of making the cinematic grade.

That advice comes from Suzan Ball, now co-starring with Victor Mature and John Lund in Universal-International's Technicolor "Chief Crazy Horse." Filmed in CinemaScope, the new film is now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

"When I say 'go bad' I mean to try and snag the heavy roles with the meat in them," says Suzan.

"The best thing that can happen to a young actress is to latch on to a mean, low-down role and play it to the hilt. It's a sure-fire attention getter."

Paradoxically, Miss Ball is playing a "good girl" role in "Chief Crazy Horse," her first film role since the amputation of her right leg early in 1954. Miss Ball attributes her climb to stardom to early attention-getting roles as a "movie menace."

"I was just another dime-a-dozen 'good girl' until Universal-International cast me in a picture titled 'Untamed' and gave me the role of a mean, calculating, mercenary woman," Suzan points out. "When a gal like that enters the room, all attention is directed to her. She takes command of the scene."

In "Chief Crazy Horse," Suzan plays the Indian wife of Victor Mature who is cast in the film's title role.

Miss Ball, along with other east principals and movie technicians spent five weeks on location near Rapid City, South Dakota, filming authentic background scenes for the action-packed film.

Cary Middlecoff of Kimesha Lake, N.Y., recent winner of the Masters and the pre-tournament favorite here, relaxed getting a 67 by about an inch. His three-foot putt on No. 18, that would have given him an eagle, rimmed the cup.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, May 14th, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You might make greater progress if you were more efficient, if you would dig, research, ask questions and generally increase your knowledge and know-how. The best time is now.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — This is no day to say, "I can't," or to feel that you aren't accomplishing quickly enough. If you are really trying and applying your talents, you are not going anywhere but forward!

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — This is a period for reviewing to make sure of procedures. Are they correct? The best possible? And how about your habits and associations? Review all for a better future.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — What you know how to do, do to best of your ability. No one can quarrel with one who sincerely tries. A better day than you may think.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — This is a time for finding those "little" flaws, to be sure of footing, facts. Start with a prayer, and go forward confidently, smilingly.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Have you looked over the results of past activities — not to bemoan, but to make improvements? If not, do so today.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — First thing first. Take matters in the order of their importance. Enjoy the company of children if you can.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — A better period than you may think. Use this time for rechecking, revising and improving or you may regret it considerably later. Don't waste precious moments.

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius) — There will be hours when you may be rushed, or lacking in decision, moments of disconcertedness. Tell yourself that these are normal task-masters, teachers in life, maintain your sense of humor.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Life is composed of a variety of blessings and troubles. It is how you relate your things that counts.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Live in harmony with loved ones, as is your natural way, but remember that this means sharing not only pleasant fun but work and problems too. Make issues compliment one another.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Think, then act. Once you have thought sufficiently, so as to eliminate waste motion, do not fear to go ahead. Clear the way for week-end activities with friends and loved ones.

You born today have a bright mind, a willing heart and hand, and are sensitive to criticism. Today's child should grow into a loving, respectful, able individual. Be eager to listen to and heed sound advice about associations, practices; don't engage in activities beneath your mentality and liking. Think first, always, about your soul, then about worldly gains. You can accomplish much, but don't slight cultivating your liking for music, good reading. Birthdate of: D. G. Fahrenheit, famous physicist; Hal Caine, noted novelist-dramatist.

Flu Epidemic Has Been Halted

OTTAWA (CP) —An influenza epidemic in an Eskimo village on Padloping island, off the east coast of Baffin island, has been halted, PO. Thomas Dalgleish of Kingston has reported in a radio message to naval headquarters.

The naval petty officer, who had taken on treatment of the Eskimos, reported that all cases are considered cured, the navy said Thursday.

Mr. Dalgleish is the one-man medical staff at the 30-man naval radio station on Padloping island, some 1,500 miles north of Montreal.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on a bentch in the public square with Puds Simkins, us being the 2 members over sperately belonging to the Perrin fishbrigers, and Puds said, the Perrin fishbrigers, and Puds said, Operator One, I see the Master Mind training his secret carrier pidgins.

Meaning a man with a pointy beerd and a turban on his head, tieing bread crums out of a paper bag for pidgins to pick up, I said, Oh boy, look how they're following him. They know him all right. There's not nobody except everybody sits, I said.

Which they weren't, nobody elis having any bread crums, and Puds said, He dont need to think he can fool us with that fable beard, I can see where it's struck on with plaster of Pare.

Sure, he's the Master Mind all right, all we got to do is watch him close and see which pidgin he gives the secret messidge to, I said, and Puds said, We'll round up all his accomplices and expose the whole plot. Hay, he's walking over this way. If he stepped on it we're lost, he said.

Sh, dont let him find out we understand his language, it's our only chance, I said.

Which just then the Master Mind came up to us, saying, I'm afraid I have to be going, would you boys like to finish feeding the crums to the pidgins?

Me and Puds just looking at each other, and Puds said, Uggihy jigsfas.

Yiffnfive yow, I said, and the Master Mind said, Oh, if that's the way you feel, amuse yourselves.

And he threw all the rest of the crums in a mess and kept on going, and us 2 operaters congradulated each other on our narrow escape and shadowed the Master Mind till he got on a bus.

Trials of Maintaining Happy Marriage Outlined by Barker

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The trials of maintaining a happy marriage in Hollywood are today described by Lex Barker, who is wedded to a girl named Lana Turner.

Critics and commentators decry the rate of marital mishaps in Hollywood, yet they themselves can share the blame for some of the breakups. Witness the current engagement of Debbie Reynolds and Eddie Fisher, the gossips are doing their best to break that one up.

This kind of meddling goes 'way back' in Hollywood history. In her forthcoming book "Sunshine and Shadow," Mary Pickford lays a large part of the blame for her split with Douglas Fairbanks to the rumors of a columnist.

Barker is perplexed by the rumor mongers. Recently he was absent from Lana for five weeks, mostly on location in the Virgin Islands and partly to visit his father, ill in the east.

While he was gone, the rumors flew. One columnist reported Lana was honobbing with a bullfighter in Tijuana. Another declared her ex, Steve Crane, would be her next "after she divorces Lex Barker in the Virgin islands."

Lex set the record straight: 'Lana likes' bullfights. I don't. So while I was gone, it looked like a good time to see them in Tijuana. She went down with some friends of mine, and a bullfighter happened to be in the party.

"As for the other rumor, Steve Crane happens to be father of my daughter. He is entitled to visit his daughter. I was the one in the Virgin Islands, not Lana." All of which shows how the tongue-waggers can make something out of nothing. For Lana's union to Lex has so far been the most tranquil of her marriages. They lead fairly quiet lives and give the gossipers little grounds for talk.

Barker figures the best thing to do is to ignore the gossips and concentrate on his career. It is in high gear, thanks to his role in "Away All Boats."

Coast-to-Coast Telecast Of Fight Only in Theatres

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television viewers will receive a sharp reminder Monday night that not all big telecasts go to home sets.

There will be a coast-to-coast telecast of Rocky Marciano's defence of his world heavyweight boxing championship against Don Cockell in San Francisco, but it will go only to theatres.

Boxing fans who want to see the telecast will have to pay about as much on the average at one of the 80-odd theatres being linked for the event by theatre network television. Thos who stay home can tune in a radio broadcast of the fight on NBC at 11 p. m. EDT.

The event points up the widespread but relatively unpublicized use of closed-circuit TV for entertainment, sports and business and industrial meetings.

The big broadcasting network companies have staged numerous closed-circuit telecasts not transmitted over the air to home sets. Participating theatres have found some of the boxing bouts and football games profitable, some not.

While theatre television has picked off a few of the really top events home TV has continued to receive most of the major boxing events. Sponsors of the Wednesday night boxing telecasts, which switch from CBS to ABC June 1, have booked three title events for the month of June alone.

Television is prospering, but the prosperity isn't being shared by all. Two-thirds of all new stations built since the United States government ended its freeze on permits in mid-1952 are losing money. And Television Digest reports 44 stations that took the air on the new ultra high frequency (UHF) channels since have called it quits. It says that leaves only 107 UHF stations among the 429 stations now operating.

BELGIAN DEFENCE BUDGET

BRUSSELS (AP)—The Belgian House of Representatives Thursday approved a national defence budget of 18,000,000,000 Belgian francs ($360,000,000). It provides for two active army divisions, an air force of about 400 planes and a small navy of minesweepers.

Million Shots Of Polio Vaccine Released By U.S.

Health Service Clears 11 Batches Made in Detroit

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week-long halt for safety rechecking, the United States government has turned loose enough Salk polio vaccine for "over a million more" school children.

Several state health officers approved immediate resumption of their mass vaccination programs on receiving word Friday that the U. S. public health service had cleared 11 batches of vaccine made by Parke, Davis and Co., Detroit. One lot of Parke, Davis vaccine was kept back for full information on review of its tests.

The U. S. surgeon-general, Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, announced late Friday that a health service team has completed its recheck of 4,250,000 cubic centimetres of the Parke-Davis product. He said some three-quarters of this total already had been used, but that "over a million more children can now be vaccinated" with the remainder, beginning at once. One shot takes one CC of the vaccine.

RECEIVED FIRST SHOT

An estimated 5,500,000 American children already have received the first of a projected three-shot series.

The inoculations came to temporary stop July 7 U. S. a week ago pending a plant-by-plant reappraisal by public health service specialists of vaccine-manufacturing safety standards.

Parke, Davis was the first of five pharmaceutical firms to be visited by health service experts. Eli Lilly and Co. of Indianapolis was next on the list, and government scientists are already at work there.

Scheele recommended suspension of the inoculation program and ordered the safety double checks after a number of youngsters came down with polio following injection with the preventive serum.

He has on several occasions reiterated his faith in the vaccine itself, and Friday told a congressional committee that temporary setbacks in no way threatened the "ultimate success" of the program.

Town Supervisor Takes Rap At Port Authority

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP)—Massena town supervisor F. Lloyd Hosmer Friday told the New York State Power Authority chairman, Robert Moses "you may be a Goliath, but something tells me you may not have all the answers either."

Hosmer's statement was contained in a letter he sent to Moses in reply to one Moses wrote Thursday charging that Massena's complaint that builders were ruining Massena's roads was "cheap politics".

Moses' reply was made after Hosmer charged against authority he called "poorly planned and ill-nine policies" of the power authority.

Hosmer's complaint was an open letter to Edward H. Cass of Gouverneur, only St. Lawrence county member of the power authority, and said the power project had worked havoc to the Massena area and cost it its residents.

MAY ASK SUSPENSION

Hosmer said he would ask Governor Averell Harriman to suspend work on the project unless the authority changes its policies.

"The residents of Massena and the writer as supervisor, or personally, owe you the power authority absolutely nothing," Hosmer said. "You have your money. You could be wrong, and you have no excuse to trample wrongly on everyone who does not agree with you."

'Changeable' Safe Bet For Weatherman

LONDON (AP)—Britain had all sorts of weather Friday.

In London office workers shed their jackets and strolled in the warm sunshine.

In Scotland seven inches of snow fell over the Highlands.

In the Channel islands a sudden frost did heavy damage to the new potato crop.

The weather man played safe today. He said it would continue "changeable."

Top Russian Chiefs Plan Visit to Tito

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist party chief, and Premier Nikolai Bulganin will meet Yugoslavia's President Tito in Belgrade late this month, the Russian government disclosed today. Their talks will precede the Big Four East-West conference expected mid summer.

The announcement, carried by the Soviet government news agency Tass, came as a surprise to observers here and abroad. Independent Communist Yugoslavia has been estranged from the Kremlin since 1948, although relations have improved in recent months.

Sources in Washington and London said Yugoslavia had informed Britain, France and the United States of the impending visit and assured them it reflected no change in the Tito government's policy of good relations with the West.)

PEACE OBJECTIVE

"With the aim of further improvements in relations between The Investia announcement said: the two countries and with the aim of strengthening peace, the government of the Soviet Union and the government of Yugoslavia have decided to hold a meeting of their representatives on the highest level."

The U.S. has furnished Yugoslavia with millions of dollars in economic and military aid since Tito broke away from the Soviet bloc. It is a mutual assistance pact with Greece and Turkey, two members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Scientists Generate Solar Heat Equal To A-Blast With $360 Machine

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—For $360, defence researchers at government laboratories rigged up an old army searchlight so that it collects the sun's rays to generate temperatures as high as those in an atomic explosion.

The ungainly instrument, called a "solar furnace," is not just an experiment in physics for scientists at the defence research chemical laboratories at nearby Shirley's Bay.

It is being employed to test the resistance of all kinds of materials to intense heat. Results of these tests will provide essential information about protection against nuclear-weapon bursts for Canada's armed forces and civil defence organization.

At the focal point—about one-third of an inch in diameter—the furnace generates temperatures of some 6,000 degrees centigrade. In a work out Friday, the furnace reduced only one-fifth this amount of heat to burn up a piece of asbestos by a fraction of a second. An iron bar melts in such heat and a rock is vaporized. A few inches from the focal point, the furnace is no warmer than toast.

A search light has a concave mirror to reflect light in a narrow beam. The scientists have reversed this process. The sun's rays beat on the searchlight's mirror and are reflected and concentrated into a tiny beam at one point. In effect, this is harnessing sunlight, though on a small scale.

The scientists, headed by physicist L. C. Wilson, 42-year-old native of Auckland, N.Z., has built into the searchlight a mechanism that automatically keeps the mirror facing squarely at the sun. A small platform holds the materials being tested.

Dr. Harry Bettler of Ottawa, superintendent of the Shirley's Bay laboratories, explained the scientists want to find out what happens to such things as clothing, tents and camouflage nets subjected to the detonation point.

The furnace simulates the heat produced by an atomic explosion. The amount of heat generated can be controlled by placing shutters over the searchlight window.

Scientists will test soon the new "wear-over" clothing developed by the Defence Research Board for the army. They may be able to determine how this clothing can provide good protection against nuclear heat a point relatively close to the bomb burst.

PLAN TO DEVELOP MINERAL DEPOSIT IN NORTH GIVEN

Build Railway In Days Not Too Far Off

OTTAWA, (CP)—An outline of plans for developing a vast new mineral development in the North has been given to the Commons.

Northern Affairs Minister Lesage said Friday a rail line is planned to tap one of the world's largest lead-zinc ore deposits, at Pine point on the south shore of Great Slave lake.

The Northwest Territories ore load is 300 to 400 miles north of the end of steel at Grimshaw in Alberta's Peace river district and Mr. Lesage said he hoped the government-owned consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. can make arrangements to develop it.

Plans were to build the railway "in days not too far off" to get the ore out.

"We have been discussing and still are discussing the economic implications of such a project," he said.

The problems of developing Canada's Northland came in for a major share of debate as the commons discussed and eventually approved the estimates of Mr. Lesage's department—a range of items from care of Eskimos to development of some of the vast resources and administration of national parks.

Opposition Leader Drew, speaking of northern development, urged a campaign to increase northern population as a defence measure with new communities spotted across the area and airports built south of radar bases to handle any possible invasion.

He said he was amazed at Mr. Lesage's statement that there would be jobs in the North before settlers will move in.

"That was the way the Prairies were opened up, Mr. Drew said. "The North's fantastic mineral deposits were "simply staggering." They called for unlimited exploration.

Mr. Lesage said the key to economic development of the North is cheaper transportation. Plans should be made in months to operate the North first, but to exploit its resources. Population would follow.

Woman Heads Weekly Papers' Association

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 37-year-old woman, who spent most of her youth in the composing room of her family paper at Dauphin, Man., today was chosen president of the Manitoba division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association. She is believed to be the first woman ever to hold such a position in Canada.

Miss Dorothy Martin, editor of the Dauphin Herald and Press for the past 15 years, was elected at the final session of the division's 26th annual convention by its 66 member papers.

Three Conservatives to Seek Nomination in Renfrew South

RENFREW, Ont. (CP) — Three Progressive Conservatives fight it out here today for nomination as their party's candidate in Renfrew South in the June 9 Ontario election.

One, James Dempsey, has represented the riding in the provincial legislature since 1945. Already nominated once at a convention last month, he was dropped from the party ticket a week ago when party leaders discovered he had not accounted for $6,800 in his statement of 1951 campaign-fund contributions.

He is opposed to Mayor Robert Simpson of nearby Arnprior, whom he defeated at the convention in a month ago, and by J. J. Foran of Eganville.

Local party officials have said privately they expect the candidate who survives the nomination today to get the party's blessing.

Mr. Dempsey told a delegates' meeting this week he recalled receiving $5,000 in cash, over several occasions, in 1951. He said he signed blank receipts, which John Drohan, the Barry's Bay lumberman who gave him the money, could have filled in later as he wished.

Mr. Drohan died Nov. 11, 1953.

Mr. Dempsey said the money was all spent on campaign expenses.

"What more does Frost, Premier-Designate of Ontario, party leader who suspended Mr. Dempsey, want me to do than resign, Mr. Dempsey?" he asked reporters Friday.

"I've told my people that every cent I got went into my own campaign and they are accepting my statement. Well, $5,000 is nothing to spend to be seen elections in the valley that cost $50,000. Yes! and $100,000!"

The Dempsey squabble took a new twist Friday, ringing in the 1953 federal elections and drawing new denials from Revenue Minister McCann.

In a telephone interview, Mr. McCann, chartered life-year-old general contractor — turned-politician, accused Dr. McCann of threatening to "smash" him for back income tax if he opposed the Liberal cabinet member in the 1953 elections.

Dr. McCann immediately denied the statement as "poppycock."

It has been reported that Dr. McCann showed photostatic copies of receipts given by Mr. Dempsey for the contributions to Premier Frost. This led to the withdrawal of Ontario Progressive Conservative support for Mr. Dempsey.

Today's convention in the Renfrew separate school auditorium will have 387 voting delegates, including 57 to 59 from Renfrew and 57 from Arnprior.

James W. Baskin, president of the Renfrew South Progressive Conservative Association, said Thursday night in Arnprior: "There will be loudspeakers to the overflow ground to handle the overflow from the auditorium." The hall seats 750 persons.

In the House of Commons Friday Alistair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North) asked Finance Minister Harris if he would ask Monday for a copy of all correspondence between the finance department and both the Guaranty Trust and the Capital Guarantee Insurance Company, both out Capital in 1947. Dr. McCann had been a director of Capital and the two companies were reported joined Guaranty's board. Guaranty had bought Capital.

Mr. Stewart said he had three more questions for Monday:

1. Are any cabinet ministers directors of corporations?

2. If so, what cabinet ministers are directors of what?

3. In what companies are these directorships held?

Textile Workers Ask Curbs On Imports or Govt. Resign

HAMILTON (CP)—Members of Canada's largest textile workers' union, meeting here yesterday, established import quotas in their industry or the resignation of the federal government.

Delegates to second biennial conference of the Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO - CCL) charged Ottawa has many government departments and agencies, among them the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, the CNR and the veterans' affairs department, were constructing or contemplating in the industry by placing large orders with United States firms.

A. Harold Daoust, the union's Canadian director, said the veterans affairs department had given permission for a $14,000 brewery order with a New York firm and the CNR had permitted a Chicago rail-car firm to dictate the use of American textiles in car seats.

Ray Ruggles of Trocoto added that the Lawrence Seaway Authority had placed the major part of a 3,000,000 yards order for glass cloth with an American firm.

Mr. Daoust said such moves showed that the government was neither willing nor able to cope with unemployment and Mr. St. Laurent's statement that Canada must force resign.

The two main speakers, Harry Weisbach, executive secretary of the CCL's political action committee, and C. Scott Hildred, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), stressed the necessity to secure votes in the labor field.

Mr. Hildred said the union of Canada's two labor congresses will not water down but strengthen labor's political activity.

Mr. Weisbach said the government's "Liberal" label does not prevent itself "employer minded." Mr. Oliver's Liberal party, he said, has been unable to secure vital to labor.

Four resolutions calling for union support of labor or CCF candidates in municipal, provincial and federal elections were passed unanimously.

Soviet Union And Satellites Sign Agreement

WARSAW (AP) — The Soviet Union and seven East European satellites today signed their pact for joint military, political security and friendship.

At the same time, they signed a protocol putting their military forces under one command.

The pact, or agreement, and presumably the names of this "Eastern NATO" supreme commander, were to be published later. It was an open secret, however, that the job would go to Ivan Konev, 57-year-old Soviet marshal who is popular in both East and West as a fine professional soldier.

Konev now is serving as Soviet deputy defence minister.

WANTS PEACEFUL COEXISTENCY

Immediately after the signing, East Germany's Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl told the East German delegation that the East German army would be under the unified command of Germany and that the reunification of Germany must automatically rescind the military commitments previously undertaken by either East or West Germany.

The signing took place in the white marble hall of Poland's parliament buildings.

The informal ceremony was watched by about 200 persons, including about a dozen from Western countries.

World-Wide Atomic Controls Are Long Way Off Says U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States officials believe a limited disarmament agreement may eventually be negotiated with Russia, even though world-wide atomic controls seem a long way off.

Publication Friday of proposals made by the Soviet Union and other Western powers at the United Nations disarmament sub-committee meeting in London showed that the two sides are still far apart on the key issue of enforcements.

Informants said that even if agreement could be reached on all other points, the issue of safeguards to prevent violations from secretly preparing an atomic war is so vital that there could be no over-all agreement unless it also was resolved.

However, American officials—and some European leaders—are known to believe that it may be possible to work out plans with the Soviet Union to stabilize or perhaps cut back the size of forces deployed in the European area. This latter would be important to the effect of easing fears of war in Europe and reducing East-West tension.

The disarmament proposals were made by the Western powers in London in February. The United Nations disarmament body runs a strong insistence on the idea that the first step in any disarmament program must be the creation of a "control organ."

The functions of the proposed agency were spelled out in a proposal presented by the United States, Britain, France, and Canada April 21. They declared that the control organ would be created by all installations which might bear on the "capacity to prepare for war," the right to conduct "field investigations" and that it also would be assured unrestricted communication and guaranteed that they would not be harmed or interfered with.

Disclosure of the Western plans followed by three days Russia's publication of its latest proposal to the UN meeting in London. This showed strong Russian opposition to any control organ with the powers demanded by the West.

500 VIETNAMESE REFUGEES BOARD SHIP AT HAIPHONG

Last Ship Guarantees 'Passage to Freedom'

By LARRY ALLEN

OFF HAIPHONG, North Viet Nam (AP)—Five hundred Vietnamese, fleeing Red rule in Haiphong, took refuge today aboard the U.S. transport Gen. A. W. Brewster, one of the last ships guaranteeing them a "passage to freedom."

Landing ships also brought out to the American transport 1,900 French Union troops, the final contingent to clear out of the big northern seaport and naval base which the French surrendered Friday to the Communist Vietminh.

All army personnel and the refugees will be sent by the South Viet Nam government to new homes in the riceland villages of the south.

HAS CARRIED 50,000

French Capt. Jean Blondel, who has specialized in evacuations from the French started turning over northern Indochina territory to the Vietminh under the Geneva settlement, said he has transported 50,000 refugees.

Blondel said some of the three 12,000-ton United States transports carried 5,000 Vietnamese refugees and French troops—all passengers were fed and then drifted off into the South China sea.

Though the Brewster was originally listed as the last ship for those seeking passage to freedom, it was made clear that there will be U.S. Navy ships around as long as possible to aid any late-coming refugees seeking escape.

In a last-minute press conference on the Vietminh finished taking control of Haiphon, the Canada- India - Poland international control commission gave hazy answers on the possibility of freedom of movement between Communist North Viet Nam and democratic South Viet Nam being extended beyond the deadline for next Wednesday.

The Indian chairman said it could be presumed something might be done about it there since a delegate Vietminh had hindered the flight of Vietnamese.

"Rex," said the Queen, "go back to the pack."

In critical condition in hospital is Lloyd George, brother of George. He suffered cuts to his face and body and multiple injuries.

Police said the westbound Montreal-to-Toronto train carried the car 222 feet down the tracks, grinding it to pieces.

The car's hood was tossed into a field 20 feet from the crossing at Code's corners on Highway 15.

Police said the crossing is guarded with a wig-wag signal and a bell.

The train conductor was T. W. Empey of Montreal and the engineer, W. T. Muir, of Belleville.

WINDSOR MEN KILLED

CHATHAM (CP)—Two Windsor men were killed and a Blenheim woman is in critical condition in hospital following a single car accident here early today on Highway 3 near here.

Dead are: ames Martin Bosscon, Windsor, Mrs. Madeline Rupert Ri, of Riverside is also in critical condition injuries to the head and chest.

The accident occurred about four o'clock in the morning when their light panel truck swerved out of control and went out of their lane a large tree.

Bosscon died instantly. Mr. Fox died as he was being rushed to hospital.

In 20 minutes following the crash provincial police constable Kenneth Shelp of Chatham and Cpl. Leno Bertola, a passing motorist, fought desperately to free the injured, trapped in the wreckage. Constable Shelp said that they had to use a hacksaw to cut away the twisted steel that pinned the victims inside the car. The officer said it was impossible to determine who was driving the vehicle at the time of the accident.

No Smuggling In Army Mails Yet Unearthed

OTTAWA (CP)—No irregularity has yet been unearthed by an investigation into reports of smuggling of contraband goods into Canada through army mails from Japan and Korea.

Defence Minister Campney, reporting this in the Commons Friday, said he ordered the inquiry early this week after defence headquarters received evidences of abuses in the army postal service at Vancouver.

Mr. Campney, replying to a question by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, (PC — Esquimalt-Saanich), said:

"While I was not given any actual evidence of the truth of these rumors, I nevertheless immediately ordered an investigation which is at present in progress."

NOTHING YET

"So far nothing has come to light to indicate that there is any truth in these rumors."

He described a story in the Vancouver Sun about the investigation as "misleading as "rather astonishing." He hoped the publicity would not prejudice the effectiveness of the inquiry.

In another question Douglas Fisher (PC—Calgary North) he said:

"I have no detailed knowledge as to what goods might be involved." The only reference he mentioned was in the news story.

Acting Postmaster-General Pickersgill said he received the post office also would make an investigation, but the minister said he prefers to let the defence department continue its inquiry.

The main question of how the inquiry is being carried out. It has undergone a leave has been started after inquiries from newspaper reporters in Vancouver and Korea began to story appeared in The Sun.

Mr. Campney said armed forces personnel who have served less than a year overseas may bring back $300 worth of goods duty free. Those with more than a year's service overseas may bring back as they want, provided the goods are purchased six months before they return to Canada.

Sixteen Boys from District Will Attend World Jamboree Of Boy Scouts at Niagara

This year the greatest adventure in scouting on the American continent will be experienced by the youth of the world, less than 200 miles from Belleville.

For ten days, commencing August 18, the eighth World Jamboree of world scouting associations will take place at Niagara-on-the-Lake, an event which is described by scouting officials as "a once in a lifetime event" for 10,000 Scouts and leaders, who will attend the jamboree.

Some sixteen boys from the immediate district will represent this area at this greatest of events in world scouting activities.

Their names released this week by Neal scouting authorities are as follows:

Dick Hall and Larry Gerow, 1st Belleville St. Thomas troop; Glen Stewart and Richard Rowbotham, 2nd Belleville Christ church troop; Bill Burley, 3rd St. Michael's troop; Alex Shadden, 4th Kiwanis troop; John Shadden and Richard Clarke, 5th Queen Mary Home and School troop; Peter Robson and Lowell Yorke, 1st Avondale troop; Wilfred Furlidge and John Plumpton, 1st Corbyville troop; Ron Maybee, 2nd Christ church; Peter Kappas and David James, 4th Kiwanis troop.

Richard Rowbotham has been chosen troop leader.

They will be a part of No. 1 troop, attending the jamboree, made up of boys from Belleville, Picton, Bloomfield, Napanee district and the Trent Valley district.

For them it will be the highest thrill of their lives prior to adulthood. Not only will they be participating in the most significant event of world scouting but they also will have the privilege of attending the first world jamboree held anywhere outside of Europe.

ONCE-IN-LIFETIME THRILL

"It is a once-in-a-lifetime experience for them and it will bring out the significance of the world brotherhood of scouting at its best," regional commissioner Archie Level Jr. said today. "And here this week as he described the organization and presentation by the jamboree.

Mr. Level's voice held a proud note that has been evident among his fellow officials in Canadian scouting ever since organization of the event got under way.

For some time now, such officials have been emphasizing and reiterating the theme and setting up of the jamboree.

Situated on the edge of Niagara-on-the-Lake, the camp site for 10,000 (present indications are that this estimate may be exceeded) covers approximately a square mile.

COME FROM 58 COUNTRIES

Scouts and their leaders will be in attendance from some 58 countries, the Canadian district here being 3,500 strong. Represented will be the British Commonwealth, the U. S. and Europe and Asian countries.

Some 500 to 1,000 scouts will carry the banner for France while about 1,000 will carry the flag for the United Kingdom.

At first attendance of overseas groups was jeopardized by foreign currency restrictions. However, Canadian associations Wellington, plans to help them with their allowances.

"Belleville itself has contributed to help bring eight boys to the jamboree," Mr. Lewis said. "The response to our work in that direction has been wonderful."

Interested parties in Belleville contributed a total of $600, he pointed out.

Most fortunate of the nationalities were those usually considered as the most restricted by currency restrictions—the British.

"The British government passed a special act of parliament to allow their Boy Scouts to attend, Mr. Level said.

WELL ORGANIZED

Features of jamboree organization include the following:

Over 200 mobile canteens will be used in over 250,000 meals during the event. These include 35,000 lbs. of meat; 210,000 lbs. of dairy produce and 150,000 lbs. of vegetables.

Some 10,000 visitors will be provided with seating accommodation.

Available will be a sub post office, a police post, coffee bars, two trading posts, telegraph services and a press headquarters.

The lap of luxury will be close at hand in the form of running water and flush toilets throughout the entire camp.

Fully staffed, completely equipped hospital will be provided, as will ample internal transportation and communication in the camp.

One of the strong points of the Scout movement is that it knows no barriers of race or creed," Chris Leggat, secretary of the Belleville association, who will be attending the jamboree, points out.

RELIGIOUS FAITHS

"Many different faiths will be found among the jamboree Scouts and leaders, therefore there is an opportunity to carry out his religious obligations."

To this end a chaplaincy service is being established to provide spiritual leaders for the denomination represented at the event.

The jamboree will be broadcast by radio and TV by the CBC, which has also requested it in 16 different languages.

In such a large company it would seem that a Scout's individuality would be lost, but that is not the case, Mr. Leggat said. The jamboree, that each Scout should lose himself in the spirit of Scouting.

"The basic purpose is the simple, but significant activities of living together by patrols, cooking, putting on demonstrations, taking tours and participating in arena shows and other special activities, Mr. Leggat points out.

"We hope that each to attend the event naturally will be the envy of their fellow Scouts, but Mr. Leggat hastens to dull any barbed jealousy.

CAREFULLY SELECTED

"The boys from Belleville selected as delegates were selected on an attribute-rating basis which was used throughout the entire Eastern Ontario region," he says.

Primary qualification is that they be first-class Scouts, "which means they have to be between 14 and 17 years of age."

Responsible for selection of Belleville scouts were Don Allen, assistant district commissioner; Ken Knowlton, scoutmaster Ken Moore, district scoutmaster, and Ralph Hall, H. Summerby, of the local association.

"Just prior to the jamboree, the district will in all probability gather in Belleville for a day or two for a pre-jamboree camp, check equipment and set up patrols. They will very likely travel by bus direct from Belleville to the camp," Mr. Lewis says.

Several scout leaders from Belleville also will be helping in the organization at the camp site. They include Mrs. Lillian Ashley, Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, Miss Betty Smith and Mr. Chris Leggat.

Scout and Girl Guide Groups To Attend Service

Approximately 1,000 Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Cubs and Brownies will attend their annual church service at Bridge Street United church on Sunday morning, regional commissioner for Eastern Ontario, Archie Lewis, announced today. The Rev. H. M. Davis, minister of the church, will conduct the service.

The combined parade will form up on the collegiate campus, and move off at 10.45. The Roman Catholics will parade to St. Michael's church.

Following the services the parade will form up on the campus, where a march-past will take place with Commissioner Lewis taking the salute. Assisting the commissioner in the reviewing duties will be Girl Guide district commissioner, Mrs. R. D. Arnott.

K of C Marks Fifty Years In City by Burning Mortgage On Front Street Building

Belleville Knights of Columbus last night hailed the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of their organization here by burning the debentures on their Front Street headquarters . . . signalling a new chapter in the history of Council 1002.

About 170 knights, their wives and guests, packed the council chamber to applaud Grand Knight George O'Brien as he kindled the debenture papers in a large urn on the council dais.

The present quarters have been occupied by the Knights since 1950, when they moved from the Robertson Block, from premises they had held since shortly after their founding.

Immediately also witnessed the unveiling of a group of portraits of Past Grand Knights of the council. One photograph was missing from the group of 37 pictures—that of Charles Whalen, Grand Knight in 1921. The unveiling was performed by J. V. C. Trusiach, Grand Knight of the council in 1919.

The Knights also paid tribute to the first Grand Knight of Council 1002, the late E. J. Butler, when they presented Mrs. Butler with a bouquet of roses. Making the presentation, chairman for the evening Frank Donnelly, recalled that it was Mr. Butler for the council in its formative years.

Another recipient of a bouquet of roses was Mrs. O'Brien, whose husband, as Grand Knight, delivered the address during the evening.

In his address Mr. O'Brien recalled the early years of the council and sketched its progress through the years.

District Deputy D. A. Booth, Kingston, was principal guest speaker, noting the numerical strength of Knights of Columbus councils in Canada and the U.S.

In marking its golden jubilee the Belleville council has passed a milestone in its history, he said.

Prior to the ceremonies in the council chamber the assembly was entertained at a reception.

The evening concluded with supper and dancing in the club rooms.

MRS. HICKS

Guest speaker is Belleville Rotary members next Monday will be Wes Hicks, Toronto newspaper columnist.

He has been writing his inimitable column for the Toronto Telegram for the past six years. During the war he served with the Royal Canadian Navy, resigning his commission shortly after D-Day to become a war correspondent.

He is a former president of the Toronto-Men's Press Club, and was instrumental in forming the committee for the National Newspaper Awards, of which he is still a member. "

Industrial Committee Decides To Recommend to Council City Join Development Body

A recommendation that the city of Belleville join the Lake Ontario Industrial Development Association will come up for ratification at the next regular meeting of city council.

The question of the city joining the Association came up for discussion at a meeting of the Industrial committee, called this week, the committee recommending to council that the city join the association at a cost of $1,400.

Attendance of city delegates to the Industrial Trade Fair in Toronto May 16 to 20 was also discussed at the meeting.

The city traffic committee met on Thursday, when general discussion took place regarding the providing of more parking space in the downtown area. The committee recommended that inspector J. C. Hayes of the city police department attend the Ontario Traffic Conference at Windsor June 6-10.

At a meeting of the property committee, also held Thursday, it was decided that the Corby's Public Library be granted permission to make alterations in the building, the cost, $1,000, to be paid out of library funds.

Belleville Firm Making Badges For Boy Scouts' World Jamboree

Of all mementoes carried away by more than 10,000 Scouts from the world scout jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake this August, the most cherished souvenir will be linked with a Belleville industry.

Down at the Grier street plant of J. J. Cush (Canada) Limited the looms presently are working full steam to fill an order for 30,000 special shoulder badges, which will be the official uniform insignia to be worn by all scouts and leaders attending the jamboree.

When ready the badges will be shipped to Scouting headquarters in Ottawa, where they will be ultimately distributed among Scouts of 56 nationalities.

The company, one of only four of its kind in Canada, specializes in narrow-fabric weaving and turns out woven insignias for all Canadian scouting troops.

At present it also is busy completing orders for troop identification tabs for many Scout organizations and also a heavy order of merit badges for Girl Guides.

Scouts. When the orders 'are fulfilled many of the tabs and badges also are bound to find their way to the jamboree.

Designs for the shoulder badges have been the responsibility of the company's head designer, Don Hood, based on the emblem sent in by the Canadian scouting headquarters. He completed work on the badges last January when the order was received from Ottawa and submitted seven sketches and samples of colors until a decision was reached a month ago.

The badges are black with golden lettering in English and French and consist of a green French lily and a white fir tree bordered by a large green Maple Leaf.

The motto of the Jamboree, "One Nation Forever," is inscribed beneath the national emblems in French and English.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

GLORY TO HIS NAME

Down at the cross where my Savior died,
Down where for cleansing from sin I cried,
There to my heart was the blood applied;
Glory to His name.

I am so wondrously saved from sin,
Jesus so sweetly abides within,
There at the cross where He took me in;
Glory to His name.

Oh, precious fountain that saves from sin,
I am so glad I have entered in;
There Jesus saves me and keeps me clean;
Glory to His name.

Come to this fountain so rich and sweet,
Cast thy poor soul at the Savior's feet;
Plunge in today, and be made complete;
Glory to His name.

This was one of the most popular gospel songs turned out by the Rev. Elisha A. Hoffmann who, with Dan Barkley, William Cushing, Charles Gabriel, and other nineteenth century contemporaries, helped to write the hymns used in the great evangelistic crusades that swept across America 60 or 70 years ago.

Its popularity was due, in large measure, to its swinging chorus which made the church rafters ring in many a prayer-meeting:

"Glory to His name,
Glory to His name;
There to my heart was the blood applied,
Glory to His name."

The theme of the hymn is similar to others written by Mr. Hoffmann stressing the debt which sinning humanity owes to Christ who died to atone for the wrongdoing of mankind and to open to men and women a door to salvation. Again and again, his song messages were built around the story of Calvary and the cross but almost always they ended on a note of glad Christian triumph.

Another Hoffmann hymn favorite, "I must Tell Jesus", was written after its author had visited one day with a woman parishioner during a pastorate in a Congregational church in Lebanon Pennsylvania. The pastor found the woman in deep trouble and urged her to seek peace in Christ. After listening for awhile to his prayers and counsel, she exclaimed: "I Must Tell Jesus". A little later, she found peace in prayer.

A Lift For Living

Religious Convenience

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

If we were asked how our present American civilization is superior to former modes of living, wouldn't most of us mention physical comforts and conveniences?

Our houses are more commodious. Housekeeping has been delivered from so much of its drudgery. Hours of work are shorter. Travel is swifter.

Ours has been called a "sitting civilization". We can hear voices and music from the ends of the earth. We can fly from luncheon on the Atlantic to dinner on the Pacific. We can do and have all these things while we are seated in comfortable chairs.

Some years ago a summer camp in northern New England put out a descriptive booklet to lure patrons. It bore the intriguing title, "Roughing It Smoothly." Whatever that means, that is what we seem to want.

Do we not measure our personal advancement by the increase of our comforts? Have we not heard self-made men say, "I do not want my children to have it as hard as I had it"?

WORK IS HARDSHIP

By many work is looked upon as the necessary hardship by which we earn money to do what we want to do and the sooner we get it over with, the better.

We are told that the church would give the people what they want. Every now and then some bright person with a flair for promotion appears to tell the churches how they can sell religion to the people.

An advertising man once analyzed the desires of people and sought to sell his findings to the churches. He listed the various popular desires in order of their appeal.

I forget the exact order but the list included such desires as: how to be happy, how to be well, how to get ahead in the world, how to get along with people His point was that if preachers would study what people want and then fit their messages to popular desires, the churches would be full.

CHURCH SERVES

Well, there seems to be some logic in the argument. The church to serve the people. It must therefore reach the people. Religion should be made winsome and attractive. Make the church as beautiful and comfortable as possible. Cushion the pews. Condition the air. Improve the music. Popularize the themes. How far we have gone in our efforts to sell religion to the people by appealing to their comfort and convenience was made vivid to me by contrast when I attended church in Russia a number of years ago.

Having been sent to the Soviet Union on a mission to learn what had happened to the relief supplies given to that country during the war, we were under the guidance of a government agency. When we asked to visit the churches, the government agents advised against it, thereby clearly showing their indifference, even their hostility to the church. Nevertheless we insisted.

There are no cushioned pews. The worshipers stand, and the services in the Orthodox Churches last three hours.

LONG QUEUES

When I saw the long queues waiting to get in, the discomfort endured by those poorly dressed Russian people standing for hours, I could not help but wonder if we in this so-called Christian land take our religion as seriously as some of these Russians under a godless government.

We can carry out cult of comfort and convenience too far. A young woman came to a psychiatrist complaining that she felt lonely and left out of things. Going back into her life history, the psychiatrist found that the girl had never taken any pains to be friendly. When guests came to her home she would not go "down to see them unless she was fond of them. Having never put herself out to be nice to others, she came to find herself left out.

The person who never puts himself out for a friend does not take in the joys of friendship. The person who does not put himself out for God cannot receive the blessings of religion.

Time cannot be made into a couch. And that church serves us the best when it helps us to serve the most.

U.C. Reports Upsurge In S.S. Attendance

An upsurge in Sunday school membership of the United Church of Canada is reported by the Rev. David I. Forsyth, D.D., secretary of the Board of Christian Education.

Total amount raised by the Sunday school pupils last year was $1,544,710, an increase of $106,591.

The total enrolment through the camps, activities in 1,903, an increase of 8,622 over the preceding year. Five hundred and twenty-one new mid-week groups were organized during the year.

The United Church now has 8,237 Sunday schools, an increase of 39 over the preceding year.

During the year 16,324 Sunday school pupils joined the church This is an increase of 1,800.

Bulletins From Birdland

CLOCKWORK

The regularity of birds is absolutely amazing! It really seems as though they kept calendars and wore watches. Even when the distance to be travelled is actually thousands of miles, they arrange to leave their winter quarters at a date in late winter or early spring which will give them the right amount of time to get to their breeding grounds on exactly the correct day when everything is ready to suit their needs.

And there they land, on the dot. If each year they have been keeping track of the arrival dates for a certain species, you will know this to be so. How do birds manage to keep their trysts?

As soon as enough lawn shows to encourage a search for worms, robins get here, even though piles of snow remain in some places. Pools of melting snow amidst cattails attract redwinged blackbirds, which feed on injurious insects found in swampy ground.

Kingfishers wait only until there is sufficient open water for them to dive in and capture their favorite food. By then there are enough flying insects of the kind phoebes like, so they appear near our old bridges. At approximately the same time, tree swallows are seen skimming low over water and fields, snapping up flying insects; and if these are still scarce, meanwhile, they satisfy themselves with left over seeds and berries.

Year after year chipping sparrows and house wrens, both eaters of small insects, may be found near our southern boundary line around the beginning of May. By the middle of the month catbirds have got back, eating insects until fruit ripens; then hummingbirds come to delve into our spring flowers for nectar and diminutive insects. We may expect nighthawks (or mosquito hawks, as they are called sometimes) by mosquito time, that is, about May 24th.

Regularity also applies in the case of the hours of the day. The birds' morning chorus begins at dawn, their song at dusk. Watch for visitors to your feeding tray at regular times: If chickadees are seen at 4 o'clock one afternoon, look for them at that hour another day. The suburban robin family may always have breakfast at 7 o'clock, dinner at noon, supper at dusk.

Do birds gape time by the sun slant? Perhaps so; yet they keep identical hours on dull, rainy sunless days. Man struggles to probe into these problems, but they are still unsolved. Mystery remains.

WHO SHOULD BE RESPONSIBLE FOR RELIEF

Should the responsibility of relief for the unemployed rest solely on the Federal Government?

Many Canadians believe it should.

A contrary view is expressed in the Toronto weekly "Saturday Night."

"Under the British North America Act," it says, "unemployment is a provincial concern, but the nation has outgrown this narrow allotment of responsibility. In 1945, the Federal Government offered to look after the full cost of relief of unemployed persons able to work. Mr. St. Laurent has said this offer will not be renewed, nor should it be. It was not realistic. What is needed is a shared responsibility between the Dominion and provincial governments, with municipalities free of their present burden—and recognition by all governments that this is a plan to ease suffering, not a substitute for positive policies designed to keep unemployment from becoming a major problem."

The solution should be quoted. Firstly, "Saturday Night" agrees that the provinces should not be solely responsible for handling the problem of unemployment. Secondly, it agrees that municipalities should be free of any responsibility in this matter.

Now there will be little disagreement on these points among most Canadians. The contentious point of this argument is whether the nation, in outgrowing "this narrow allotment of responsibility" for unemployment to the provinces, has not outgrown it by such a wide margin that it should now be solely a Federal responsibility.

"Saturday Night" says it should not. But on what is this argument based? The Federal Government can follow "positive policies designed to keep employment from becoming a major problem." Can provincial governments also adopt similar policies? The answer is in the affirmative, but the field in which such policies can be followed is much narrower than in the case of the Dominion and, indeed, if the Federal Government followed such policies not even the most exemplary display of wisdom by a provincial government could offset their effects. It is also true that municipal government, by levying exorbitant taxes, could prevent the establishment of new industries or by failing to encourage the establishment of new industries can turn a city into a "depressed area." Why, then, free the municipal authorities of responsibility for unemployment which it may create, while requiring the provincial government to share this responsibility?

The only possible answer is that, when unwise policies by municipal governments create local unemployment problems, the unemployed seek jobs elsewhere. Similarly, if one province is prosperous while another is depressed, many workers will migrate to the area where work is more plentiful. In spite of everything that is being said about labor losing its mobility, the country's working force is more mobile today than it was a generation ago. There was only to note the number of employees in Belleville industries who reside several miles outside the city to grasp the truth of this argument. Such unemployment situations do not constitute a major problem. What must be solved is a situation in which unemployment is prevalent throughout the length and breadth of the country.

Such a state of affairs is unlikely as it can be avoided at all, can be avoided only by the wisdom and energy of the Federal Government. For that reason the Federal government should assume the full responsibility for caring for the unemployed.

HOPE HE IS WRONG

J. F. Parkinson, of Ottawa, director of the economic policy division of the Federal Department of Finance, said in Windsor the other day that all signs indicate the Canadian economy has fully recovered from the "little recession" which began last tarlan. The band

It is to be hoped that Mr. Parkinson is wrong.

Although the number of unemployed Canadians is receding at a faster rate than in the same time last year, there are still many men and women who are out of work.

If the Canadian economy has "fully recovered" from that alled it, what legitimate hope have these jobless men nd women that they will be able to find employment a permanent nature?

If, as Mr. Parkinson says, a full recovery has been made from last year's recession, then we are faced with no possibility that a large pool of unemployed persons will become a permanent feature of our economy.

If, on the other hand, the Canadian economy is on the oad to recovery but has not yet reached its destination, hen the rate at which the number of unemployed has been receding for one or two may be maintained and we may regain that happy state of having practically ll our working force gainfully employed.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"During this month, some of the weirdest paradoxes in nature are to be observed. The care nature takes of some creatures and the abuse she heaps on others is hard to figure out. An American merganser or fish duck, glorious in his pearl, black, white and green mating costume was found choked to death on a sunfish twice too large for him to have swallowed. Was he showing off to his lady? A black water snake attempted to engulf a good-sized mallard duck. Maybe the snake was still only half awake from his winter sleep. Anyway, after he had got the bulkhead nicely started down, the snake apparently decided he'd changed his mind. But the sharp spikes of the bullhead's pectoral fins speared the snake, and there they were, both dead. A raccoon was in the habit of visiting a certain garbage pail, the patient lid of which often fell down, imprisoning him until the cold-tagers, wakened in the night by the infuriated racker, would come and set him free. The cohorts, up for the weekend, freed him twice. They left the pail empty on the back steps, and when they returned the following weekend, they found the coon dead in the pail. He had entered the pail, though empty, from sheer habit. Or was it for only a sniff?

Such tragedies of the wilds are us.

In contrast to the care nature takes of black mallard ducks. The wood duck nests in a cavity in a tree, often ten twenty six and sixty feet from the ground. When the tiny ducklings are ready to leave the nest, they climb up the inside wall and, in response to coaxing from the mother down on the ground, the infants spring into space and with kerplunk to the earth, unharmed. Frank Kortright in his monumental book on the ducks, geese and swans of America, quotes a correspondent who witnessed a brood of twelve wood ducklings jump from a tree cavity twenty-two feet above a concrete payment in a park. The baby downiest creatures actually bounced, But not one was injured, and all eagerly followed their mother into the park pond.

The merry month of May will offer countless demonstrations of this strange variety in the fates allotted by nature to her products.

Fine Thing In Denmark

(Christian Science Monitor)

In a square in Copenhagen—where else should such a thing happen? — there has appeared a fountain that spurts lemonade. A timely dispensation to this age — an age becoming more accustomed to measuring radiation at the scene of an H-bomb blast than to look for pots of gold at the ends of rainbows.

We shall not inquire too deeply into causes behind the appropriate phenomenon recently witnessed in Hans Christian Anderson's home town. They are causes benevolent toward children, and thus graced to be classified as "natural."

The point is that there could—be—such a fountain at all. The news will spread like wildfire among Copenhagen trails blazed by seekers of the Big Rock Candy Mountain. But a word of warning may be found.

Ponce de Leon did not find a fountain of youth by looking for it for himself. And the rock candy will always be in the next range over yonder for private prospectors.

Wonders such as a lemonade fountain always will be, when seen, because profound, sources: Here are:

1. A very comprehensive sense of what is important in life.

2. Certainly that it moments charged with beauty and love, for just whimsy and kindness, can advance mankind farther than decades of stolidity or indifference.

3. A surmise that giving children a thing to remember may be as durable an achievement as some great work of statecraft. Indeed, it may be do for children shapes tomorrow.

Secretaries Hard to Find

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Business executives in the United States are having difficulty in finding secretaries. Oddly enough, the low birth-rate of the 1930's is blamed for the dearth of supply. The women's bureau of the Labor Department states: "In 1950, there were about 19,000 fewer young women 20 to 24 years of age than there were in 1940, and approximately one million fewer girls 14 to 19 years of age. This means the supply of young women workers will be smaller than it was in the near future."

The figures were not enough to explain the current situation. It is to be noticed that the high marriage and birth-rate of recent years has further cut into the supply of women who want office work.

Proved Bears Can Eat a Lot

(Noir et Blanc, Paris)

The following dialogue is said to have occurred during a Bible lesson. It is to be noticed that the lesson was a feeling of repentance and then the children mocked him. A shameful thing."

The pastor was once even more meditation — then a little girl volunteered: "Yes, you know many children the stomachs of two bears can hold."

"Elijah," he said, "before going into the desert, you ate with the ravens." At the same instant two beams came out of the desert, two bears, who called the children and devoured 42 of them!"

There was a long silence, finally broken by the pastor, who asked: "And what does that prove?"

Another quiet pause, then: "It proves that you mustn't mock old men with bald heads."

But Can Diesel Make Pottery?

(Tracks)

Diesel locomotives may excel in many respects, but they can't beat the old steam engine for versatility. The Association of American Railroads has a list of "odd jobs for the iron horse," includes such variety as the making of spaghetti, paper and pottery, canning tomatoes and pasteurizing milk. In each case, factory owners had broken down and the time required for repairs meant workers would be laid off and perishables would spoil. Then the iron horse galloped to the rescue. Parked on a nearby siding, the engines' boilers were fired up and connected to the factory machinery. In short order, assembly lines were again producing edibles, paper to label them or dishes to eat them from.

Alcohol's Role In Accidents

(Chatham Daily News)

According to Prof. Joclyn Rogers, Toronto psychiatrist and consultant to the attorney general's department, alcohol is involved in approximately 50% of fatal and non-fatal traffic accidents in this province.

The same authority expresses the belief that it was to blame for between 200 and 400 of last year's 1,000 deaths on highways.

Professor Rogers discusses the matter, not as a temperance advocate, but as an analytical chemist, when he explains the effect of alcohol on the bloodstream.

"Alcohol produces a sense of confidence in one's ability as a driver — these are alcohol's fatal gifts to the motorist who, to already poor judgment, adds the 'drink before the wheel.'"

Professor Rogers should know—for he has been appearing in courts as an expert witness in such matters for 30 years. He should find most judges, magistrates or police officers.

What Happens To Time Saved?

(New York Herald-Tribune)

Daylight saving time arrived Sunday, as it always does, at an hour which found most of the citizens asleep and the rest in no condition to notice it. Besides, once the day dawned it turned out very conducive to pleasant thoughts of balmy summer evenings.

Still the fact remains that an hour was lost. The late Sunday sleeper who woke himself at what should have been 11 a.m.-found it was noon now, and the early riser who stirred at 7 discovered it was 8. This fleeting hour was lost by state law, but it served to remind a thoughtful few that it is lost throughout the year without any intercession by the duly constituted authorities.

There is, of course, some consolation in the thought that Sunday's lost hour is being held somewhere in trust for us, somewhat as a bank, for a return next autumn. This year it will not be restored until October 30, a week later than in the past, thanks to the President's plan to extend summer time as long as possible. Perhaps its added month in escrow will enable us to mature additionally, like a sound investment, or at least to accrue interest at a moderate rate. Just what return interest will be something not to be hazarded as of the misfold hours ever do make their way back to the safe and sound and full of sleep.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation in the weekly. These briefs are issued by the Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority is doing.

Did You Know That—Every spring, we waste the water of which we are in dire need during the summer. Let us take one example out of many thousands:

A check was made a few years ago on the West Humber River in the region of Woodbridge. It was found that from that month there was a rainfall of about 1½ inches. By noon of the 17th, water was flowing down the Humber at the rate of about 4,000 cubic feet per second.

At this rate, about only half of all the water fall on the river basin was in Lake Ontario within 12 hours. With proper conservation measures a large part of this water would have been stored for the summer months. At the end of September of the same year, instead of 4,000 cubic feet, there was less than one cubic foot a second passing the same point. This could be the Moira!

But that is not the whole story. An analysis of the water during the March flood showed that soil, much of it the precious topsoil of our farms, was being washed down the river at the rate of 2,700 tons an hour. Some ghastly figures, but they indicate that this need not occur in anything like the same degree if conservative conservation measures are practiced.

Personal Health Service

By DR. WM. BRADY

What No Mad Dog Scare This Spring?

Something I said here about maddog scares made a health commissioner in one city so mad, not to say rabid, that he jumped into print to deplore my dangerous teachings. I respect the man who has the courage of his convictions. The health commissioner not only had such courage, he submitted hospital reports of fifteen cases of what was diagnosed as rabies, and he even invited me to visit the health department laboratories where he showed me a rabbit with rabies. He explained that the rabbit had been inoculated with rabies virus and would die of rabies in (I forget just how many) days.

The good man seemed disappointed when I said, in other words, "So what?" But we parted amicably enough and he even gave me some information about new developments in other fields which I used in this column.

I know nothing about the commissioner's background or whether political preferences or training in the administration of public health brought about his appointment, but I regret the quarrelsome tone of some of his caustic accusations in this province. The same authority expresses the belief that it was to blame for between 200 and 400 of last year's 1,000 deaths on highways.

Professor Rogers discusses the matter, not as a temperance advocate, but as an analytical chemist, when he explains the effect of alcohol on the bloodstream.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PLEASE DON'T WORRY!

From earliest history, when a man worried about any too many people to present, he was considered a fool. Yet worry was there just the same! People have always worried, and probably always will, but it is the most useless habit that has been created. What did Alexander worry about, or Napoleon, or George Washington? Well, there is no account given in all that has been written about them—and so many famous ones.

You see, worry is something that can be smothered out of your life, and you are then happier, more efficient, and enjoy better health in body. I once suggested that if you have to worry you set a time during the week to do so, and then to clutter up the week and thus give you your full faculties for work and recreation.

For example, say that you will arrange to have as your worry hour each Friday at 6:30 p.m. and nothing taken notice during the week of things to worry about, submit them all at this hour and learn how wasteful and silly, as well as how useless, worry is.

So many people say that they try to worry, but they don't. Of course I would say: "don't worry. No one ever gains anything through worry. Worry does not add an ounce to our life! In the goodness of God, are you not glad you worry from your mind. We have all too many examples of the destructive power of worry, and the power of the immediately gain strength and confidence in dominating the affairs of people.

Worries don't worry. Rise above it! People who refuse to worry have so much more whole time in which to do the things they were created to do. Worry always creates a cloud. It worries the one who does so often kills the spirit of a person. Can you name any worry during the past year that was a great success? Think this over! Leave your worry business to some one who wants it!

Strength for the Day

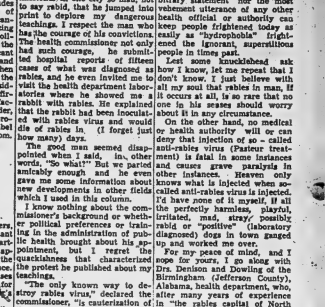
A TRANSFORMATION

"Why should I bother about religion?" a student asked, "my life is under control already. I know what I want, and I'm on the way to get it. I'm not like those people who need comfort. I'm satisfied with my life right now."

How would you answer the student's question? Perhaps it might be answered with the well-known story of the picture.



Once a rather rough, uncultured man saw a painting in the window of a shop. Ordinarily, he cared nothing for art, but this particular painting attracted him greatly. After walking by to see it many times, he finally bought it, took it home, and hung it in his room.

The next time he came home, he liked the picture even more. But he noticed how dirty the wall around it looked, so he painted his walls. Then the floor and ceiling looked so bad in comparison that he had them painted. The room redecorated, he realized for the first time how shabby his coat was; and when he had replaced that, of course it led to do something about his furniture too. And so it came about that the picture transformed the whole room and life.

That's the trouble with religion. It makes you dissatisfied with what you were satisfied with before.

But just ask the man with the picture if he would want to go back to his old room.

The Stolen Seal

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by David Ranson

If anyone should find the Great Seal of the Province of Prince Edward Island and return it to its rightful owners, the provincial government of Charlottetown, they will receive a reward of a thousand pounds sterling. They will also have the gratitude of the Prince Edward Islanders because until the Seal is found, it is forbidden ever to make a duplicate of it and the province must get along without the Great Seal which its governor used 180 years ago.

Prince Edward Island which is Canada's smallest province was called St. John's Island back in the year when the American Revolutionary War began. The capital city, Charlottetown, named after Queen Charlotte, had only 75 families and there were only a few more people living on farms and in other settlements. Certainly, these inhabitants had no thought of engaging in war with the Thirteen Colonies which had decided to break away from England and form a big new country of their own.

TWO ARMED BRIGS

Down in Philadelphia; however, the Continental Congress of the thirteen rebel colonies learned that two British brigs had sailed from England loaded with arms and stores for the defence of Quebec. The Congress sent instructions to General Washington to fit out two armed vessels to sail to the St. Lawrence to intercept the British ships. The Lynch, commanded by Captain Nicholas Broughton and carrying six guns, 10 swivels and 70 men, and the Franklin, commanded by Captain John Selamn, with four guns, 10 swivels and 60 men, were ordered to Canadian waters.

General Washington was as anxious as the Congress to seize the British ships but he warned his captains not to interfere with any Canadian shipping and to confine their activities to dealing with British who was the only enemy.

On Friday, November 17, 1775, however, the two vessels put in at the port of Charlottetown where Phillips Callbeck, the attorney general, was in command in the absence of Governor Patterson who was in England. Mr. Callbeck met Captain Selamn on the landing and gave him a civil reception but was ordered to go aboard the rebel ship and not to attempt to return to land. He was ordered to turn over the keys to his house, office and stores to his uninvited guests and soon a large assortment of the attorney general's goods were transported aboard ship.

OBLIGED TO PILLAGE

Mr. Wright, Surveyor General of the province, objected to the town being pillaged and soon joined Mr. Callbeck as a prisoner on board ship. Finally, from an office used by Governor Patterson, the rebels removed the Great Seal of the Province, which has never been seen since. Ninety years after, still seeking the seal the province offered the thousand pounds reward but it has not yet produced any information leading to its whereabouts.

The two ships sailed away with the Great Seal and three captives, Mr. Callbeck and Mr. Wright and a British army corporal who was acting as a recruiting officer. George Washington himself greeted the two officials with profuse apologies, had them immediately released and sent back home but nothing more was heard of their possessions, the recruiting officer or the Great Seal.

The loyal little colony, now a province of Canada, has had to get along without its original Great Seal ever since.

Molotov to Give Russia's Reply To Parley Call

VIENNA (AP)—Russia's V. M. Molotov, flying here for this weekend's historic Austrian treaty signing, was expected to tell the Western foreign ministers today how the Kremlin feels about top-level Big Four talks.

Western informants felt certain the Soviet diplomat would seek a different sort of conference than that envisaged by the West for the Big Four heads of state this July.

The informants said word has trickled out of Moscow that Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin:

1. Is ready to accept the principle of the Western call to explore new trials of negotiation in quest of peace.

2. Prefers something more comprehensive than the West's idea for a three- or four-day conference of the heads of government if they are to fulfill adequately the job of charting a course towards East-West understanding.

3. Intends to press demands that Red China be represented at such a conference.

WEST'S VIEWPOINT

The Western Allies sought to make clear today as clear to the Kremlin when they proposed the meeting earlier this week.

1. It was to be a short meeting.

2. The chiefs of government should themselves negotiate but merely direct their foreign ministers how and where to proceed toward the goal of easing East-West tensions.

3. The talks should relate primarily to Europe. Thus they hoped to sidestep the Red China issue.

WHEN THE BIRDS COME HOME

There is joy in my heart when the birds come home—
As they wend their way 'neath
the azure dome
I love the glint of their flashing wings,
And my heart responds to the songs they sing;
O'er field and fallow and fur-
rowed loam
I watch their flight when the birds come home.

There is cheer in my heart
when the birds come back,
As they wend their way o'er the
airy track,
For the songs they sing drive
the gloom away
And the memory drear of a winter's day;
And my spirit soars as on wings
to roam
In that glad hour when the birds come home.

There's new life in my soul when the birds return,
Their presence answers my spir-
it's yearn;
And faith returns, as the morning light
To dispel the fear and the gloom
of night;
I can trust His care, who o'er
land and foam
Guides, their weary flight when the birds come home.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON.—The birds are back ,not the large company that gladdened the summer at my home at Consecon Lake, but the robins and the wrens and the purple martins and the orioles are here. And how busily they work preparing their summer homes!

For Parents Only

Love Cements Happy Home

By NANCY CLEAVER

Is there any better question for a father and mother to ask each other at the beginning of a new Family Week than: "What kind of atmosphere is there in your home?"

Of course your family has its ups and downs, the children have their rivalries and quarrels, but is there a bed rock of real affection between the members of your household? As parents, do you place a priority on encouraging the growth of understanding, consideration and sympathy in yourselves and your children?

What are some of the plans by which parents can do their part to provide a home which has a fine atmosphere? We think in terms of sufficient income to provide for the necessities and perhaps a few of the luxuries of life. Mother's mind naturally turns to an attractive, orderly home, where there is warmth and shelter, good food and adequate clothing for every member in the family. But what of the spiritual qualities which produce a strong family bond?

INTANGIBLE THING

First and most important of all is the relationship between the father and the mother and each child in the household. The presence or absence of that intangible thing called love makes all the difference between a happy or an unhappy home. Love is the cement which binds all the members of a family together. The Old Testament writer points out that God hath set the solitary in families. Is your family in its loving atmosphere fulfilling the purpose of the Great Creator?

A medical adviser at a large Juvenile Court said recently, "I have yet to meet a boy or girl in trouble with the law who came from an united, harmonious family circle."

These are plain words from an authority who sees the heartache and waste which result in adolescence from homes which are not home in the true sense. The right kind of family attitudes are more important to the building of character than a new TV set, a "frost freeze," an electric refrigerator, or any other material possessions in homes.

TRAGEDY OF CHILD

An unhappy home atmosphere is hard enough for the husband and wife, but it is stark tragedy for the child. Take a scene in a modern home where mother and dad have quarrelled. Heated words have passed between them and now the hatred in his chief is the living room angry and moody. A few feet away, the wife is on the chesterfield. Her manner is aloof, indignant, pitying herself.

But what of small Junior, who has overheard the disagreement and now squats on the carpet gazing with wide eyes first at his face at his dad?

He is just a little chap and his parents make up his small world. If there is disharmony between them, one of his most precious possessions, his sense of security is shattered. He cannot understand this dispute, but he can feel the hostility between his mother and dad.

It is little wonder that the terror he feels over his parents' quarrel is carried from daytime to deep time. In the middle of the night, the household is awakened by Junior's screams.

CYNICAL ABOUT LOVE

In later years when Junior is old enough to start a new home, because of his own background, he may be cynical about love and marriage and believe it is a case of plunge." If he does marry, his chances of happiness are less than if he had grown up in an united happy home. Statistics show that "history tends to repeat itself" in the pattern of married life.

How different if he comes in another household where after supper, dad joins in a romp with little daughter! Tommy's hobbies have been playing with his blocks, looks up and laughs at their fun. Mother is enjoying the family frolic too.

Tommy knows Dad will give him a ride on his back when his turn comes. He has no reason to be jealous of little sister. No favoritism is shown in this household. That night Tommy goes to bed tired, but happy. Before he climbs into bed he can echo Christopher Robin's words: "Thank You God for a lovely day."

Does your little child end his day with a prayer on his lips? Do you? Dr. Frank Laubach, the famous world educationist, has called Prayer—"The Mightiest Force in the World." Is it at work in your family? It can do wonders in the atmosphere of your home if you will only give it a chance!

Going Places

Auto Packing Is Really Easy

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Packing for an auto trip is a little different—and, happily, a little easier than loading up for other kinds of journeys.

For once you can take an abundance of most of the things you'll need, assuming your car is larger than an MG. The trick is not to try to limit yourself, as it is in other packing schemes, but to cover the edges of the window, but we've found these tend to clip the window but they are a little difficult to install and complicate lowering the window. Still another is a sort of rack extending across the car, but these are expensive, hard to fit, and unnecessarily fancy.

DON'T BLOCK VIEW

If you have a convertible, the cross-braces in the back should hold the weight of all your clothes without damage to the frame, but make sure you don't block your rear window view.

An inexpensive garment bag is a handy investment and will allow you to group all your hanging clothes under one hook. It will also allow you to lay such clothes flat in the trunk without danger of wrinkling. The only drawback is that you'll have to bring it to whole business into the room every night, even if it contains only one item you want to change to.

On the other hand, that's not such a bad idea, since hanging clothes hanging in full view in your car encourages thieves, should you have to leave it parked somewhere out of your sight and reach.

As for what goes into the suitcases, try to have your belongings separated in terms of how often you'll need them.

For instance, you'll want one outfit with full clothes, since changes of underclothes, hose, and shirts, which you'll need in your room every night.

STOW AWAY NON-ESSENTIALS

Then if you're headed, say, for a few days at a resort at the end of your trip, the suitcase containing dress shirts, swim suits, beach wear and other exercise accessories, can remain in the trunk until you get where you're going.

Some things are best not packed at all, but just left on the car seat or rear shelf—tissue handkerchiefs, disposable diapers, rainwear, and other things that may have to be reached in a hurry and with a minimum of inconvenience.

Don't forget to start making a list of the items you think you'll need some time before starting your trip, and check everything off as it goes into the suitcase or the car.

A small portable electric iron (any hotel or motel will loan you an ironing board) is a good idea if you'll be traveling with your husband or shirts or if unexpected wrinkles develop in other togs.

WAS POET'S GRANDDAUGHTER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Alice A. Throp, 67, granddaughter of poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, died Friday at her home. Her mother, the late Annie Longfellow Throp, was the youngest daughter of the famed American poet and the "singing Alice" of his poem "The Children's Hour."

Y's Menettes Hold Attractive Mother-Daughter Banquet

Last evening approximately 150 attended the 'Mother and Daughter' banquet at the YMCA, under the auspices of the Y's Menettes club, and enjoyed a bounteous repast of good things, bearing out the motto "Every man should eat and drink and be merry, for that is all labor; it is the gift of God."—Ecclesiastes.

The tables, which occupied the assembly room, were tastefully appointed with white cloths, and centred by lilacs and vari-colored tulips. A long ribbon band of blue and red, emblematic colors of the YMCA extended lengthwise along each.

Miss Lynne Fuzzen gave the invocation, and following the dinner a sing-song, under the leadership of Bill Campbell, with Miss Mary Loy Tobin, as pianist, was a fitting prelude for the fine program which followed.

GUEST WELCOMED

The guests were graciously welcomed by Mrs. Vernon Weir, president of the Y's Menettes and Jack Dickens, member of Physical Education committee, of the YMCA, and Mr. C. F. Williams, president of the Board of Directors, of the Y'ales brought greetings.

A delightful reading was given by Miss Judy Mott, of Radio Vaudeville.—

The toast to the mothers was given by Miss Elaine Yorke, to which Mrs. Fred Beeby replied.

AWARDS PRESENTED

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of awards by the attendance, which those for special attainments. "Those receiving attendance awards, presented by Mrs. Vernon Weir, one of the YMCA class leaders, assisted by Mrs. John Fletcher, of Y's Menettes, were: Prep Class. Marina Bongard, Julia Bradford, Stephanie Dafoe, Donna Matthews, Linda Whalen, Lynda Deweever, Jânie Gill, Joyce White, Elsie Yorke, Helen McArthur, Elizabeth Linscott, Linda Stalker, Sharon Heath, Jane Scott, and Suzanne Palmer.

Those receiving the awards for Juniors were: Mary Vechter, Maurie Knowlton, Kitty Jenkins, Marie McCormick, Susie Mussley, and Judith Scott. These awards were presented by Eleanor Clarke, leader, assisted by Mrs. D. Moorman, Y's Menettes.

Grand International Auxiliary Sponsors Pretty Spring Tea

Bright blue skies, warm sunshine, stately elms and gently sloping lawns added their quota yesterday afternoon in making a lovely atmosphere for the tea sale of home-cooking held at the home of Mrs. D. C. Fisher, 35 Turnbull street, sponsored by the Grand International Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The rooms were prettily adorned with white lilacs, mauve, yellow and rose colored tulips, and little pots of African violets in shades of pink and purple.

The guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. D. Fisher and Mrs. A. W. Buck, whose cordial welcomes were most cheering.

UNIQUE LOVELY CENTREPIECE

The tea table with its white damask cloth was centred by a unique and lovely arrangement of four tall and stately pink candles in silver holders, in single file, bordered on either side by 12 fragrant, feathery sprays of pink carnations tied with pink satin baby ribbon and backgrounded by feathery sprays of asparagus fern.

Those who presided at the services were, Mrs. H. Drury and Mrs. P. Kerr; Mrs. R. Taylor and Mrs. G. Kerr; Mrs. J. Mc-Culloch and Mrs. W. Morgan. Those who served were: Mesdames Mc. of Grey, Mrs. A. Clarke, Mrs. A. Vanstone; Mrs. M. Boyd; Mrs. M. Quirt, Mrs. C. Conover, Mrs. A. Cunningham, Mrs. E. Pigden, Mrs. N. Bird, Mrs. M. Talbert.

Mrs. M. Petty and Mrs. R. Jones replenished the trays of sandwiches and cakes, as the time while making tea and looking after the cups and saucers were Mrs. S. Maxwell, Mrs. J. McCormick and Mrs. J. Van Allen. Mrs. D. Welch was treasurer.

A bountifully laden home-cooking table was in charge of Mrs. J. Kilfedder, Mrs. J. Avery, and Mrs. W. Hammett. Here were tarts, chocolate cakes, cup cakes, pies: lemon and apple; date bread, and cookies, all mouth-watering and finding ready purchasers. Besides these there was a dream of an angel cake with layers of cream holding between the luscious sections, a delicious filling. This was and covered with whipped cream; its top gaily decorated with red candy cherries and citron. The work of art would go to the holder of the lucky ticket, who was Mrs. J. Avery, Benjamin street.

Mrs. N. Fisher and Mrs. F. Jerome were the conveners to whom much credit and commendation for a pretty tea, splendidly convened and pleasingly successful.

"CONSIDER THE LILIES"

The May-day sky was cloudy,
The wind blew sharp and cold,
And the frost laid icy fingers
On lowland and on hill.

And into the weary sick-room
Crept no ray of dancing light,
Tho' the heart with lonely longing
Yearned for the springtime bright.

But the gloom was suddenly
Enlightened—
A bunch of lilies white
Fresh from the wilds of the woodland
Now bursts upon the sight.

The pure and milk-white blossoms
So stately, sweet and fair,
Bringing the breath of spring-time—
A boon beyond compare.

And 'round the milk-white petals
Thronged memories of a wood-land wild,
A wood where the bright May blossoms
Were plucked by a little child.

And the four walls could no longer
Shut out the voice of spring,
For the heart was away in the greenwood
Where birds were carolling.

For the flowers had brought the springtime
And eased the pain away,
And the spirit of spring was luring
To the blossom land of May.

And hope, once more arisen
Shed broad its rays of light,
Because the lilies white lily
Had braved a winter's night.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TRY "DOING," AS WELL AS "SEEING"!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm having trouble. I can always meet nice boys, I know what to say and how to act, and the boys are always friendly. But they never ask me for a date. There is one boy in particular I would like very much to go out with, but I can't just tell him I wish he would take me somewhere, so how could I go about it? We are very good friends, and I always have something to say to him.

My mother has told me just to be my own sweet self" when I go him, and to make him want to get better acquainted with me. Well, I am "my own sweet self," and it hasn't done me any good yet. What more can I do? — Sandy

Dear Sandy:

Your mother's advice is good. It's always better for a girl just to be natural, than to try to be something she isn't but feels might be more glamorous.

However, sometimes it helps to "do" something as well as just "be" something, and what you might do would be to get up a party and invite this boy to come. For example, you might get together with your girl friends and suggest that you have a going-to-be-movies party to which each girl would invite a boy. You might arrange for you all to go to some one of your homes, after the movie, for refreshments and dancing. Or you could just have a party at your own house, ask each girl to bring a boy and invite this one yourself. Another possibility might be that some school event will be coming along to which it would be natural for you to invite a boy.

Think all these over, and then decide which of them you feel would be most workable. For my part, I like the movie party idea best.

HE TALKS BEHIND HER BACK, YET SHE ASKS IF HE LIKES HER

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a boy I have gone with for five months who says he loves me, and I know I love him. Yet he talks about me behind my back. Do you think he really loves me? He never goes out with any other girl.

You may think I'm too young to know if he loves me, but I'm nearly 16, and I know I do love him. — Judy M.

Dear Judy:

If you really were old enough to know about love, don't you think you'd realize that a boy who talks about a girl behind her back hasn't any sincere affection for her? I think you're making a mistake to take this boy seriously.

If you want to go out with him now and then, all right. But you'd better be careful what you say and do when you're with him, or you may find it all coming back to you from other sources as the result of his gossiping.

The best advice I can give you is that you find a boy friend who is more reliable than this one.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I am a young farmer's wife and enjoy your column. . . read recipes by the hour and wish I had more time to try out all the new ones . . . I tried your Moist Chocolate Cake but it still wasn't as moist and dark as some I've seen, tho' better than any I've tried so far. Do you have a recipe for a good chocolate icing — the real dark, glossy kind? . . . I would also like a recipe for tomato and butterscotch (the kind you can buy in the thin, round brittle pieces). I tried your Superior Pancakes and they really were superior! I also tried adding beaten egg to my whole wheat bread after I read it in your column and think it makes nicer textured bread that doesn't crumble and fall apart when a few days old. Can you tell me how to make bread and buns that stay nice and crusty? . . . Would you have a recipe for a tomato sauce which could be made in large amount and perhaps canned, to use for spaghetti, meat balls, meat loaf, casserole dishes. We like it over hash too and in pork and beans. Have you a recipe for pork and beans in tomato sauce similar to what you buy? . . . my biggest problem is getting variety on a limited budget and using up leftovers . . . such as one chop, a small piece of steak or fish, or liver or meatball. What can I do with such little dabs . . . we do our own butchering so can choose what we want for meals from soup-bone to steak or pork hocks to ham . . . when I get 1-2 to 1 lb. good hamburg or ground beef and when the vegetables are nearly done make the hamburg into tiny round meat balls and add to the soup. These are made by adding an egg, some flour, seasoning and finely chopped onion to the meat. I think this way of making soup is Scandinavian (we are of Danish parentage) and it is very good . . . Do you have a recipe for stuffed, baked fish?—Mrs. O. M.

ANSWER:

We you doubtless know I used your recipe for Apple Cake April 27.

GLOSSY CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Melt together gently 4 tablespoons shortening and 4 squares (4 oz.) unsweetened chocolate. Blend in exactly 2 2-3 cups sifted icing sugar, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-3 measuring tablespoons milk, 1 1-4 teaspoons vanilla. Beat until it becomes smooth and glossy and thick enough to spread. One-half cup chopped nuts is a good addition.

TOFFEE

Candy thermometer is a "must". Two cups brown sugar, 1-3 cup butter, 4 tablespoons lemon juice. Heat sugar, butter and lemon juice over moderate heat and stir until sugar dissolves. Boil without stirring till temperature reaches 250 deg. Fahr. Butter a square pan well and pour in toffee. Mark in squares before cold.

BUTTERSCOTCH BRITTLE

One cup water, 1 1-3 cups brown sugar, 1 tablespoons butter. Boil together until the syrup becomes brittle when dropped into cold water (275 deg. Fahr.) Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla (1 teaspoon) just before pouring into pans.

MOIST BREAD

When loaves or buns are shaped last time brush them with cold water and let stand 1 1-2 hours until risen. Brush again with cold water and bake 10 minutes in hot oven of 425 deg. Fahr. Remove from oven and brush again with cold water. Reduce temperature to 375 deg. Fahr. and bake 10 minutes more. Remove from oven and brush again. Sprinkle with sesame or poppyseeds if desired at this stage. Continue baking 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown.

for Tuesday, the seventh of June

2. No. Attend only the reception if you wish . . . it is not necessary for you and your husband to attend the church ceremony.

3. As soon as you conveniently can, send the wedding present to the bride, addressed to her home. It is usually most convenient to have it wedding-gift wrapped and sent from the store where you buy it.

BOTH BRIDE-TO-BE AND GROOM-TO-BE ARE DIVORCED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon for the second time. Both my husband-to-be and I have been divorced. We are going to be married in church. Would it be proper to have a reception for our relatives and friends later in the evening? If so, what sort of invitation would we send. — A.C.

Yes; after your small, informal wedding, it would be proper for you to have an informal gathering to receive the friendly greetings and best wishes of your relatives and friends. It would be an excellent idea, if possible for you to have this in your home. You would invite the guests verbally or by telephone, or by notes.

WHO PAYS JACKET-RENTAL?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Who pays for the rental of the white jackets that the men are to wear at the wedding? — M.W.

Each of the groom's attendants . . . the best man and the ushers . . . pay for the rental of the white jacket he wears at the wedding.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

PROMINENT COLLAR BONES

According to today's figure standards, the feminine shape must be trim and neat, vibrant and alive, graceful and strong. It is expressive of the woman of the moment, who is active and capable.

There must be no surplus adipose tissue. There must be no display of sharp angles. The skinny girl is as much out of form as the one who is overweight.

Normal measurements are essential for style. Fashion is a powerful influence, as inspiration to the fat and the thin to cultivate proportions and lines that will make them pretty clothes-carriers.

It is easier to put on curves than to take them off, so the problems of the emaciated young lady are simple compared to the one who is a scales Crusher. Usually she is coup-active, doesn't get enough sleep, is a finicky eater. She may fancy that she can live on a lettuce leaf a day but, if she wants to cease her lamentations and realize that her beauty problems are of her own making.

In order to be healthy, in high spirits, to have a pretty complexion and a figure which fits in with present day standards, one should consume a variety of foods to supply all the various elements, including vitamins and mineral salts, are needed.

A quart of rich milk a day is what the doctor would order if our feather-weight were to go to him for help. Milk is not just a beverage; it is a food, containing many elements necessary for well being.

The diet should include more butter, cream soups, cereals, fruit juices, vegetables and, of course, meat and eggs for protein. It is not how much the thin girl eats to cultivate better dimensions, but what kind of food.

Her pet peeve may be prominent collar bones. These may not be due to emaciation, but to poor posture. She need not have them.

Let her pull up her spinal column, keep her chest lifted, and this defect will disappear. Arm swinging exercises will strengthen and develop chest muscles, and the bones will do a fadeaway.

CWL—Worldwide Lay Movement Founded on Charity and Loyalty

The Catholic Women's League of Canada is a unique lay movement with the initiative coming from its members.

The Catholic Women's League originated in England. Miss Margaret Fletcher, a convert to Catholicism, banded together a group of Catholic women in the spirit of charity, work and loyalty, to promote religious and intellectual interests as well as social endeavors.

The League, as it is familiarly known among its members, is today spread throughout the English-speaking world.

Formation of the League in Canada took place in Montreal in 1920. A sub-division was formed in Belleville in the autumn of 1921 with Rev. Charles Killeen as director. Miss Helena Lynch was the first president and Mrs. A. N. McLellan, the first recording secretary.

THREE SUB-DIVISIONS

Today, three Belleville sub-divisions of the Catholic Women's League, with a combined membership of 602.

January 24, 1954, was a red letter day for St. Michael's sub-division of the League as it took part in the observance of two new sub-divisions in the parishes of Queen of the Most Holy Rosary and St. Joseph.

Rev. J. J. Buckley was named director of the St. Joseph's sub-division with Mrs. H. Carr-Brainf elected president and Mrs. J. H. Lawn elected recording secretary.

That same day Rev. Michael Simmon was named director of the Holy Rosary sub-division. Mrs. A. Ryan was elected president and Mrs. W. Smith, recording secretary.

Canadian interest in the Catholic Women's League dates back to 1910, just four years after the formation of the first sub-division in England.

In 1910, at the Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, His Eminence Cardinal Bourne, spoke in suitable terms of its possibilities but though interest was aroused, nothing was done about it for some years.

True, in 1912, Edmonton established a local society, which they called Catholic Women's League, at the suggestion of Rev. Abbe Casgrain and Miss Catherine Hughes, both of whom had known the CWL in England in operation.

True, also that Montreal in 1917, Toronto and Ottawa in 1918, Halifax, Regina and Sherbrooke in 1919, organized individually and locally, using the same name Catholic Women's League.

In 1919, Montreal and Toronto began to think on national lines. Toronto had some correspondence on the subject with Miss Margaret Fletcher and sent out a letter to certain members of the Canadian Hierarchy seeking approval.

Montreal CWL having been in communication over a period of time with Halifax, Ottawa, Sherbrooke and Regina—(encouraging them to carry on the League in those cities) began to discuss national organization with them.

NO REPRESENTATION

About the same time, Mrs. H. R. Knell, who had been a resident of Edmonton, and knew the League there, was in Ottawa with the Women's Division of the Canadian Immigration Department. In connection with her work, Mrs. Knell noted the absence of Catholic representation on the Board of her Division. Taking up the question with the late Hon. C. J. Doherty, then a Cabinet Minister, Mrs. Knell had to admit the lack of any Catholic Women's organization equipped for national work. The Hon. Mr. Doherty deplored the fact, and Mrs. Knell, seeking action, took her story to Montreal.

With Miss Guerin, president of the Montreal CWL, and a member of the executive, the situation was discussed.

Thus, circumstance on circumstance—all pointing to the need of a national body. Montreal on March 19, 1920 (St. Joseph's Day), sent out an invitation to the cities having League organization and several other centres with flourishing Catholic Women's Societies (notably Hamilton, St. Catharines and St. John, N.B.) couched in the following words and signed by Margaret Jones, Hon. Corresponding Secretary, Montreal, CWL—

"Believing that the time has come here in Canada, when a thorough organization of Catholic Women power would be of immense and far reaching value to the cause of our sex at large and to the church in particular, we, the executive of the Catholic Women's League of Montreal, extend to you a cordial invitation to consider the possibilities of federating all existing CWL organizations, with a view to so standardizing our aims and objects, that we may become a real power for good, causing branches to spring up in every city and town of the Dominion.

"To do this would necessitate a meeting of representatives from the different centres. We, therefore, respectfully offer the hospitality of our city for such a gathering, as pioneers of the CWL movement in Eastern Canada, we feel the responsibility of pressing upon you the urgency of the matter."

KEENLY INTERESTED

His Grace, Most Rev. Neil McNeil, D.D. Archbishop of Toronto, who was from the first keenly interested in the project was requested to honor the conference with his distinguished patronage. At his suggestion, a letter inviting CWL groups throughout Canada to meet in our city to discuss our common aims and objects, namely:

"To unite all Catholic Women in a bond of common fellowship for the promotion of religious and intellectual interests and social work.

"To foster among Catholics a right public opinion on questions of the day.

"The betterment of Catholic action.

"Social harmony among Catholics. Do pray your Excellency's blessing upon the undertaking."

(Signed)—Bellelle Smith, Margaret Fortier, Agnes Burry, Margaret Jones.

In his reply His Excellency assured Montreal of his good wishes.

His Grace, Archbishop Brunchesi of Montreal, had from the moment of the establishment of the CWL in Montreal in 1917, given it his paternal sanction—and now extends his earnest support to the project of national organization.

LEAGUE FORMED

June 16-17-18, 1920, were the red letter days on which League came into national being —and the women, whose names should be inscribed on our Foundation Tablets, were:

Miss Bellelle Guerin, Mrs. H. R. Knell, Miss Gertrude Lawlor, M.A., president of the Toronto League, Mrs. W. H. Lovering, president, Hamilton, Catholic Women's Guild, Mrs. Heliodore Lavigne, Montreal, Mrs. F. Rafferty, then of Ottawa, Mrs. W. A. Kavanagh and Mrs. Kendleton, Toronto, Mrs. C. J. Hagarty, president, CWL Halifax, Mrs. W. H. Mulvena, president, CWL Sherbrooke, Mrs. E. J. Duggan, Regina; Mrs. J. W. Owens, St. John, N.B., Mrs. Walter Armstrong, Mrs. D. P. McKenna, Ottawa and Miss Margaret Jones, Montreal.

Miss Guerin was appointed organizing chairman of the conference—and in her address of welcome, she spoke words that were, "we may be said to be laying the cornerstone of an edifice that will arise fair and beautifully strong and proud before the eyes of the world. Shoulder to shoulder, heart to heart, let us go from this first conference bound by a solidarity that nothing can break, gentlewomen, but brave soldiers—ready aloft our banner of patriotism to our beloved country—and our inviolable fidelity to our glorious faith."

The agenda was very comprehensive—including discussions on constitution, incorporation, finance, headquarters, magazine, immigration, organization films.

AGREEMENT REACHED

The constitution provided the most heated arguments—as was only natural—but finally a workable constitution was reached and a set of by-laws in temporary form accepted. Strangely enough, the tentative plan, formulated then, has stood the test of years, with only slight modifications. The present structure of the League was outlined—a national body with diocesan and local groups—it being realized that the ecclesiastical divisions of territory by dioceses would play an important part in the work of organization. Here also, the idea of one voting delegate for each diocese originated, in order that all dioceses, large and small, should have equal rights.

The word sub-division was strongly advocated by Miss Lawlor and finally accepted.

The per capita national fee of ten cents was also adopted then.

Elected to the first national board at the close of the conference were president, Miss Bellelle Guerin, Montreal; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. J. Doherty, Ottawa; 2nd vice-president, Miss Gertrude Lawlor, Toronto; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. E. J. Owens, St. John, N.B.; honorary secretary, Mrs. Walter Armstrong, Ottawa; honorary treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Lovering, Hamilton. Councillors: Mrs. H. Fortier, Montreal; Mrs. W. A. Kavanagh, Toronto; Mrs. J. C. Hagan, Halifax; Mrs. W. H. Mulvena, Sherbrooke; Miss Margaret Jones, Montreal; Mrs. E. J. Duggan, Regina; Mrs. Howard Thompson, Edmonton; Mrs. H. Kendleton, Toronto.

Mrs. R. H. Knell, Ottawa, was appointed organizing secretary.

Of this conference, the honorary secretary, Mrs. Walter Armstrong in her first annual report wrote:

"In future years, when Canadian history shall be written I like to think that the Catholic Women's League of Canada will be an organization of such tremendous force and power, from its birth in the City of Churches, in June 1920, will be chronicled among leading events."

Undoubtedly the women who sat in at this meeting were the founders of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

CUT PAINTING TIME IN HALF!
TITAN WHITE
ONE COAT HOUSE PAINT

A beautiful white—a brand new paint, Lowe Brothers TITAN WHITE has extra high Titanium content that actually gives it the hiding power of two coats of normal paint over previously painted surfaces. No need now for those high repainting estimates. You can do the job yourself simply by cleaning the surface and brushing on one coat of TITAN WHITE, saving half the time and labour expense of normal 2-coat repainting. And TITAN WHITE's new warm tone contrasts attractively with harsh, stark whites.

SELF-CLEANING . . . STAYS WHITE

Season after season Titan White retains its original beauty and whiteness. Microscopic particles of paint film are gradually washed away by rain, carrying with them surface dirt and grime. A controlled chalking process ensures that only enough of the paint film is washed away to keep the surface free of dirt . . . the surface is still adequately protected for the life of the paint film. The gradual wearing away of the paint film keeps the surface smooth and free from cracks and pucks . . . eliminates burdensome surface preparations before eventual repainting.

$8.30 PER GAL.

WHAT'S BEST FOR YOU... ONE COAT or TWO?

If you are painting over previously painted surfaces in fair condition, one coat of TITAN WHITE will give completely satisfactory hiding and surface protection. When painting new wood or badly weathered surfaces Titan White or Lowe Brothers High Standard House Paint should be used over a coat of 260 Primer. This provides scientific protection by means of 'controlled penetration'. The specially compounded oils in the 260 Primer seal all porous surfaces, whether wood, brick, concrete or plaster — penetrating the immediate sub-surface just far enough to ensure firm anchorage of the prime coat. Enough oil is left on the surface to form a tough, elastic film, providing an ideal foundation for the finish coat and preventing its essential oils from being absorbed.

Ex-Canadian Runs World's Largest Municipal Hospital

By JACK WEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—To run the world's largest municipal hospital system, New York City for the past year has relied on a stocky, 5ft.-6-pound ex-Canadian.

Dr. Basil Clarendon MacLean, 60, born in Oshawa, Ont., and a former medical superintendent of Montreal General Hospital, is New York's commissioner of hospitals.

Thirty-five thousand department employees call him boss. He administers an annual budget of $125,000,000 and is completing a $200,000,000 building program.

GLORIFIED SHEPHERD

A big, bulking man whose robust appearance belies the fact he once was laid low by tuberculosis, Dr. MacLean describes his job as the job of the hospital organization as "a sort of glorified shepherd."

"All my days have been spent by the sheep dogs," he said in an interview. Only he considered, he's so busy that it has taken him almost a year to get out to visit all 14 of the hospitals containing about 30,000 beds under his jurisdiction.

Dr. MacLean came to the 825,000-a-year job from Rochester, N.Y., where for 19 years he was director of the Strong Memorial Hospital. A U.S. citizen since 1938, he was born in Oshawa, native country through hospital consultative services in such cities as Saint John, Toronto, Montreal, Regina and Saskatoon. He is married to a Canadian, the former Caroline Davis of Morris Heights, Que.

New York has found Dr. MacLean a tough administrator, ready to fight for his policies. For one thing, he has followed a non-political policy in new municipal hospital construction, advocating relatively larger grants to better-managed voluntary institutions. This aroused considerable opposition.

CLOSED TB HOSPITALS

"It was necessary for municipal hospitals to concentrate on caring for chronic drum-beaters and professional goofballs who demanded and, in effect, were provided literally in their backyards," he said.

Recently Dr. MacLean closed three tuberculosis hospitals. "This was possible partly because TB now can be treated without putting the patient between white sheets," he explained.

Dr. MacLean himself was stricken by TB while at McGill University.

"I had the works—lethargy—and everything," he recalled. "It seem to have had its right idea, though. After getting out of bed I took a wireless course and went to sea for four years as a radio officer. Being on board ship getting well fed everyday, proved good medicine."

His health restored, he returned to McGill to resume his medical studies and graduated in 1926.

OPEN NURES' HOME

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Louis O. Breithaupt, wife of Ontario's lieutenant-governor Thursday night officially opened the new six-storey nurses' residence, Women's College Hospital. The $1,250,000 structure is named for L. C. Breithaupt, chairman of the committee which in 1953 raised $4,150,000 for expansion and modernization of facilities at the hospital.

HEADS HOSPITALS

Dr. Basil Clarendon MacLean, 60, a native of Oshawa, Ont., is commissioner of hospitals for New York City.

Dr. MacLean, six-foot-two and weighing 225 lbs., boosts the largest municipal hospital system in the world. The department has 30,000 employees and administers 34 hospitals containing some 30,000 beds. (CP photo).

25 Naval Ships Will Take Part In Manoeuvres

OTTAWA (CP)—At least 25 ships Provincial Police Friday started ing from cruisers to patrol craft, will engage in this year's summer training program in the Atlantic, Pacific and Great Lakes.

An estimated 7,000 officers and men of the regular and reserve forces will participate, the navy said today.

At least 1,500 reservists from Canada's 22 naval divisions are expected to report to the Great Lakes training centre at Hamilton this summer. They will receive training in the largest number of ships yet assembled by the RCN on the Great Lakes.

These will include the coastal escorts Wallaceburg, Portage and Minas, coastal minesweepers Gaspe, Trinity, Ungava and Resolute, gate vessels Forte Saint Jean, Forte Saint Louis and Forte Dauphine, and five Fairmile class patrol craft.

OMISSION IS COSTLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Omission of the four-letter word "same" from a section of the income tax act has cost the government $111,496. The income tax appeal board Thursday allowed a company its claim that it was over-taxed that amount in 1951 because them business" was written into a section of the Income Tax Act whereas in the old regime "for the purpose of" section read "the same business."

Little Benny's Note Book

We had pancakes for Saturday breakfist, and ma was making more of them, and I was helping her, and I called to her, Hay ma, what time is it on there exactly?

Ten after 8, ma said, and pritty soon I called to her again. What time is it now, ma?

I just told you for land sakes, 10 after eight, ma said, and I said, Well heck, ma, good night, it cant keep on staying 10 minutes after 8.

Oh all right, ma says, it's not half minutes after 8 to the exact dot, ma said, and I said, Why all this feverish intrist in the time?

It's important, I said, and after a while I said, Now it is 10 to a quarter after 8 now, ma!

That is a mistake, ma said, and I said, Heck, half a minute, I got to telefone.

And I quick ran to the telefone and came right back again, saying, The number was busy.

Well for Peet sake why didn't you wait a minute and try again, ma said, if it's so importanti? pop said, and I said, I'm satisfied.

Hah! pop said, and ma said, Now does that make sense?

Sure, ma, me and Puds are the only 2 secret members of the Forin Intrigers, and we made it up to telefone each other at exactly a quarter passed 8 by the electric clocks in our bedrooms, so we would both hear the bizzy sound at the same time for a secret signal, and it worked perfect, I said.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, Such a boy.

Meening me.

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP) — The United States army has abolished all speed limits for private cars of American servicemen and army civilian employees in West Germany. The move resulted from Bonn's recently granted West German sovereignty last week. This requires U. S. forces to comply with German traffic laws—which have no speed limits.

Garden Notes

Potpourri for May

By DORA M. SAVILLE

At this time of the year garden chores seem more than we can handle. Planting, transplanting, pruning, digging and a dozen other jobs demand instant attention. It is difficult to decide which is the most important.

One of the first items to take care of is spraying, or dusting. Even this early bugs, beetles, and moths are getting in their deadly work. I found that new leaves of broccoli and radishes were riddled with tiny holes.

If you have not bought pest control this year look for new ones which contain lindane, malathion, or chlordane. These also take care of dane-leshake mixtures.

The department of agriculture has found that the average farm home has about one half acre in kitchen garden and that most of these gardens will cost around $34.90. From this crops are in the gardener will have garnered about $163 worth of vegetables. That means he will get back about $4.75 in produce for every dollar he put in. Gardening can be a profitable, as well as healthy pastime.

KEEP SURFACE MOIST

When you sow annuals work in a good fertilizer or some complete plant food. Cover the seed very lightly. Sprinkle lightly each day. If necessary to keep the surface from drying out, and inhibiting germination.

After the plants have their second pair of leaves or a little later you can thin them out and add more soil around them to conserve the moisture. Never allow the soil to become crusted. Keep it worked up as it penetrates to plant roots. They need air as well as moisture to function. This applies to zinnias, marigolds, cornflowers etc.

A 2-4-D spray on the lawn will keep those dandelions from going to seed. The new garden vigoro or lawn seed not be raked, or watered in.

This is the time to transplant delphiniums. You can divide t h e plants and increase your display. Be sure to work in a little ground limestone with the balanced fertilizer.

Established perennials will put on a better show if fertilizer is worked in around them while they are forming their flower buds. If rain is lacking water them well.

NIP LATERAL BUDS

Large blooms take plenty of moisture. Begin feeding peonies and plant food as soon as the first sized blossoms. Nip off the lateral buds. They seldom amount to anything, but do take nourishment from the other buds.

If you have snapdients, coleus, or begonias as house plants break them back. Root the cuttings in vermiculite, or sharp sand, or water. All three of these root quickly. You will soon have sturdy small plants to set out in the border.

Have you sprayed, cultivated, and fed your roses? They are hungry after a long winter rest, and their big season is approaching, so care for them well and they will reward you as an hundred fold.

It will soon be time to put the house plants out for the summer. It is a good time to repot since the soil may be low in nutrients. Before re-potting scrub all pots to remove salts collected from soil and plant foods. Soak the pots and remove residue with steel wool. Provide semi shade for most house plants which are put out for the summer. Dig put a hole and sink the pot level with the soil surface. This will conserve moisture.

The best way to avoid weeding under evergreens and shrubs is to mulch them so heavily that weeds can not grow.

PICKEREL SEASON

This morning life insurance on pickerel came into effect. And if pre-season reports are true a lot of pickerel families will collect before nightfall. The picks, or wall-eyes, as our neighors to the south dub them, are one of the tastiest piscatorial dishes extant equalling the delicious flavor of the popular brook trout in the opinion of some.

Hay Bay, the mecca for Prince Edward County pickerel fanciers, the Trent River, the North Hastings rivers and lakes will likely be alive with the fishing fraternity by the time this reaches the front verandah, quite likely a tasty dinner will be in the bag.

Headed for the news room shortly after the crack o dawn this morning, we noted a group of moppets armed with fish poles and bait headed in the general direction of the bay. They were breakfasting on ice-cream and chocolate bars sold them by a surprised Front Street restaurateur, and were ready for a day's fun.

Being a trifle curious we asked them what was up.

"Can't you see," shrilled one, through bubbles of ice cream. "We're goin' fishin'. Our dads have gone north to get some pickerel so we guys thought we would go out on our own."

What did they expect to get? Anything from a bull-head to a sunfish would do. Just so long as they had something to take home to match whatever Dad caught or bought.

Which reminds us of a piece we saw not so long ago about taking a boy fishing. It was written by Vince Crichton of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department. Says he:

"The fishing is under way. Friend wife is still reminding us not to clutter up the kitchen table at night as we oil and clean reels, sharpen hooks and do all the things in preparation for matching our wits against the finny tribe.

"This enthusiasm is not confined to adults. The young ones, especially the boys, also are beginning to get that look of anticipation only surpassed by a day at some good fishing hole.

"Our own boy, like ourself and many others, passes through some very interesting stages on the road to manhood. Many of these happy memories are direct results of fishing trips. There is always a beginning. Dad takes his three or four-year-old son out one day fishing. He is quite pleased to be holding a rod and reel—but a little afraid, perhaps, when something is wiggling at the end of the line. Dad pulls it in and a small pike flops around the canoe, much to the chagrin of the young lad who, by now, has a few tears in his eyes.

"A few weeks go by and the young lad asks to go fishing again. There are no tears this time, though the antics of a small pike in the canoe can still cause some fear. The years go by until the lad has reached seven or eight. In the interval, he has done much fishing and Dad has had some anxious moments because his bent rod and reel were being used. Then comes the day when the boy wants a rod and reel of his own and a few-hooks. These are kept in Dad's tackle box which is already overcrowded.

"The next year he acquires a tackle box, just like Dad's, or as a reward for passing his school exams, and is then found a place in the canoe in the household. Gradually this tackle in Dad's box finds its way into his son's—and, with a grin, he has to ask for the loan of a few hooks some day. The transformation is complete and, between 13 and 15, the boy becomes a full-fledged partner on every fishing trip.

"Where once Dad did all the fishing, he now does all the paddling. With a feeling of satisfaction he looks to the day when son picks up the canoe and Dad takes the lighter load.

"Take the boy fishing this year! Take your son—and the neighbor's! You will be well rewarded for what might seem to be some trouble. You will teach the boys the reasons for conservation. You, in return, will have peace of mind and learn many things about your boy that you never knew before.

Remember, Allah does not deduct from man's allotted span the hours spent in fishing."

Mickey Mantle Blasts Trio As Bombers Whip Tigers 5-4; Dodgers Whack Braves 6-2

(By The Associated Press)

Some of the pitching arms may be getting weary and some of the joints creaky on the once mighty New York Yankees, but the spirit of Babe Ruth and Joe DiMaggio breathes on.

Mickey Mantle, the phlegmatic boyish-looking Oklahoman who was marked prematurely for baseball greatness, rekindled memories of the Yankees' most prodigious hitting feats with three home runs Friday which dazed the Detroit Tigers 5-2.

Using borrowed bats and a "don't-kill-the-ball" technique suggested by manager Casey Stengel, the 23-year-old switch-hitter struck two from the left side of the plate and the third from the right.

He became the first American League player to hit home runs from alternate sides and the third player in major league history to accomplish the unique act. Jim Russell of Brooklyn did it in 1950 and Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals in 1951.

FOUR GAMES CANCELLED

Mantle's one-man wrecking job dulled all other developments of a major league program chopped in half by four postponements because of rain and unseasonable cold.

The quick-starting Brooklyn Dodgers forestalled any panic and snapped a two-game losing streak by whacking the Milwaukee Braves 6-2 on home runs by Junior Gilliam and Roy Campanella. Another well-known centre fielder, Willie Mays, put a shot out of the park in the 10th inning to give New York Giants a 4-3 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals.

Boston Red Sox won a weird rain-plagued game from the Kansas City Athletics 4-3 at Boston in which the winning run was walked home in the ninth. Kansas City manager Lou Boudreau played the game under protest, contending play was resumed after an hour and 23 minutes delay before rain had stopped.

Yankee fans couldn't hide their glow. And the old question reverberated again. Is this the year? Has Mickey finally come into his own? Is he Yankees' "Golden Boy" at last the suggs he was supposed to ?

He had his great moments, such as the 565-foot home run in Washington in the spring of 1953, and his low ones, such as the four strikeouts in one game of the 1953 series after which he cried, But he has not been able to deliver on a sustained scale.

Mantle's problem actually may have been nothing more than an urge to kill the ball every time. This, he feels, has been corrected under the guidance of Stengel and coach Bill Dicky.

Mantle's three runs Friday came in the first, fifth and eighth innings — the first with Andy Carey on base — and all of them landed in the same section of the right-centre field bleachers. The second one travelled 430 feet by actual measurement.

Mickey also singled home another run to account for all the Yankee scores, whilp brought Whitey Ford his fourth hround victory.

Mickey used a bat discarded by Enos Slaughter, sold this week by Kansas City, for his first two homers. The last one was made with a stick borrowed from ailing Bill Skowron.

Mays' game-clinching home run for the Giants was his seventh of the season and saved a well-pitched game by John Windy Mccall, who replaced Don Liddle in the third and gave up only two hits through the last eight innings. Hard-luck Harvey Haddix was the victim.

Gilliam and Campanella packaged their productive runs in the Milwaukee's Bob Buhl. Billy Loes the fifth inning to spell defeat for Milwaukee's Bob Buhl. Billy Loes was the winner. He yielded a home run to catcher Del Crandall. The ninth inning at Boston, a city booyed by the return of Ted Williams after a five-week layoff with a virus infection, was a nightmare for Kansas City. Reliefer Tom Gorman couldn't get a man out in the ninth and walked Billy Goodman to force home the winning run.

The game didn't end until past midnight. Boudreau raised such a fuss when activities were resumed in the eighth that he was banished.

Leafs Edge Royals 9-4; Narrow Gap

By The Canadian Press

A battery of Montreal righthanders failed to halt Toronto's attack Friday night as the Maple Leafs picked up runs in five innings to down the Royals 9-4 in an International League fixture.

The victory moved the Toronto club to within 1½ games of the front-running Royals. Maple Leaf southpaw Ken Johnson lasted seven innings and was the winning pitcher. Don Drysdale was charged with the loss. 5-3

In other games, Syracuse Chiefs dropped their 15th game in 18 starts, bowing to Havana Sugar Kings 6-2 and Rochester Red Wings whipped Buffalo Bisons 8-4.

LEAD AT FIRST

The Sugar Kings jumped off to a three-run lead in the first inning in a game that produced two ejections from the field. Syracuse outfielder Larry Novak made a backward over-the-fence catch of a fly ball off the bat of Pedro Formental and fell down. When Cuban manager Regino Otero protested vigorously that Novak had not caught the ball and that Formental should be given a home run, he was banished from the game. The fans yelled their disapproval and threw bottles on the field. When Novak heaved one back into the stands he, too, was ejected.

Sam Jethroe's eighth home run of the season led Toronto's attack before Montreal pitchers. Southpaw Ken Johnson went seven innings to gain his third victory, but needed help from Jack Cornelius in the eighth when the Royals pushed across three runs. Don Drysdale was slapped with the loss.

The Red Wings scored five times in the eighth inning to hand the Bisons their third successive defeat. Stan Jok, sent down to Rochester earlier this week, by the Chicago White Sox, capped the rally with a three-run homer.

British Soccer Fans Stay 'Ome, Clubs Face Financial Crisis

By Arch MacKenzie
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—English soccer clubs, faced with what may be the sharpest financial crisis in their histories, are slashing staffs from the first division on down.

At the end of the 92-team football league season, it was announced that another 2,250,000 fans had dropped off. One fan in six now is estimated to be staying away, with an annual attendance loss of 500,000 for the last seven years.

Some big names have become under the axe. Listed for transfer by Newcastle United is Ivor Broadis, once worth £25,000 and capped frequently by England.

West Bromwich Albion, 1954 Football Association Cup winner, has put stars Stan Rickaby, who has played for England, and forward Paddy Ryan on the block. Seven other of the team's 47 professionals are for sale.

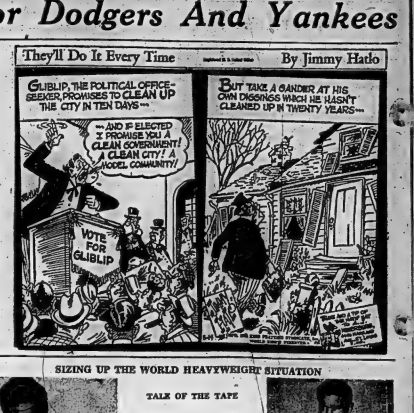
Sunderland, one of the richest and biggest-purchasing clubs in the country, has listed 13 players for sale, including seven who have appeared on the first division team in the last two years.

The same numbers are being transferred by Derby County, the richest-ever champion member of the league, relegated to the third division this season after a decline that could not be halted. These included Jimmy Dann, worth £15,000 not long ago, and Reg Harrison, a veteran of better days with Derby when the club won the 1946 cup final.

Some other batches of discards:

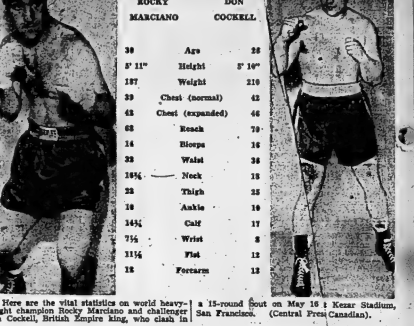
Bradford City—retaining 15 of 26 professionals; Southampton — selling nine players — reducing from 28 to 16; Reading—a one-third cutback, plus two trainers let out; Norwich seven; Leeds United, possessor of the £40,000 John Charles, best footballer in Britain, selling five; Tottenham Hotspur seven; Leicester City, down into the second division after a one-year stay, five.

One club running against the current is Luton Town, up to the first division for the first time, which has offered all its professionals new contracts.



The main move in the soccer world may be connected with the refusal of the British government to lighten the entertainment tax, running as high as one-third at the top. Television has hurt, too.

Despite the situation, the Soccer Players' Union has entered negotiations with the Football Association over new contracts and more money. Current average wage for senior professionals is about £15 a week, plus bonuses of one kind and another.



Gloomy forecasts indicate, however, that many marginal players —veterans or mediocre youngsters —have put their last soccer until things pick up.

Whip and Pat Had 'Em Flat, No, Said Sam, That Was That

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Tag Team wrestling championship still nestles behind the facial spinach of a couple of Russkys bearing the name of the Kalmikoff brothers.

By right of conquest, and incense tax, it should at this minute be reposing on the jointmantel of one Whipper Billy Watson and his drop-kicking pally-waley, Pat Flanagan.

For that dummy pair, if you take action and ability into consideration, was as much better than the whiskers-wearing sons of the steppes as were the Pentictons over the hockey gang from behind the Iron Curtain.

But fate and a guy in white decreed otherwise. After all you could not blame Sammy, Godder that is, who is one of Frank Tunney's hired official help. Because their facial spinage at a given point, in high disdain whenever the war seemed to go "agin 'em". And they promised themselves an additional shot of vodka and a couple of cases of sturgeon roe after Sammy the Man (we never did figure out what made him run) judged the bout "No Contest".

This happened in the third fall of the bout as the customers screamed for Russian blood (the arena grops mainly should take care of this and use a shot of ketchup occasionally) when the Whip promptly tossed Ivan out into the cold blue yonder and being a mite playful started to chase him.

Now this is good sport, and whoever is "it" is a dirty so-and-so. But Sammy did not see it that way. He got dizzy and at one time yelled "Love All". He thought he was watching a tennis match. Then he realized it was eleven o'clock and as Marse Tunney does not believe in overtime for his cohorts, Sammy started to do a little finger arithmetic. That was it. His wig-wagged the signal that ended the "fight"? and declared it "no contest".

And five gets you ten the foursome will be back next week if only to pick up restaurant take.

The big crowd was put in a happy mood when towering Tex Mackenzie took the measure of Lee (The Leer) Henning after twelve minutes of up-and-down "rassiln". Its appetite was whetted by a thirty-minute draw between Chief Big Sun Wal Cloud and Tom Collins.

A "HANGOVER"

The Whip and Patrick "flang" the Cossackian cusses in, out and around the ring, willy-nilly practically all night. But you must admit, as did an excellent crowd of fans who like their wrestling "live", that the sons of Tovarich and Madame Kalmikoff did their moments.

As a matter of fact they raised Karol, one of the bewhiskered Russky duo realizing that the caviar and vodka of him and his twin would be insufficient if not cut off if they lost, resorted to a canny angle to keep their record intact and the tag team trophy in a Russian environment.

SIMPLE AS THAT

It was as simple as handing the pay bundle over to the missus on Friday night — or whenever she catches up with you.

6. In putting, as in all shots, you must keep your head still, in fixed position. Practice holding the head steady until the ball is away and then following the ball by turning your head without moving it otherwise either up-or-down or sideways. It's a sort of guarantee you'll never look up too soon and spoil your putt. Holding the head still is a promise you get all out of the putt that you put into it. On an up-hill putt, hold the club a shade more firmly. Of course, it's fun to stand on a practice tee with wood or long irons and watch that ball leap out for distant places but the pay-off comes on the greens. How well I know!

Solunar Notes

Tides and The Solunar Tables

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

In the column of Allen Corson, Fishing Editor of the Miami Herald, I have found some interesting comments on the feeding habits of fish, notably the times of day during which they feed. Allen picked up this data from an old-time charter-boat captain who operated for years out of Palm Beach.

Not all of his time, however, has been spent off-shore guiding. For some years he guided on fresh water and it was during those years that he learned some pointers having to do with the feeding habits of bass. They feed, he tells us, four times a day and these feeding periods coincide, roughly, with the four daily tidal changes in salt water.

That statement quite naturally brings up several questions in my mind. What tide tables, I wonder, does his gentleman use? How does he account for the fact that bass in fresh water are affected by tidal times of salt water?

MAKE SOME SENSE

At great many years ago, when I was trying to make some sense out of a mass of uncorrelated data which, eventually, formed the foundation upon which the Solunar Theory is based, this same matter of the relationship of salt-water tides and fresh-water fish was an all too solid obstacle against which I bumped an inexperienced nose.

It so happens that the Florida east coast high water interval (the difference between true ocean tides and actual tidal readings at a particular spot, as determined by the U.S. Geodetic Survey) is, if my memory serves me correctly, about six hours. Thus, fortunately, this man's predictions are reasonably accurate, assuming that he uses the tide tables of Palm Beach or Stuart.

However, it is always a mistake to jump to conclusions. Now we know, rather conclusively, that the tides, of themselves, actually have no bearing on the feeding habits of fish save when tidal flow either carries food with it or makes feeding areas more easily accessible.

As you know, tides are caused, for the most part, by the gravitational attraction of the moon. Contrary to popular belief, the sun also plays its part in this phenomenon, the ratio of influence being about two to one, with the moon as the major factor. Thus, the tides themselves act simply as a catalyzer, a visual manifestation of what the heavenly bodies involved happen to be doing at the time.

In witness of this, offshore fish, way out in the Gulf Stream, go on the feed at the same time as do the Florida bass in an inland lake. Neither of these groups is affected in any way by tidal flow. They have no way of knowing the stages of the tides themselves which manifest themselves in changes of water level along our shores, yet go on the feed they do, just as though they could read the tide tables.

The whole business is Nature's way of regulating a uniform daily cycle of activity periods and rest periods among wildlife and fish-dom, all living things, animals, birds, reptiles and insects respond to these promptings on the part of Nature just as completely as do fish.

BASIC PRINCIPLES

The above, in brief, are the basic principles of the Solunar Theory upon which the Solunar Tables are set up. The times of the daily Solunar Periods are published for you in this newspaper.

Twenty-nine years of experimentation, observation, and hard work have gone into the formation of this schedule. Time has proven that the published Solunar Periods will show you the best in sport that each day may have in store for you.

Quite naturally there are a great many beliefs about the effects of the moon upon fish and other wildlife. Some of them are sound and some are not. Sorting out the good from the bad often is a difficult chore.

What we try to do—and do actually accomplish—is to make things easy for you. Make it a habit to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods. You will learn that by so doing you will add appreciably to the fun that you find in your fishing, and shooting, throughout the course of each year.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Little Leaguers

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor

One of the most common mistakes made by base runners is that of sliding part the base before making contact with it. Every instant of delay in reaching the base gives the baseman additional time to tag the runner. Branch Rickey has spent lifetime teaching his players the proper sliding techniques because they offer double safety to the player—you don't get put out as often and you eliminate the hazards of injury.

Some of these fundamentals may not seem important, but ignoring them can mean costly error. Mr. Rickey tells of a player during them can mean costly error. Mr. Rickey tells of a player during one of his teams who had all the physical qualities of a great player. Yet in one game this player was thrown out at third on what should have been a home run. His slow start from home plate, as he watched his drive fall between two outfielders, cost him 20 as he watched his drive fall between two outfielders, cost him 20 as he watched his drive fall making too wide a turn around first base. Then, seeing the ball headed for open space, since this was an exhibition game and there was no field umpire, he slowed to a trot. This cost him another 50 feet, so he was 100 feet behind schedule!

When the ball struck an object and rebounded into the center fielder's hands, the batter sprang ahead at top speed, but a quick and powerful throw caught him as he slid into the third baseman's tag instead of sliding away from the ball.

If he had done any one of these things properly, he would have reached third and if he had done all of them right he would have made it home, too. This shows the importance of the old baseball motto: "Always run them out! You never can tell."

Ten Montreal Wrestlers Win

REGINA (CP)—Montreal wrestlers scored victories in 10 of the 12 events they contested Friday night in the opening bouts of the Canadian amateur wrestling championships.

No new champions were crowned but the field was narrowed down as seven wrestlers lost two bouts and were automatically eliminated.

Those defeated in early matches included Antal Pilgrim of Sudbury, decisioned by Montreal's Phil Slabotsky in the night's only flyweight bout.

A contestant loses three marks for a defeat and is eliminated with five points against him.

Escaped Convict Is Recaptured At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Scar-faced Alexander Zakopiac, 36-year-old convict who escaped Thursday from a mental home, was recaptured Friday. He never wants to be locked up again.

A lone constable arrested Zakopiac in a drug addict, who threw up his hands and offered no resistance.

He had been the object of a search by more than 300 police officers since he made his escape from Selkirk mental home, 30 miles north of here.

Zakopiac was serving 30 years at Stony Mountain penitentiary for armed robbery and attempted murder. He was transferred for observation to the Selkirk institution.

Friday, officials of both the Selkirk hospital and the penitentiary refused to take custody of the captured gunman. The RCMP—caught in the middle because they happened to have custody of the prisoner — lodged him in Winnipeg's jail under 24-hour guard. He will be kept there during the weekend.

If you have troubles with takeout doubles you probably have partner trouble. Go get yourself another partner is not the answer. The next one may not know what to do, either.

The answers to a takeout double follow a definite order; that is, an order of preference. First of all, however, partner must be impressed with the idea of when he is forced to bid.

If there is an intervening bid after your double, partner is not forced to bid. If there is no intervening opponent bid, your double forces partner to bid something.

When so forced to bid, he follows the order of preference in his choice of replies. The first thing he must tell you is whether or not he has four or more cards in an unbid major suit.

A letter tells me of this deal:

West claims that east fooled him by bidding a spade suit that was not biddable. He wants to know if the first response from east should not have been two clubs. The answer is no.

East did not say his suit was biddable. Lengthy or four and high cards in it. All he did was follow rule and show that he had four or more cards in an unbid major suit; the first choice reply to double.

First reply to a takeout double is not a minor suit if responder has four or more cards of any kind in an unbid major suit. Response in a minor is a denial of having the other.

You may not land in jail by not knowing the answers to a takeout double. But you can easily land in trouble.

45 Railwaymen Return to Work

HAMILTON (CP) — Forty-five railwaymen laid off for two days for non-payment of union dues have returned to work.

Meanwhile, union executives for the Canadian Association of Railwaymen will petition the president of the CNR for a referendum to decide whether Canadian railmen want the American Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers to speak for them in contract and other matters.

Norman Pfander, secretary of the C.A.R., said Friday that many firemen and engineers would like to "throw off the shackles of the international union."

CHRISTEN SHIP

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — The first ship to be built in Port Colborne was officially launched the Selvoir Friday. She is the 258-foot bulk carrier built at the new E. B. Magee Ltd. shipyard at Ramey's Bay for Seaconsfield Steamship Ltd. of Montreal.

Stratford Refuses Increase to Firemen

STRATFORD (CP)—City council Thursday night turned down a request by city firemen for a $325 a year wage increase or a 48-hour work week.

A spokesman for the firemen said today there is a strong possibility the dispute may go to arbitration. He said there will be a general meeting next week to consider the council's last move.

The firemen are seeking a reduction from their present 56-hour, five-day work week or the pay increase to compensate for the time they now work.

Sterling Hayden, as a cavalry trooper overtakes the remnants of a wagon train that has been attacked by Indians. He finds the officer in charge still alive who pleads with Hayden to catch up with the main train ahead and get it to Fort Laramie. The struggle to get the train to its destination, against the hostility of the Indians and treachery from within, fills out the adventure drama. One girl in the train, Miss Gray, inspires Hayden to bravery.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, May 16, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Take yourself and your tasks seriously but not so much so that it will be bothersome. Medicine, manufacturing, research, agriculture and building interests should make noticeable gains.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Little things that may seem unimportant are likely to be the real issues today. Personableness, good will between employer and employee is the best road to success. Work on this now.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Be sure that you do not allow minor matters to crowd out more important ones. You may get fresh stimulus from unexpected sources; be alert, on the lookout — always.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Advice after reviewing planetary aspects: Use particular care in dealings with others, and their money: you may find keen competition, so be conservative and shrewd in presenting ideas, propositions.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — After analyzing each item on your agenda, take things in hand with a firm and determined attitude. Always strive to maintain harmony.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Proper investigation needed; look for the most workable methods before starting on any project. Don't overlook hidden opportunities. The unexpected often leads to success.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — It's possible that you may find yourself in poor spirits, not feeling up to top effort. Take stock, study your problems, then move quicker to eliminate causes. Be patient throughout.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You may have to exercise some restraint — especially in the early hours. Be sagacious and accurate in written matters, in all things legal. The day can be a smooth one in daily tasks, routine.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — This may be a less propitious period than you expected. The quality of your output and your manner of approach will be important. Be duly concerned about domestic situations, but don't fret.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Some extra thinking, study needed in all activities now. Watch confidential matters, be sensible in diet, get enough rest. Don't overlook others' kindnesses, good intentions.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Better-than-fair prospects for you who go after things in your innately intelligent manner — not hastily but neither dallying. Look for increasing prestige, assets — not only for today but for the future.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Moderately favorable aspects. With a more energetic tempo and some new ideas (think before acting, too), you can do better than just fair. Don't lose out by making hasty decisions.

You born today are born leaders but you may have to reckon with a tendency to be too quick at times, overlooking important details, making errors through insufficient study. (Bright people often have this fault). You have a versatile mind; are equally adept at study, outdoor activities, good music and literature. Don't let an appetite for luxuries defeat better judgment; heed the advice of loved ones who caution against certain associations, habits. Birthdate of: Wm. Seward, Secretary of State under President Lincoln.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching ma pealing potatoes in the kitchin, and I said, Can you peal one with your eyes shut, ma?

I dont know, and I hope I'll never be silly enough to try to find out, ma said, and I said, Well I can find my way around and around my room with a hankerchief blindfolded over my eyes. I never bump into nothing, and I can even put out my hand and touch whatever I want, because I know exactly where everything is, just like a 6 cents, I said.

Very remarkable, I'm sure, ma said. Why can't you put that much time and care on something useful she said, and I said, But heck, ma, you dont realize. Haven't you ever heard of the Furrin Intrigers? I said.

Meening the secret club with me and Puds Simkins the only 2 members, and ma said, Oh yes, I've heard of that famous organization.

Well, that's the reason, I said. We never know when some fourth agent is going to blindfold us and drive us to some hideout so we can't see where we're going. So we are both practicing finding our way around blindfolded. Only the only thing is, ma, I'm so used to my own room that it's not a good enough of a test, so I thought I better try the living room for a change. And I was right, ma. It's much harder in there, and I bunked into the little round one legged table, I said, and ma said, What? The one with the green glass ornament on it?

Well, it was on it, I said. I didn't think I ought to put it back looking like it looks now, I said.

Being the end of the explination and the beginning of the sad part.

Dempsey Wins PC Nomination In South Renfrew Without Vote

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RENFREW, Ont. (CP) — James S. Dempsey breezed into the Progressive Conservative nomination for Renfrew South Saturday despite a furore over his handling of election funds in the 1951 provincial general election.

The hulking, 65-year-old retired contractor, legislature member since 1945, found an unexpected lack of opposition at a second nominating convention called after disclosure he had breached the Provincial Election Act by not reporting campaign contributions.

Though Premier Frost had withdrawn support from Mr. Dempsey, two prospective opponents for the nomination decided at the last minute not to run against the member. Mr. Dempsey went in unanimously.

Before the Saturday convention called to choose a Renfrew south representative for the Progressive Conservatives in the June 9 general election, Mr. Dempsey closed ranks behind Mr. Dempsey.

Mayor Robert Simpson of Arnprior was talked out of running again at a back-room session of the party executive. Then about 370 delegates waited for the start of Doran of Renfrew's address on agriculture.

The delegates got a cue from the executive in constituency president James Baskin's announcement that the executive adopted a report of solution a few minutes before that it was not the time to vote on the "official" candidate the man they would nominate.

Promptly, Mr. Dempsey was nominated. Mr. Baskin looked around for a seconder and pandemonium the meeting was held, eventually declared it "a little surprising but pretty wonderful" that Mr. Dempsey that there were no other candidates. No one was particularly surprised.

Mr. Dempsey had been played to the platform by two bagpipers. The two other possible candidates stayed away from the gathering, and friends said later they spent most of the time in the underground listening to speeches through loudspeakers.

They heard a shaky - voiced Dempsey say, "I feel like a fellow satisfied his minister acted properman of little education who says he can read the newspapers, said he was "really overwhelmed."

Delegates at the overflow meeting observed as he declared, "I don't think I'm a crook of any kind."

The "crook" suggestion had developed out of the way Mr. Dempsey handled 1951 funds, an issue that has involved Revenue Minister McCann, the Liberal Commons member for Renfrew South.

During the 1951 election, Mr. Dempsey received money from a Drohan, but did not make this public as required by law. Premier Frost heard about it a few weeks ago and pulled his support from Mr. Dempsey pending a satisfactory explanation.

Mr. Dempsey, admitting he committed an "indiscretion" involving $5,000, announced his withdrawal from the campaign after having beaten Mayor Robert Simpson of Arnprior at an April 16 nominating convention. The constituency executive called a new meeting.

There was confusion here Saturday over whether the second convention had been necessary. Conservative Leader Frost at Toronto said in an interview Mr. Dempsey never did run in a formal withdrawal, but that the announcement he was retiring on "ill health" sufficed.

This announcement, made under pressure from Toronto party officials, was followed by Mr. Dempsey's declaration that he would go after the nomination again.

Meanwhile, Dr. McCann became embroiled publicly in the controversy when it became evident he had passed to Premier Frost the information that Mr. Dempsey got several receipts signed by Mr. Dempsey.

Mr. Drohan died in 1953. The matter of the unreported bounties — tax taxes. He also is a director of the Guaranteed Trust Company, of is executor of the Drohan estate. Mr. McCann has been explained how he would have come into possession of the photostats.

In the Commons, there have been opposition suggestions that Dr. McCann should resign on the ground of "impropriety" in his use of the estate information. Prime Minister St. Laurent said last week he is satisfied his minister acted properly.

AUSTRIA IS FREE AFTER 17 YEARS OF FOREIGN RULE

Celebrate Until Dawn As Peace Pact Signed

VIENNA (AP)—Jubilant Austria celebrated into the dawn today the Big Four signing of the historic treaty pledging her freedom after 17 years of hot and cold war.

Church bells pealed across the land as millions rejoiced over the long-awaited pact. It makes Austria a sovereign state for the first time since Hitler annexed her to Nazi Germany in March, 1938.

Within 90 days after the treaty is ratified by the Big Four and Austria, some 70,000 troops of the United States, Russia, Britain and France will leave Austria and Austria's freedom will become a reality.

Amid all the revelry there was an undercurrent of uneasiness over the little country's economic future. It was feared particularly that heavy payments to Russia might upset the economic stability attained in Austria during the past 10 years of Big Four occupation.

FEARS IGNORED

There was also the realization that a new international crisis might drive this central European country, pledged to neutrality, into Russian hands.

Such disturbing thoughts and a drizzling rain did little to dampen the long-awaited celebration.

The signed treaty bristles with safeguards to assure Austria's freedom. It also has been explained how she would have come into possession of the photostats.

In the Commons, there have been opposition suggestions that Dr. McCann should resign on the ground of "impropriety" in his use of the estate information. Prime Minister St. Laurent said last week he is satisfied his minister acted properly.

Toronto Police Arrest 123 Persons In Gambling Raids

3 Separate Establishments Are Targets for Police

TORONTO (CP) — Police arrested 123 persons in separate gambling raids in the Toronto area during the weekend.

A provincial police anti-gambling squad raided a social club in suburban Leaside, near the old Pottery Bluffs race track, and arrested 28 men as found-ins and eight as keepers.

In another raid, in a heavily-wooded section of the Don valley, near the site of the first raid, the OPP squad arrested 14 men who they said were shooting craps.

Seventy-three persons were arrested on gambling charges by Toronto police in a raid on a west-end house. Three black marias were needed to take the 73 to three police stations. No one station was big enough to hold all the found-in suspects.

Today, Alderman Philip Givens said he intends to ask for a police commission inquiry into the activities of the 13. He said they were kept at the stations from 3:30 a. m. to 5 a. m. because a justice of the peace declined to come to the stations to grant bail. They were finally released on $25 bail each.

In the Leaside raid, police said members of the Leaside Athletic and Social Club paid a -20 annual fee for the use of the rooms, billiard tables, poker and dice facilities. They said the men were carrying "big bank rolls."

Patrol Car Found Nothing

COPENHAGEN (AP) — This message went out to Copenhagen police radio patrol cars Saturday night:

After a brief pause the announcer added:

"All other cars stay where they are."

Car No. 19 had no luck either: Found nothing.

Police Capture Fugitive On Stolen Boat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Babcock, jail breaker and bank robber who lost an air and sea chase to police, arrived here in handcuffs Sunday.

The 32-year-old fugitive was captured en route to Alaska in a stolen boat. He escaped from Oakalla prison farm two months ago by joining a visiting choir and walking out with them.

Babcock was under sentence of 20 years and 21 lashes for his part in an abortive, $27,000 bank holdup.

Supt. George Archer of the RCMP said Sunday his capture was due to the "good work" of two RCMP officers who spotted the boat Saturday on northern Vancouver Island.

Const. Ken Bendickson, whose boat the Sea Explorer was stolen a week ago, went to Cpl. Jack Hall. Const. Ken Moore was told them he believed Babcock had taken the craft.

BORROWED PLANE

The three borrowed an aircraft, Supt. Archer said, and cruised the island coastline looking for the vessel. It was spotted at the Indian village of Hesquiat near Alert Bay and, as the police plane landed, it left on a dash northwards.

Cpl. Ross and Const. Moses each commandeered a fishing boat and the chase resumed in a drizzle, twisting run through the narrow channels behind the area. Police warning shots went unheeded.

Babcock was cornered and run down in a bay on an island almost to a dog. Two loaded rifles were found aboard.

YUGOSLAVIA NOT CHANGING SIDES TITO DECLARES

Gives West Assurance As Russians Plan Visit

By BORIS BOSKOVIC

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito has assured the West that his coming conference with Soviet leaders in the Soviet Union does not mean Yugoslavia is "changing sides." He still intends to keep his country out of all blocs—Western, Soviet or neutral "third force," he declared.

Speaking at the north Adriatic port of Pula, Tito said Sunday he wants good relations with both the West and the Soviets. He promised there will be no secret deals "behind the curtain" at his meeting in Belgrade late this month with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev and deputy foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Tito restated his previous policy that he will not accept aid with political conditions attached. "This is not a bribe," he added.

"They in the West should not think that we are changing sides," he continued. "We wish best relations with the West. We are not going to turn aside from this road, but we wish to have fair hands to strengthen peace. . . ."

NO INTERFERENCE

It was Tito's first comment on the announcement Saturday of the Russians' visit.

Implying that Moscow had asked for the meeting, Tito said he told the Russian Yugoslavs years ago he keep its friends and will tolerate no foreign interference in his internal or external affairs. He said the Kremlin had consented to this condition.

Record Total Seen for Canadian Highway Building This Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is about to embark on the greatest road-building year in her history, the Canadian Good Roads Association said today.

The association announced that on the basis of a nation-wide survey it estimates more than $600,000,000 will be spent by municipal, provincial and the federal governments on road-building this year. That would be a record total.

The association said that beyond obstacles due to weather, there probably won't be any hitches. Materials and equipment are in good supply, and manpower problem except for some shortage of skilled highway engineers.

Some $500,000,000 was slated for road-building purposes last year but because of the late arrival of rain in parts of the country the work was curtailed.

A report issued by G.W. Gilchrist, managing director of the association, said provincial budgets account for some $426,000,000 of the total, the remainder being municipal expenditures.

The larger municipalities, towns and cities, the report said, will spend some $119,000,000 on rural roads and urban streets.

The federal government has some $27,000,000 earmarked for road work, mainly on the trans-Canada highway which it splits with the provinces. Now under the trans-Canada highway agreement — not yet in force, before the national road is completed. A new agreement will have to be worked out.

The association said that according to its survey the army expects to spend $70,000,000 on the new west highway system and next estimated $1,000,000 will be expended by mining companies and the forest industry in the backbound areas.

In addition the association said provincial governments and a number of smaller centres are expected to total between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 on their share of the work.

The association, on the basis of the survey, gave this estimated breakdown of road expenditures by the provinces:

Newfoundland $11,250,000; Prince Edward Island $3,231,000; Nova Scotia $15,000,000; New Brunswick $15,422,000; Quebec $78,566,000; Ontario $172,000,000; Manitoba $14,156,000; Saskatchewan $19,767,000; Alberta $32,037,000; British Columbia $27,297,000.

Toronto Police Force Trussed, Robbed By Armed Thugs

TORONTO (CP) — A grocery store manager in suburban Leaside was trussed and robbed of $1,100 today by armed thieves who entered the store while he was counting weekend receipts.

George Assaf told police he was preparing the money for the bank when two men entered, one carrying a revolver, forced him to lie on the floor and tied him up and left with the money.

A man passing the shop on his way to work saw Assaf's wife tied behind the counter and went in to free him.

West Germany Protests Clauses In Austrian Pact

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — The West German government has lodged a protest note with the Austrian government and asked the three Western powers for "explanations" on certain clauses in the Austrian peace treaty relating to former German property in Austria, a government spokesman said today.

The spokesman told a press conference that H. Muthesius, head of the German trade mission in Vienna, had been ordered to express the federal government's "astonishment" at the changes in the Austrian economic treaty regarding "the last important point to be regulated by the unsuccessful Berlin conference on the "Big Four" powers.

The spokesman said the former version of Article 26 of the Austrian state treaty had left open the question of eventual restitution of former German property. The new version virtually excluded this, he said, and the West German government reserved the right to lodge compensation claims with Austria.

Muether-Graf has been recalled to Bonn to report.

Communist Jets And Nationalist Planes Clash

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Nationalist Chinese quarters today ascribed probable political motives to Russia's claim that a Nationalist Communist jet fighter planes and Nationalist air force Thunderjets.

The clash occurred 70 miles north of the Matsu islands, near the Red China coast, about 100 miles northwest of Formosa. The Red China Communist pilots believed were MiG-17s.

Nationalist quarters did not see the appearance of the Red jets as presaging early large scale hostilities in the Formosa strait.

They said, however, that the Reds might have calculated on creating fresh concern about the situation in the strait in order to strengthen their position in the projected top-level Big Four conference sometime this summer.

Diversified Atomic Tests Series Ends, Underwater Shot Imminent

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The longest, most diversified atomic test series yet held—14 blasts in three months—is over, but U.S. nuclear weaponeers today looked forward to an imminent underwater detonation off the coast of California.

The Pacific test will be held several hundred miles out in the Pacific with the navy in charge and, for the first time, apparently no top Atomic Energy Commission official on hand.

Barring weather delays, the nuclear depth charge test is scheduled early this week.

From an AFC spokesman came an indication that the same winds which delayed the final test here probably had foiled the navy's attempt to set off the underwater blast before the big blast. Ninety Joint Task Force 7, commanded by submarine warfare expert Rear Admiral C. B. Momsen, are believed to be in position at sea for the test.

The test is for the purpose of obtaining information vital to defence against submarine attack.

Sunday's Nevada blast—perhaps the last here for years—was one of the largest in the series. The force was estimated at 35 kilotons, or 35,000 tons of TNT, more than 1½ times the nominal A-bomb yield.

It gave Indian Springs, 35 miles away, a substantial shake, rattled and roll. The control point, 14 miles back of the 500-foot blast tower, received a very slight tremor. Pioche, Nev., 100 miles northeast, got a good roll, but the blast was barely heard in Las Vegas, 75 miles southeast.

Two supersonic F-100 Super Sabre jets simulated bomb runs just before the big blast. Ninety Jet Task Force 7, commanded by submarine warfare expert Rear Admiral C. B. Momsen, are believed to be in position at sea for the test.

Truck Driver Killed Instantly Near Bancroft

BANCROFT — Falling to make a turn on Highway 62, north of Bancroft, Owen John Gravelle, 40, of Pembroke, was instantly killed late Saturday afternoon.

Gravelle, who was driving south in a light truck, failed to make a turn at the 37 mile mark north of Bancroft. He was found hanging partially out of the completely wrecked truck. Gravelle was living at 312 Queen Street, Peterborough, and was employed by Wigley's transport firm.

Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson, of Bancroft, said there would be no inquest. Ontario Provincial Cpl. Archie Grayling and Cons. John Hawkins investigated.

2 Sarnia Youths Die When Car Rams Into Train

SARNIA (CP) — Two Sarnia district youths were killed early today when their car crashed into a fast-moving CNR freight train near Mandaumin, 10 miles east of here.

Police said the wreckage was strewn more than half a mile down the tracks. The bodies of the two were found 500 yards from the crossing.

Dead are Robert Mason, 21 and Donald Neil Leckie, 19, both of Sarnia.

Police said their car rammed into the 18th car of the 71-car train, bound from Mimico to Sarnia.

The car hit the train with such force that it knocked the rear wheels of the freight car off the tracks.

300 of 600 Trout Planted Friday Caught by 400 Children Next Day

MILDMAY (CP)—Speckled trout hardly had a chance in the half mile of Otter creek out-of-bounds to anyone over 16 when about 400 children Saturday took advantage of the special restriction.

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests Friday put 625 legal-size trout in the stream but by Saturday nearly more than 300 had been hooked by the eager young fishermen.

Twenty fish tagged for special prizes were put int other stream. Only those children caught them were to get prizes worth $1 to $5. Four of the specials were caught.

The youngsters caused a traffic jam on Highway 4 on Mildmay's northern outskirts, about 90 miles north of Kitchener. Provincial police had a daylong job of traffic direction.

Only one adult invaded the restricted section of the stream.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Southern Ontario enjoyed fine sunny weather Sunday, with afternoon temperatures in the upper 70s and 80s. Much cooler air, however, is pushing down across northern regions where temperatures dropped to freezing and below, and some snow fell Sunday night. This cold air will cover most of the province by this evening, giving a risk of frost in many parts of southern Ontario tonight. Tuesday will be mainly sunny but colder throughout the province.

MAINZ, Germany (AP) — His greatest election victory in two years Sunday night bolstered Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's plans for speedy action on his program to arm 500,000 Germans for the Atlantic alliance.

The state of Rhineland-Palatinate in elections Sunday gave the chancellor's Christian Democratic party unchallenged control of the state parliament and a stunning vote of confidence in Adenauer's policy of friendship with the free world.

It was Adenauer's biggest victory since his party won a one-vote majority in the lower house of the federal parliament in the 1953 national election.

The result Sunday clinched the chancellor's vital two-thirds control of the federal upper house (Bundesrat), needed to ensure approval of the coming legislation to put rearmament into effect.

The federal government now is drafting the arms laws in Bonn. Adenauer plans to push through the bill for enlistment of volunteers before the lawmakers adjourn in July for their summer vacation.

Premier Frost Declines Comment On Nomination

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario said Monday night he has no comment to make on the nomination Saturday of James Dempsey as Progressive Conservative candidate for Renfrew South in the Ontario general election June 9.

The premier withdrew his support of Mr. Dempsey last week when Mr. Dempsey said he received some $5,000 in campaign donations from a constituent and never reported them.

"I issued two statements on May 5 and May 11 on my position," Mr. Frost said Monday night. My position perfectly clear then."

Mr. Frost said May 5 that he had been shown at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa photostats of receipts by Mr. Dempsey in favor of the late John Drohan, who made the contributions.

He said May 11 that unless Mr. Dempsey made a "complete explanation" of the contributions "it shall withhold my endorsation."

SIAMESE TULIPS FOUND IN GARDEN

This season is noted for its lovely and colorful tulips which are seen in the gardens of city residents; but it is seldom one sees twin or Siamese tulips. This morning Alderman Brum Humphreys, Yeomans street, brought in a stalk of yellow bordered with scarlet tulips joined together midway up the stems.

Tulips, natives of the Old World, once brought fabulous prices for a single bulb. The "Semper Augustus," was once sold for as much as $5,200. Now these lovely blooms may be had at a nominal price, and no one should be without a garden of colorful flowers when so little culture brings so much enjoyment to so many.

Malcolm Robb Speaker At Foremen's Parley

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The western Ontario foremen's conference was told Saturday that executives of several large Canadian companies have failed to provide leadership in management-labor relations.

Malcolm Robb, Belleville lawyer, said profit sharing companies were among the few "bright spots" in the labor-management picture. Profit sharing was merely a factor to good management.

The annual day-long conference was attended by 280 members of foremen's clubs in Brantford, Guelph, Kitchener, Waterloo, London, Sarnia, St. Thomas and Stratford. Delegates from Niagara Falls, Windsor and the Toronto suburb of Leaside were also present.

800 Scouts, Guides, Brownies, Cubs Take Part in Annual Church Parade

Under ideal weather conditions, upwards of 800 Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Cubs and Brownies paraded to annual church services here on Sunday morning.

Brilliant May sunshine streamed down on a colorful picture as the largest parade in the history of the combined Scout and Guide associations formed up on the Collegiate campus, moving off to Bridge Street United Church and St. Michael's Church at 10.45.

Troop flags and Union Jacks waving in a slight, coolish breeze fluttered over the variegated colors of the uniforms. The darker shades of Scout and Cub green contrasted with the lighter hues of the Brownie "brown" and the Guide "blue." Leaders of all units were immaculate in their trim regalia.

It seemed a pity there was no band in attendance. Scout Douglas Burns did an excellent job of playing his bagpipes, and the skilled Scouts performed well deserved tribute.

LARGE CROWD

Additional color to the parade was furnished by a large crowd of parents and other spectators who lined Church Street during the pre-services activities and formed the route for the ceremonies which followed the services on the campus.

Shortly after 10.40 the Roman Catholic units moved off to church. These included the 3rd Belleville Cub pack, Cubmaster G. Couture; the 12th Belleville pack under Cubmaster W. Sweet; the 12th Belleville pack under Cubmaster J. Ellard and the 3rd Belleville Scout Troop under Scoutmaster Sid Calfas.

The rest of the parade followed after a brief interval and marched down Church Street to Bridge St. United Church where a capacity filled edifice heard an inspiring sermon by the minister, Rev. H. M. Davis, and special music by the choir.

Following the services the parade marched to the campus where it swung by a reviewing stand in a march-past with Regional Commissioner for Eastern Ontario Archie Lewis taking the salute. With Commissioner Lewis were Mrs. D. Arnott, District Commissioner of the Girl Guides' Association; Oliver Owen, president of the Local Boy Scout association, and District Commissioner of Wolf Cubs, P. L. Alcorn.

TRIBUTE PAID

In a brief address to the assembled parade Commissioner Lewis paid tribute to the "biggest parade held in Belleville in the history of the association." Approximately two-thirds of the complete establishment of the association turned out, he said.

"I congratulate you on your splendid appearance, your fine behavior and the splendid turnout and your steadiness on parade."

His sole duty, he told the parade marshal Murray Johnson, who made the parade arrangements, and Commissioner Arnott for their fine co-operation shown by the 1st Girl Guide Association.

Commissioner Arnott complimented her organization for such a fine turnout and paid tribute to Commissioner Lewis and his association for the splendid work being done by the Scouts and Cubs.

Following the addresses, Commissioner Lewis presented Assistant District Commissioner of Scouts D. D. B. Allan with a warrant of appointment, Ingratiating his assistant on the fine job he is doing, stressing the fact that the warrant was the first he had received, another being presented to Allan while Mr. Lewis invested Units and their leaders were: Brownie Commissioner Ken Moore.

GEORGE W. McNALLY

Ill for the past seven months, George W. McNally, 101 Queen Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital last Saturday morning.

He was born in Westport, 58 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McNeil of Westport, and after receiving his early education at Westport public and high schools, attended St. Michael's College. He graduated from the college and entered the ticket department of the Canadian National Railways. He served at Lindsay for some years and eighteen years ago came to Belleville, where he had been stationed at the north station of the CNR as ticket agent.

A man of friendly smile and good nature he was admirably suited to the position he held, greeting the travelling public. He made a figure in the streets as he walks of life by his courteous treatment. He was held in high regard by officials and employees of the railroad and all will sincerely regret his passing.

The late Mr. McNally was keenly interested in sport, especially baseball and hockey, his presence will be missed at the local games.

He was a member of St. Michael's Church and was active in the branches of parish work. He was a member of the Holy Name Society and a member of Belleville Lodge of the Knights of Columbus, Council No. 1344.

Surviving are his wife, the former Florence E. Collins; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Jane McNally, at home; Mrs. Thos. (Betty) Schofield of this city; one son, George B. McNally, of Picton, and one brother, Miss Frances McNally of Toronto.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Weather, Pickerel Co-operate To Make Opening Success

With Ole Man Weather and Pickerel co-operating nicely, the season for the "wall-eyes" was ushered in on Saturday morning in an aura of good sport and healthy bank.

From practically every haunt in the district come reports of good sport with the majority of the Izaak Waltons claiming their quotas of "six per man."

The fact that there is no size limit this year may have had something to do with the excellence of the bags.

Locally the Bay of Quinte and the Moira, down to Cliff bridge were dotted with pickerel-seekers in all sorts of marine conveyances.

Hay Bay, one of the most prolific haunts of this tasty piscatorial dish, was the mecca for sportsmen from a far-flung district, not to mention the United States. The fish were biting avidly and Allan Grande Prize and party had little trouble in landing catches.

The "biting" was good in the vicinity of the CPR bridge and it too reported one angler hauled in an eight-pounder.

The Bob Hunter party of two rod-and-line pals brought home twelve fish, this neighborhood, and neighbors were treated to an appetizing smell of browning pickerel when the boys held a fish-fry in the front yard.

ALL WELL POPULATED

Fast and West Lakes in Prince Edward County, as well as other pickerel haunts over that way were well populated while the Trent River, a favorite spot of "Wall-Eye Williams" was consistent in its yield of the finny beauties.

With the Kawartha Lakes district of Peterborough reporting the greatest influx of pickerel questers in history it is conceivable to suppose that the situation was apparent in the popular haunts of North Hastings.

A report from Peterborough stated that hotels, and restaurants were filled to overflowing over the week-end with everybody doing a land-office business.

Nor were the trout ignored. President Don MacKinnon of the Belleville Fish and Game Association and Mrs. MacKinnon went to their usual trout fishing haunt at Egan Creek and came home with three 13-inch speckled beauties.

But the master of the house was strangely silent concerning the family catch. It appears both partners were fishing the same 25 feet apart and using the same gear and bait. You guessed it, Mrs. MacKinnon hauled in the speckled trio, while the head of the house had to be satisfied with hoisting a chub.

A week ago the MacKinnons were thinking in another part of the creek when both had simultaneous strikes. Both hooked and to share the spoils in this case. Both had hooked the same fish, a ten-inch trout.

Baptismal Font Is Dedicated

On Sunday, Rev. F. J. Little, B.A., of Cambray United church, Cambray Presbytery, dedicated an oak baptismal font that was presented to the congregation by Rev. J. F. Everson of Belleville in memory of his eldest brother, William M. Everson. Mr. Everson had been a life long member of the Cambray circuit, and for many years a member of the official board of the circuit. It was the official board of the Cambray circuit, of the then Methodist church, that recommended the Rev. J. F. Everson as a candidate for the ministry of the Methodist church at the Bay of Quinte conference almost fifty years ago.

Cost Motorist $126 to Hit Poles And Verandah

Sideswiping two poles and striking a verandah on Highland Ave. cost a Brighton motorist $126.50 to square himself with the police, but damage to his auto in lieu of repairing the verandah and poles has still to catch up with him.

Saturday night an eastbound motorist swung off the curve on the corner of Highland Ave. and West Dundas street, mounted the curb and struck a hydro pole then ran directly across the roadway where another pole was sideswiped and ended up against the verandah of a house.

But the motorist was in a hurry. He backed his car and sped away but not before his licence number was spotted by several persons.

Police checked and found the vehicle licensed to James H. Carr of Brighton. His car charged with leaving the scene of an accident will face him this morning.

In another accident Saturday afternoon cars driven by G. T. Donaldson, 210 George street, and Constance Irene Sills, 90 Wragg street, Trenton, collided at the corner of George and Queen sts. Donaldson was southbound on George and the other car westbound on Queen when the two collided. Damage of $350 resulted to the Donaldson auto and $250 to the Sills vehicle.

ROMBOUGH. — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Earl Rombough, who passed away a year ago today, May 16th, 1954.

We lost a dad with a heart of gold, Who was more to us than words are told.

Memories are a keepsake very kept Of a Dad we loved and will never forget.

—Ever remembered by daughter Doris Gordon, Granddaughter Gloria.

ROMBOUGH. — In cherished memory of a dear husband and father, Earl Rombough, who passed away May 16th, 1954.

We little knew when we woke that morn

The sorrow the day would bring;
Before the sun had set at night
Death took from us our dearest thing.

To part with one we loved so dear,
To watch him suffer and cannot
No time to say good-bye
God took him home, it seemed
To a land of rest on high.
